STATE PARKS IN CONNECTICUT HAD 615,777 VISITORS IN TEN MONTHS

A record of visitors kept at the different state parks shows that there was a decrease this year in the ten months from January to October as compared with a similar period a year ago, but there was a large gain in the number of visitors in October.

One of the reasons for the decrease is seen in the poor beach and summer season this year, as Hammonasset beach had 460,867 visitors in 1926, but only 293,568 in 1927. But the October record this year at Hammonasset was far ahead of the same month a year ago.

Visitors to the Devil's Hopyard increased from 963 in October, 1926, to 2,162, in October of this year, and Fort Shantock had an increase from 1,891 in 1926 to 5,359 in 1927, for the ten-month period.

Both these parks, Shantok in Montville and Devil's Hopyard in Lyme, are within easy driving distance of this city and have been much visited by Norwich people.

Wolf Den Park, which is near the town of Putnam had an increasing number of visitors in October this year, showing 940 as compared with 320 a year ago and its total for the ten months this year was also larger than the same period a year ago. The figures were 8,799 and 5,594.

Several new parks which have been opened up this year are Buttonball Brook, Lyon Memorial, Quinebaug Pines, Dart Island and Great Hill.

The comparison for the state is shown as follows:

WAS GIVEN BEATING ON WEST MAIN STREET

Two stitches were required to close a cut on Joseph D'Oliver's forehead as a result of a beating up he received late Friday night, at the hands, as he alleges, of Frankie Podziewski. D'Oliver, who lives at No. 102 Talman street, also suffered severe contusions of the face and a sprained right hand. Podziewski, D'Oliver's alleged assailant, was held under bonds of $500.

The trouble started in "Jimmie's" restaurant on West Main street, near Thames square. According to D'Oliver the assault was unprovoked. He claims that for no reason at all Podziewski struck him while he was in the restaurant. D'Oliver left the restaurant and was on his way home when he claims Podziewski approached him and told him he was sorry he had struck him. D'Oliver then claims that he started to tell Podziewski that it was all right and then Podziewski promptly hit into him, knocked him down and kicked him in the face. Dr. Clarence G. Thompson attended the injured man at police headquarters.

Podziewski was arrested shortly after the assault by Sergt. John Casey, Sergt. Matthew Delaney and other officers.

Get Out With Your Pick and Shovel in the Hills!

That would seem to be the cheapest way to get coal. But of course, it isn't. Your time is much too valuable. The mines are far from where you live. And you probably would prove a pretty poor miner if you tried.

So let the miner dig that coal for you, the producer send it to your city, and the Edward Chappell Company deliver it to your house. Each of these steps is carried out in the most economical manner possible. When you buy from the Edward Chappell Company, you pay the lowest price possible with honest weight, good service and superior coal.

POETRY

The Radio Kibitzer

There is one special indoor pest
Whom I could slay with fiendish zest;
Some day I'll sock him on the crock
With monkey wrench or spanner,
He is the egg who claims to know
All things about your radio,
And when you let him hear your set,
He holds forth in this manner:

"Your speaker's sounding rather flat.
Why don't you turn your rheostat?
Your volume's weak, a new grid leak
Would help to make it greater.
If I were you I'd look around
And try to find a better ground;
A copper pipe is just the type
But not a rdiator.

I think you burn your tubes too high
The proper voltage to apply,
The normal rate to feed the plate,
If I were you, I'd look up.
You should increase your distance range.
Those tuning coils look mighty strange—
They're not the kind you'll find designed
To fit your present hook-up."

And yet I capture from the skies
Sweet madrigals and lullabies,
From silver throats the clearest notes
Of ballads, songs and snatches.
You'd think that since my set's no good
This captious next door neighbor would Prefer to mow his lawn or hoe
His pet potato patches. * * *

O, no! He's Johnny-on-the-spot
Each night at seven on the dot!
His cutting gibes and diatribes
Too long have nightly pricked me
Though homicide I haven't tried,
Within my heart I'm satisfied
That if I kill this pesky pill
No jury will convict me!
—Arthur L. Lippman, in Life.

Indian Summer

The old gray year is near his term in sooth,
And now with backward eye and soft-laid palm
Awakes to a golden dream of youth,
A second childhood lovely and most calm.
And the smooth hour about his misty head
An awning of enchanting splendour weaves,
Of maples, amber, purple, and rose-red,
And droop-limbed elms down-dropping golden leaves.
With still half-fallen lids he sits and dreams
Far in a hollow of the sunlit wood,
Lulled by the murmur of thin-threading streams,
Nor sees the polar armies overflood
The darkening barriers of the hills, nor hears
The north-wind ringing with a thousand spears.
—Archibald Lampman.

Mrs. Bangs—William, did you tell Billy he could go out after I said he couldn't?

Mr. Bangs — I did not. All I said was that if he dared to show his face inside the house again, I'd wallop him! —Judge.

Hostess—Thank you so much, Mr. Krashoffski, for your beautiful playing. What do you think of our piano?

The Pianist—Ah, madam, I do not in English know how to politely express, but if it were an automobile, it is what they call it in America the Elizabeth of tin.—London Opinion.

"Buyers of cars are more particular nowadays than they used to be, are they not?" we asked.

Organized labor throughout the world now has a total membership of more than 27,000,000, according to statistics completed by the international labor bureau at Geneva, Switzerland. Of this number, only about one-third, or 13,000,000 are affiliated with the International Federation of Trade Unions, which has its headquarters at Amsterdam. Of those countries where the bulk of organized labor is aligned with the Amsterdam organization, Germany heads the list with 4,392,868 members, while England comes second with 4,365,619. These are the only centers that total more than 1,000,000 members. Among the next larger ones are Australia with 890,000 workers; France with 800,000 and Belgium with 550,000. Special mention is made in the report of Argentina with its 82,000 workers who are affiliated with the Amsterdam international as one of the overseas countries that has made the most remarkable progress in this respect.

MRS. FORBUSH WAS FOUND IN WOODS AT CLAREMONT, N. H.

She Was Near Her Summer Home—Had Been Missing Since October 22—Dropped Out of Sight While Her Husband Waited For Her in the Lobby of a Theater in Washington—Scores of Police, 1,000 Boy Scouts and Hundreds of Civilians Aided Her Husband in Search—Disappearance is Ascribed to a Nervous Melody.

CLAREMONT, N. H., Nov. 13—(AP)—Mrs. Anne Ramsey Forbush of Canandaigua, N. Y., who has been missing since October 19, was found today in a shack in the woods in the Puckershire district of Claremont. She had been sought in this section of New Hampshire since a report that she had been seen near the Forbush summer home at Canaan, October 31.

Stephen Vansiot, a high school pupil, went out this morning with his father, Andrew Vansiot, to look for their dog which was missing. As they passed a lean-to on their farm the boy entered and found Mrs. Forbush sleeping. Chief of Police Daniel White of Claremont was notified and had the woman brought here. She was kept in seclusion until the arrival of her husband, Rev. Bascomb Forbush, who was out with a searching party at the time.

MRS. FORBUSH HAS BEEN MISSING SINCE OCT. 22

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Nov. 13—(AP)—Mrs. Anne Ramsay Forbush, wife of the Rev. Bascom E. Forbush, who has been missing since Oct. 22 when she disappeared from a Washington theatre was reported found today in the woods near her summer home at Claremont, New Hampshire, according to a message received here.

The disappearance of Mrs. Forbush, which was ascribed to a strange nervous malady which impelled her to seek solitude resulted in an extensive search of the wooded districts in the vicinity of Washington and adjacent sections of Virginia and Maryland.

Scores of police, 1,000 Boy Scouts, hundreds of civilians and members of veterans organizations participated in the search which was led by her husband.

The only thing that appeared to be a trace of the missing woman was the report of two Negroes Oct. 29 that they had caught a glimpse of a woman in the woods near Wheaton, Maryland, eight miles from Washington. She disappeared upon seeing them.

When police arrived they found an improvised shelter of packing boxes and a bed of leaves, but an intensive search of the neighborhood failed to disclose further trace of the woman.

Mrs. Forbush dropped out of sight while her husband waited for her in the lobby of a theatre they had attended in Washington where they had stopped off while en route from Florida on a motor trip, which the Rev. Mr. Forbush had undertaken in the hope that it would improve his wife's health.

German Heinkel Seaplane Wrecked

Pontoons and Part of the Wings Were Smashed by Waves at The Azores.

HORTA, Island of Fayal, Azores, Nov. 13—(AP)—The Heinkel [illegible] pro-airplane D-1220 lay a [illegible] twisted wreckage in the harbor [illegible] this seaport today as a result [illegible] latest of a series of accidents [illegible] beset her since taking off [illegible] Warnemuende, Germany, [illegible] For the United States [illegible] Azores. The crew was rescued [illegible] injured.

Taking advantage of almost perfect flying weather, the D-1220 in command of Horst Merz, took the air at 3 o'clock this morning with Harbor Grace, Newfoundland as its objective. After circling around a few times in the engine-warming process, the plane headed for the open sea and almost immediately the engines suddenly stopped and there was a terrific splash.

A motorboat with an Associated Press correspondent was in attendance at the take-off and rushed full speed to the scene where the crew was found swimming uninjured in the gasoline covered water.

A launch succeeded in getting the partly submerged plane in tow and reached shore where it was found to be a total wreck. The pontoons were completely smashed and one wing was missing.

The commander of the ill-fated plane and his companions, William Bock, radio operator and Fritz Rhode, mechanic, have not yet decided what their next step will be. It was announced, however, that the Junkers seaplane D-1230 which also has been at Horta awaiting favorable weather to hop off for the United States, had postponed further attempts to hop-off. Both the D-1230 and the D-1230 are backed by the Hamburg-American Steamship line in an effort to demonstrate the practicability of trans-Atlantic flying. The D-1230 has as a passenger, Lilie Dillenz, a Viennese actress who was represented today as being very anxious to continue on to America despite the crash of the D-1230.

HAROLD F. M'CORMICK BRINGS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Efforts to verify the report that Harold F. McCormick, multi-millionaire chairman of the executive board of the International Harvester company, is preparing suit for divorce from his second wife, Ganna Walska, have been unsuccessful with Mr. McCormick absent from the city, presumably in California.

The Herald-Examiner said it had learned that Mr. McCormick would charge Ganna Walska with desertion on the grounds that she refuses to join him here. She is in Paris, where she conducts a shop and owns several properties.

NEW ANGLE TO FARM RELIEF CONTROVERSY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Administration efforts looking to a solution of the farm relief problem were spurred on today by the new fuel added to the controversy with the report in New York of the business men's commission on agriculture.

Disorders in Native Quarter of Hankow

Many Tremendous Fires Were Were Started by Fleeing Soldiers.

HANKOW, Nov. 13—(AP)—The Violent disorders that broke out in the native quarters of Hankow yesterday when the military dictator, General Tang Seng-Chi, fled before the approach of the Nanking nationalists, continued today but with diminished intensity.

The many tremendous fires that were started by the fleeing soldiers were partially under control and some semb ance of order replaced the panic that followed the outrages perpetrated by hordes of leaderless soldiers and civilian loiters.

General Tang Sehn-Chi and his followers are retreating westward. They are entrenching at Hanyang. Army headquarters, situated in the former British concession, set on fire yesterday, blazed for three hours. Serious damage was done to the customs house next door.

The British, German and Russian concessions were strongly barricaded. Chinese occupying the Russian concessions attempted to repulse the so dier and civilian looters, but without great success.

The Japanese and French landed additional forces, but up to this morning the British had not acted.

Tang Sehn-Chi's deputy commander, seeking to assert his authority, issued a proclamation, declaring that "as the commander is absent, I with the 20th army will maintain order and safety at Wuchang."

No attention was paid to the proclamation, and the outlook is most uncertain.

Among other buildings set on fire and looted by the followers of Tang Sen-Chi and the civilian mob was the General Labor Union building. A guard which had been placed on this building fired in the air, hoping to disperse the rioters, but their action was futile, as all persons within the building and the guards themselves were stripped of their valuables and clothing.

Mudge, stated clerk of the Presbyterian general assembly.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Plans for a movement in 500 cities to educate the voter so that he will know what he is voting for as well as to "get out the vote" in the 1928 elections, were announced today by John Hays Hammond, chairman of the Department of Political Education of the National Civic Federation.

Although present political conditions are better than in the days of "Boss Tweed," Mr. Hammond's statement said, everyone will agree that "all the greater is the obligation resting upon us, as enlightened and patriotic citizens, to refuse to tolerate the rottenness which we know to exist today."

SIX BANDITS IN AUTO ARE AT WORK IN CONNECTICUT

They Are Operating on a Small Scale, Preying on Parked Motorists—The Gang is Credited With Stealing Automobiles in New York City, Meriden, Bristol and Watertown and Hold-Ups in Cheshire, Southington, Meriden, Hamden and Bristol.

MERIDEN, Nov. 13.—(AP)—While sitting in his automobile, parked on a lonely country road here late Saturday night, John Blynn, 78 Williams street, Wallingford, fell victim to the gang of bandits that has been operating in this vicinity since last Wednesday night. Six bandits, using a touring car stolen in Watertown and owned by Perry's, Inc., 41 Jefferson street, Waterbury, participated in the hold up.

Blynn reported to the police that five of the bandits were armed.

Four of the bandits confronted Blynn, relieving him of $45; while their two companions waited in the automobile. One of the bandits, wielding a weapon and using a flashlight, appeared to be leader of the gang, ordering Blynn to put up his hands and then ordering his companions to search the victim.

The driver of the car was hatless. Blynn said, wore a gray coat and had a light complexion. Three bandits wore caps, a fourth wore a felt hat; while another bandit wore a lumber jacket or a sweater.

This gang is credited with stealing automobiles in New York city, Meriden, Bristol, and Watertown and is believed to have participated in two hold-ups in Cheshire, one in Southington, one in Meriden, another in Hamden, and one in Bristol.

From reports received by the police since Wednesday night the bandits first began their operations in this vicinity, the number in the gang is elastic. On Wednesday night four men were reported in the gang, Friday night three men composed the gang; while six men were used in the latest job reported.

While in Watertown, the gang abandoned an automobile stolen in Bristol and owned by David Goodhart, 46 Bond street, Hartford, substituting this automobile which had run out of gasoline, for one owned by Perry's, Inc. Goodhart's car, when found, was equipped with marker numbers issued to George Miller, of Turnpike road, Wallingford, and believed to have been stolen from his car Wednesday or Thursday night of last week.

The bandits now have in their possession marker plates belonging to the Goodhart and Perry, Inc., cars.

The bandits thus far have operated on a small scale, relieving parked motorists of small amounts of money, getting fuel for the stolen automobiles at the point of the gun, and in Bristol stealing a revolver from a hardware store.

Although the bandits apparently started from New York city where they stole an automobile, the police believe that they are well acquainted with the territory in this vicinity. This belief is based on the fact that for the most part, the bandits have confined their operations on roads and in municipalities that have little police protection.

MORE REVELATIONS ABOUT DETECTIVES IN OIL CASE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—More revelations touching the operations of the Burns detectives in the Fall-Sinclair oil trial jur yscandal were made public tonight by government counsel.

This was by way of reply to public declarations by William J. Burns that the story told to these counsel by William J. McMullin and containing startling accusations against the internationally known detective was a "tissue of lies."

Coincidentally, counsel stated that Burns would be given an opportunity tomorrow to make his third appearance before the grand jury to present his statement and submit himself to cross-questioning on the basis of the affidavit made by McMullin, who was sent here by the Burns agency to shadow the trial jury and who reported to the government within a week.

Among other things government counsel said McMullin had told them that he had been cautioned by Burns and his son, W. Sherman, to "stick to his story" and to "carry on" before the grand jury and that he would be "taken care of" later by the Burns organization.

McMullin, who was known to the Burns people as William V. Long, with the code designation L-86, told government counsel that he expected "a real hand-out" from the elder Burns. He was told that if he received any reward at Philadelphia to report immediately to Owen J. Roberts, of special oil counsel there and if any reward was given him here to report to District Attorney Gordon.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 13—(AP)—The flood-scarred capital fo Vermont, struggling to recover from last week's calamity, paused in its labors today for one hour, in order to attend divine worship. The union service held in the auditorium of the city hall was the first Protestant church service since the flood.

For sixty minutes Montpelier, bustled mightily in the work of restoring streets and roads and wiping out the ravages of the Winooski river overflow, laid aside its picks and shovels. Responding to the invitation of Governor John E. Weeks the citizenry at 10.30 o'clock this morning left their work and came, without taking time to don their "Sunday best" to attend the service. SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The official government organ "La Nacion" says it has learned from semi-official sources that the ministers of Great Britain and France to Bolivia have protested to the Bolivian government against the employment of German army officers as instructors in the Bolivian army in violation of the Versailles treaty.

The newspaper says further that the officers, anticipating such a protest, first became citizens of the free state of Danzig, in order that the Bolivian government could justify itself in employing them on the ground that they were no longer German citizens, all of the officers, the paper says, served in the World war.

Mrs. Norsinski told police that her husband had returned home intoxicated and snatched his rifle from the wall, declaring that he intended to kill her. HUDSON TUNNEL OPEN TO VEHICULAR TRAFFIC

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Traffic that exceeded the estimates capacity of the new Holland vehicular tunnel between New York and New Jersey by 300 cars an hour today subjected the ventilating system of the tube to a test which proved it three times as efficient as had been expected, official said.

Between the time the tunnel was opened at 12:01 a. m. today and 4 p. m., 28,000 vehicles passed under the Hudson river between Manhattan and Jersey City, Morris M. Prelich, secretary of the New York and Tunnel commission, announced. At such a rate, 42,000 vehicles would pass through the tunnel within 24 hours, he said.

The average speed of tunnel traffic today dropped below the anticipated 35 miles per hour. During the peak of the rush hours, the lines of automobiles slowed down to 10 or 15 miles an hour. Cars with steaming radiators and those obviously enfeebled by long use were barred from the tube by inspecting officers as a safety measure.

The ventilating system was pronounced perfect by Prelich, who said that instead of the expected four parts of carbon-monoxide to 10,000 parts of fresh air, there had been even during the greatest rush not more than 1.8 parts poison gas to the measure of fresh air. Most of the time only 1.8 parts of carbon-monoxide were present in 10,000 parts of air, he said.

TO START DRAFTING OF A NEW REVENUE BILL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Having wound up its public hearings, the house ways and means committee will retire behind closed doors tomorrow to start the actual drafting of a new revenue bill.

A number of its members are known to have definite views concerning what should go into the prospective measure, and as in years past, it is expected that more than one heated argument will mark the discussions before the final product is reported to the house.

Party lines undoubtedly will assert themselves in the committee and there is no assurance that completion of the task will find republicans and democrats in the same accord that developed two years ago in the writing of the committe report on the present revenue law.

MAYOR TRACY NOT A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 13—The republicans on the city party list will gather in caucus Monday night to nominate candidates to oppose the democratic ticket selected at the caucus of that party last week. Because of the wide interest taken in the city elections this year and the prediction of a contest for the position of city clerk, a large gathering is expected. Among the more prominently mentioned for city are Alfred R. Hadfield, Arthur L. Clark, John R. Edgarton and Russell A. Andrews. The contest for this office is expected to be the only one on the ticket. The city committee and a special committee have been busy making a canvass to make a decision on a candidate for mayor to oppose John R. Pickett, the democratic nominee. Charles A. Gates, who showed great strength in being elected mayor in three consecutive terms, has been mentioned as a candidate. Representative Charles R. Pomeroy has also been named on the prospective list.

Mayor John C. Tracy, who is completing a somewhat hectic two-year administration, definitely stated today that he was not a candidate for renomination. He admitted being interested in the coming elections but added that his interest was wholly from the sidelines and that after December 5, the day of the election he was through with politics. Although many notable improvements have been made in the city during the past administration Mayor Tracy feels that there are too many "personal encumbrances" in politics. He intimated that within a year he may be residing in another part of the country.

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 13—Mrs. Annie Matvink, wife of Savva Matvink, self-confessed slayer of Mrs. Annie Berkowitz in a shooting at the latter's home on Prospect street here Friday night, November 4, was released from the county jail at Brooklyn Saturday upon order of Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson. Mrs. Matvink had been held in connection with the murder while an investigation was being conducted to determine whether or not she had a part in the killing. It is expected that the coroner's finding will be awaited before Matvink is taken before the police court here to be bound over to superior court. It is possible that the accused may be tried in superior court at the criminal session in January. Matvink confessed that he went to the Berkowitz home holding a grievance against Jake Berkowitz over an alleged mortgage transaction in which he lost about $6,000. The accused claimed that he went to the house to get his money or "get" Jake and that the slug from the shot gun which he fired was intended for Berkowitz. After shooting the woman Matvink chased Berkowitz down the street and had beat him over the head with a revolver when intervention came. The investigation into the shooting is still underway here by County Detective William E. Jackson and the police department.

John Simmons and his family have returned to make their residence in Willimantic after spending two years in New York city and two years in Florida. Simmons went to Florida when the big boom got under way. A member of his family purchased a farm about 25 miles east of Tampa in a small town named Lakeland, now a city of 30,000 population. Mr. Simmons met with good success during the boom period conducting a vegetable and berry farm. He says it began to look as if Florida was the Eutopia of the nations but the land rush and soaring prices suddenly exploded and towns where it was very difficult to find even small tenements are now plastered with "for sale" signs.

The contest being staged among about 100 pupils of the seventh and eighth grades in the Mansfield schools in filling out a questionnaire on the town's history has been closed and the winners will be announced at a meeting of the judges Monday evening. Three money prices were offered by President Charles L. Beach of Connecticut Agricultural college. Nearly 100 returns have been filed with the three judges, Archibald W. Buchanan Sr., agent for the state board of education, Miss Edwina Whitney, librarian at the college, and Miss Elsie G. Marsh, librarian at Mansfield Center.

The construction of state road on the Mansfield Center-Warrenville road is progressing rapidly on a stretch of about 1,600 feet leading to the north and south approaches to the new concrete bridge being erected over the Fenton river to replace the old "twin" bridges. Two treacherous curves and a bad grade are being eliminated in the new road surface. Some 200 feet of new road is being laid north of the bridge and 1,400 feet south. One of the abutments of the new bridge is complete and the other nearing completion. When both are done the forms for the bridge proper will be built and concrete poured.

The awning started to blaze in several places and some damage was done before the fire was extinguished with several pails of water by Raymond L. Angier, member of the garage concern.

WESTERLY

SEEK TO FREE BRIDGE PIERS, THREE MEN GO OVERBOARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Nov. 13.—In their endeavor to free the caissons under the Broad street bridge crossing the Pawcatuck river from the Rhode Island to the Connecticut side, Saturday morning about 9 o'clock, three men were thrown into the river when their skiff overturned in the swift running waters. Although Arthur Frasier was unable to swim, he grasped wooden planking about the pier and was hauled to safety on the bridge above, his two companions, William Hamilton and John Moran, escaping with nothing more serious than a thorough soaking. The freshet water of a week ago last Thursday night had washed large tree trunks with spreading branches down stream, until they became lodged in the more than thirty piers placed in the river bed and against which all manner of debris becamed lodged, with increasing pressure upon the building and bridge supports. The last meeting of the Westerly Town Council considered the situation with the result that President Horace E. Burdick was given power to have the obstructions removed. The job was undertaken by the Westerly Highway department, Adolph L. Leon, engineer, and the men thrown into the river were department employes.

The three men with axes, saws and other tools, left the rear of the C. W. Willard Hardware company store on High street to go down stream. It was planned to throw over an anchor to slow down the boat before it reached the bridge, but so fast was the boat carried down stream on the swift current, that the boat crashed against the bridge pier next to the Barrows block. The force of the water quickly turned the boat over on its side while the waters kept it pinned against the caisson. The men gained the bridge above them. Later they returned and with ropes and motor truck with chains and hooks through a bridge manhole cleared away much of the first lodged tree trunk and branches. On the other side of the bridge more work has to be done to free obstructions.

On Dead Man's Curve, or the west end of the Noose Neck Hill state highway, at the junction of High and Pleasant streets in Westerly, there was another automobile accident about 7 o'clock Saturday morning. As in the many previous cases on this sharp curve, one of the automobiles in collision was left hanging over the stone wall at the Miss Hannah Crandall property, at 158 High street. Although both autos were badly smashed and glass showered into the street, no one was injured. A Locomobile sedan, 99-575 Mass., owned by John C. Rice, of 230 Huntington avenue, Boston, and driven by Eugene F. Wermuth, of 18 Ashton street, Boston, proceeding to New York, skidded on the wet cement surface of the curve and collided with the Studebaker coach, 3N-6-87 N. Y., owned and driven by David Segal, of 31 Webster Ridge, New Rochelle, N. Y., which was going to Providence. Harry Segal, of 260 West 76th street, New York, was a passenger in the Studebaker. Policeman Leroy H. Norman was at the site of the wreck, which was visited by Chief Thomas E. Brown to investigate. As both parties were covered by insurance, the damage done in the crash was left to the insurance companies to make good.

Sunday morning about 9 o'clock, two automobiles came together on Broad street, in front of the addition to the Westerly Memorial and Public Library building. A Ford touring car, driven by George Letourneasis, of 329 North Front street, New Bedford, Mass., who sounded his horn, came over Union street to Broad street just as a Studebaker roadster, owned and driven by Frederick P. Babcock, of the Watch Hill road, proceeding toward Elm street, struck the Massachusetts auto about midship, while it was in the center of Broad street. The Ford received a dent in the left side of the body, the left front fender and running board was smashed, while the other car had a right front fender broken and the front bumper broken in two. The auto was reported proceeding at a rapid rate. In the Ford were Mrs. Lydia Letourneasis, Arthur Frechette, of 28 Vine street, and Leo Laliberty, all of New Bedford. At the Westerly police station they reported suffering from shock and bruises. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and upon examination found no marks of injuries, but advised them to see a physician on reaching New Bedford. The accident was investigated by Patrolman Michael Curtin.

William Sorenson, 27, of North Stonington, was driver of an auto Friday night on the Bradford-Westerly road when 7-year-old John Dirico of Oak street was struck and injured so seriously that he was placed on the danger list at the Westerly hospital, from two fractures of the skull. Following Sorenson's detention at the police station, he was arraigned Saturday morning. He pleaded not guilty to a complaint of reckless operation of the auto, preferred by Chief Brown following investigations by Officers Robert M. Keesel and Frank Knight, and before Clerk Herbert P. Clark was admitted to bail. William A. Wilcox, of Pawcatuck, became surety for his appearance in the sum of $1,500, at the Third District court session next Friday before Judge Oliver H. Williams. At the Westerly hospital, two pieces of bone were removed which pressed against Dirico's brain and his condition late Sunday afternoon was reported favorable for recovery.

"Serving and Suffering for Others," was the subject of the sermon delivered Sunday morning at the First Baptist church by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor, when the British and Colonial Great War Veterans were special guests. Forming at their headquarters, Caledonian hall, and headed by three bagpipers in kilts, the veterans marched up Main street and through Broad street, where they entered the church as pipers played on the sidewalk. The return was made in a body to their hall in the Narragansett block on Main street to the music of the pipers, shortly before noon.

Rev. Lee W. Weston, a graduate of St. Thomas Seminary, Hartford, having been recently appointed by Bishop John J. Nilan, of Hartford, officiated at Sunday morning masses as curate at St. Michael's church, Pawcatuck. This is the young priest's first appointment.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church, Miss Susie May Terranova, became the bride of Natale Servidio of Westerly. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Henry Bruno, who celebrated the nuptial mass. The organist, Mrs. F. G. Ahern played the wedding music. The matron of honor was Mrs. Joseph Manfredi, cousin of the groom and the best man was Sylvester Morrone. The bridesmaids were a sister of the bride, Miss Fannie Terranova, Rose Grispino, and Mary Cosentino. The ushers were Antonio Curzio, Pasquale Cofone and Antonio Fusaro. A niece of the bride, Anna Gencarella, was flower girl and the ring bearer was James Sposato. The bride wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with Spanish lace. Her veil of Spanish lace was held by a band of pearl beads and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor was dressed in yellow georgette, with picture hat to match, and carried yellow roses. The bridesmaids wore pink satin, orchid satin and yellow satin respectively. All three wore black satin hats and carried pink carnations. The little flower girl had a peach colored frock, with hat to match, and carried a basket of pink carnations. The ringbearer was dressed in white satin. Following the ceremony at the church a breakfast was served at the home of the groom, 39 Pleasant street. In the evening, from 4 o'clock until 11, a reception was held for a large number of relatives and friends at Champlin's hall on Main street. Music for dancing was furnished by the Imperial orchestra, and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Servidio will make their home at 39 Pleasant street.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Nichols and daughter Margaret, returned to East Providence Sunday afternoon after visiting in Westerly.

Miss Mary T. Thorp has returned to her duties as teacher at Barhard school, Providence, after passing Armistice day and the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Job Thorp.

Miss Mabel A. Saunders, Westerly deputy town clerk was a week end visitor in New York.

THREE FALL FROM STAGING AT NEW HAWKINS HILL HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 13.—John Adam Medick and his son, Adam, and Alfred Palmer, fell this morning from a staging when it broke, on the new house being built by the father on Hawkins hill. Mr. Palmer struck on the handle of his hammer. Thinking that his hip might be broken, Adam Medick drove him to Backus hospital, after Dr. J. H. McLaughlin had seen the patient. An x-ray was taken and he returned to his home to await the verdict Monday. John Adam Medick was painfully injured about the ribs, where he had been hurt several years ago.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 13.—Witoldo Bakanowski has received from the government his licenses, numbers and wave length assignment, to operate a radio broadcasting station at his home just over the northern borough boundary. The lad is in his second year at Plainfield high, and is already a master of the Morse code, with some exceptional radio communications to his credit. Two cards from England received this week, tell of his broadcasting being picked up across the Atlantic.

His transmission is—One 210 tube in Coupled Hartley ckt. Receiver-Remarts and one stage Audio. There is no other broadcasting station in this vicinity.

Saturday afternoon, 40 members of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., L. G. Drescher master, made a regular expeditionary pilgrimage to Windsor, Conn. W. H. Barron, a former W. M. of the local lodge, sponsored the call. The home degree team which including the officers at the regular station numbers up to 25, carried out the exemplification of the Master Masons degree in full regalia. A fine supper, as well as a good morning lunch, was served the visiting brethren.

Windsor lodge, Washington, No. 70, as well as visitors from other parts of the state, expressed their appreciation of the work in the highest terms.

Postmaster William T. Crumb has received natification from Superintendent W. F. Yarrington of the first division of the railway mail service with offices at Boston, telling of the discontinuance of the Providence and Willimantic railway post offices.

Effective Nov. 1, R. P. O. service on Providence & Willimantic, trains 4306 and 4311 was discontinued. Star route service leaving Plainfield, Conn., on arrival of train 704, the boat train from New London, and Providence at 3:40 p. m., was established between Plainfield and Providence, supplying all offices between those points formerly supplied by trains 4306 and 4311.

Also a trip of electric car closed pouch service was established from Willimantic via Baltic and Hanover to Versailles, Conn., daily except Sunday, on the car leaving Willimantic at 5:00 p. m.

It is expected that this truck service will be as satisfactory and efficient as the daily star route which operates here in place of the former trains which were taken from the schedule with the daylight time change.

Several local parties took advantage of the fine weather Sunday to visit the flood areas in Moosup and Sterling. Recognizing a good set of high water pictures, secured in these towns at the time when the section was under its highest water, the state department of highways, has purchased a set of S. E. Boucher, which he secured from different points of vantage.

Three Red Cross memberships have been given by relatives in memory of those who were always members as long as they lived. They are Mrs. Sara Briggs, given by her daughter, Mrs. Emily Chatfield; John N. Lewis, given by his wife and daughter, Miss Bertha Lewis; and Mrs. Sarah Brown Eccleston, given by her sister, Mrs. E. M. Swift.

The Red Cross roll call committee is to entertain the Roll Call canvassers and the Boy Scouts who assisted in the work, Tuesday evening at 6:30 at a supper in the Methodist vestry. None of the funds collected for Red Cross work, or from the treasury, are used for this purpose. The committee greatly appreciates the work so faithfully done by all the young women, which is going to bring the memberships over the nine hundred dollars given the chapter as its quota. The receipts are not all in yet.

POETRY

God Meets Me in the Mountains

God meets me in the mountains when I climb alone and high,
Above the wrangling sinners and the jangling devotees,
Up where the tapered spruce will guide my glances to the sky
And canyon walls will mutely preach their mighty homilies
In hush so dense that I can sense—is it my pulses drumming?
Or God's light footfall coming through the silvery aspen trees?

Some way I seem to lose him in the jostle of the street,
But on a twisty deer trail, as I trudge along alone,
A mystic presence in the forest often stays my feet—
No vision borrowed from a saint, but awesomely my own.
I feel it smite my spirit white, the prophet's taintless passion,
As ancient as the fashion of the pine tree's rugged cone.

For me no school could give it life, as none can deal it death,
Up through the pines' red pillars and across the snow and shale,
Where science and theology alike are but a breath,
I follow marks that make the wisest book an idle tale.
Why should I squint at faded print to glimpse his timeworn traces?
God walks the lonely places yet, where men first found his trail.

Where pines reach up the mountain and the mountains up the blue,
And, tense with some expectancy, the lifting ledges frown,
The high desire of the hills is my desire too,
For there my spirit laughs to fling its worldly duffle down
And, shaking free exultantly, calls to its great companion!
God meets me in the canyon when I miss him in the town.

Red Haws

If you have ever run through autumn woods—
Wild and free—
A boy—a girl—with laughter on your lips—
Come with me
To where a rooted creek bank lifts a bright
Red haw tree.

O, shake the tree and scramble in the leaves
At your feet,
And crush your white teeth through the scarlet globe's
Mellow meat—
Then close your eyes—and taste once more—red haws
Tangy—sweet.

Forget the old dim streets where only long
Shadows grow—
Remember how a young glad heart could lift
Years ago—
Because a haw tree lit the autumn woods—
Let us go.

—Grace Noll Crowell in Christian Science Monitor.

Sunshine is at such a premium in England that valuable reptiles in their new house at the Zoological Gardens of London are supplied with the artificial variety. In addition to the electrical supply of ultraviolet light the cages are equipped with heating apparatus controlled by automatic thermostats so that the current is shut off when the temperature arises above 83 degrees Fahrenheit and is turned on again when it falls below 77. Glass separates the public from the cages and helps conserve the summer atmosphere necessary to the health and happiness of snakes. As this were not luxury enough, windows made of glass that admits ultra-violet light help the big boa constrictors and their formidable brethren enjoy life when the sun shows his face.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON RED CROSS ROLL CALL THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 13—Nothing more important, at the hour this was written, loomed on Danielson's Sunday news horizon than the fact that, during the present week, the annual Red Cross roll call drive is to be conducted here. This is important. It is a matter that interests everyone interested in humanity and its destiny of death. Not a pleasant subject, but right at the forefront right now.

To sink this proposition under the skin, it may be related that many of those who read these lines will not be living to read the Red Cross roll call appeal of 1928. And God only knows who will pass on in the meantime—or how.

"Or how" is significant. It may be by flood, as did a goodly battalion in northern New England a few days ago, or through some other appalling disaster. Whatever the future holds in the way of misfortune to humanity, the Red Cross is preparing now to care for it. Each year brings its calamities. The coming year will be no exception. These national tragedies may not be staged in this section of New England, but when they come, as they will, it will be mighty nice to recall that when the relief work starts one has a share in it, wherever in this broad land it may be. The Red Cross workers are recommended for one's most considerate attention when they call to see how you would like to share in a magnificent work for stricken humanity. It is good to give while one is living—it cannot be done after one is dead.

A death at the week end was that of Charles Edwin Hopkins, 71, at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, where he underwent an operation the past week. Following Mr. Hopkins' death Friday night the body was brought here in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

Mr. Hopkins was a native of Scituate, R. I. He lived in that section as a youth, later at Clayville, which is nearby, and for the past 21 or 22 years has been a resident of the town of Killingly, living most of the time in Danielson, but for a while at what is now Goodyear. Mr. Hopkins for years prior to his death was in the employ of the Quinebaug company. He leaves a son, Herbert, who is commander of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, and a daughter, Mrs. Hazel Breayea. Mrs. Jennie Wilbur of Providence is a half-sister. Mrs. Hopkins died six years ago next April.

WATER BEING DRAWN FROM POND TO LOCATE BODIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 13—In an effort to determine definitely whether a woman and possibly a child, went to death with Jerome Vincent Sheldon when his car plunged off the highway, through a guard rail and into a mill pond near what is known as Keegan's mill at Wilsonville sometime during last Thursday night, water was being drawn off at various outlets from Oxford, Mass., southward today, while State Police Officers Nelson and Castagne of the Danielson barracks conducted the department's search of the water at Wilsonville for the bodies. The flood waters of ten days ago are still pouring down, if in reduced manner, in all streams through this section and are hampering the search that may eventually yield more dead as the grist of a night tragedy about which a dead man cannot talk, and he is the only one, as it now appears, who could.

Meanwhile Sheldon's body has been claimed by his brother-in-law and taken from Putnam to Avon, Mass., for burial.

The young man formerly was a resident of Putnam. it has been established over the week end, and is understood to have been in that city on business early Thursday evening. Late this afternoon little was known about how his car came to be where it was found in the mill pond on the morning following his departure for his home in Watertown, Mass. He is said to have been unmarried and so there is little or no information as to how a woman's hat and pocketbook and a baseball, evidently a child's plaything, and a milk bottle were found in his car when it was hauled out of the pond in which it had been submerged.

From the home on the west side the funeral of little Lorraine Heneault, 9, daughter of Alcid Heneault, was held Saturday morning, with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Anthelème Mollard, M. S., being celebrant of the mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S. The bearers were Theodore Heneault, Alphonse Godreau, Sheldon Cosette and Bellemore Godreau. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At her home on North Main street Saturday afternoon at one o'clock the funeral services for Mrs. Addie C. Strait were conducted by Rev. Hardin W. Gaylord. The bearers were C. A. Tillinghast, Clinton Pellett, Herbert Chase, J. H. Milligan, Winthrop Short and George B. Guild. Burial was in the cemetery at South Killingly. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Many members of the Putnam, Plainfield and Lebanon chapters of the D. A. R. came here and, with other guests, were in attendance at the regular meeting of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., at a monthly meeting in the Westfield Congregational church parish house the past week end.

An interesting feature of the business meeting was the reading of a letter from the regent of the chapter at Honolulu to the regent of the local chapter. Seven applications for membership were received and acted upon favorably.

Katherine A. Nettleton, Derby, state regent, and Miss Emeline A. Street, New Haven, state vice regent, were guests of the afternoon and each spoke interestingly and entertainingly of the work the Daughters of the American Revolution are doing in the state and in the nation.

Coffee, sandwiches and cake were served by the hostesses, Miss M. J. Mendell, Mrs. Harry E. Back, Miss Bernice Cogswell, Mrs. J. Dyer Potter, Mrs. Hugh L. Mason, Mrs. G. O. Thomas and Mrs. J. H. Milligan.

For the interest of those who may have some errand in an outlying section of Killingly and who are fearful of setting out upon it because of the danger of running into washed out roads, it may be mentioned that it is now possible to get safely and easily to any part of the town of Killingly. Temporary repairs have been made and roads can be traversed. This does not mean that there are not points where the flood waters have washed out the gutters and left dangerous gutters, which have to be watched for, but that a competent driver can take a car about anywhere in the town without worrying too much about highway conditions. Complete restoration of the roads is a matter of time.

Looking up from a Saskatchewan item in the Sunday papers this morning telling of temperatures of 16 below zero up there, it was something of a consolation to find the temperature here up to 61 degrees at 1.00 o'clock this afternoon.

The Cloud Digger has hopped out of the flood country—he has been living at Oneco for years—and is now over in Central Village, all of which may mean that future forecasts may be dated "Packer, Conn." where he has not lived since the kaiser really amounted to something, not that it makes any difference in the coal bills.

Motor traffic poured through Danielson in almost solid lines today, an evidence of what a temptation for riding a pleasant Sunday can be this late in the season.

Out in Hartford the solons who administer the affairs of the motor vehicle department have given until Tuesday of this week to all car owners who want to retain their present numbers during 1928, and these people, for no particular reason at all, insofar as at least one of them is concerned, have paid in advance or will pay within the next 24 hours.

During the current week priests of St. James' parish will continue with their work of taking the annual parish census, a work that involves making personal calls at the home of all parishioners in Danielson, South Killingly, Killingly Center, Brooklyn, Hampton and parts of Canterbury.

Business men of Danielson have combined to make a pool that is now approaching the $3,000 mark, to be expended in buying gifts that will go to the people who trade with them during the holiday shopping season, that is so near at hand as to be surprising. This gift-giving proposition is intended as one means of keeping Danielson in the forefront of shopping centers in this section of southern New England, and, it may be said, it is very far from a silly idea.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Woodworth and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Anderson were week end visitors in New York.

Not all the cock pheasants in this territory have been knocked off by hunters during the open season now drawing to a close. A Danielson man, this morning, had to stop his car to allow two of the beautiful creatures to walk out of his path on a dirt highway no further away than the Mashentuck section, about two and a half miles from here.

So avid was the demand for Bulletins in Danielson Saturday morning that the borough's supply was exhausted shortly after 10 a. m. and no more were available from the original source of supply. Digging into the records to see what a newspaperman writes in instances like this, which are consistently regular, one finds that the answer is "Subscribe Now!" It may be mentioned as an afterthought that the Bulletin gives one the local news, along with general news, more or less promptly, to be reasonably conservative and unbostful.

A female police dog pup that was about to get into print by reason of being lost and advertised for, cleared up the entire situation by getting killed by an automobile at the junction of Reynolds and Broad street early Saturday evening, and so takes [illegible]

PUTNAM

SUNDAY FRIENDLY EVENING HELD WITH LARGE ATTENDANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 13.—The first of the "Sunday Friendly Evenings" was held this week. This series of meetings will be similar to those held last winter and which proved so popular last winter and which were called Nine Friendly Meetings but this winter there will be more than double that number. There will be frequent use of motion pictures, together with other special features that will be of interest to all who attend. The first picture which was shown today was the film version of "The Magic Garden" of the novel bearing that name by the late Gene Stratton Porter. It was a strong story of enduring loyalty, with Margaret Morris and Raymond Keane in the leading roles.

The programs for the friendly evenings throughout the winter and early springs are as follows: Nov. 20, motion picture service, "Little Lord Fauntleroy;" Nov. 27, stereopticon lecture, "From Scrooby to Plymouth with the Pilgrims;" Dec. 4, motion picture service, "One Increasing Purpose;" Dec. 11, motion picture service, "Bread of the Sea;" Dec. 18, motion picture service, "The Goose Hangs High;" Dec. 25, Christmas Sunday evening Cantata; Jan. 1, service of communion; Jan. 8, motion picture service, "The Gorilla Hunt;" Jan. 15, stereopticon lecture on "Turkey of Today;" Jan. 22, motion picture service, "Her Honor the Mayor;" Jan. 29, motion picture service, "Hills of Kentucky," with Rin Rin Tin; Feb. 5, motion picture service, "A Regular Scout;" Feb. 12, motion picture service, "Abraham Lincoln;" Feb. 19, service of music; Feb. 26, motion picture series, "The Lost World;" March 4, service of communion; March 11, motion picture service, "Forever After;" March 18, motion picture service, "White Flannels;" March 26, motion picture service, "Private Izzy Murphy;" April 1, "The Heart of Maryland."

The many lovers of the French drama again had the opportunity of witnessing one of the most captivating and interesting plays seen here for a long time. La Troupe Nationale, a well know dramatic organization, gave this afternoon and evening "Le Demon de la Nuit" before crowded houses at St. John's hall on Providence street. It was a four-act melodrama with plenty of intense and dramatic scenes and full of comedy as well. All of the roles were taken by actors and actresses of experience and was given under the direction of Albert J. Crepeau. The story of Le Demon de la Nuit" held the attention of the audiences from start to finish. These players are frequently seen here and always attract large audiences.

One of the several attractions for the week-end and not the least of them was the "nickel bazaar" given Friday and Saturday nights at the high school auditorium for the benefit of the Athletic association of the high school. There was an assortment of booths offering articles for a nickel and there was also music and vaudeville each evening. Among the entertainment groups was a musical trio, Miss Stella Kubaska, Miss Helen Varbedian and Miss Vincent Wilbur. "Joshing the Janitor" was given by Miss Ensor Danielson and Kenneth Graves. Dominick Bove and Alfred Benoit gave a little skit entitled "A Lesson in Love."

Among the many booths were the following: Odd Fellows, auction booth; Parents-Teachers' association, flowers; Elks, fishing pond and cane game; Rotary club, grab bag; P. H. S. girls, peanuts, popcorn and candy; Knights of Columbus, novelty booth; Masons, hot dogs and coffee; high school pupils, side show; Pocahontas and Red Men; trade school, cooking department; P. H. S. students, country grocery; Eastern Star, fortune telling; P. H. S. alumni, cake and ice cream. The hall was filled to capacity on both evening and the athletic association added substantially to their treasury.

Michael Zotta, who has conducted a shoe-repairing shop on Pomfret street for a number of years, is retiring from business for the present and will sail within a few days for a visit of several months with relatives in Italy.

Putnam's first dog show, held in Hammond hall Saturday afternoon, proved highly gratifying to its sponsors from every point of view. Although there was a number of other attractions the same day, the attendance was large including many out-of-town visitors.

The entries included nearly every class and breed of dog, and there were but few owners of dogs within a radius of twenty-five miles that were not represented.

To give an idea of how wide spread the interest was, there were pedigreed dogs on exhibition from Providence and East Providence and Newport, from Windsor, Conn., Framingham, Mass., North Grosvenordale, Thompson, Pomfret, Hopedale, Pascoag, Pawtucket, the latter three in Rhode Island. These are names taken at random from the list of exhibitors.

The list of prizes and awards will not be completed until tomorrow.

The show was held in Hammond hall by the Windham County Kennel club under the sanction of the American Kennel club and with, of course, A. K. C. rulings. Alexander Maitland, of Thompson, was chairman of the committee in charge.

Terrance McGarry, son of Captain and Mrs. John J. McGarry, a student at the Stanton Loomis Preparatory academy, was one of eleven who took the competitive examination for the National Guard appointment to West Point, U. S. Military academy. The examination was held at Hartford last week and Mr. McGarry spent the rest of the week with his parents in the city.

The high school orchestra made its first public appearance before the school on Friday afternoon, during the music period. Miss Dougan, the supervisor of music in the Putnam schools, is the leader. The orchestra this year besides the director, is composed of eight students, playing the cornet, violin, saxophone, drums and piano.

Miss Ruth Wiley of School street spent the week-end with friends in Boston.

John Lynch, of Norwich, has been the recent guest of friends in the city.

Florent Otjens has returned to Long Island City after a visit with his family, who are visiting relatives on the Benezit road.

Mrs. Robert Brownlie of Belles street has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. John Perrin, at Worcester.

Dr. Garcin, of Dayville, has been made a member of the visiting staff at the Day Kimball hospital.

Manuel Serpis has returned to his home in Boston, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Anas, of Mechanics street.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Boehm, of Pawtucket, have been visiting Mrs. Boehm's parents.

Miss Dorothy Keefe, a student at Connecticut College for Women at New London, has been spending a short vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Keefe, Bing street.

Henry B. Burgess, machinist instructor at the Trade school, has moved his family from School street to the house vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Blossom on Woodstock avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Blossom have moved to Webster to make their home.

Ovide Constant, of Willimantic, spent the past week with his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Ethier, of Smith street.

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school, I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. Frank Sellers, 810 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning thru their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it recommend it to their daughters as a dependable medicine.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Waits a Bit

When angry it is best to wait.
There's nothing lost, at any rate.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit could hardly contain himself. There, in a bramble-tangle right before him, was little Mrs. Peter and a handsome young rabbit about Peter's own size. He had seen them touch noses. As he watched he could see that little Mrs. Peter was looking at this stranger with a great deal of pride. Peter knew that his worst fears were now realized. He knew that little Mrs. Peter had gone off with this stranger. Anyway, he thought he knew this. Jealous rage filled him. He ground his teeth. It was a wonder that they did not hear him grinding his teeth. He was just about to rush into that bramble-tangle when the stranger thumped, which is the rabbit way of signaling. He thumped with his long, stout hind feet.

Peter waited. He didn't rush in right then. Who could that fellow be signaling to? Why was he signaling? He had little Mrs. Peter there, so what could be the idea of signaling to any one else? Peter decided to wait a bit.

Now, Peter had been so upset by what he had discovered that he hadn't heard a distant signal, so he didn't know that the stranger was simply replying to a distant signal. But now, as Peter sat there watching, he presently heard a thump some little distance away. Instantly the stranger thumped a reply. In a moment or two Peter heard that signal from another rabbit once more. This time it was nearer; another rabbit was coming.

"This is queer," muttered Peter under his breath. "I wonder how many rabbits there are in this Old Pasture, anyway. I wonder what it all means. That fellow isn't thumping as if he were angry. I know an angry thump when I hear it. That fellow seems to be looking and listening as if he were expecting somebody. So does Mrs. Peter."

Once more the strange rabbit in the bramble-tangle thumped. This time there was no answering thump, but a moment or two later Peter caught a glimpse of some one moving a short distance away. That some one was coming along from the same direction from which Peter himself had come. Peter squatted down very close to the ground and watched. Could it be? Yes, it was. It was the modest young rabbit he had at first mistaken for Mrs. Peter. There could be no doubt about it. She went past him without giving the least heed. She didn't see him. She was making straight for that bramble-tangle where Mrs. Peter and the stranger were. She didn't hesitate at all. She was moving eagerly.

Straight into that bramble-tangle, along one of the little paths which had been cut into it, she hurried. The handsome stranger in there hurried to meet her. Yes, sir, he hurried to meet her. Just as soon as they were near enough they touched noses. That good-looking stranger had an air of possession. He acted for all the world as if he thought that this newcomer belonged to him. If Peter had only realized it, this stranger acted exactly as Peter did with Mrs. Peter.

Peter glanced over at little Mrs. Peter. It was queer, but she had a pleased look on her face. It was exactly as if this meeting between those two strangers suited her perfectly. Peter couldn't understand it. No, sir, he couldn't understand it. Certainly Mrs. Peter didn't show any jealousy. And now that this other young rabbit had arrived the stranger paid no attention at all to Mrs. Peter. He didn't appear to know that she was there. It was all very perplexing and upsetting.

The handsome stranger in there hurried to meet her

Peter turned his attention to the two young rabbits. He had to admit that they were a fine-looking pair. When he once more looked for Mrs. Peter she had disappeared.

MOTHER

A Cross, Feverish Child is Bilious, Constipated

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "fruity laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

A NEEDED ROAD

According to the plans of the Rhode Island board of public roads it is intended to begin the construction of 17 miles of additional road during the next year at an outlay of about $600,000. One piece of this construction is headed toward the Connecticut line, the specifications which have been put out for bids calling for three miles of 30 foot road from Hope Valley, through Moscow to Rockville. This is on the road to Voluntown and would approach that village as close as any improved road over the state border, the intervening gap never being touched in all probability until the two states get together in an agreement to built to the line.

There is a stretch of road which calls for attention in that section of both states which would be of particular advantage to this part of Connecticut. That is the road from Preston City to Voluntown and then on across the Rhode Island line to Millville where it would join the Nooes Neck road. This would put through a direct road from Norwich to Providence and save much of the distance which is now required in traveling between the two cities.

Such a highway might not be one that would call for concrete construction but it is a route that ought to be included in the list of roads that are under state control on boh sides of the line. It would unquestionably be much used at the present time if it were in fit condition, but it enjoys no better treatment beyond Preston City than the ordinary country road and it is therefore shunned by through traffic, since the longer way around is the quicker and more comfortable because of the improved road, though the distance is much greater.

When Rhode Island builds its new road to Rockville it will be building to a dead end. When Connecticut built to Preston City, or even to Voluntown from Jewett City, it was to a dead end in each instance although much benefit resulted. The importance of overcoming these dead ends by such extensions as would meet improved roads in adjoining states is worthy of consideration in these days when efforts are being made to serve all sections of the state and the demands of the motoring public.

PUSHING LEGISLATION

When the 70th congress opens next month it will be confronted with a raft of business. Some of it will be acted upon and some of it will get lost in the shuffle. There will, however, be excellent reasons for making the best possible use of the time at its command, and it is therefore interesting to note that plans have already been made by leaders in the lower house to get action upon such important bills as income, tax, alien property, a deficiency appropriation and possibly two of the annual supply bills before adjournment is taken for the holidays.

The goal is an excellent one. Part of that business will come over from the last session when action on several important measures was prevented by political tactics. The house was not the cause then and it apparently plans to avoid anything of the kind so far as it is concerned in the coming session. When the house puts those measures into the senate it knows that that body will act with less speed upon them, but it is right in the attitude that the senate must not be permitted to point to the house for any delays in which it becomes involved.

If it could be expected that the senate would be inspired by the house action there would be no small degree of elation over the house programme. The deliberative body establishes its own speed and can be depended upon to take its time, but with a grist of important matters, with a number of election cases to decide and with the narrow margin of control it is going to be a session that will call for the best possible use of all the time, and that means before as well as after the holidays.

WHERE DOCTORS DISAGREE

Many a cause has suffered seriously because of the lack of agreement among its supporters. Inability to reach an understanding has left a divided house which means a weakening of the appeal which can be made and the creation of opposition within.

This has been the situation in regard to farm legislation in the past, and the experience in connection with the effort to obtain it does not appear to have been such as to bring about a compromise. At least such attempts as have been made to accomplish such an object have not as yet succeeded.

During all the campaign in behalf of farm legislation it has been pointed out that the farm organizations, representing the farmers of the country, were not in harmony relative to the demands. The legislation that was urged was supported by some, but opposed by others. Efforts to overcome this apparent handicap have not made much headway. With representatives of three farm organizations meeting in Washington for the purpose of coming to an understanding, there was a chance for getting together, but it came to nothing.

As the situation stands now there are those who will have nothing but the McNary-Haugen bill, even though it has been repeatedly denounced by farmers and vetoed by the president who pointed out its undesirable features.

There are others who believe there should be some legislation in behalf of the farmers but absolutely reject the equalization feature of the McNary-Haugen measure. All of this divided sentiment comes from farmers through their organizations. In the meantime other efforts in behalf of a compromise seem to be making no better headway. There are those former strong McNary-Haugen backers in congress, however, who have turned their backs upon that legislation. They are demanding farm legislation, but of a type which can command united support. Apparently the endeavors to come to an understanding are encountering plenty of obstacles with each side displaying a stubbornness which threatens the continuance of the lack of unity.

BIDDING FOR THE CONVENTION

Invariably there is warm competition for the honor of entertaining the national convention of either party. This is especially true if there is a disposition to make a change from the previous convention. It will be a matter of only a few weeks before some decision is reached in regard to the city whose invitation to have the republican national convention meet there will be accepted.

The list includes cities which have never entertained the convention as well as those which have. Cleveland which was the successful bidder in 1924 would like to entertain it again. Chicago which has had the honor many times is in the field for 1928 while bids have also come from Detroit, Cincinnati, Kansas City and San Francisco.

Each city in striving for the convention has to realize in advance that it must be able to provide a convention hall of sufficient capacity. There is likewise need of numerous and good hotels, while some central point of the country stands a much better chance of selection since it best equalizes the travel for the various delegations.

It will be surprising if the national committee in making its choice decides upon San Francisco. The chief objection would probably be to forcing so many delegates to travel all the way across the country, although it has been the city selected by the democrats, even as that party has chosen other Atlantic coast cities in recent years. Whether Chicago can entice the convention back at this time is an uncertainty. Cleveland made a good impression last year upon the convention and it is by no means a mild bid that is made this year by Detroit another city in the midwest, while Kansas City would be no further to the west of the Mississippi river than most of the others would be east.

Cities of the midwest which can accommodate such a gathering know well the advantage of landing it if possible and the pressure that is brought to bear does not end when the invitations are extended.

THE SLACKER VOTE

Professor W. B. Munro of Harvard has been giving his views in regard to the slacker vote and he has his doubts as to whether it is a menace. He doesn't recommend that voters stay away from the polls but he maintains that there is "nothing in our constitutions, laws nor civic morality which makes it the duty of any man to vote unless he feels that he can thereby contribute to the greater effectiveness of popular government."

When he takes the stand that to vote unintelligently is a greater disservice than not to vote at all he hits the mark and he cannot see the desirability of herding a great number of uninterested, uninformed and reluctant people to participate in elections. He believes instead that we should endeavor to increase the number of intelligent voters rather than the total number of voters and he indicates the belief that the former will be found going to the polls of their own accord.

Just where he would draw the line between the intelligent and the unintelligent voter is not indicated but it is seriously doubted if he would find upon examination of the check lists that it is the so-called intelligent voter who is always casting his ballot or that the slacker class is made up of the unintelligent voters. Too often it is the case that those who have the most at stake, those who know the conditions and the need of improvement and those who must rate as intelligent voters are making up the list of stay at homes. Such apathy can hardly be said to be due to lack of information but it will have to be admitted that intelligent voters ought to know better.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Maine reports Moose too tame to hunt. Is that another result of the increasing automobile visitations to the Pine Tree state?

If public sympathy because of the Caldwell case was of any assistance it must have helped in the Yale victory over Princeton.

Perhaps the Montenegro will some day learn that starting a revolution carries a death penalty, but there's no such probability if the game end is sought by means of the ballot.

It cannot be that the victory of the Vare candidate for mayor of Philadelphia will be lost on congress when it comes to deciding the case of Senator Vare also elected by the people of Pennsylvania.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Always wash the top of milk bottles before pouring out contents.

Insist upon bread coming in oiled paper.

Wash all fruits and vegetables thoroughly.

Keep salt and sugar jars covered and in a dry place.

A cloth dampened with plain vaseline will keep the stove in splendid condition.

Gay awnings give a colorful look to a drab house.

Dishes that have contained milk and eggs should be soaked in cold water.

Tiny lollypops are attractive on the youngster's birthday cake as a change from candles.

If a milk pudding gets burnt, remove the burnt skin, and a little more milk and a piece of butter and return to a cool oven.

To remove silver embroidery on satin, etc., rub it well with a toothbrush dipped in powdered magnesia.

The brown marks on plates and dishes, caused by their being overheated in the oven, can often be removed by being rubbed with a little salt and a damp cloth.

Paint the hooks and taps in the kitchen and bathroom with white enamel, and it will prevent towels and cloths getting rust-marked when hung up wet.

Use an ordinary kitchen grater when ou want a particularly hard piece of soap reduced to shavings.

When a ceiling over a gas bracket has become soiled apply a little thick starch, leave it to dry, brush off and there will be no trace of smoke.

A stone hot-water bottle that is cracked need not be discarded if a kitchener is in use. Fill the bottle with sand and when required heat it in a slow oven.

For an easy, quick dessert thicken the syrup from cooked prunes with tapioca, add lemon juice and pour over the fruit.

Canned prunes, stoned and chopped, in steamed brown bread is good. A few added to gingerbread just before baking makes a nice change.

Pour the syrup from prunes over the rhubarb pie just before adding top crust. This will take the place of other liquid and part of the sugar.

STRAIGHTEN THE PANS.

Aluminum pans require less heat for cooking than do iron pans and this excess heat frequently causes them to budge on the bottoms. Heat the pans slowly and when hot pound the bottom lightly back into shape with a hammer.

MADE ROOM.

One housewife writes: "When baking a pie recently I had my oven full except for a small space which would not hold my pie tin. So I hit upon the scheme of putting in a small pan; inverting same, and setting my pie on that. This saves time and fuel as I could do all my baking at once."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Water coarsens the pores and dries the skin.

Warm water is especially bad; it's relaxing to the muscles and tissues.

And cold water won't cleanse thoroughly.

It does seem as if every girl could have a little place for a jar of cold cream and a small roll of absorbent cotton and a box of the new, soft, inexpensive cold cream removers.

Wet a piece of cotton about four inches square in cold water, squeeze it out, rub it over with the cleansing cold cream and wash the face with it.

Pure candy is not injurious to children when given in moderation and directly following a meal. The harm comes when the child eats the candy and loses his appetite for the meal. Form the habit of giving him a piece or two after his lunch or dinner and he will not crave it later on.

A CLEAN HEARTH.

To clean the brick fireplace put two cups of boiling water in a pan, adding four tablespoons of ammonia. With a soft clean scrubbing brush, brush down lightly several times with the solution, holding the pan under to catch what water you can, then immediately brush down or rinse with clean hot water and after the bricks dry you will find them like new.

PACKING FOR TRAVELING.

Modern luggage makes traveling easy, and while packing is relatively a simple matter nowadays, here are a few tips that may be useful:

Don't use too many hangers in a wardrobe trunk. Better result can be obtained by draping several garments over the same hanger.

Don't forget to cover the hangers with a fat roll of tissue paper. This prevents any crease in the garments hanging on them.

Don't let the bulk of the garments in the trunk come at one place. Frocks and coats may be so arranged as to avoid this.

Don't neglect to fold circular skirts and flounces as straight as possible, or to stuff them well with tissue paper, as, otherwise they are certain to crease.

Don't carry bottles filled with any liquid, paste or powder among your clothes. Toilet and medicine bottles should be carried in a separate bag, or, if that is impossible, in a separate compartment of your trunk carefully protected by ruber bags.

Don't overcrowd your baggage by articles purchased during your travels. Buy an additional bag or box if your recent acquisitions are numerous.

SAFETY FIRST.

If there is a little fellow in the house who has just graduated from his crib to a big bed of his own, it is wise to place a chair across the top of the stairs so he does not have any accidents should he sleepily find his way to mother's and daddy's room.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A double, diamond-shaped slipper heel stocking further elaborates itself by having diamond dotted clocks up the sides.

The young girl of 18 or so will revel in the possession of a sport coat of sapphire blue velvet.

Transparent velvets, in gorgeous colors and textures, are working day and night this fall to fashion both afternoon and evening costumes.

A triple pointed design, a pyramided effect and a fleur de lis are some of the latest heels designs to give that well-turned-ankle-effect.

In the midst of all the bizarre jewelry now worn, one sees again necklaces and bracelets made of twisted strands of seed pearls.

A new winter coat of smooth rust pile fabric has its back cut in sections which form a pyramided yoke effect, in skyscraper design. Its front flares.

Beautifully matched Manchurian weasel skins fashion an evening cape that has a bloused upper section and a tight, swathed lower portion.

Burgundy red velvet in gaudy plaid design forms the cute flared skirt and coat of an ensemble that uses plain burgundy satin for the overblouse.

The shoulder flower has yielded its enviable place in fashion's realm to shoulder pins. An elaborate onyx and crystal one is a twig with leaves hanging.

Copper red tweed skirt and cardigan and beige jersey sweater with polka dots of copper fashion a very new suit. Polka dotted sweaters are the latest.

Jabots, seeming to fear disfavor if they flaunt their fullness openly, peep in intriguing manner from many front closings, from side skirt drapes and from under side yokes.

A malaga red crepe dress, in semi-fitted lines suggestive of the old Princess silhouette has a polka-dotted vest in red and pink, for distinction.

On many of the smartest evening frocks of crepe satin or velvet the only ornament consists of a long fob, exquisitely jeweled. Attached to one shoulder, this is strikingly effective.

GRAY AND WHITE

Dressmakers have tried painting the lily. They have sought out the most weird of color phantasies and color combinations but after they have tried them out they have returned with a sigh of relief to black and white. When it comes to contrast, no combination is so successful or so chic. Gray and white also is destined to be a feature both of the winder dresses and of the Palm Beach modes.

BLACK AND SILVER

Black and silver, a combination hard to beat, is at its very best in a dinner gown of black velvet. The skirt has long draperies of the velvet that reach almost to the ankles and are lined with cloth of silver and there is also a bow of the velvet lined with silver at the left side of the waistline.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Starch made with soapy water prevents the iron from sticking, and gives a gloss to the linen.

Add a teaspoon of salt to the basin of starch and then stir thoroughly. It will give a splendid gloss to linens.

Spots on ponges may be removed by using magnesia rubbed well into soiled places. Leave a few days and then brush off.

You will find your irons will heat better if you turn a pan over them on the stove. If you have anything to be cooked slowly, put the pan on the iron and let one burner do double duty.

When sprinkling flat pieces, such as towels, pillow slips, napkins, curtains, handkerchiefs and so forth, for ironing, dip one article in five in clear water, squeezing, not wringing as dry as possible. Lay flat two or three articles, then one wet one, then two dry, and so on rolling tightly when all are done. There will be no dry spots, and every piece will be a good even dampness. It is a pleasure to iron clothes dampened this way.

PREVENTS STICKING

Sometimes a table pad is not satisfactory and leaves lint sticking to the surface of the table. If this should occur, cover one side of the pad with thin muslin and keep that side towards the wood.

AIRING BEDS

After a prolonged absence of the occupants beds need airing. The hot-water bottle is the easier method of doing this. In order to allow the warm air to circulate freely, take a short length of stick or something similar and prop it up under the bed clothes, so that the latter form a kind of tent.

LET THE AIR DRY THEM

Never stand freshly washed milk bottles upside down. They will keep sweet and fresh if the air is allowed to circulate in them after washing.

NONRUSTABLE

Before putting away iron skillets or frying pans after washing, light the gas stove for a few minutes and place the pan over the flame. When it is thoroughly dry, turn out the flame. When cool you can safely put it away without fear of rusting.

PRESERVING TIME

The time has come to put up catsup, and you are wondering why you threw away all those corks. Start a box right now and keep corks and pieces of paraffin from jellies in it, and you will be very grateful in preserving time.

STORING SUMMER CLOTHES

When putting away your fine white summer clothes this year, try this method of keeping them a good color. Dip an old pillow case in bluing until it is a very deep blue. Then fold the white articles and put them inside. They will not yellow over the winter.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The union of South Africa has recently appointed its first woman factory inspector.

In France it is necessary for a married woman to obtain her husband's consent before she can have her hair bobbed.

Seventeen women are candidates for the lower house of the New Jersey legislature this year, seven of them seeking re-election.

The distinction of being the only woman electric welder in the United States is claimed for Mrs. Catherine Nelson of Shelton, N. J.

Miss Alice B. Sanger, for many years employed in the post office department in Washington, is now in charge of the appointment with its more than 350,000 employees.

Mrs. Edward F. White of Indianapolis, Ind., leading candidate for president of the General Education of Women's clubs, was the first woman to be elected to a state office in Indiana.

Recent government statistics disclose that the average weekly earnings for women workers, skilled and unskilled, was only $17.137 in June of this year.

DATE PORRIDGE.

With colder weather, hot porridge is popular again. For change, cook dates with oatmeal or raisins with mush.

SALT WILL ABSORB ODOR

When cooking turnips, cabbage or fish put a dish of salt on top of stove. It will help absorb the odor.

RECIPES.

Steamed Chocolate Puddings: One-half cupful sugar, 1-4 cupful butter, 1-2 cupful milk, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon baking powder (rounding), 3 tablespoons cocoa or 3 squares grated chocolate, 1 cup flour. Cream the butter and sugar, add the yolk of the egg then flour and milk alternately. Fold in the beaten white of the egg. Steam one hour in small baking powder cans, filling the cans only half full.

A Frozen Salad (For a Hostess)—One cream cheese cut in small pieces, 1 can pineapple cut in small pieces, 1 pound malaga grapes cut in half and stoned, 1 can cherries cut in pieces, 1 quart whipped cream measured after whipping, 1 pint mayonnaise (reserve half for garnishing). Mix the ingredients well and freeze as ice cream by packing in salt and ice (without churning) for four hours. Serve on crisp hearts of lettuce with garnishing of the mayonnaise.

YOUR HEALTH

SIGNS OF EYE-STRAIN

By L. L. McCoy, Seattle, Wash. Member Gorgas Memorial

Headache, usually located in the front part of the head, through the temples or in the back of the head, is the most important symptom of eye-strain. It may be throbbing, pressing, radiating, dull or sharp, constant or intermittent. It is due primarily to refraction disturbances of accomodation, an inability of the eye muscles to act together. It occurs after prolonged use of the eyes, but it may be quite prevalent between the ages of 10 and 20 due to developmental changes in the body to which is added the stress of school work. Watching moving objects from a train or in a motion picture may be a cause.

Other symptoms of eye-strain are. Drowsiness after close work, dropping out of words from the printed line, and jumping or waving of the lines being read. We often see middle-aged persons holding their reading or sewing at arm's length.

Occasionally individuals close one eye in order to see more clearly. This is due to a difference in the visual acuity of both eyes which is usually marked. This difference is very often the cause of cross eyes, especially in children. Other persons squint their eyes in order to see well. This is probably a sign of astigmatism. Not infrequently one sees a person with head tilted to one side. If a physical examination reveals no actual deformity of the neck, then a careful examination of the eye muscles will no doubt bring out some weakness in one or both.

Cross eyes should receive early and careful attention because the vision in the crossing eye usually diminishes gradually from non-use to practical blindness if not maintained by properly fitted glasses.

Carsickness and seasickness are often due to improper co-ordination of the eye muscles.

Inflammatory conditions of the eyes such as styes, redness of the lids, crusting along the edges of the lids, and so-called bloodshot eyes, are frequently signs of eye-strain. Habitual blinking of children and rubbing of the eyes, various contortions of the face and frowning are usually due to visual efforts. Sensations of dust or sand in the eyes, irritation by the sun, and tearing sometimes are relieved by glasses. Burning, itching, smarting, and twitching of the lids especially after using the eyes for close work are often the first signs of visual disturbances.

Most of the above complaints make their appearance during the first few weeks of each school year and just prior to the holiday season when great demands are made on the eyes. At the first indication of one or more of these signs and symptoms, the eyes should be carefully examined by a competent specialist and under no condition individuals under 40 years of age, especially children, be given glasses unless they have been refracted after the pupils have been dilated, provided there is nothing that makes the dilation undesirable as ascertained by the oculist. Many young people are given glasses by optometrists and opticians and very frequently they are not correct, because the range of accomodation before the age of 40 plays such a big role in fitting glasses. Dilation of the pupils is the best way to deal with this. Ill-fitting glasses are a menace. Accuracy of correction is assured in the dilation method which can be used only by an eye specialist of M. D. standing.

AT WHAT AGE DOES DANDRUFF START?

Dandruff, authorities say, rarely starts before fourteen years of age. At that time the hair, like the rest of the body, is taking a sudden spurt and demands extra nourishment. Dandruff germs easily gain a hold in a neglected scalp. Antiseptic tar soap banishes germs, tones, stimulates. Makes hair and scalp healthy. Packer's, the standard brand of tar soap for 55 years, is recommended by specialists. At all dealers.

KEEP STOMACH YOUNG!

Eat What You Want

When the food you eat goes into your acid-soaked stomach, it sours and can't digest, makes foul gas and sour bile. The blood takes these poisonous acids and carries them through the body. Naturally it makes you miserable and despondent, because your system is not nourished—you lose weight.

Pape's Diapepsin dissolves the acids and sweetens the stomach. It digests the food; no more sour bile is taken up by the blood. Your appetite is like a young girl's again and gradually you get back your health, flesh and energy.

Chew a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin after meals. It tastes good, and relieves the misery of indigestion in five minutes. It will keep your stomach young and vigorous so you can eat anything you want without being afraid of the consequences.

The church school room where the meeting was held was entirely lighted by candles and the service was a most impressive one.

Wednesday evening a "stunt" program will be given for the patients at Uncas-on-the-Thames.

Thursday at 1 Crescent street, the members will gather at six o'clock for a box supper, games and music to follow.

Friday evening in the social rooms at the church a banquet will be served at 6.30. There will be guests from Boston and Hartford, cheers and songs and speeches will be given.

On Sunday morning the young people will have charge of the morning service of worship. Miss Myrtle Belyear of Boston, secretary of the National Y. P. C. U. will be the speaker.

Gave Coon Supper.

Mr. and Mrs. George Congdon, of Montville, entertained a dozen friends Sunday night at a coon supper, for which a successful hunting trip Friday night by Mr. Congdon and Swift Long, with the famous Tennessee coon dog, Kerry, provided the piece de resistance.

YOUNG PECHEENI BEATS MOLINSKY AT BRIDGEPORT

Young Gene Pecheeni, budding local featherweight, took a long step forward in his pugilistic career on Saturday evening at Bridgeport when he gained a hard-fought verdict over Mike Molinsky in six rounds. The fight was one of the features of the evening and through his victory Pecheeni has won his way into popularity in the Park City and will fight there at the next show.

The fight itself was a real slam bang affair with no dull spots in it. In fact the fighting was so brisk that it had the fans standing in their chairs. Molinsky, a hard, tough and aggressive fighter, carried the fight to Pecheeni in the early rounds but the local boy was willing. In the third round Molinsky had Pecheeni wavering but Pecheeni rallied, took the fourth round and in the closing seconds of the fifth had Molinsky sagging at the knees but the bell saved him from going down. The sixth was Pecheeni's by a large margin.

An effort is being made to match Pecheeni with Sal Battalino for a fight in the near future. Pecheeni is improving daily and with a victory over Molinsky should be in line for some nice bouts this winter.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE AS ONE TURNS INTO DRIVEWAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 13.—A Buick sedan, operated by Albert J. Oman, of South Windham, was quite badly damaged and Mrs. Carl E. Oman, mother of the driver, was severely shaken up, in a collision about 10 o'clock tonight with a Studebaker touring car, driven by Wilfred Durand, of 376 Windham road, opposite the latter's home. Durand was traveling westerly and veered to the left of the road in order to make a right-hand turn into his driveway, just as Oman approached from the opposite direction. The right side of the South Windham car was demolished and the right front of the touring car was smashed. The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Officer Arthur Hurley.

NORTH CLIFF STREET FIRE CALL SUNDAY

Sunday morning at 10:13 o'clock the fire department was called out by telephone for a chimney fire at No. 20 North Cliff street, a two and a half story brick house owned by John Donovan. When the firemen arrived, they quickly realized they had more than a chimney fire on their hands, as smoke was pouring through the brick walls of the building.

The fire was caused by a branch flow pipe being overheated and, resting against a 4 by 4 joist, burned through the joist. The fire then took an upward course towards the second story where it was checked. A fire was started in the stove late Saturday afternoon, but there was no fire in the stove Saturday night. It is evident that the fire smouldered all night and when a wood fire was started in the stove Sunday morning, it revived the smouldering blaze.

Because the fire started near the thimble hole in the branch flue, led the occupants of the house to think the chimney was on fire. Fortunately the blaze did not break out during the night. Squad A and Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft responded to the call. A 25-gallon tank of chemical was used and an inch and a half hose line was laid in case the chemical did not put the fire out.

"The Power Within," a six-reel picture, was shown Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Breed theatre under the auspices of the Luther league of the First Evangelical Lutheran church, having an audience that practically filled the theatre. Mayor Milo R. Waters, who was a guest, was introduced by Rev. H. Hunsinger, and congratulated the league upon the fine audience that was assembled.

During the showing of the picture, which is sent out by the Lutheran film division, New York city, the incidental music was rendered by Miss Frieda Phillip, of Baltic, at the piano, and her sister, Miss Alma Phillip, violinist. The ushers were Alice Berry, Elizabeth Zerull, Marie Hunsinger, Anna Retkovske; the ticket sellers, Frieda Retkovske, Olga Zachae; ticket collectors, Ernest Mullinger, George Alstadt.

MOTORMAN CUT ON NOSE BY HEAVY VESTIBULE GLASS

As the 11:15 trolley car from Norwich to New London was near Derry Hill, Saturday morning, there was a sudden, startling crash and the motorman, Claude Singer, was seen to turn his head from a shower of glass. The impression was that a stone had been thrown through the front window of the vestibule, but no stone was found when Conductor Arthur J. Ladd went to investigate. At that time the wind appeared to be blowing in gusts and the theory is that a sudden strong wind found a defective or loosened pane, blowing it in.

Motorman Singer pluckily stuck to his post until reaching Uncasville, when he stopped at the home of Dr. John J. Donohue, to have the cut on the tip of his nose and one on his hand dressed.

Dead To Be Remembered.

Memorial masses have been requested at St. Patrick's church today (Monday) by the Children of Mary society for department members and on Wednesday by the Rosary society for the dead.

Thursday, the holy sacrifice of the mass is to be offered for all priests and Sisters who have ever labored for the spiritual welfare of the parish and who have been called to their eternal reward.

Broke Up Cell.

John Dobson, who was arrested Saturday night by Officer Frank Gwiazdowski, smashed up the cell at police headquarters after he had been placed in it. To the charge of intoxication made against him, he will have the charge of damage to public property added.

NEW FISHERS ISLAND CLUB AMONG COUNTRY'S FINEST

City residents who long for the great open spaces, sightliness, nature unspoiled, have come to realize that autumn can be one of the most delightful seasons of the entire year. That is why 40 or 50 members of the new Fishers Island club are remaining for a post-season or returning at frequent intervals, although primarily at the island for hunting and golf.

The Norwich members of this club, so rarely advantaged in location, development and opportunities are C. Royce Bess, Flint Brayton, recent purchaser of a home site in the club park and Lucius Briggs. The late Willis Austin was a member.

Members just admitted from New London are George S. Palmer and his nieces, Miss Virginia and Miss Theodora Palmer. Ralph H. Melcer is a member also. Recently admitted from Rockville, is Frederick N. Belding.

For over 40 years the Ferguson family have controlled Fishers island, which is about seven miles long. Gradually at the west end there developed a delightful summer colony, but seven or eight years ago, three men of vision decided to build homes at the east end. They were Alfred L. Ferguson of Greenwich, Conn., Henry L. Ferguson of Fishers Island, and Colonel James D. Tilford of Pittsburgh, whose wife was Miss Helen Ferguson, a cousin of the others.

From this evolved the idea of conserving the beauties of the east end, a veritable bit of paradise and the owners set about discovering some genius with ability, taste and experience requisite for working out their project—a private cottage colony with life centering about a club house. They had the good fortune to secure the services of Frederick S. Ruth, of New York, who founded about fourteen years ago the now famous Mountain Lake club colony, near Lake Wales, Florida, about half way between the east and west coasts.

Mr. Ruth, efficient in his equipment advised the promoters what to do, how to develop their conception and has remained as managing director. There is a board of directors under whom he is working. Under his supervision, the club idea expanded, until now there are more than 200 members. M. N. Buckner, chairman of the board of The New York Trust company, is president of the corporation.

At the start, an 18-hole golf course was laid out. It is a pathetic fact that this was the last work of the well known golf architect, Seth J. Raynor, who died last year. The professional is George Wolfe, who came to the club from Baltusrol, N. J. So satisfactory and so superior has this course proved that plans are outlined for another 18 holes. Nature has done so much for the builders of the course that golfing here is rated in a class by itself.

The club project as promulgated by Mr. Ruth met with such eager acceptance that there has been no setback to the work.

There are two kinds of members—property owning members and non-property owning members. The club, after preliminaries, acquired 1800 acres of diversified land and in this park over 25 houses, all of them pretentious, many of them really magnificent, have been erected or are in course of construction.

Among those who have built or are building at the east end are C. V. Benton, E. A. Matthiessen, William H. Nichols, Jr., Irving W. Bonbright, H. N. French, George H. Hardy, Jansen Noyes, all of New York, H. Arnold Jackson and C. D. Rafferty of Greenwich, Alfred W. Dater of Stamford, Conn., W. C. Cheney, of South Manchester, C. B. Buckingham of Watertown, C. B. Parsons, of New Britain, Conn., R. B. Bulkeley and Miss Eleanor Ferguson of Hartford, Andrew B. Wallace of Springfield, H. P. Walker, of Brookline, Walter N. Ruth, of Baltimore, C. V. Ferguson of Schenectady, Douglass Van Dyke of Milwaukee and Miss Beatrice Hawkins of Pittsburgh.

Charles R. Wait, of Boston, was selected as the architect of the club house now crowning a knoll rising from Barleyfield cove and South Beach. Mr. Wait developes a structure of commanding dignity of Tudor farm house type, stucco and field stone, with slate roofs. Building began toward the end of September 1925, and the club was opened July 1st, 1926. Fifty-five rooms are in use, with space for 80 more on the third floor, which is yet unfinished. Last season the club-house was closed December 1st, but now it is to be kept open all the year.

The island has always been noted as a place inviting out-of-door life; and there is every inducement for members and their guests to get into the open. At the club house the porches and walks are alluring and imposing in their cloister-like length and breadth, from every point commanding an unobstructed view of the ocean, of the most fascinating glimpses of beach, rolling pasture, bold wooded tinted foliage, or the mainland but a few miles distant. Life can never grow monotonous from that superb viewpoint.

Four an-tout-cas tennis courts of English clay were laid out for the delight of every wielder of a racquet, since these courts dry in fifteen minutes after a rain, hence are practically always in condition for play.

The club house was completed and opened, but the work of the men developing the club park never ceases. Just now they are taken up with such lines of effort as opening up several miles of bridle paths, having built a stable to house saddle horses. They have had built fifteen miles of prime roads, continue installing electric light and telephone systems, water mains, a new filter plant, etc. On Chocomount the highest point of the island, there has been erected a half million gallon reservoir. New private bath-houses have been built on Chocomount beach and during the season, for the comfort of club members and their friends tea is served there each day.

As noted, most of the club members now on the island are there for the hunting and for this as for other diversions the club management has provided with characteristic foresight and liberality. Over 2,500 pheasants were set out this year with a view to providing the very best sort of diversion for the sportsman. The club's gamekeeper is the crack hunter, Will Sinclair.

Of special eastern Connecticut interest is the fact that the superb lanscaping and designing of the club grounds, as indeed of the whole park, is the work of the Olmstead brothers, of Brookline, Mass.

VERMONTERS HERE TO ORGANIZE RELIEF WORK

Plans for assistance in the relief work for Vermont that is now being organized in New England are to be made at a meeting at the Wauregan hotel this (Monday) evening at 8 o'clock to be held by sons and daughters of Vermont now living in Norwich. The meeting is also intended to include any who formerly lived in Vermont. There are a number of well known Norwich citizens who have Vermont affiliations and it is expected that the present flood emergency offers an excellent opportunity for them to show that they have not forgotten their native state.

Fred A. Howland of Montpelier, emergency finance commission of Vermont, has sent out the following notice: "The American Red Cross is operating most efficiently in directing relief work. Governor Weeks is turning over all contributions received, and it is hoped that every organization of business men in New England, outside the distressed area, will promptly urge its members to contribute through such channels as they may choose to the funds so seriously needed."

TRIED COMMISSION SUIT IN COMMON PLEAS

In the common pleas court here Saturday morning Judge C. E. Waller heard trial of the suit of Nathan Weisler of Montville against Peter and Mary Jasulaites of Ekonk Hill on a claim for a commission of $300 for selling the former Ringwall farm at Ekonk Hill. The sale price of the farm was $2,350. Judge Waller reserved decision.

Weisler's claim that he had a verbal agreement with the defendants that they would pay him $300 if they bought the farm was corroborated by three other witnesses.

Attorney W. B. Danielson of Moosup, counsel for the defendants, made a motion for non-suit, on the grounds that a real estate agent could not have an agreement with both the vander and the vendee. It was brought out that Weisler was first hired by the Ringwalls to sell the farm.

Judge Waller denied the motion without prejudice.

GAVE DRAMATIC READING FOR CHURCH SERVICE

At the evening service Sunday at the Central Baptist church, Mrs. Arthur B. Strickland, of Philadelphia, gave a dramatic reading, Italians Redeemed. Using the dialect of the Italian immigrant, she told very effectively the story of an Italian family coming to this country and meeting its broadening opportunities in social, business and religious life.

As the pastor was away, speaking at Northfield, James L. Case presided at the service and introduced Mrs. Strickland.

Large Audience at Y. M. C. A.

Every chair was occupied in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium at the 4 o'clock service Sunday. After the opening exercises of a hymn, scripture reading and prayer, the six reel feature moving picture "Over the Top With the Allies" was shown and greatly enjoyed by all.

It portrayed in an impressive manner the World war from beginning to end. Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows: "It has been well said that 'war is hell'. This is true not only of war with shot and shell but in any realm where war is it is hell. At times in the home life there is continual discord and wrangling and the result is unhappiness. At times the war between labor and capital is terrible. In every life there is the battle between good and evil. If war is hell, then peace is heaven, and we can have this peace if we will but enthrone the Christ in our lives; if we do this we will follow the 'Golden Rule' which He so beautifully exemplified when He walked the earth.

"I hope every one of us will more and more hate war and more and more seek for that peace which Christ alone can give; let us hope for it; let us be willing to sacrifice for it, that war will be a thing of the past."

Charged With Theft

On a warrant charging theft of $50 from Karolina Sellers on Nov. 10, Harold L. Card was arrested late Saturday afternoon by Sergeant Myron O. Morgan. He gave bonds for his appearance in the city court.

MANDELL FIGHTS MYERS IN CHICAGO TUESDAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The second in the growing list of boxing matches featuring title holders in Illinois rings is set for Tuesday night in the Coliseum when Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, battles Sgt. Myers of Pocatello, Idaho, for ten rounds—or less—at around 137 pounds.

This small excess over the title limit of poundage never Mandell's title from risk, but the Rockford dusk has signed to fight for his crown next month against the strongest contender developed in the Detroit elimination match between Billy Wallace and Jimmy McLarnin. Mandell regards the bout as the opening number in his campaign to wade through all the logical contenders in or near his division. Myers is one of the hardest punchers around the lightweight limit, and Mandell has been training to add a solid wallop to his lightning left jab.

Strand Theatre

In "For Ladies Only" the Columbia comedy of business life which is showing at the Strand, Jacqueline Logan plays the role of private secretary to a woman-hating office manager portrayed by John Bowers. The action resulting from this situation promises enjoyable entertainment.

"Border Blackbirds" with Leo Maloney is a story of the Canadian border. Maloney tries to run down the murderer of his best friend, whom he has not seen in five years, until he finds him dead. As the crime was committed by a member of a notorious gang known as "The Blackbirds," to silence a man who knew too much about their gold stealing plans, it can be easily imagined that Maloney rushes into a stack of trouble. Ford I. Beebe wrote the story, which is in itself a great surprise. Eugenia Gilbert is Maloney's leading lady.

CONN. AGGIES MAKE DISAPPOINTING SHOWING AGAINST RHODE ISLAND

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 13—When Rhode Island State toppled the Connecticut Aggies 14-0 at Kingston yesterday in what will go down as another upset of the 1927 season, the Rhody eleven gained its first victory over Connecticut in football since the 12-7 victory won on the Gardner-Dow field in 1922, the last season which J. Wilder Tasker, present William and Mary coach, directed the Aggies. It was the first time that an eleven coached by Sumner A. Dole has ever bowed to Rhode Island.

Yesterday was the first time this season that the Aggies have been held scoreless by an opponent, and Rhody's 14-point margin of victory is the greatest made by any team over the Aggies this year. Maine, a team that defeated Rhode Island 27-0 defeated Connecticut 14-13 by virtue of an extra point awarded when offside was detected in the Aggie line during the try for extra point after the touchdown. Springfield, the other team to defeat the Aggies had a 19-point margin, in the 31-21 score.

Connecticut let slip no less than four golden opportunities to make touchdowns in the opening quarter of yesterday's game. Lamoreaux dropped a forward pass when on Rhody's five-yard line and when beyond the enemy safety man, Schildgren muffed another while standing on the goal line, and Kennedy dropped one while standing in the end zone. A fumble by Williams on the Rhody three-yard stripe also proved costly. Throughout the entire first half the Aggies were constantly threatening to score, but the deciding punch in each try was lacking at the critical moments.

Connecticut's aerial attack was weakened early in the game by the forced retirement of Captain Eddy, whose knee was badly twisted. With Eddy on the sidelines, the Aggies were forced to carry on without the services of their most accurate passer, and this loss was a severe one as was brought out more and more as the game progressed. The effectiveness of Pop Williams was also lessened by an ankle injury received early in the game. The full extent of the injuries suffered by Williams and Eddy has not yet been determined, but Aggie followers hope they are not so severe as to prevent these two aces from playing next Saturday against Boston college at Hartford.

Coach Sumner Dole is dispensing with outdoor practice tomorrow in favor of a blackboard talk in Hawley Armory, during the course of which the Boston college formations and plays will be outlined. At the same time, Freshman Coach Louis Alexander and Assistant Coach Paul Bilgood will instruct the freshman eleven in the plays to be expected from the Eagles next Saturday. The varsity will scrimmage the frosh a couple of times this week.

As the Aggies go into the home stretch of the 1927 campaign, a glance at the records shows five victories and three defeats for the eight games played to date. Wesleyan, New Hampshire, Trinity, Lowell Textile and the Coast Guard Academy Cadets have been defeated. Games have been lost to Maine, Springfield and Rhode Island. Thus the Aggie eleven has an average of .625 on the basis of games won and lost.

The loss of the Rhode Island game yesterday comes as a hard blow to Aggie followers, especially those who in recent years have been prone to consider little Rhody more or less in the light of an easy assignment.

In next Saturday's game with Boston college, the Eagles will of course rule heavy favorites, but the Aggies hope to upset the dope and close the season with victory. A win over the Boston team would more than make up from a Connecticut viewpoint the defeats suffered at the hands of Maine, Springfield and Rhode Island.

Boston college fell before Georgetown university, the high scoring team in the east, by a 47-0 count at Boston yesterday. Georgetown was doped to win, but few thought Boston would be overwhelmed by so large a score. The fact that the Eagles were forced to play without the services of Captain O'Brien, Al Weston, Creadon and Smith, four injured stars, accounts for the one-sided game.

These men are expected to play against Connecticut at Hartford Saturday, all of which means the Aggies will without question be facing the strongest team they have met this year. In the line the Eagles will outweigh the Aggies by a considerable margin, and they will also have a slight weight advantage in the backfield. On the basis of what the Boston eleven displayed yesterday—even Georgetown was able to gain but little through the line—the Aggies will have to resort to a wide-open aerial attack and flashy end runs to gain consistently.

WINDHAM BEATS BRISTOL IN LAST QUARTER RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 13—In a spectacular last-half rally, Windham high administered the other to "Sugar" Hugret's ground-gaining propensities in a game at Recreation Park here Saturday afternoon and defeated Bristol high, 12 to 6. The big "sugar-baby" who tips the scales at 185 pounds and stands as a bullwark in Bristol's backfield overshadowed his entire team in both offensive and defensive playing. Again and again he drove through the fighting Crimson and Blue line for notable gains and in the second period he threw a forward pass which was nabbed by Rao, a utility end man who brought the ball over the goal line, Hugret's line-puncturing activities having brought the ball to within reaching distance.

Centering its efforts to playing the game of football rather than concentrating on the doing of the Bristol ace, the Windham team began to do business in the second half and from then on until the curtain the visitors were outplayed and outclassed. After a series of first downs, Saba went over the goal line after a ten yard crash. The try for the additional point failed. Windham resumed her steady advances in the final quarter and Heller brought the pigskin over for the second Windham score. The extra point was again missed. The game was the final one of the season to be played here. Windham closes its season with a game in South Manchester next week.

The summary:

Windham	Position	Bristol
H. Merrill	Left End	Roberts
Ahern	Left Tackle	Kaziell
Nelson	Center	W. Hugret
Reynolds	Right Guard	Bayette
Wright	Right Tackle	Becker
McLearn	Right End	Fletcher
Saba	Quarterback	Allaire
Warren	Left Halfback	Bargoff
Williams	Right Halfback	Kane
M. Heller	Fullback	J. Hugret

Score by periods:

Windham	0	0	6	6—12
Bristol	0	6	0	0— 6

Touchdowns: Saba, Heller, Rao; referee, Guyer; umpire, Hart; linesman, Huband. Time: 10-15 minute periods. Substitutions: Windham, Woodworth for Williams, Kelleher for Reynolds, Tinker for Merrill, Sumner for Kelleher, Wilkinson for Woodworth, Farina for McLearn. Bristol, Rao for Roberts, Reynolds for O'Connor.

CHICAGO BEARS DOWN POTTSVILLE TEAM, 30 TO 12

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears resumed their interrupted string of football victories in the National Football league by outplaying Pottsville, 30 to 12 today.

Paddy Driscoll, the Bears' star, rared up in the first period, which ended scoreless, and then went in to drive the Bears through the Pottsville line for repeated long gains.

The Bears made two safeties before they got their first touchdown, in the second period, and then the visitors got one on two long passes and a five yard plunge by Wentz. Halas fell on the ball behind the Pottsville goal for the Bears' second touchdown in the third period when Pottsville fumbled. Stemamans pass to White and Senn scored twice again in the third period, and the visitors also got another touchdown on Kirkleski's passes to Ernst. Driscoll kicked two of the Bears' four tries at goal, while Pottsville missed both chances.

NEW HAVEN AND SPRINGFIELD TIE IN HOCKEY GAME

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13.—(AP) — A rough and tumble hockey game marked by the infliction of 13 penalties ended in a 3-3 tie between the New Haven and Springfield teams of the Canadian-American league after five periods of playing here during which every available substitute was pressed into service.

The game which marked the opening of the season here was perhaps the most closely contested which the Arena, home of the New Haven team, will see.

With five minutes to play in the third period, New Haven was leading 3 to 1, but goals by Whyte and Waite, tied the score and there it stayed through two overtime periods. Springfield's other tally was made by Maracke. New Haven's goals were made by Clark, Harrington and Cahill.

ACADEMY FACES TOUGH BATTLE WITH STONINGTON

The Academy opens preparation for its last scholastic tilt of the season, with Stonington at Stonington Saturday this afternoon with an outlook that looks none too bright.

The team came out of the tie affair with Bulkeley with a few injuries that will handicap the Red and White in its attempt at subduing the Stonington "Farmers" and thereby acquiring a clear claim to the eastern Connecticut scholastic grid title.

Harry McGlone, passer and broken field dasher par excellence closed his career as an Academy football player in the late moments of the second quarter when he went under after a hard tackle, it became known yesterday for he is laid up with a broken collarbone according to unofficial reports. His absence during the rest or the majority of the game left the Academy in much of a hole for he has been the only consistent passer to wear the red jersey this year. The local's aerial game which has pulled many games through this year was seriously hampered on his departure and the N. F. A. supporters were speculating on what might have been.

Freddy Fox, guard, received a painful hand sprain but the chances are that he will be ready for the Stonington game that now looks so important and dangerous. Jim Kelly, flashy halfback, who has been doing more than his share all season also showed up on the injured list after the game, having his ankle again go back on him but it seems almost certain that he will be ready.

While Bulkeley has the annual custom of pulling most of the breaks in their series with Academy, it seems that last Friday they got more than were coming. Outrushed, outpassed and outwitted through most of the contest the heavier Orange and Black outfit managed to cash in on enough breaks to get their first points of the year. When a team is beaten in the matter of first downs by a 10 to 2 margin they ordinarily should lose but that is just what the Whalers accomplished and by their tie secured a "moral victory".

Bulkeley may have been a fighting eleven but the Academy also fought and there is some consolation in that. The game lacked thrills because of this stubborn warfare waged by the two clubs.

Almost as soon as the final whistle sounded the Academy's support began to take up the cry for another game on Thanksgiving day but right now there seems little possibility of that. Maybe Bulkeley wouldn't be so fortunate on Turkey day. Who knows?

But while the Academy fought and all that still they had plenty of faults. Fumbling and poor generalship especially when the Red and White worked up into Bulkeley's territory were the largest mistakes.

It goes without saying that scrimmages will adorn the local schedule for the week for Whitney intends to show that they do come back. It was said that at least three of these sessions will be on probably Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The cross country team will meet Stonington between the halves of the football game this Saturday.

LANE CLOSES SEASON AT TOP OF SCORERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP)—Closing his gridiron career with a burst of 28 points against Cornell Saturday, Myles Lane, Dartmouth ace, virtually clinched high scoring honors in the east with a grand total of 125 points for the season. Lane scored three touchdowns and kicked five points after scores in the big Green slaughter of Cornell.

Bob Nork, by scoring three times for Georgetown against Boston college, slipped into second place with 97 points, eight more than Captain Johnny Roepke of Penn State, but hardly enough to endanger Lane's margin.

STEAMROLLERS BEAT NEVERS TEAM IN LAST QUARTER

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Curley Owen's brilliant 74 yard run-back of a kick for touchdown in the final quarter gave the Steamrollers a 13 to 7 victory over Ernie Nevers' Duluth Eskimos from Minnesota in a National league game at the Providence cyclodrome this afternoon. Despite this dash, Nevers was the outstanding player of the day and scored the first touchdown of the game in the opening quarter after making a 26 yard gain through the line from scrimmage. He place-kicked the goal. The Rollers evened matters a little later when Spellman, the end, grabbed a fumble in midfield and ran to the Duluth nine yard line, Bill Cronin taking the ball over and Sonnenberg place-kicking the goal.

EAST LEADS IN INTERSECTIONAL WINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—East and middle west are in a close grapple for intersectional honors following the latest week-end of football conflict.

Scoring two notable triumphs when Army trounced Notre Dame while Pittsburgh upset Nebraska, the east ran its total of victories up to 18, two more than the middle west, where Michigan registered an outstanding victory over the Navy. The middle west has two less defeats against its record than the east.

Southern California registered a victory for the far west by routing Colorado university mite team.

YALE AND GEORGIA LOOM AS COUNTRY'S GREATEST FOOTBALL AGGREGATIONS

By Alan J. Gould.
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Of all the embattled college gridiron legions from coast to coast and gulf to border, the University of Georgia stands out today as the only major eleven neither defeated nor tied.

Overwhelming all opposition thus far in the south, Georgia's claims to national championship recognition are further illuminated by the fact that these bulldogs of the south have been the only outfit to upset the famous bulldogs of the east—Yale, the principal claimant now to eastern title honors through sensational victories over the Army, Dartmouth and Princeton.

Georgia took the measure of Yale by a slim margin, 14 to 10, in an early season contest, but nothing can be taken away from the southerner's credit on that account. It was as much an early season combat for one as for the other. If Georgia can keep its slate clean in coming battles with Alabama and Georgia Tech, there will be nothing to prevent the team from claiming most of the gridiron laurels in sight.

Princeton and Tennessee stood alongside Georgia with spotless slates until yesterday's frays when the Tigers yielded to the spectacular finishing spurt of Yale, 14 to 6, and Tennessee had its match checked by a 7-7 deadlock with Vanderbilt. The Georgians easily disposed of Clemson.

There are a half dozen or more outstanding undefeated teams over the broad expanse of gridiron warfare, but at least one tie game has occurred to spoil their otherwise brilliant records. Among those in this category now are Tennessee, in the south; Pittsburgh and Washington & Jefferson, in the east, as well as New York University; Southern California, on the Pacific coast; the Texas Aggies, leaders in the Southwestern conference; Illinois, pace-setter among the western conference "Big Ten," and Minnesota of the same fold.

Altogether, yesterday was a day of thrills and spills, of sparkling individual feats, another epidemic of tie games and record crowds, where more than 500,000 spectators saw a dozen of the leading conflicts of the east, south and west.

Army's smashing 18 to 0 victory over Notre Dame, putting Rockne's ramblers out of the title running, was probably the biggest "dope" upset of the day. A stunning reversal, but not far behind it was Stanford's jolt at the hands of little Santa Clara, on the Pacific coast by a score of 13 to 6.

Yale's dramatic last period triumph over Princeton, with Bruce Caldwell on the sidelines, shoved the Elis into a pre-eminent position in the eastern fold. Expecting comparatively little difficulty with Harvard in the final game this week, Yale has established a claim to eastern title honors that few, if any, may challenge. Ell victories over the Army, Dartmouth and Princeton—teams that otherwise have conquered all opposition—give the Blue a ranking of unusual merit.

Pittsburgh, tied only by Washington & Jefferson, has a brilliant record, including its latest intersectional victory over Nebraska, but there is little basis for comparison between the Panther and the Bulldog.

In the south, Georgia's rule at the top of the Southern conference, with five consecutive victories, is disputed principally by North Carolina State, which has won all four of its conference games, but which does not boast a record otherwise as impressive as the bulldogs.

Illinois, brushing aside Chicago, is undisputed leader of the Western conference and needs only a triumph over Ohio State this Saturday to clinch the title. Minnesota also is unbeaten in the conference, but suffered an early tie with Indiana.

Missouri, disposing of a rival Iowa State team last Friday, holds the Missouri Valley conference peak, with Nebraska as runner-up. In the Southwestern conference, the Texas Aggies, adding Rice to their victories, have an edge over Southern Methodist and Arkansas in the standing.

The Pacific Coast conference still finds Southern California and Stanford as rivals for the title, although the former added to its prestige with a smashing victory over Colorado University Saturday as Stanford was bowing to Santa Clara in non-conference games. The major conference tilt resulted in Washington's overthrow of California, 6 to 0, but since both had been beaten before, it did not have much effect on the championship rating.

The Rocky Mountain conference leaders, Colorado Aggies and Colorado college, kept pace for pace by defeating tail-end opposition.

TRYON FEATURES YANKEES VICTORY OVER CARDINALS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Red Grange's New York Yankees kept up their winning streak today by trouncing the Chicago Cardinals, 20 to 6, chiefly through the effectiveness of their forward passing attack.

Grange, still limping and playing only parts of two periods, kept in the background while his teammate, Eddie Tryon, galloped over for two touchdowns, the first on a short dash off tackle and the second on a pass from "Wild Bill" Kelly of Montana. Kelly tossed a pass to Ray Flaherty, formerly of Gonzaga, for the third and final Yankee touchdown. The only Cardinal tally was taken over by Lamb, of Lombard, in the last period.

"Bullet" Baker, Yankee halfback, formerly of Southern California, suffered a fractured rib in the second quarter.

GREENEVILLE TIGERS DOWN POLISH A. C.

The Greeneville Tigers, Norwich's only semi-pro football team, annexed another victory to their list Sunday at J. B. Martin field. The Tiger's prey was the tough Polish-American A. C. of New London who fell before the Tigers 13 to 0.

Capt. Soweski of the Polish aggregation won the toss and choose to kick to the Tigers. Poochem Gay received the kick and ran it back to his own 35-yard line where the Tigers were held for no gain and forced to kick. Turneski made a pretty catch and run of this punt bringing the ball about 10 yards. After two tries around end that netted little gain they went back to line plunging where they hit a portion of the Rock of Gibraltar and they also were forced to kick. After see-sawing in the midfield the largest part of the first quarter and part of the second the Tigers finally loosened up and uncorked the lateral pass that the McGrath brothers worked which placed the ball on New London's 20 yard line. After one attempt to skirt the end and one off tackle play without gain, Mgr. Boyd sent in Charlie Parkhurst, former Jewett City Speedboy. On the first play out the box he tossed C. McGrath a pretty forward who carried the ball over for the first touchdown. In the try for point S. Boyd was sent in to do the kicking and in the attempt Bogue broke through and blocked the kick. This ended the half.

Starting the second half Capt. Mileski kicked a pretty spiral to the Polish 5-yard line which they ran back about 5 yards, the runner being downed by Skinny Fenton, former Academy star. After making two first downs the New London team fumbled, the ball being recovered by Fenton, after more or less handling of the ball by both teams. Fenton broke loose and ran 25 yards for the second touchdown of the game. In the attempt for the extra point, a forward pass, the ball was grounded, ending the scoring for the day. After the second touchdown Manager Boyd sent in five men who battled the Whalers to even terms.

In picking the stars of the game, which by no means is an easy task, although it must be said that Gay and Fenton at ends showed some pretty tackling and as did Copp and Rokoski at tackle and guard. Charlie McGrath and Lupinnacci in the backfield did some nice ball carrying. For the Whaling City boys Crossman and Barry were the shinning stars. The lineups:

DODGE BROTHERS INTRODUCE LEATHER UPHOLSTERED SENIOR SEDAN

This five-passenger sedan, upholstered in attractive polo grain gray leather, has just been added to Dodge Brothers' line of Senior cars. The exterior finish is in Brunswick blue and black, making the job particularly striking. This is the first leather upholstered car in the company's Senior line and contrary to the usual custom in the automobile industry it is priced lower than the jobs done in mohair. It will sell for $1495 f. o. b. Detroit, $100 under the price of the same body type with mohair or broadcloth upholstery.

PREDICTIONS OF REVIVAL OF TRADE WITH BEGINNING OF THE NEW YEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP)—Although there were few tangible signs of improvement in actual conditions, a distinctly better feeling prevailed in business circles last week. A number of indications were cited of satisfactory expansion a little later on, and predictions were general that a material revival of trade would be felt with the beginning of the new year.

Authorization of $64,250,000 in dividends on the common stock of the General Motors corporation was the outstanding event of the week. This distribution will be in the form of a regular quarterly payment of $1.25 and an extra of $2.50 a share. The large extra disbursement was accepted in commercial quarters as an evidence that the board of directors of the corporation expect a large run of business next year notwithstanding competition from the new Ford model. President Sloan's optimistic outlook of the corporation's prospects, expressed on his return from abroad, naturally added much to the feeling that the automobile trade will enjoy, in 1928, a satisfactory degree of prosperity.

An advance in prices of bars, shapes and plates by two subsidiaries of the U. S. Steel corporation and one independent company was regarded as carrying more significance than appeared on the surface.

Buying of steel has been for actual needs, restricted to a large degree by consumers' expectations that even lower prices might be forthcoming. The upward swing, indicating that prices have "turned the corner" is expected to bring in a fair rush of orders from buyers who have been holding off.

A sharp increase in unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel corporation was another outstanding development of the week, which tended to revive optimism in the trade outlook. Buying of rails by two large carrier systems and pipe by the oil industry contributed a fair share to the growing relief that better days are not far off.

Improvement of the copper trade, while slight, also created confidence. Organization of a copper institute on the order of the American Iron & Steel institute is expected to result in great benefit to this branch of industry. More effective determination of production costs will lend itself to more standardized methods in selling from the red metal.

Activity in mercantile shares on the stock exchange was attributed to expectations of excellent retail trade, particularly throughout the holiday season. Buying of agricultural implements was reported as picking up and running ahead of last year.

Renewed nervousness developed in the oil industry on the discovery of a new field in the south of Seminole, in Oklahoma. Some fears were expressed that a new era of over-production might ensue.

Cotton goods continued to reflect the erratic movement in the speculative cotton market. Colder weather resulted in a quickening of the demand for woolens and worsteds, but silks were moving a little slower.

The ease of the money market was exemplified by the $700,000,000 oversubscription of the new $400,000,000 issue of treasury 3 1-8 per cent. certificates and by the prompt absorption of more than $100,000,000 in new bonds in the New York market. Bank clearings, however, were off about 18 per cent. from the week before, but slightly greater than the same period 1926.

NOANK

The village school closed for Armistice day, and the stores for half the day. The shipyard workmen laid aside their tools. Flags were flying along the streets and at 11 o'clock the bells rang and all stood with faces toward the east, in honor of those who died in the great war. The children sang war songs at Jane Carson's store.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Webster motored to Middletown to spend the day.

William Plumstead has returned from a visit in Englewood, N. J.

The Sardine club members left in sedan for Mercer field to see N. F. A. team and Bulkeley team in their annual football game Friday afternoon. The local men were betting and cheering for the Red and White to win and when McClone made a fine run the whole stand cheered him so it could be heard for two city blocks. It was some game to watch with plenty of thrills. The Norwich girls sang several songs and cheered for their team to hold that line and not to let their rivals pass. When the game ended 6 to 6, the Noankers were disappointed not to see the N. F. A. win, but hoped they will beat Stonington teams when they play them. The local party included Bernard Carson, Stretch Morrison, Flash McDonald, Keith Ebbetts and Harry Bracci.

John Camerey and Eddie Ellis played their second match of pool at the fire room Armistice night. The room was decorated with Old Glory and a good size number of pool fans filled the room. The referee was Sam Carson. Eddie was the first to shoot and his eye was O. K. on the cross-side shots and he put in 19 straight. Then he made a run of 38. His rival, Sure Shot Camerey, was picking the long shots off like water on a duck's back and he made a run of 42 before he called on the green. Eddie came on again with a smile of victory. He had 89 points before Camerey chalked up for his last hope to tie the

WM. DAVIES AND SON IN AUTO WRECK ON OCEAN AVENUE, AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—William Davies, 200 Colman street, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital painfully injured as the result of the automobile he was driving being wrecked on Ocean avenue Saturday afternoon, when the car overturned. Davies sustained among other injuries, concussion of the brain, probable fractured pelvis, probable fractured thigh and lacerations of the third and fourth fingers of left hand. His little son who was a passenger in the car, sustained a laceration on the back, but after the wound was dressed the boy was taken to his home. Davies was driving the automobile at a rate of speed estimated at about 25 miles and when near the corner of Fowler court lost control of the steering wheel. Before he could get the machine under control again it plunged toward the opposite side of the avenue and skidded badly, with the result that it overturned. Davies was caught in the wreckage and when passing autoists went to his assistance it was realized that he was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital as was his son, who was bleeding from the wound in the back sustained from the shattered glass. The automobile was left almost a complete wreck.

BOOZE GETS JAMES MALONEY FROM STRAIGHT, NARROW PATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—James Maloney, 8 Crouch street, was arrested Saturday night by Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Lawrence Fardy for his welfare and at the request of Maloney's wife. Maloney has been traveling a fast pace the past week and had not been at home in four days and nights. He had been dissipating and Friday morning was arrested in a rooming house on Bank street where he was the companion of Irma Holloway, formerly of Poquonoc, who has been committed to the State Farm for Women at Niantic. Mrs. Maloney asked the police to take charge of her husband and when found, Maloney was locked up. This morning he was allowed to leave police headquarters with his wife provided that he would go to his home and conduct himself in the manner he should. Maloney assured the police that he would change his conduct and promised to behave himself. When he was arrested in the Bank street raid, Maloney gave his name as Virgil Richards and his address as 106 George street, New Haven.

UNCASVILLE MAN STRUCK BY AUTO ON MAIN STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—Charles Donohue son of Dr. J. J. Donohue, of Uncasville, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from injuries sustained Friday night when struck by an automobile driven by John P. Thorne, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Cummings, state pier. He received a laceration of the right armpit and a laceration of the left ear. Donohue will be a patient at the hospital but a few days. He was crossing Main street and did not observe the approach of the auto in time to get out of the way, being struck and knocked down. Thorne had Donohue to be taken to the hospital.

BRAKEMAN JOSEPH MAGEE DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—Joseph Magee, about 45, of Boston, employed in the freight service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was fatally injured Saturday morning when struck by an overhead bridge near Saybrook. Magee sustained a fractured skull and died about 4 o'clock at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Magee was riding on top of a box car of a 60-car train, bound from Harlem river to Boston. When the train was approaching Saybrook, Magee, who was familiar with the location of the bridges, had his back to the bridge and apparently did not realize that the car was about to pass under the structure, for he struck it with great force, being thrown from the car. When the train was stopped and fellow employes reached Magee the man was unconscious and was bleeding from nostrils and ears. He was placed aboard the train and brought to the hospital, where he remained in an unconscious condition until he expired.

William Rohare, proprietor of the Post Road Service station, corner of Bank street and Jefferson avenue, made complaint to the police today that during last night the door of his place of business was damaged, presumably by an auto crashing against it. An investigation by the police reveals the indication that an auto in being driven from Bank street to Jefferson avenue from the west was traveling at such a fast rate of speed that the driver was unable to successfully make the turn and the crash against the door resulted.

Mrs. J. L. Jackson, 12 Richards street, was arrested Saturday night by police watchful for violators of the parking law. Mrs. Jackson parked her auto within 10 feet of a corner and in restricted area. She gave a bond of $3 for her appearance in the police court Monday. Augustus E. Goodwin, 34 Cape Ann court, was arrested also for the same offense and he, too, gave a bond for his court appearance.

Ireneo L. Jesalva, 15 North Bank street, made complaint to the police Saturday afternoon that a man named Bruce had assaulted him and asked for the man's arrest. Bruce, however, was not arested. Jesalva said that he engaged in a quarrel with Bruce and the latter becoming angered, struck him several blows on the face and head.

An automobile driven by Theodore Baker, 139 Hydenburg avenue, struck Robert Beaney, a Clark Lane, Waterford youth, on Main street. The boy was in the highway on Main street and was knocked down. It was believed that Beaney was seriously injured and Baker had the boy taken to the office of Dr. Emanuel Henkle, Federal street, where an examination revealed that the boy had sustained only bruises and bumps.

Edith Reed of New York has sold a house and lot on Truman street to Nicholas Grippo.

Attorney Marion H. Davis, of Niantic; Mrs. Ray King, Sound View; Mrs. Luther G. Stebbins, 297 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Jean Christensen, Meriden street extension, Groton, and Gus Kristoffersen, schooner Marguerite, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Members of F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company are desirous that the city have new quarters erected for the company and already the officers have taken steps toward that end. Whether the request will be granted is not known, but it is believed that new quarters will not be provided right away. Thomas F. Gragan, foreman of the company, has conferred with City Manager William A. Holt on the matter and the former has also discussed the advisability of ordering the condemnation of the building by Building Inspector William Gunn. The latter official, it is understood, will not recommend that the building be condemned. The building is an old one, two stories of brick.

Leonard Lee, chief petty officer, was in the police court Saturday, charged with intoxication and evasion of a taxicab fare. The case, however, was nolled upon the recommendation of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky. Lee hired the cab of Salvatore Laporte and after using it a long time refused to pay his fare. Laporte made complaint to Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin, who arrested Lee.

George R. Stillman, 225 Pequot avenue, was arrested Friday night by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin charged with reckless driving, upon complaint of Dr. Charles Kaufman. Stillman escaped presentation in the police court Saturday for the physician withdrew the complaint. Stillman's arrest resulted when the automobile he was driving barely escaped crashing against the physician's car, it was claimed, because of the reckless manner of the driver.

Three United States Coast Guard sailors, state pier, were arrested tonight. They will not be turned over to the shore patrol for discipline at the local section base, but will be presented in the police court tomorrow. The sailors were drunk and were conducting themselves in a rowdyish manner. They went to Methodist street where they loitered and amused themselves by knocking over traffic signs besides insulting a woman pedestrian. A telephone message was sent to police headquarters and Patrolmen John Courtney, William Corcoran and George Cockell went to Methodist street where they found and arrested the bluejackets.

John Degnan, a patient at Norwich State hospital, made his escape this evening and the police of New London have been requested by the hospital authorities to be on the lookout for him. Degnan is decribed as being 20, about five feet four inches in height and weighs about 190 pounds, has dark complexion, brown hair and wears glasses with silver frame. He had on a long black overcoat.

Acting Sergeant William Graham reported at police headquarters this morning that an automobile had been parked in front of the Cronin building, State street, the entire night. The auto is an Essex, but its owner could not be located, so the car was placed in storage in a garage.

Two of the police signal boxes are out of order, it became known last night, when patrolmen endeavored to establish communication with head quarters. Patrolman Edward Skoczylas reported the box at the corner of Willetta and Montauk avenue out of order and Patrolman Edward Riordan reported the box, corner of Williams and Broad streets, refusing to function.

Patrolman John Clifford discovered a rear window of the store at 58 Golden street open last night. The officer secured the window for the night.

Terrell Cousans was arrested tonight by Patrolmen Elwood Bailey and Patrick Sheehan, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his cousin, William Williams. He was intoxicated and was locked up pending the convening of the police court tomorrow. Williams went to Cousan's home, Golden street, tonight and remonstrated with him because of using the former's automobile without permission of the owner. The rebuke administered by Williams was not taken kindly by Cousans, and wrangling resulted Cousans then became enraged and attacked Williams, administering a severe beating to him. Williams left and went to police headquarters, where he made formal complaint against Cousans.

The trial of Alfredo Zuccerrelli, of Waterford, who resides on the [illegible] Hill road, and is charged with violation of the liquor law, will be held in the Waterford town court Monday afternoon. Zuccerrelli's house was raided two weeks ago by Lieut. Roy Streeman, state police and a force of officers. Much contraband was found for the officers seized a 60-gallon still, a large amount of mash, a quantity of alcohol and all the paraphernalia used in the making and distributing of alcohol. It is understood that the still and mash and alcohol were the property of a New London man and that Zuccerrelli allowed the New Londener to use his premises for the manufacture of the alcohol.

About two weeks ago, the police arrested two men charged with breach of the peace. At the time it was said at police headquarters that the men were employes of the Southern New England Telephone company, but since then it has been revealed that the men were employes of the General Electric company and engaged in construction work in this vicinty. The men molested women as they emerged from the theatres and in police court the next day, each was fined $25 and costs.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The attraction at the Breed the first half of this week is Warner Bros.' extended run production of the laughing-thriller, "The Missing Link," with Syd Chaplin as the star. Neither petticoats nor trench mud clothe Syd in his latest where he is first seen as a hungry poet-taster along the London docks. He takes a job as a luggage-carrier for Lord Dryden who is on his way to Africa to hunt for the gruesome "Missing Link." Scared by a mischievous monkey he hides on the ship and Dryden makes him act the part of the Link-hunter.

How he does finally capture "The Missing Link" and win the beautiful lady, how his stock for bravery goes up, as his heart goes down, make a huge, monstrously amusing burlesque, which sets audiences in paroxysms of unrestrained laughter.

The cast is good and the photography and direction leave nothing to be wished. But it is Syd, Syd the king of the mirth-makers that makes "The Missing Link" what it is, in the words of one of the Broadway critics, "For chronic blues, melancholia, hallitosis, or what you have, take a trip to see "The Missing Link" and cure yourself with laughs."

Palace Theatre

Headed by the Larry Hawkins revue, another offering of big time vaudeville is being featured at the Palace theatre for the current three days. Mr. Hawkins presents a song and dance revue in a decidedly different manner than most acts of this kind. There are five people in the company, each an individual star in their own specialty. Sharing honors on the bill are Christie and Nelson, two men who have presented their act for years exclusively for the Keith-Albee interests. These boys burlesque the actions of a couple of acrobats and in doing so evoke hilarious laughter. The Ray Earl trio in selections of melody and harmony, are sure to please. The Isettos offer a musical selection and Allen and West conclude the vaudeville program with their act "Funatics."

Florence Vidor makes her debut as a screen comedienne in "One Woman to Another," the feature picture which will be offered on the screen. It is the story of a girl and a man whose plans to marry are interrupted by the appearance of her brother who places two children in her care. Then comes a quarantine on her home and the man takes an interest in another woman. Miss Vidor then takes another woman into her confidence and they plan to bring back the lost lover. What happens from then on is the cause of many delightful and humorous situations. From advance reports this has all the indications of being a very good picture.

Broadway Theatre

Once again Rex Ingram has given proof of his ability to combine gripping drama with exquisite pictorial beauty. In the past he has given us "The Four Horsemen," "Scaramouche" and "Mare Nostrum" and last night at the Broadway theatre, he produced "The Garden of Allah," a cinematic masterpiece fully qualified to take its place at the head of the other unforgettable Ingram films.

The combination of a powerful story, flawless direction and beautiful photography serve most excellently to prove the contention that Ingram has sharpened his genuis since he left Hollywood for Nice to produce his old world pictures amid old world surroundings. It was, as the saying goes, a wise move.

Never in all her ten roles under his direction since "The Four Horsemen" has Ingram directed Alice Terry into a more sincere or more moving performance than here as Domini, not even in her memorable role as Freya, the beautiful spy in "Mare Nostrum." She was made for this part—a tall, blonde, beautiful, aristocratic English girl—and there is no separating her from it now.

WEDDING
Devovi-Carey

Carey, daughter of Mrs. Catherine and the late Timothy Carey of 235 North Main street and Patrick Devovi, son of Mary and the late Arnold Devovi of Bayonne, N. J., were united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe with many friends and relatives being present at the mass. The bride was beautifully attired in an imperial blue georgette gown with transparent velvet trimmings and wore a picture hat to correspond. The bridal bouquet consisted of pale pink roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaid was the groom's sister, Miss Margaret Devovi, who wore a tan georgette gown and black picture hat. Her bouquet was of butterfly roses. The best man was the bride's brother, James E. Carey. The musical programme was under direction of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, the church organist, who played as the wedding party entered the church Mendelssohn's wedding march, also rendered in a very pleasing manner Kormen's Ave Maria. As the wedding party was leaving the church Lohengrin's wedding march was played. Following the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, 285 North Main street, a wedding breakfast was served to members of both immediate families.

Miss Carey was a graduate of St. Mary's parochial school, also of the Commercial Training school. She was formerly a bookkeeper at the United States Finishing Co. Mr. and Mrs. Devovi were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts from friends and relatives. They left Saturday afternoon on a wedding tour, which will include visits in Philadelphia, New York and Washington. The bride's going away dress was of tan tweed, over which she wore a black velvet coat trimmed with wolf. The couple will reside at a newly furnished home at Bayonne, N. The Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Mary's Memorial church received holy communion in a body Sunday morning at the 7:30 o'clock mass with a large number of their members being present. Rev. William A. Keefe said the mass and was assisted by Rev. Frederick Coholan in distributing the holy communion. After services the members of the society retired to their rooms in the basement of the church where they conducted their regular monthly meeting. The intentions of the members of the society this month were offered for the deceased members of the society and their friends. Sunday, November 20 being the third Sunday of the month will be the Sunday for the men of St. Mary's parish to receive holy communion and they too, will receive for the special intention of their deceased members or their families.

At the three masses in St. Mary's church Sunday the parishioners were requested to enroll in the membership of the Red Cross, which is having a drive for memberships. Rev. William A. Keefe thoroughly explained at the 9 o'clock mass the need for an organization of this kind throughout the country to help people who have met with misfortune. Reminding the parishioners of the time that the people were made homeless during the Mississippi flood, little did we think at the time that the New England states would be affected the same way. The Red Cross takes care of such matters.

EXPECT DEEP RIVER RESERVOIR TO MAINTAIN HIGH LEVEL AT ALL TIMES

Mayor Milo R. Waters, members of the common council and of the water board, with several citizens interested in the development of the city's new Deep River reservoir in the town of Colchester made a visit of inspection to the dam and reservoir site on Saturday.

The visitors were greatly impressed by the progress of the work. The dam is practically completed and the watershed is ready with the exception of a few minor clearings which will be done in the next few days. H. B. Wightman, a member of the Chandler & Palmer staff, who has spent almost two years of his time supervising the construction of the dam and the preparation of the watershed for the reservoir, was very enthusiastic in telling the members of the inspecting committee that on Thursday night, Nov. 3, during the heavy downpour of rain, the water at the dam rose within nine feet of the top, this occurring while there was a 30 inch pipe continually open and draining off the water from the pond behind the dam. This is indeed a very fine showing, considering that from the bottom of the reservoir to the top of the spillway is a rise of 32 feet and the watershed is 8 1-2 miles, whereas the depth of Stony Brook reservoir at the dam is only 22 feet and the watershed only about one-quarter the size of the watershed at Deep River.

The solid concrete core wall across the dam is 40 feet high, three feet thick at the bottom, tapering to two feet, five inches at the top, and running across 750 feet. The reservoir basin will impound 450 million gallons of water.

According to the rise of the water in the reservoir during the night of November 3rd, the engineers in charge of the work made an approximate estimate that with ordinary fall weather it would take about 60 days to fill the new reservoir to overflowing. The engineers had the foresight to build a spillway 63 feet wide, 460 feet long. This spillway is built of solid concrete slabs with fourteen graduated steps, two feet deep, so as to break the rush of the water spilling over from the water shed. Those interested in the construction are in the hope that the water in the reservoir at all seasons of the year will rise above the spillway level insuring a continuous flow of fresh water to all the limits of the city. The new reservoir is 40 feet higher above sea level than Stony Brook reservoir, thereby insuring a better pressure of water to the higher spots in the city which are so urgently in need of better water pressure.

Visiting members were highly elated over these results and expressed the hope that the water problem of the city of Norwich is solved for many years to come. Another favorable condition of the new reservoir is the watershed which is composed mostly of sandy bottom which will insure good filtration for the water collected in the reservoir. An estimate of the capacity of the new watershed is an approximate yield of ten million gallons of water per day, during the fall weather. The building of the new dam and the clearing of the watershed was done by Contractor Louis Petrossi of Hartford, who also built the Stony Brook reservoir. Mr. Petrossi takes pride in the work he achieved, having worked for almost two years in full co-operation with Chandler and Palmer, who supervised the work for the city of Norwich, and in every respect he carried out all the suggestions made by the city officials.

The chlorination plant is yet to be set up and when that has been finished, the gates can be closed and the accumulation of water will begin.

After the inspection tour, the visiting party of about 20 men was entertained at dinner by Contractor Petrossi and his wife. In appreciation of courtesies extended to the city fathers by Mrs. Petrossi and her daughter on the different inspection trips, Mayor Waters, in behalf of the visiting party, presented Mrs. Petrossi a week-end bag, while a wrist watch was presented to Miss Petrossi.

STUDEBAKERS SHOW NEW SPEED AND ENDURANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 11.—Three American cars just established a new world record for speed and endurance at Atlantic City speedway by travelling 25,000 miles each in less than 25,000 consecutive minutes. No machine made by man ever before travelled so far and so fast. These records were made by two Studebaker Commander roadsters and one Studebaker Commander sedan, particularly timed and checked by contest board of American Automobile association with supervisors and officials of automobile speed and endurance test in the United States. Speed of the two roadsters was 65.31 miles per hour, and the sedan 61.98 miles per hour.

All three cars were certified by contest board as strictly stock cars in every respect; the record made nevertheless exceeds any ever made by special racing cars or stripped stock cars from 3,000 to 15,000 miles and established new records from 15,000 to 25,000 miles inclusive.

TRAFFIC SIGNAL BEACON RESTORED TO SERVICE

After having been out of commission for a month the signal beacon at the corner of Broadway, Main and Shetucket streets is working again. The beacon was smashed October 14 by a truck load of hay which was being driven to the Norwich state hospital. The new parts were assembled Saturday morning and later in the day the beacon was in commission.

Boys Shot Chickens.

Two local boys, armed with air rifles, selected a North Main street man's chicken yard as a hunting ground and as a result landed in the city court Saturday morning. It is understood the boys, both of whom are minors, shot several chickens and when reprimanded by the owner engaged in a fight with him. All three were arrested. In court Saturday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby discharged the man and ordered the boys to pay the costs in the case.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 13.—Suit for $10,000 has been brought by Fay E. Brown of Danielson, Conn., against Leno Lubowitz and George S. Lubowitz, both of this city, in action instituted at the Worcester county superior civil court. The Danielson woman seeks to recover for personal injuries which she claimed to have sustained when an automobile in which she was riding on April 22 of this year was involved in a collision with an automobile owned and controled by the defendants, on the road between Danielson and Central Village, Conn.

COURT IMPOSES FINE FOR BREACH OF PEACE

At the city court session Saturday morning Frankie Podziewski of Talman street was presented before Judge Henry H. Pettis on a breach of the peace charge. He was fined $20 and costs. Podziewski was accused of assaulting Joseph D'Oliver on West Main street late Friday night, inflicting severe injuries. D'Oliver was badly cut about the head, three stitches being required to close a cut on his forehead.

STATE COLLECTED $1,194,077 ON TAX ON GASOLINE

Connecticut collected $1,194,077 in gasoline taxes during the first six months of this year, according to a report just made public by the bureau of roads of the department of agriculture at Washington.

The tax on each gallon sold in the state is two cents, which is one of the lowest levied in the New England states and is below the 2.55 cents average tax on gasoline for the entire country. Massachusetts and New York are still hte only states which have not set a levy on the fuel.

"ARE YOU PREPARED TO DIE?" SOLE QUESTION, SAYS PRIEST

Good health is no guaranty of a long life, neither is youth, said Rev. Myles P. Galvin, preaching at the third mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday to a congregation which filled auditory and galleries. The youngest is often snapped off almost without warning, while in these days of accidents no one can feel any assurance of his hold upon life.

Father Galvin was preaching on the familiar phrase "The state of grace," after he had read the day's gospel, the 23rd Sunday after Pentecost, Matthew 9, 18-26, narrating the restoration to life of the ruler's daughter. The little catechism studied by every Catholic child explains that the state of grace is that condition of the soul which makes it wholly pleasing to God. Grace means friendship with God.

There can be no middle ground—one cannot be at the same time God's friend and His enemy. Christ Himself has expressed detestation of the effort to be at once hot and cold.

There is but one thing which can make man an enemy of God—mortal sin. Hence no person can feel that he is in the state of grace who is violating God's commandments.

Most important of all is it to be in a state of grace at the moment of death. In the carelessness of many Catholics they are risking this, principally for three reasons: Love of the things of this world, its pleasures, indulgences, unlawful, sinful. That is why so many seem unconcerned, so loath to give up illegitimate pleasures, ill-gotten goods.

There is a second class, who put off their conversion through carelessness. They have the good will to serve God, intend to reform, to make themselves friends of God, but they seem lazy, put off the effort, delay confession, until their spiritual lethargy appears to become a habit; they grow ashamed, so live on in a state of mortal sin.

Finally there is a third class, who risk their eternal salvation by pride. These continue in sin for the reason that they think they cannot do wrong. Others may be wrong—but they are so inflated by their opinion of themselves that a false conscience persuades them that they are sinless. This, although the very first requisite of grace is humility; the realization that one is but a worm of the earth, most insignificant of creatures. They are too puffed up to confess themselves sinners. Even God Himself has no patience with the proud soul.

At the moment of death then each must be free from mortal sin. When will that moment be? The Saviour has warned that His angel of Death will come as a thief in the night. Common sense, ordinary intelligence, should make men prudent in preparing to die. "Am I prepared to die?" "Am I in a state of grace—free from sin." these were the questions each was admonished to put to himself, before leaving the church, at the same time praying God to keep him a friend of the Divine Lord. The preacher concluded his brief and practical sermon by the assurance that if we seek to be the friend of Christ through life, He will prove Himself our friend when most needed, at the terrible moment of death.

Rev. Father Galvin waited to assist Rev. John J. Reilly in administering communion to a large number of penitents. At the communion time Miss Gadbois, the organist, played a Rubenstein melody; during the low mass she accompanied the junior choir in the singing of hymns.

27 KILLED, 485 INJURED IN EXPLOSION AT PITTSBURGH

Wrecked District is Being Searched in the Belief That Other Bodies Would Be Found—Death and Devastation Swept the North Side Section When a Mammoth Gas Tank Exploded—485 Injured Were Given Treatment in the Hospitals—The Blast Was so Terrific That Buildings Rocked so That It Seemed an Earthquake Had Gripped the City.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 14—(AP)—An entire section of North Side Pittsburgh lay in ruins tonight and the bodies of twenty-seven persons rested in the Allegheny county morgue, mute evidence of one of the most disastrous explosions in the city's history. Death and devastation swept the old Manchester district when a mammoth storage gas tank exploded.

Tonight, as hundreds of victims of the disaster nursed their injuries in hospitals and in other havens of refuge, supplied by relief agencies, firemen, policemen and volunteers continued the work of exploring the wrecked district in the belief that other bodies would be found in the mass of twisted debris.

As nightfall descended upon the stricken region, rescue workers erected emergency lights at vantage points. Many of the debris-choked streets and tumbled down buildings resisted the efforts of the firemen, and they resorted to dynamite in an effort to move masses of wreckage. Police redoubled their vigilance and kept constant watch to prevent looting.

The quiet of a November morning was shattered throughout the Pittsburgh district by the terrific blast. For a moment the city held its breath as buildings rocked and windows crashed. At first it seemed that an earthquake had gripped the city. Telephone lines were broken and the fire alarm system was crippled. The city stood still, waiting and wondering what was to come next.

Then a fire alarm box in the downtown district on the Allegheny river front sounded, to be followed a minute later by a general alarm.

With the first shock, firemen started the motors of their apparatus, and, as the gong sounded, they rushed forth. The city soon realized that there was a disaster at hand. Automobile trucks, taxicabs, ambulances and all available motor cars soon were rushing through the downtown district, bearing the injured to hospitals.

When firemen reached the scene they were halted by the appalling sight. Streets had been heaved into the air, breaking water mains and sewers, and flooding the entire district. Homes, factories, warehouses and industrial plants lay in ruins. Men, women and children, many with blood streaming from face cuts and other injuries, ran screaming through the streets as if mad.

The cause of the disaster was soon apparent, for, in the midst of the ruins lay a twisted mass of steel, some of the supports of the giant gas tank, said to be the largest natural gas reservoir in the world. Thirteen men went to work repairing the tank at 8 a. m. Forty-three minutes later, as the workers handled their blow torches on the steel frame work, the shock came. Eye-witnesses said that the tank, with a capacity of some five million cubic feet, shot into the air like a balloon. A ball of fire traveled higher than the tip of Mount Washington, across the Ohio river from the scene. Sections of the steel frame work went up hundreds of feet, to crash in the descent through the roofs of houses and buildings and in the streets.

Within a brief period of time, all North Side hospitals were jammed to capacity. Nearly every doctor in the city, as well as nurses, responded to the call for help. Some of the injured were treated on hospital steps for the corridors and every available inch of space within was occupied.

Panic stricken men and women forgot their hurts in their efforts to locate loved one, and several hours after the blast occurred, mothers and fathers, their faces cut by flying glass were wandering through the wreckage, seeking children and other loved ones.

Near the ill-fated gas tank, the first victims were found—nine men, their bodies burned and mangled. These were rushed to the morgue. Later, the body of a woman was picked up from a sidewalk. The rescuers found almost insurmountable conditions in their path. They carried the injured through water waist deep. Tottering walls menaced them and dangling electric wires sputtered on all sides. Yet the firemen, the policemen and private citizens engaged in the work of rescue, forgot their own danger in their feverish effort to rescue others.

When it became evident that the capacity of every hospital in the city was taxed, the Red Cross and the Salvation Army established first aid stations on the outside rim of the devastated area. Here scores of persons were given medical attention. Many doctors braved the perils of the region, and carry emergency kits, then entered the danger zone to seek out and help victims of the disaster.

A check up of hospitals tonight showed that 485 injured persons were given treatment. Some were so badly hurt that doctors feared they would not survive. Among the injured were many school children who were just about to enter class rooms as the tank 225 feet in diameter and 208 feet high let go. The pupils were showered with flying glass. The panic stricken children added to the general confusion. They ran through the streets and were endangered by falling walls until rescuers finally rounded them up. Sent the injured to hospitals and the others to residences outside the stricken region.

The disaster gripped an area of about one square mile, fronting on the Ohio river and centering in Reedsdale street. The section is known as Manchester, and is one of the city's oldest districts. It was thickly settled, old fashioned brick and frame dwellings crowding one upon the other, with factories, warehouses and industrial plants intermingling. In the houses for the most part were the families of working men.

POLICE RESERVES CONTROL MOBS IN FRONT OF MORGUE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Police reserves were called out late today to control the milling mobs in front of the Allegheny County morgue in downtown Pittsburgh, where the bodies of 21 victims of the North Side gas explosion rested.

Thousands of persons, many merely curious, fought to get into the death house. When Coroner W. J. McGregor's appeal to the mob to be fair and permit those seeking missing relatives and friends to enter, went unheeded, the police were summoned.

Finally, the crowd was informed that none of the bodies would be placed in the chapel cases, and a majority of the crowd turned away. Some, however, their faces marked with lines of anxiety, stood firm and these were admitted. They were taken to the embalming rooms in groups. One woman ran screaming from the room. "That's Beaver, I know him. My husband must be dead too for they worked together."

TESTIMONY IN CHICAGO SCHOOL CONTROVERSY

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—That institution of persuasion and good will in the banquet—was employed by the British government to influence 100 American history professors to deal generously with the island empire in depicting Anglo-American relations, the William McAndrew school trial recorded today.

And in making that event a part of the prosecution of McAndrew, superintendent of schools, who is charged with insubordination, the minutes of the British parliament were quoted.

Charles Grant Miller, president of the Patriotic league for the preservation of American history, designated the star witness against the suspended school head, was the only witness.

He substantiated the claim of John J. Gorman, former congressman, that English propaganda had entered the Chicago school rooms through the history courses.

The London gastronomic subsidy was used in 1921 at the Savoy hotel, and among those who dined were Professor Andrew C. McLaughlin, head of the American history department, University of Chicago; Professor Carlton Hayes, of Columbia University; Professor David S. Muzzey, of Barnard college, and Professor Willis M. West, of the University of Minnesota, Miller said. These four, he added, are authors of histories used in Chicago.

Later 100 story authors "were wined and dined at the expense of the British government, in such a degree of gratitude as to provoke protest in parliament at the extravagance," Miller said.

When he became ill, his former wife visited him and a reconciliation followed. When his illness became serious, the re-marriage was decided upon.

Besides his widow, Carwithen is survived by his mother and two daughters.

CONSTABLE IS HELD FOR SHOOTING BOY

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., Nov. 14—(AP)—Constable Graham R. Thompson and Christopher Zilly, president of the police commission, have been ordered to appear before Coroner Eli Mix at New Haven tomorrow in connection with the shooting of Herbert Kabisch, 17, of Milldale Park last night.

The coroner will hold both men in $1,500 bonds pending the outcome of Kabisch's injuries.

It was learned today that Kabisch had been visiting a married sister and was on his way home at the time of the shooting. He was endeavoring to "hitch" a ride and was standing beside the road when the Thompsons and Zilly came on the scene in their automobile.

Kabisch declared that the three jumped from their car and ran toward him and he, not knowing who they were, started to run. He had not traveled very far, he said, when a gun barked, and he dropped to the ground with a bullet in his back.

Coroner Mix is said to have declared that if Kabisch dies, he will consider that the lad was a victim of manslaughter.

HANKOWITES SENDING PEACE ENVOY TO NANKING

SHANGHAI, Nov. 14.—(AP)—(AP)—The conflict between Nanking and Hankow seems to be ended with complete victory for Nanking, which will greatly strengthen the Nanking government. The Hankowites are sending peace envoys to Nanking, advices say, and it is expected that a settlement will be effected, thus terminating all attempts to Hankow to set up an independent government.

In the meantime the disorders in the Wuhan cities—Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang—are dying down, and with Japanese marines landed at Hankow and British marines standing by in readiness to land if needed, hope is expressed that there will be no further trouble.

The rioting and looting in the native city of Hankow are said to have originated in the discovery of the body of General Chang Kuo-Wei, Hunan commander, or the eighty army, who had been strangled to death. In revenge the general's troops looted and burned the headquarters

Inventor Slain By Unknown Assailant

Hebert Meisterknecht Was Shot Dead—Police Looking For His Brother-in-Law.

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 14—(AP)—The sound of five shots, carried over toll lines to Elizabeth, N. J., 15 miles away, gave the first intimation of the killing of Herbert Meisterknecht, inventor and formal naval officer, who was shot as he sat at his desk talking to a business associate over the telephone.

Police are searching for Alex Schrieber of Cleveland, O., brother of Meisterknecht's second wife, who, he married 18 months ago in the Ohio city, after being divorced two years ago from his first wife. A man whose description tallied with that of Schrieber walked from the inventor's office after the shooting, handed a card bearing Schrieber's name in handwriting to a workman standing at the curb and said: "I have just shot my brother-in-law."

P. J. Olde, of Elizabeth, financial partner of the inventor to whom he was talking by telephone, summoned aid by wire when his conversation was interrupted by the sound of the shots. Dr. J. H. Rowland, mayor of Highlands, who answered the call, found the body slumped over the telephone desk and showing no evidence of a struggle.

The workman, whom the man believed to have been Schrieber told of the murder, said that an automobile bearing an Essex county, N. J., license plate and containing two men drove up in front of Meisterknecht's office just prior to the shooting. He said that one man entered the inventor's office while the other waited below and drove his companion away afterward.

Meisterknecht, whose 18-year old son died last summer, and whose young daughter is said to live with his divorced wife in Yonkers, N. Y., their former home, came here two years ago. He was reported to have complained recently to friends that Schrieber disapproved of his sister's marriage because of the inventor's previous divorce. Meisterknecht, his friends said considered his brother-in-law's opposition to the marriage unreasonable and had threatened to have him arrested on further provocation as a mentally unbalanced person.

Meisterknecht was reported to have said that he was a deserter from the German navy and had been commissioned as a lieutenant commander in the United States navy and put in command of a destroyer during the World war.

He had recently invented and patented a registering gasoline pump for which he was officially commended by the New Jersey state department of weights and measures. He also was believed to have recently developed a new type of internal combustion engine designed to use low-grade fuel.

COXEY'S ARMY ENCOUNTERS A FOX HUNTING PARTY

HUNGERFORD, Berks, England, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Cook's Communist marchers, the 1927 British edition of Coxey's army, saw red today but it was not the shade they thought.

As the unemployed, marching on London to tell their grievances, approached Hungerford, after a 25-mile walk from Swindon, they saw a crimson cavalcade coming toward their straggling columns.

There were visions of a town on horseback bringing a greeting all the more welcome in that it was unexpected and the marchers "snapped into it" as the lines were straightened as much as tired feet would permit.

Men and women riders were in the approaching host, the men all in red coats and the women with flowering red veils. The shrill notes of a horn sounded.

The stage was set so far as the delegation from Wales was concerned until a glimpse was caught of a member of the cast overlooked in the early survey. A fox, dashing across nearby fields, was showing the way to the red outfitted party and the eyes of the riders were on the fox and not on the marchers.

SENATOR WALSH SEES "WET" POLITICAL ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(AP)—The nomination by the democrats of an "outstanding wet" for the presidency will force the wet and dry issue into the next campaign regardless of platform declarations and the merit or issues, Senator Walsh of Montana, ardent dry, asserted here today.

In a talk to the National Women's Democratic league, Senator Walsh, who was chairman of the last democratic national convention and his views on the platform, but emphasized that a platform would be immaterial if a "wet" were nominated.

While not mentioning any names, the Montana senator left no doubt that he considered Governor Smith of New York, as one of those candidates who, if nominated, would project the prohibition issue into the next campaign, regardless of platform declarations.

FORMER HOTEL JANITOR AN INCENDIARY SUSPECT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 14—(AP)—Working on the theory that the Graystone apartment hotel fire here early Sunday morning in which eight persons perished and 13 were injured, was of incendiary origin, police tonight arrested Sonnie Cordon, former Negro janitor at the hotel, on a vagrancy charge and held him under high bond.

Cordon was discharged several days ago because of complaints of occupants of apartments that he refused to keep sufficient fire in the furnaces for heating purposes, according to police. He is charged with having told several residents of the building that he would get even with them by "burning you out one of these days."

Cordon was severely questioned. Detectives said he denied being near the building at the time of the fire.

The huge craft was moored to the new experimental mast and officers said another flight would be made tomorrow if weather conditions remained favorable.

Secrecy About New Oil Case Witness

Stranger From Philadelphia Was Closeted With Government Counsel.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Another man of mystery appeared suddenly today in the picture of the oil conspiracy jury scandal.

He was introduced by William J. McMullin, government informer against William J. Burns and his detectives who shadowed the Fall-Sinclair trial jury, but his identity as well as his connection with the case was carefully guarded by the federal attorneys.

The stranger came here from Philadelphia with McMullin in the latter's automobile; was closeted with government counsel for nearly an hour and then left the District of Columbia supreme court with a government agent and under strict injunctions not to talk. He probably will go before the grand jury tomorrow.

The secrecy which the prosecutors threw about the new witness convinced observers that his testimony is regarded as of high importance in corroborating if not extending that already given by McMullin against W J. Burns, his son, W. Sherman Burns and the Burns operatives.

Opening the third week of its inquiry, the grand jury was in session only a brief time today and heard only two witnesses. William J. Burns and his sons W. Sherman and W. Raymond, appeared at the court house and finally obtained permission to go before the grand jury tomorrow under certain stipulations as to their testimony.

These stipulations were not made public, but government counsel said the elder Burns would not be permitted to make any "stump speeches" and must confine himself to testimony pertinent to the investigation.

Burns urged that he be permitted to go before the inquisitorial body to present his answer to McMullin's charge that reports as to activities of the oil jurors and a government employe were fabricated with the idea of using them as a basis for asking for a mis-trial in the Teapot Dome case should the defense find such a course necessary.

The attitude of William J. Burns today was in sharp contrast with that of a week ago when he first appeared here to testify before the grand jury. A week ago the internationally known detective talked freely with the newspaper men and set up a back fire against the government with a charge that a federal employe had made contact with one of the jurors.

Today Burns' manner was subdued and he appeared rather nervous. He talked very little with the correspondents who crowded about him both before and after his conference with the prosecuting officers.

HELD FOR THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF OBREGON

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Antonio Tirado, one of three men held at police headquarters for the attempted assassination of Alvaro Obregon, presidential candidate, died today from bullet wounds received while fleeing from the scene, according to information in possession of capital newspapers.

Police headquarters, however, refused to confirm or deny the report. They declined to make any official statement other than that investigations are continuing in an effort to determine who was responsible for the plot to assassinate the former president, who is a candidate for election a second time.

The three men arrested are considered by police to be the tools of others, perhaps political enemies. One of the attackers is said by police to be a shoemaker and another a barber.

GREENWALDT AND BETZOLD GIVEN LIFE SENTENCES

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Wisconsin's court machinery moved swiftly today, sending Alvin Greenwaldt, 38-year-old liquor runner, and Arthur Betzold, 24, former convict and bus driver, to prison for life, less than 24 hours after they confessed to conspiring and slaying Greenwaldt's wife.

Greenwaldt confessed he had hired Betzold to strangle his wife so he could collect her insurance of $25,000. Betzold said that while Greenwaldt promised him $500 for the "Job," he did it merely because Greenwaldt was a "good fellow."

Both men who pleaded guilty to first degree murder through their counsel, said they had received a square deal and that there was no defense.

COL. LINDBERGH PRAISED BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

In Awarding the Hubbard Medal For Conspicuous Achievement, the Chief Executive Commended Lindbergh's Unselfish Dedication of Himself to the Advancement of Aviation—Called Attention to the Fact That the Flier's Character Had Withstood the Glare of Publicity and Hero-Worshipping Adulation With a Steadfastness That Was Admirable.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(AP)—Awarding the Hubbard medal for conspicuous achievement to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on behalf of the National Geographic society, President Coolidge tonight paid another high tribute to the flier both as an aviator and a man.

Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris stirred the heart of the people, the president said but it was "the flier's unselfish dedication of himself to advancement of aviation that displayed his clear conception of public service.

"He determined to capitalize his fame not for selfish aggrandizement but for the promotion of the art he loves," Mr. Coolidge said. "He was unmoved by the many opportunities for private gain."

The president declared that with Lindbergh's flight across the Atlantic and his subsequent trip to every state in the Union, an activity in aviation for 1928 "far beyond any dream of six months ago" is indicated.

The text of the president's presentation address follows:

"Fellow countrymen:

"Transportation and communication are essential to civilization. Within the year an encouragement has been given to their development that has few parallels in history. The principles of aviation were demonstrated first by Americans at the turn of the last century. In the intervening years their science progressed, both here and abroad. Important flights were made.

"It remained for one of our own citizens in May 1927 to arouse universal interest in the practical possibilities of travel through the air. His flight, alone and unaided, from New York to Paris thrilled the world.

"It appealed to the imagination of humanity. How the hero of this exploit was revealed, not as a reckless adventurer, but as an able sober-minded, modest young man of high and unselfish purpose has now passed into history. What he did to strengthen the cordial relations between our people and Europe is well known. The wonderful and sincere welcome he received abroad, the acclaim that greeted him at home, are still fresh in the public mind.

"But that was not all. With a clear conception of public service he determined to capitalize his fame, not for selfish aggrandizement but for the promotion of the art he loves. He was unmoved by the many opportunities for private gain. The flight to Europe was spectacular. It stirred the heart of the people, but foremost in his mind was the permanent good that might come from thus having directed public thought to human flight.

"This courageous, clear headed, sure-handed youth, whose character has withstood the glare of publicity and the acid test of hero worshipping adulation, became an apostle of aeronautics. He dedicated himself to advancing the science and practice of aviation.

"Taking little time to recover from the strain of his experiences, he started on a missionary tour of over 22,000 miles. Flying in his Spirit of St. Louis the 'Spirit of America' visited 82 cities in our 48 states. Only once did he fail to arrive on schedule time, establishing a record for reliability. He spoke not about himself but for airways and airports in 147 speeches and 192 messages dropped from the clouds. Because of what he has said and done we are told aeronautic plans for 1928 indicate an activity far beyond any dream of six months ago.

"Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, it has been the privilege of few to do as much for a cause in so short a period of time. You have richly merited the many honors already bestowed. Tonight, I have the utmost gratification in awarding you this further recognition of achievement, the Hubbard medal of the National Geographic society."

Taking the rostrum after the president had concluded his presentation address, the youthful hero once more extolled the possibilities of aviation.

"I want to thank you all for the great honor bestowed upon me tonight," he said. "The National Geographical society had aided greatly in exploration of the world and deserves utmost credit for their accomplishments.

"I hope that in the future aviation will aid in discovery and development of distant lands, and that it will take a position of aiding in bringing together in mutual understanding and friendship all nations."

As President Coolidge presented the Hubbard medal to Lindbergh, applause rang out from a most distinguished gathering of government officers and foreign notables. Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh watched the homage paid her son with glistening eyes, and around her were seated sixteen other airmen and the one girl who, encouraged by Lindbergh's example, successfully accomplished perilous air journeys to the shores of Europe and Hawaii.

The dignity which has been noted in Lindbergh's demeanor marked him as he listened to praise from the president for not capitalizing his fame commercially.

HOLD-UPS CONFESSED BY NEW BRITAIN MAN

MERIDEN, Nov. 14.—(AP) — Frank Todzia, 23, of 24 Nash street, New Britain, who is said to have confessed taking part in a series of hold-ups that have occurred in this vicinity since last Wednesday, was bound over to the superior court tonight by Judge J. Lambert Degnan when arraigned in the Southington police court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Failing to post $10,000 bonds, he was taken t othe Hartford county jail by Detective Edward J. Hickey.

According to a confession that Todzia is said to have made to the police, he and the three companions whom he has implicated, have been using a shack in West Mountain, near Roaring Brook, as their center of operations during the last two weeks.

Among the jobs that Todzia is said to have admitted is one in which the bandits accosted a couple in Southington on Friday night. After robbing the motorist, the bandits are said to have attacked his woman companion.

The Southington police stated tonight that they had received no complaint of this supposed hold-up or of the attack made upon the woman.

FIRE FORCED PAINTERS TO JUMP FROM SECOND STORY

MILFORD, Conn., Nov. 14—(AP)—Trapped in a room enveloped in flames fed by a burning can of highly inflammable paint remover, two painters today were forced to jump out of a second story window 20 feet to the ground below. Angre Zerlesewille, one of the painters, was shaken up, but unhurt. His companion, L. Conlss, received a dislocated left rib. He was taken to the Milford hospital. The fire started at 5.04 p. m. today.

The two men were employed by a New Haven firm to paint the second floor of the home of L. B. Bunnell, of 43 Maple street. Zerlesewille accidentally dropped a lighted match into a can of paint remover, which exploded, sending tongues of flame all over the room. Damage to the extent of about $4,000 was done to the furniture and walls of the Bunnell home.

COLORADO MINE STRIKERS SEEKING INTERCESSION

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 14—(AP)—Miners in Colorado who answered the strike call of the I. W. W. a month ago, found little encouragement today in their attempts to bring the strike controversy before the state industrial commission for arbitration.

While petitions asking the commission to intercede were received, both Gov. W. H. Adams and industrial members reiterated that the miners would be without redress until they returned to work.

TOLL OF LIVES TAKEN BY PROHIBITION AGENTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, in an article published today in the December issue of the magazine "Plain Talk," estimated that the toll of lives taken by prohibition agents, "must run into four figures."

Senator Edwards declared that no nation-wide research has been made to establish the accuracy of his estimate, adding "as long as prohibition exists statistics will never catch up with the number of persons killed by prohibition officers, federal, state and municipal."

"The federal men to date," he said, "have slain about 200, and I have read the 'dispositions' from the treasury department by 152 killings by federal agents, with some 84 other cases where deaths have occurred at the hands of local officers."

Answering the question, "how do men die when prohibition agents shoot?" he wrote, "They die, many of them, in cold blood, shot in the back."

"The reports of the treasury department do not, it is true, ever say that a victim was shot in the back, for it would not look good. But investigate the court records and see what you find, and I ask you not to accept my word but the words of physicians, men of the community, who know that perjury on such a score would be instantly detected."

The magazine, in an explanatory note, said that "six months of exhaustive research work by Harry Lowe, of Washington, went into the gathering of data" for the article.

MELLON SEES NO SIGNS OF BUSINESS DEPRESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Business conditions at present are not unfavorable and there are no signs of a depression ahead, Secretary Mellon said today.

In general, business activities now are what might be termed "spotty" the secretary said. The coal business for instance, he added, was rather weak and steel has not been so good, though for the moment there was a prospect of betterment. Some lines were going full tilt, notwithstanding, but it was a little too early yet for a judgment to be pronounced on the situation, in the secretary's opinion.

It could not be foretold yet, for instance, whether 1927 business as summed up by the treasury income tax collections during 1928 will be as great as that of 1926. It all came down to a question of speculation as to what the future would show, but the secretary did not consider that depression was to be expected.

TWO CARS CRASH; THREE MEN ESCAPE INJURY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 14—Three men had narrow escapes from injuries and two cars were badly wrecked in a severe automobile crash near the Diana Fox gasoline station in Columbia, on the Hartford-Willimantic highway, at noon today, between a new Cadillac coupe driven by Guiseppi Brandano of Haverhill, Mass., and a Ford touring car operated by Amos Marceau of 1027 Main street, Willimantic. The machines were traveling in opposite directions, the local car going westerly and the Cadillac coming toward this city. They met on a sharp curve a few miles east of Andover village. The Ford was practically folded up by the impact and to those who saw the wreck it appeared almost miraculous that Marceau and his companion, a local young man, escaped injury. The heavier machine careened down the road about 75 feet, plunged through the state fence and landed right side up at the foot of a ten-foot embankment. The Cadillac suffered heavy damage and was towed to this city by the Jordan Buick wrecker after being extricated from its position with considerable difficulty. An investigation was conducted by State Policeman Frank A. Starkel who placed both drivers under arrest under technical charges of reckless driving. The time for trial had not been set tonight.

Acid Scalp

How many carefully-coiffured heads can stand the test of eyes only inches away, and reveal not a speck of dandruff? How many women can warm to the dance, and know their hair will have no taint for the partner who holds them close?

No one can be sure who has acid scalp.

If you even suspect this acid condition of the scalp, it is time for Danderine. This scientific preparation will neutralize any acidity and dissolve all dandruff if there is any. And it always gives the hair itself a lovely softness and sheen. It will wave better, hold a wave longer, and behave better all the time if you just occasionally apply a few drops of Danderine. Try it! Every druggistore has this perfect conditioner of the scalp and hair, and a thirty-five cent bottle lasts for weeks.

JEWETT CITY

CHINESE BATTLE NEWS FROM MISS SUSAN ARMSTRONG

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 14—A letter from Miss Susan Armstrong, a Jewett City girl, a mission teacher in Foochow, China, tells of the fighting going on so near as to be decidely uncomfortable. The letter was written October 13 and 15. She said that Oct. 13 the firing began at 12:30 a. m. and kept up until 3, rather heavy at times, and some of it quite near. Several shots hit the women's hospital, and there was a skirmish in front of the men's hospital. Tang a general in the nationalist army had been getting all the money he could out of the people. The Nanking government ordered another general to go down, and Tang was told to leave. Cheng came into the city later. There were 24,000 soldiers in the city. Tang did not leave, so most of the battle that day was within the city walls. Many were killed and wounded. There were 22 wounded in the men's hospital. There are two doctors, Dr. Campbell and Dr. Lewis. Miss Armstrong went down to the building, but the shots were flying around fairly thick, and there were no classes. Tang was defeated and he was taken captive. Many are in the army hospitals. One of their most promising young Christians, a F. C. graduate was shot by mistake. He was watching the Y. M. C. A. conference building, three miles or so up the river from Foochow. Soldiers shot him thinking he was an officer who was hiding up there. The pastor there had him brought down to the hospital. He was shot in the leg and an artery cut. As their was no first aid he died from los ses blood after reaching the hospital. Miss Armstrong commented, "Life becomes so cheap when soldiers shoot!"

"We had a sad little service in the chapel at the hospital," she continues. "He was the only support for a family of six, for the father is old, also he was the only Christian in his whole family.

"Would that the peace of the earth might enter men's hearts."

Plan's tonight, last showing of Don Juan, with John Barrymore. No mat. today.—Adv.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Food that should start every breakfast you eat.

Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

DANIELSON MAN RETURNS FROM GENEVA CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 14.—W. Irving Bullard, just back from Geneva, was enthusiastic today over what the League of Nations is accomplishing and more or less amazed over the manner in which the United States is participating in the affairs of the league, signing covenants, as well as being represented at sessions, though not a member. Mr. Bullard spent a week at Geneva at league sessions where members of the International Chamber of Commerce were in attendance from four different countries, Mr. Bullard representing the United States. Mr. Bullard did not go so far as to express his conviction that the United States should join the league, but is about convinced that the degree in which it is participating in its affairs would almost warrant this being done.

Corns Lift Right Off!

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and callouses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothesome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm every time.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store. Try it!

We know what we like, don't we, Old Pipe!

PRINCE ALBERT, and plenty of it, huh? Well, we can justify that on any number of counts. It's more than mere preference. There are sound reasons for liking Prince Albert above anything else.

Take fragrance, for instance. P. A. has 'em all stopped there. Every time I open the tidy red tin, I get a brand-new thrill. A tobacco that smells like that would have to be good, if you ask me. Yes, Sir!

And then take taste. Every puff tells a man that P. A. is cool and refreshing, with a mellow-mildness that is a revelation. Mild, yes, but not wishy-washy. P. A.'s rich, full-bodied flavor balances its mildness and makes it a smoke!

But all the talk in the world won't do a man any good, unless he acts on it. A load of long-burning P. A. in the bowl of his pipe will tell him volumes—and in language he likes. It's the personal test that counts, after all. I don't believe I can add to that.

Not only quality, but quantity, too—TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT

—the national joy smoke!

OUR STATE PARKS

Connecticut has a considerable investment in state parks. The property has been acquired through gifts or by purchase and the 16 pieces are well scattered throughout the state. Through state possession these tracts will be carefully preserved and developed for the benefit of the public and it is interesting to note that there are so many making the most of the opportunities to see and enjoy them.

When it is shown by the state park commission that there have been more than 615,000 visitors to the various state parks during the first ten months of the year it becomes apparent that the public appreciates these centers. The leader in point of attendance is Hammonasset beach and yet like all beach resorts it gets a bigger crowd when the weather is propitious. Because of the cool summer this park failed to draw as big numbers as it did last year, but the mild October caused four times as many to go there as went during the same month last year. Only for the slump in attendance occasioned by the weather the record of visitors at the various state parks would have exceeded that of last year since most of the others showed a substantial increase in the ten months of this year over a year ago.

Attendance at some of the state parks would unquestionably have been much larger were it a fact that good highways existed to and through them. This is a condition which in most instances is outside the province of the state park commission. The condition of the highways rests with the state or the town in which the parks are located. Of the nearly two thirds of a million who visited state parks up to November first, probably only a few would have done so except they were state parks. If more would have gone and got acquainted with these sections of the state and helped to put them on the map the encouragement of good roads ought to be extended. Many are interested and want to enjoy the state parks either as picnic grounds or because of their natural beauty but they balk at bad roads.

AN UNFORTUNATE HANDICAP

In connection with government departments and bureaus there is a consistent demand for increased activity, meaning additional employes and additional expense. Because of limits within which activities must be kept a halt has to be called to keep within appropriations. There would be no end to development if some restraint didn't exist.

This applies to most of the government bureaus but when it comes to the patent office there is a bureau of the department of commerce where it seems some exception ought to be made. This is because the patent office is self sustaining. It not only turns what is necessary to keep it going but it turns back a surplus to the treasury. Its business means a profit to the government.

Under such circumstances there is good ground for the plea that is made by Patent Commissioner Robertson for an increase in employes. It is inferred that the present staff is actively engaged but the office report shows that it cannot keep up with the volume of business that is offered. The last fiscal year was a record year for patent applications but with a staff unable to handle the business promptly delays are necessary and where it was possible a couple of years ago to push through applications in two and a half months it now requires three months. This means a delay which is not pleasing to inventors, the patrons of the patent office, and means that less business is done than otherwise be if there were sufficient employes.

Inasmuch as this commission is a service to the public, specially that is paid for by those who are directly concerned, there might be no proper effort made to have the service keep up to requirements in numbers as well as efficiency. For many of the bureaus can show a profit as the patent office does and for that reason it should be desirable to give prompt service as possible that is apparently wants to do but is handicapped by the lack of needed employes.

THE HOLLAND TUNNEL

The customary rush to inspect and try out the Holland tunnel under the Hudson river that accompanies a new structure is being experienced. This is one of the times for proving or disproving the contention of those who favored the underwater crossing.

Faced by the steadily rising tide of traffic, it was necessary for New York and New Jersey to do something for the relief of the situation. There was the chance for more ferries and it was also possible to build a bridge, but when it came to permanency the tube got the preference. This has meant an outlay of $46,000,000 and use of a long period of time but there is now possessed a motor vehicle outlet that will do much in handling the congestion. When it is declared that it can take care of a stream of vehicles faster than they can be handled at the ends it is evident that it is just now the objective of that crowd of testers which has to be expected at such a time, but it likewise reveals the capacity of the tube and the aid which it is bound to be. Sight cannot be lost, either, of the greatness of the engineering feat.

To those who have had misgivings about the tube being able to carry off the fumes from the automobiles the trial must be convincing. In all particulars it has come up to expectations and both states are going to feel the benefits from it.

The completion of the tube comes in the same year that work has been started on the construction of a suspension bridge over the Hudson. It will be some time before it will be possible to test out the likes and dislikes of the users of each method of getting from one side of the Hudson to the other, but it will come in time and if nothing further in the way of improving the river crossin has been provided by then it should not be difficult to decide whether future efforts shall be devoted to going over or going under. The success of the tunnel should have no slight bearing upon the solution of some of the problems which the city itself is encountering in the handling of automobile traffic in its streets.

Subways for autos may yet be provided.

DECORATIVE GROWTHS

At this season of the year there are those who find much to gather in the highways and fields of the country. They are attracted by the pretty bittersweet and the red berries of the black alder. They are out after much greenery that is to be found in many places, even to the small pines and later on there will be the Christmas tree demand.

In many instances the removal of these pretty decorative products of the fall amounts to nothing. They will soon be gone if left and their removal does not threaten the existence of the vine or bush if properly done. With the greens it is frequently a different matter, but in either case common decency calls for those seeking such decorations to first get the consent of the owner. In many instances they are to be found along the public highways, but when it comes to entering someone's property for the purpose of carrying off what belongs to him it is only right that permission should be obtained. When it comes to greenery the law requires it, legislation being made necessary because of the inconsiderate raids that were made and in the case of laurel for the protection of the bush that was being rapidly cut off.

In New Jersey a loud protest is being raised at the present time because of the large numbers who are going into the country by automobile and stripping trees and bushes of their decorative growth and it will probably be only a short time before it will be forced to resort to legislative action the same as other states have to get protection from the inconsiderate.

THE PITTSBURGH EXPLOSION

Whether it will ever be known what caused the explosion of the big gas tank at Pittsburgh is a question which can be determined only after a thorough inquiry into the affair. Every endeavor must be made to get at the facts if such a thing is possible. It seems hardly probable that anyone can be alive who might have been responsible and yet it may be possible to patch the information together in such a way as to arrive at a decision.

Even though it is the first of the kind, it cannot fail to be noted what a menace such a tank is in a thickly settled part of a city. Unquestionably there would have been a much smaller list of persons injured had it been located on the outskirts of the city and away from dwellings, although the size of the tank created an additional hazard when it is realized that persons several miles away were knocked from their chairs by the explosion.

The experience in Pittsburgh is one which that city will not want to have repeated. No other city will seek it. The aim must be for prevention and the lesson which is to be found in the casualty list in Pittsburgh, and which should be made clearer by the results of such an investigation as is made, should carry a warning to all other communities which need it. The serious losses involved, like the giving way of weak dams under pressure from the Vermont floods, should create a demand for seeing that whatever preventive measures are required be taken by other cities. It is distressing that such losses should occur, but it is equally deplorable if those who can do not profit from them.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Don't plan on holding onto your second Liberty bonds forever.

This is the day on which interest will stop on your second Liberty loan bonds.

A grand jury never knows how much news it is going to get when it starts in session.

The man on the corner says: Don't push up your blood pressure unnecessarily. Leave that to George.

If there is increased interest in the testing of dikes hereabout, it is the natural result of flood developments.

Of course it seems impossible but this marks the half way point in November, or a little over six weeks to new resolutions.

There has been a mistake about Vermont's ability to meet the flood conditions without outside assistance. The offers of assistance will thus not be turned down.

A RARE DOMESTIC BIRD

"We had three weeks of the most perfect household peace with Maria," sighed Mrs. Burch as she related to a friend the tale of her late departed maid. "Ted called her the rara avis domestica when speaking of her to me, and I'm sure that she overheard him one morning at breakfast, for when she brought in the second plate of her delicious muffins I could see that she was trying not to laugh.

"'Your imagination works overtime,' he declared when I begged him to be more careful. 'Anyway, if she did hear me she wouldn't know what the phrase meant.' I wasn't so sure of that. I couldn't help feeling all the three weeks that she was with us that she was play-acting, although she never displayed, as Ted said, any book learning.

"'She certainly is mysterious,' I said to him. 'She never receives a letter here, nor does she ever have a telephone call. It makes me nervous. I don't understand her at all.'

"'Great Scott, why do you want to understand her? As long as Maria continues to serve us the delectable food we are now enjoying why should you worry about her not having telephone calls?' he demanded. 'You were annoyed because the last incumbent was such an inveterate telephone fan, and now you're uneasy because this one isn't. Do be satisfied with the goods the gods provide.' I saw his point, and I decided that I might as well bask in the comfort of a beautifully kept home and hide my doubts, or misgivings.

"One afternoon when I returned from a day downtown I found the living room furniture rearrange. I was at first startled by the complete change, but the improvement was so noticeable that I gasped as much from admiration as from astonishment.

"'If madame does not approve everything can be quickly restored to its former place,' volunteered Maria in her accustomed low-toned, respectful manner.

"'On the contrary, I think it charming. I love the arrangement of the screen and the davenport,' I replied.

"'I am glad that madame is pleased. I have had the change in mind ever since I came.' It seemed to be that there was a suspicion of superiority in her tone and I felt like saying, 'Indeed?' but Maria in her immaculate white cap and apron looked so demure and innocent that I squelched the impulse. And I was glad that I did, for I realized that it would have been a pity to allow any word of mine to interrupt the perfection with which our house was running.

"Then, as the movies say, came a night when there was an exquisite centerpiece of flowers on the dinner table. Ted gave me an anxious look and asked guiltily if it were our anniversary or anything.

"'No dear,' I answered, laughing. 'As far as I know this isn't any high day that you have overlooked,' and when Maria appeared with the soup I asked her where the flowers came from.

"'Oh, those little spring blossoms. They are just some I happened to see when I was out today. I hope that they please you, madame,' she answered so formally that I actually felt awkward when I thanked her and said they were beautiful.

"The next morning I found a note on the breakfast table. 'It is too bad to take French leave,' it read, 'but I am called away. With my thanks for your many kindnesses, I am sincerely yours, Maria.'

"'I always knew she was too good to be true,' exclaimed Ted, and I didn't bother to tell him that I was the one who suspected something strange about her all the time. Would you believe it, breakfast was all prepared and waiting in the warming oven? She could not have been gone five minutes when we were reading her note."

"Did you ever discover who she was or anything about her?" asked the friend who had been listening with keen interest.

"She's Marie Delano, an actress, and she was filling in time at our house between engagements by way of adventure. Ted and I recognized her on the stage the other night, and we sent a note to her dressing room and saw her after the play. She appeared to be charmed to see us and she said gayly that she was afraid that she had played a rather hard joke on us, but Ted assured her that it was a joke we should love to have repeated any time she was free. But I'm not so crazy about that. She's almost too pretty in her cap and apron."—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

URINE WARNS OF DISEASES.

By R. V. Day, M. D., F. A. C. S., Los Angeles, Member Gorgas Memorial.

Blood in the urine means inflammatory or other organic disease somewhere in the urinary tract. When it is seen, one should go at once to a competent urologist and find out the precise source of the bleeding and the nature of the disease causing it.

Only an adequate examination will disclose the trouble. This examination may be brief and without discomfort, or it may be prolonged and cause considerable distress, depending on the nature of the case; but, like a cavity in a tooth, the sooner it is done, the easier and milder the treatment.

Frequency of urination extending over a period of several weeks, especially without apparent cause, should have the same diligent care in examination. Diseases manifesting these signs are almost invariably much more successfully treated when discovered early, and this early treatment may be the means of saving an important organ and escaping a surgical operation.

On the other hand, Bright's disease in its various forms and diabetes are usually discovered by the family doctor, and his advice should be followed. Only tuberculosis, stone, tumor, infections, and obstructions require expert urological examination.

There is no excuse for delay when one notices anything unusual in the urine. The family physician should be consulted immediately, and he will know if a specialist is needed for examination.

THE REV. ALVAN BOND

(From Norwich Bulletin, July 20, 1852)

Shortly after noon yesterday the Rev. Alvan Bond, D. D., for 30 years pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Stephen B. Meech, on Broadway.

The Rev. Alvan Bond was a native of Sutton, Mass., where he was born April 27th, 1792. He was graduated by Brown university in 1815. His theological course was taken at Andover Theological seminary, and he remained a resident graduate most of the year after having completed the regular course of study.

He was ordained and installed pastor of the Congregational church at Sturbridge, near the close of the year 1819. After ten years of labor in that pastorate he accepted an appointment as professor of sacred literature in the theological seminary at Bangor, Me. The severity of the climate so impaired his health that he was compelled to seek a field of labor in a milder section of the country.

In the winter of 1835 a call was extended to him from the Second Congregational church of Norwich, which he accepted. He was installed in the following May and began his long pastorate with that society, which was then the only Congregational church in the city, and enjoyed a large membership.

In 1842, seven years after he began his labors, 98 of the most active and influential members, including the late Gov. William A. Buckingham, went out to form the Broadway church. The withdrawal of this large body of communicants only temporarily weakened the church. Dr. Bond, always hopeful and cheerful in his ministry, labored with such enthusiasm and vigor that the opening of the year of 1843 saw every pew taken and the church as strong as when he accepted the pastorate. His prosperity with the church was remarkable, and the fruit of his labors will long abide in this community. For 28 years he supplied the pulpit an average of 50 Sundays a year, being absent but once in all that time from a communion service.

He was the foremost biblical scholar residing in this city during his pastorate, and was the writer of a history of the Bible, published by Henry Bill, which proved a very successful and profitable work.

The Canadian department of customs estimates the gross outlay in Canada by American tourists in 1926 at $203,197,820, and this huge sum is growing at a rapid rate. The province of Ontario, on account of its favorable location near the densely populated areas of northeastern United States, profited more than all the other provinces combined, having more than one-half of the total auto entries and of the money spent. The province of Quebec was second, with about 26 per cent of the total outlay.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Bishop Charles H. Brent, who has been obliged by ill health to resign the charge of Episcopal churches in Europe, has had an unusually active and varied career in the ministry of the Episcopal denomination. He first became widely known as missionary bishop of the leading figures of the islands, popular alike with the natives and with Americans of all sects. Upon his return from the Philippines he accepted the bishopric of western New York. During the World war he served as chaplain of the American expeditionary forces. Bishop Brent is a Canadian by birth, and his first parish was in Buffalo. He went to Boston in 1888 and made a place for himself which led to his selection for the missionary post in the Philippines.

Stories That Recall Others

Naturally Not.

They were having lunch and the young man, who had just returned from a motor tour through several states, was regaling his companion with accounts of the cities which he had visited. With an abrupt change in the conversation, he asked suddenly: "Do you like clams?"

"Where is it?" asked the polite, if somewhat inattentive young woman, absently; "I don't think I've ever been there."

Three year old Mary, seeing her grandmother's purse on the table said: "Grandmother, may I have a penny?"

Grandmother answered, "Yes."

Then she said: "May I get it myself?"

Again the answer was yes. She opened the purse, took out a penny, looked at it, and said: "Grandmother, may I have a nickel?"

Again the answer was yes. She put her hand into the purse and pulled out a half dollar. She said: "Oh, grandmother, I am going to take a big one."

Grandmother let her have it.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Is Wholly Heedless

Before the one that it holds dear
True love is reckless, knows no fear.
—Old Mother Nature.

When Peter Rabbit discovered that little Mrs. Peter had disappeared he lost all interest in the two strangers in the bramble-tangle up there in the Old Pasture. "It must be," he thought, "that she slipped away while I was watching them. I mustn't lose track of her this time."

He waited long enough to look through the bramble-tangle thoroughly, to make sure that she wasn't sitting somewhere in it. He saw that there was a little path leading from the outer edge of the bramble-tangle from the point where she had been sitting. He hurried around to this. He found the scent of Mrs. Peter at once. There was no doubt about it. Eagerly Peter turned and hurried off in the direction she had gone. He was in such a hurry to catch up with her that he was wholly heedless. He forgot everything else. He forgot that there might be danger. He forgot that he had an enemy in the world. He forgot that always hungry folk are looking for something to eat. He just rushed off down one of those cowpaths in the Old Pasture, lippety-lippety-lip, as fast as he could. The result was that he all but ran right into Old Man Coyote.

It is a question which was the most surprised, Peter or Old Man Coyote. You see, Old Man Coyote had been trotting up that very little path and they had met right on a turn. For just a wee second each stood perfectly still. Then both moved at the same instant. Old Man Coyote jumped for Peter and Peter jumped for his life. Old Man Coyote is a fast runner. Peter is a fast dodger. For a few minutes there was as lively a game of dodge as ever was. How Peter managed to keep out of Old Man Coyote's jaws he doesn't know to this day. But he did manage to, and finally reached the safety of a bramble-tangle. There he panted for breath and made faces at Old Man Coyote, who was peering in through the brambles. Old Man Coyote merely grinned. He wasn't a bit angry.

"It's all right, Peter," said he. "You beat me this time, but sometime I'll beat you. I haven't any hard feelings. The fact is, I'm not so very hungry. You see, I have just had a good meal."

Old Man Coyote turned and trotted away. Peter remained right where he was. But he was a badly worried Peter. What had Old Man Coyote dined on? What was that good meal he had just had? Could it be that he had caught little Mrs. Peter? Peter felt as if he must go right away, but he knew it wouldn't be safe to do so for the present.

When at length Peter did dare go on there was no trace of little Mrs. Peter. He had lost her again. He didn't know now in which direction she had gone. And it was all because he had been so heedless.

"It serves me right," said Peter to himself. "It does so. I haven't the least idea in which direction to look. There are many things I don't understand. She must have gone off with that strange rabbit; yet she seems to have left him now. She didn't look the least bit jealous. Perhaps if I hang around that bramble-tangle where those two strangers are she will come back there. I believe that is what I'll do."

It is a question which was the most surprised

So Peter turned back, but in going back you may be sure he was no longer heedless. He had learned his lesson. He had no idea of furnishing Old Man Coyote, or anybody else, with a dinner (Copyright, 1927, by T. W. Burgess.)

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion, sour acid, gassy stomach, and sailor will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. HIGBY GENEALOGY GIFT FROM AUTHOR TO LIBRARY

The Otis library has had a most acceptable gift in the form of the Higby genealogy, which has come from its author, Clinton David Higby, of Erie Penn., and his wife, who was Mary Elizabeth Bidwell, of Norwich.

The book is a full and informing history of Edward Higby, the immigrant ancestor and his descendants. It is a fine example of the best in the book-maker's art, being bound in dark blue, with gold lettering, while its eleven illustrations are of the highest type. Those which depict scenes in the English territory where the Higby family had its origin were taken by the best out-door photographer in England, it is claimed.

The paper is of the finest texture and the data appears in clear, bold type which it is a pleasure to read.

Clinton David Higby, compiler of the genealogy, is a lawyer of Erie. He is author of "A General Outline of Civil Government," "The Government of Pennsylvania and the Nation" and other works.

The new gift comes to the Otis library with compliments of Mr. and Mrs. Higby and is greatly appreciated by the trustees and library staff.

Hiked to Give Surprise Party.

Last Friday evening a group of young ladies met at Ricker's drug store and hiked to East Great Plain where they gave a surprise party to Mrs. Frank Robinson at her home. After a pleasant evening spent with games, refreshments were served by Mrs. Robinson and the members of the party hiked back to their homes. Those carrying out the surprise were the Misses Myrtle Greiner, Doris Pulcifer, Edith Pulcifer, Olive Rathbun and Myrtle Gonser.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FAVORS $400,000,000 NATL. TAX REDUCTION

The directors of the Norwich chamber of commerce are in favor of the proposed $400,000,000 reduction in federal taxes. At a meeting Monday noon at the Wauregan hotel the directors accepted a report submitted by their special federal tax committee, on referendum No. 50 of the chamber of commerce of the United States, the report of the local committee being in favor of the proposed reduction. The committee, Martin E. Jensen, Martin Cohen, Edwin G. Hellyer, Andrew B. Davies and Charles S. Eaton, submitted their report as follows:

After careful consideration of referendum No. 50 of the chamber of commerce of the United States, your committee on federal taxation submits their opinion on the questions therein presented, as follows:

Question 1—The committee (United States chamber committee) recommends immediate reductions and repeals in federal taxes, which, if made effective, are estimated to amount to $400,000,000 in the first full year after the changes are made.

Vote of this committee: Yes, 5.

Various estimates of the amount of reduction in federal taxes possible for 1927 and the following years have been published. In contrast with the administration figures of $325,000,000 in the maximum estimate of $500,000,000 made by Representative Garner of Texas, ranking democratic member of the ways and means committee. This committee, in advocating the $400,000,000 reduction recommended by the national chamber, defers to the opinion of those who, presumably, are better qualified to judge the actual possibilities.

Question 2—The committee recommends that the rate of corporate income tax applicable to net income of 1927 should not exceed 10 per cent.

Vote of this committee: Yes, 2. No, 3.

The members of this committee are unanimously in favor of all reduction possible in the rate of corporate income tax. But certain members have in mind the now existing federal estate tax, the tax on admissions and dues, various excise taxes, (including tobacco) and the few remaining stamp taxes. They are of the opinion that some portion of the total reduction of taxation finally found possible should be accomplished through the elimination of these items from our scheme of taxation, the balance being applied in reduction of the tax on corporate incomes. In this connection it may be noted that Representative Garner, before referred to, representing the extreme radicalistic advocates of tax reduction, proposes that the corporate rate be fixed at 11 per cent.

Question 3—The committee recommends that congress should provide full opportunity for the joint congressional tax committee to perfect proposals for revision of federal tax laws and their administration.

Vote of this committee: Yes, 5.

This question refers to a committee created under the revenue act of 1926, its object being to systematize and simplify tax laws, and their administrative provisions. It is our opinion that this committee should be continued and be aided in the completion of its work in every possible way.

During the meeting President James L. Case appointed Charles W. Taggart, H. D. Larrabee and Judge Nelson J. Ayling as delegates to represent the local chamber at the New England council conference at Springfield, Thursday and Friday of this week. It is expected that 2,000 chamber of commerce men from all sections of New England will attend this meeting.

The meeting also requested the chamber secretary to write a letter to Governor John H. Trumbull assuring him of the local chamber's interest in the establishment of the proposed trans-Atlantic steamship service out of New London and offering to give any possible service to aid in establishing the line. It is believed that Norwich would benefit materially if New London were made the terminus of the proposed line. It was voted that a copy of the letter be sent to Congressman Richard P. Freeman.

The industry committee reported that they have been in conference with a New York concern and that the chances are favorable to bringing it here. The committee was further empowered to continue negotiations with the New York concern.

Louis M. Crandall was made chairman of the committee in charge of the annual meeting.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE, SUFFERS FRACTURED SKULL

William Mitchell of 468 Main street, night foreman at the trolley car barn on Central avenue, suffered a fractured skull Monday morning about 7 o'clock when hit by an automobile driven by Zigmut Sajkowicz, 31, of 22 Howard street, who was arrested Monday night at his home on the charge of reckless driving. After Sajkowicz had been brought to police headquarters by Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officer P. Shahan, he gave bonds of $500 for his appearance in court.

Mr. Mitchel was about to cross Central avenue and as he stepped out between two north-bound trolley cars which were standing in front of the barn he was struck by the automobile, which was traveling northerly and is said to have gone to the left of the standing trolley cars.

H. E. Savage, an employe of the trolley company, rushed the injured man to the Backus hospital, where he was attended by Dr. J. W. Callahan.

Mr. Panek's claim was for finding a customer, one Mrs. Cicarelli, for the purchase of the Stankiewicz residence at 46 Roath street. The sale price was to have been $4000.

B. Waller.

Schwartz Bros. sued for two months' rent which they claimed was due on the Specialty shop and $100 more for heat, the whole bill being $450. Attorney J. J. Desmond was counsel for the plaintiff and Attorney Joseph Greenstein for the defendant.

Delinquent property tax payers are subject to an addition of nine per cent for the first six months, 10 per cent for the next six months, and 12 per cent thereafter. Three dollars extra is also assessed against the delinquents when the liens are recorded on the property.

GAVE DESCRIPTIVE READING BEFORE ART ASSOCIATION

The November meeting of the Norwich Art association was held Monday evening in the annex at Slater hall. The business meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Hannah Crowell, at 7.30 o'clock. The following members were unanimously elected: Mrs. Charles H. Preston, Mrs. William A. Norton, Miss Margaret Camp, Miss Elsie Church, Miss Luella Wilson and Miss Lilla C. Hirsey.

This was followed by an excellent descriptive reading by Miss Louise Norton on Art. This was to have been illustrated by two subjects posed by living models, but Miss Margaret Camp was unfortunately ill and could not appear as the bride in the picture "Incognita," sometimes called "The Unknown Portrait of a Bride," painted by Pierrodella Francesca who was a pupil of Forlis.

The picture shown was the "Musical Angel," a detail of the fresco in the sacristy of St. Peter's in Rome, by Melozzo da Forli, a 15th century painter.

Miss Blanche Wilber was the model for the angel and the selection showed the wisdom of the committee in charge of the picture, who were Mrs. Willis Phipps Austin and the Misses Marion Briggs and Constance Learned.

Miss Rose Trumbull as chairman of the programme committee was assisted in the work of setting the stage by Mrs. John D. Hall and Mrs. Frederick F. Sayles.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF STEALING AUTOMOBILE

Charged with the theft of an automobile, Charles Goyett, 21, of Norwich avenue, near Taft's station, was arrested about 9 o'clock Monday evening by Lieut. Streeman and State Policeman S. P. Sisson, of the Groton barracks. Goyette was locked up under bonds of $1500. He will be presented in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

Goyette is charged with the theft of an automobile owned by Edward Novack several weeks ago. Mr. Novack had parked the machine, a Chevrolet sedan, near the top of Broadway hill, while he was attending night school at the Broadway school house. When Mr. Novack returned to the place where he had parked the machine, it was gone. He reported the theft to the local police and a day or two later the sedan was found abandoned in the vicinity of Versailles. Since then the local and state police have been working on the case with the result that Goyette was arrested, charged with taking the machine.

The case was tried before Judge Charles B. Waller in Norwich Monday, resulting in his taking the papers and reserving decision.

The plaintiff claims that the following remark was passed in Polish in her presence and the presence of a minor girl: "Now you priest—they let you out." It was brought out in court that the remark was alleged to have been made after a service at the Polish Independent church in Norwich, a few days after the plaintiff had paid a udgment of $35 for an alleged assault upon the daughter of the defendant, Mrs. Annie Fitzgerald.

Attorney Thomas M. Shields appeared for the plaintiff, while Attorneys John H. Barnes and J. J. Desmond were counsel for the defendant.

ACADEMY MUST SHOW IMPROVEMENT IN ORDER TO BEAT STONINGTON HIGH

A review of the games played in the Big Six season among the "Big Six" can really be but a story of one game, that of the Academy and Bulkeley. The remainder of the games ran just about as to form although the winners had busy sessions at times in pulling through.

Scores the past week:
N. F. A. 6, Bulkeley (N. L.) 6
Stonington 13, Westerly 0.
Windham 13, Bulkeley 6.
Chapman Tech-La Salle Academy (cancelled).

"Fumbles"

Two fumbles tell the story of the scoring in the Academy Bulkeley game. Bulkeley had a missed punt roll behind the line and Ellis pounced on it. The Academy had a loose ball come its way and Jack Marks circled the entire Orange and Black team with some nice interference to score after about a 50 yard dash.

One thing the Academy worked harder for Friday than did Bulkeley, about 50 yards harder.

But, on the other hand, throughout the game the Academy outplayed ten members of Bulkeley but the punts of Locke were enough to keep the Red and White back most of the way. Showing little offensively, only a bunch of slow moving backs and a big line that opened none too large or many holes the Whalers climbed aboard Locke's right toe and thereby rode to a tie, or "moral victory."

The Academy's faults were mostly fumbles, poor generalship especially near Bulkeley's goal line and the inability of the interference to run. When the locals brought the ball up to the 2 yard line in the second period it seemed almost certain that they would score but, thanks are due more to their own mistakes than any stand of Bulkeley's.

In short, last Friday's fighting Academy team, making mistakes and combating the breaks ran into a fighting Bulkeley team with Frank Locke's toe and breaks. Bulkeley also made mistakes but only one of these was of the "bad" variety.

This game was as stubbornly contested and uninteresting an affair as these two schools have waged in a long time.

Plenty of hard work will come the Academy's way during this week for they have a rugged Stonington team to meet Saturday in the "Farmer's" own pasture. Injuries seem to be getting in some damage on the light and youthful Academy team and the outlook as preparations start for this game is none too bright Stonington will outweigh and out-experience the locals considerably and it will take plenty of fighting and few mistakes to win this game for the N. F. A. and thereby gain undisputed right to the eastern Connecticut prep championship.

Stonington Defeats Westerly

Stonington administered a trimming to its ancient rival Westerly Friday that smelled of decisiveness although the score does not indicate such. The Granitemen went first downers throughout, something that has not happened in some time and especially in their hard fought series with the "Farmers." Cowan, 200 pound fullback scored both touchdowns, giving Westerly trouble at all times.

A Stonington will was expected in this game but it was the first time in many moons that Westerly entered the fray as the underdog.

At Windham Saturday Callaghan's men came strong in the second half and scored two touchdowns. "Sugar" Hugret, Bristol's capable fullback, was stopped during the latter part of the game with the result that Windham could win.

The work of the "Big Six" to date:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	Pts. Op.
N. F. A.	4	1	1	82	50
Windham	4	2	1	71	44
Stonington	4	2	0	75	34
Westerly	1	4	2	13	72
C. Tech	1	5	0	19	88
Bulkeley	0	5	2	6	103

Bits About the Big Six

The paid attendance at the Academy Bulkeley game was unofficially announced as 1700, meaning $850.

It took Bulkeley eight games to score six points but nobody in New London cares for they were scored against the Academy.

Windham has apparently recovered from the Academy defeat. She now prepares for her ancient rival, South Manchester this week end.

Three of the teams of this section close up shop this week, Bulkeley with Ansonia, Windam with Manchester, and Chapman Tech with Westerly.

Westerly and Stonington meet Thanksgiving day while the Academy has that game in which little interest is placed, the Alumni for Turkey day.

Bitter was the disappointment when it became known that the rumors of Bulkeley of Hartford or Naugatuck coming here Thanksgiving were only rumors. A high school game on that day would draw many to the campus whereas the Alumni only pulls in about 800.

There are many high schools in Mass. with open dates for a week from Thursday while Stamford in this state is looking for a game for the latter part of the month. Even Plainfield would probably satisfy.

Last year the Academy won 5, lost 1 and tied 2. This year they have won 5, lost 1 and tied 1 with two games to play. It can still be the same. A win over Stonington is desired very, very much.

Cragan's booting against Westerly with a wet ball was mighty good and as the Academy has shown little material along this line some method will have to be devised to make up for this deficit.

Bulkeley sure has some beautiful athletic plant in Mercer field.

Saba was at quarterback for Windham Saturday.

Chapman Tech had its game with LaSalle academy at Providence Saturday called off because of a confusion of dates.

Chapman Tech's win in the cross-country interscholastics was well earned.

In Other Sections

Hartford and New Britain meet Saturday at New Britain in the schoolboy classic of northern Connecticut. About 30,000 are expected.

Harding and Central highs of Bridgeport meet Thanksgiving with both willing to claim the state title upon a victory.

Harding walloped Wilby 12 to 0 Saturday.

Kingswood Prep of West Hartford is one of the very few undefeated arrays in the state at present but of course, she can have no claim for the high school title.

Plainfield lost to Warwick Friday 26 to 0.

Marty Gilman was the only former Academy player to get into a college game over the week end. He played part of the game against R. I. State for Conn. Aggies.

RUMORS OF ARMY-NAVY BREAK IS ABSURD

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—Any talk of a break in football or other athletic relations between the United States naval and military academies, over differences in eligibility regulations, is "absurd," Head Coach "Biff" Jones of the Army gridiron declared today.

The rival service schools have signed a four-year football contract, under which this year's game in New York is the first to be played, so that there is no prospect of any rupture in relations at least for three more years, if at all, Coach Jones pointed out to the Associated Press.

Gossip of a split between Annapolis and West Point has had its basis in the decision of the naval academy, announced last June, to adopt the three-year varsity eligibility rule and not to schedule games with an institution lacking the same code. The Army places no restrictions on its athletes but at neither West Point nor Annapolis is there any expectation apparently, that this will result in any break.

Taking cognizance of published statements, Head Coach Jones denied today that he had expressed a view that the Army would not consider adopting the three-year rule. Army officials have not committed themselves on this issue nor was there any indication today that the situation, at either school, was regarded as serious enough for a conference on athletic rules.

BIG LEAGUE HOCKEY IN FULL SWING TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—The "big league" hockey season for 1927-28, giving every promise of attracting record-breaking interest and financial return, starts tomorrow night on three American and two Canadian rinks. The ten clubs of the National Hockey league will take up the battle for the Stanley cup and the world's professional championship that goes with it, now in the hands of the Ottawa Senators.

The opening games will find the title-holding Senators meeting the rival Montreal Maroons at Ottawa, the Montreal Canadians opposing the New York Americans at Madison Square Garden, New York Rangers playing the Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto, Chicago's Black Hawks starting the season at Boston and Detroit chasing the puck at Pittsburgh.

As last year the league will be divided into two divisions, one known as the International group and including the four Canadian outfits, along with the New York Americans. The other five clubs are in the American division. Teams finishing first and second in each group play off at the end of the season to decide the inter-group contestants for the Stanley cup title series.

MARTINEZ BEATS DIVODI IN TEN ROUND BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—Hilario Martinez, sensational young Spanish junior welterweight, continued his drive toward a title bout by whipping Andy Divodi, crack New York youngster, in a ten round feature match at Madison Square Garden tonight. Martinez scaled 144 pounds, two more than Divodi.

The decision, greeted by disfavor by the fifteen thousand fans who witnessed the battle, came to Martinez through an aggressive surge that carried him to the front in every round after the fifth. Although Divodi peppered Martinez steadily with lefts to the head and shook him up at times with short right crosses, the Spaniard never let up in his forceful tactics. At the close Divodi was very tired from the solid body hammering of the final rounds.

Bruce Flowers, Negro lightweight from New Rochelle, N. Y., won a sizzling ten round decision over Sammy Vogel, of New York. Fans booed the decision loudly and long. Sammy beat Flowers in an equally heated combat several weeks ago. Flowers weighed 136; Vogel 140.

Joe Glick, button hole maker from Brooklyn, trounced Jack Bernstein former junior lightweight champion in a ten round semi-final to gain a bout at Tod Morgan's 130 pound crown here next month. Glick battered his Yonker's foeman badly about the body. The weights were: Glick 129 1-2; Bernstein 129 1-4.

AGGIES GET STIFF DRILL ON B. C. PLAYS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 14—Work in the camp of the Connecticut Aggies in preparation for the Boston college game to be played at Hartford next Saturday got under way in earnest here today. Coach Sumner Dole kept his squad indoors for a long blackboard drill in which he outlined the Boston college formations and plays, while Coaches Alexander and Bitgood drilled the freshman squad with those same formations. A scrimmage between the freshmen and varsity is planned for tomorrow and Wednesday to give the first eleven a chance to size up the B. C. attack in actual combat.

All of the Connecticut players came through the Rhode Island game in good condition and Dole expects to have his strongest lineup available to start against the Eagles. Captain Eddy and Williams, the Aggies' star backs, were not hurt seriously last Saturday, and both are expected to start against Boston. After their disappointing showing a week ago the Aggies realize their only hope to close the season successfully is to win from the Eagles. On paper this seems like an impossible assignment, but the Connecticut eleven hopes to upset the dope.

YALE VARSITY RESTS AFTER HARD BATTLE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 14—(AP)—Yale's varsity eleven rested today. The team was not even called on to show up at the practice field where the subs were going through their usual Monday drill.

Johnny Garvey was with Captain Bill Webster and Johnny Hoben in the infirmary today but his injuries are confined to painful bruises which he received in the Princeton game.

It developed today that Webster was injured the week before the Princeton game in scrimmage and not in the game itself. His injury was not regarded seriously and the fact that he played against Princeton with a strained ligament and was almost completely out when the game ended. It now appears that there is an even chance of his starting against Harvard on Saturday.

Tomorrow the varsity will start intensive practice for its last week end the game with Harvard. Hall will probably be in Hoben's place at quarter. Hall in Webster's position at right guard and Wilson at left or right tackle will go in as in the Princeton game.

DELANEY WILL FIGHT MONTGOMERY FRIDAY NIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, denied tonight that Jack Delaney had been matched to fight Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight, here Friday in place of Jack Sharkey, who fractured a finger in training.

A match between Delaney and Billy Montgomery, former Centre college football star, was made tonight to replace the cancelled Heeney-Sharkey go, and later called off. A complete new card probably will be announced tomorrow Rickard said but Heeney will not be on it.

WESTERN CONFERENCE TITLE TO BE SETTLED THIS WEEK

CHICAGO, Nov. 14—(AP)—The contenders in the two leading western conference football games next Saturday began preparations today under strict secrecy, with virtually all the regulars in fine condition, at Illinois, Ohio State, Michigan and Minnesota.

Two of the four, Ohio and Minnesota, had easy games on the program last Saturday and Illinois was hardly extended to win its affair with Chicago. Michigan exhibited a brilliant all-around game in defeating the Navy, but the Wolverines began working on some new tricks today for Minnesota.

All omens point to an Illinois triumph at Columbus, and a clean cut conference championship, but there have been notable upsets before in this present season, and the Buckeyes might spring up just as hard as they fell.

Coach Wilce, of Ohio, sent his regulars through a particularly rigorous workout today, with only one man out because of injuries.

Coach Zuppke's hardest task with his all-conquering Illini this week is to fight the evil of over-confidence and he accomplishes this by jerking his players out of both scrimmage and big games with a frequency nearly equal to Knute Rockne at Notre Dame. None can match the Illini this year in wealth of well-balanced material.

Just as he said he would, Coach Weiman of Michigan, mixed in a plunging backfield with his famous passing threats, and since none of the Wolverines suffered from the Navy clash, the Minnesota squad can expect to look at more of the same at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Rain and a promise of a cold snap greeted the Chicago and Northwestern squads today.

Iowa decided to resign as door-mat of the conference, and the dash and power the Hawkeyes showed against Wisconsin Saturday, will be augmented against Northwestern's crippled Wild Cats by the inspiration of the victory over Wisconsin.

HARVARD TEAM RESTS BEFORE DRILL FOR YALE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 14—(AP)—Harvard's football forces took a day off today before starting a final week of "polishing off" in preparation for the 47th annual clash with Yale here Saturday.

The entire squad piled into busses after classes this afternoon and rode down to the Myopia Hunt club at Hamilton to play golf, tennis, walk and loaf. No one was allowed to talk or supposed to think football.

Several members of the squad borrowed horses for a gallop while Forrester Clark and Bill Morrill, members of Harvard's polo squad, got in a little play on the Myopia field. The men had supper at the club and returned to Cambridge in time for bed inside the 10 o'clock limit.

Practice for the rest of the week will consist mainly of smoothing up timing and rhythm in dummy drill with special emphasis on the forward passing attack and one or two new formations which have been withheld for the Yale game. Dr. Tommy K. Richards has announced that every man will be in good condition by Saturday.

WINNER OF SCHWARTZ AND BROWN BOUT GETS TITLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission decided today to give flyweight title recognition to the winner of a bout between Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, Iowa, and Corporal Izzy Schwartz, of New York. It probably will be held at Madison Square Garden, December 16.

The winner of the Schwartz-Brown match will be asked to fight Frankie Genaro, of New York to clarify the flyweight situation created by the retirement of Fidel LaBarba as world's champion.

The commission's action reverses its previous "hands off" policy in the flyweight class and passes up recognition of at least two state champions, Willie Davies in Pennsylvania and Johnny McCoy, in California.

Paulino Uzcudun, applying for lifting of the suspension imposed on him for failure to fight Phil Scott recently at Madison Square Garden, was told he will be reinstated as soon as the Garden club recommends it.

DONAHUE AWAITS WORD FROM KEARNS ABOUT WALKER

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14—(AP)—Thomas E. Donahue, president of the National Boxing association announced tonight that he had not yet heard from Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, who has been given sixty days from November 9 in which to arrange for a bout with Tiger Flowers for the middleweight title.

The boxing world is carefully watching the negotiations between the N. B. A. and Kearns as it is the first outstanding test of strength of the N. B. A. When Walker won the title from Flowers he signed a contract to meet Flowers within 90 days. Walker and his manager have steadfastly refused to give the Georgia deacon a return bout.

DELANEY WILL SUB FOR SHARKEY AGAINST HEENEY

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 14—(AP)—Jack Delaney will meet Tom Heeney in Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament at Madison Square Friday night, replacing Jack Sharkey, of Boston, who was today reported suffering from a fractured wrist, according to an announcement here tonight. Delaney was notified by his manager, Pete Reilly this morning that he will replace Sharkey, providing Heeney is willing to meet the former light heavyweight champion. If Heeney is unwilling, according to Delaney, the Bridgeport boxer will meet some other likely opponent on Friday's card.

BASEBALL ADVISORY COUNCIL MAKES SEVERAL NEW RULINGS FOR PLAYERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 14—(AP)—The major league baseball advisory council, established when K. M. Landis became commissioner, reorganized today with E. S. Barnard in Johnson's place, and John K. Heydler, representing the National league.

The Rogers Hornsby-St. Louis Cardinals stock controversy was settled by the two league presidents and Judge Landis by enunciation of a rule that no player shall retain stock in one club after his transfer to another club in the same league, or else he becomes ineligible either to play or manage on his new club.

A player can hold stock in the club for which he is playing, the rule continues, only under a specific agreement approved by the advisory council.

The council also adopted a rule aimed at the financial practices by which, it is said, Ban Johnson built up his weaker clubs until they were all able to stand alone. No club or league official shall be stockholders in another club, or become guarantor or surety for any other club, without the approval of the advisory council. Several of the American league clubs are said to owe their present strong financial position today to Ban Johnson and his financial assistance at critical times. So far as known, Johnson never owned stock in any of the American league clubs, but he had at times arranged loans for practically all of them and shared to some extent in their return to prosperity.

Mike H. Sexton, president of the minor leagues, joined the big three of the majors in their discussion of rules regulating the relations of the majors and minors, though he is not an official member of the council.

A player who has given three years of service to either or both major leagues could not be sent back to the "bushes" on option, under another new rule.

A disabled player list for each club would be created under another new rule. A player injured or sick can be transferred to the disabled list, and his place filled on the active roster of 25 men permitted the major league clubs. The disabled player could not be returned to the active list for 60 days.

Several rules of conduct for umpires, both major and minor, were drawn up. No one connected with a ball club, from president to bat boy, would be allowed to loan money to an umpire or become a surety for him. No umpire shall receive, or even be offered money, for recommending a player from his league to some higher ranking circuit, or to another club in the same league.

SUES HIS WIFE OVER FARM PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT

Suit against his wife, Eva Lubchen, has been brought by Miak Lubchen of Sprague, seeking $2,000 damages and equitable relief in a suit brought in the superior court and returnable in December.

Lubchen makes the claim that on May 22, 1926 he and Mikifor Goroshenir purchased a farm in Sprague, making an agreement to run the farm equally and work the same as partners. Later Lubchen purchased the interests of Goroshenir and dissolved the partnership, and the Goroshenir interests were given to the defendant, Eva Lubchen.

It is claimed that the defendant paid nothing to the plaintiff or to Goroshenir for Goroshenir's interest and that the conveyance was made in pursuance of a verbal agreement that she should hold the same in trust for the plaintiff and convey the same to him on demand, and also she would assist him in the operation of the farm by caring for the house and preparing his meals, besides helping in the farm work.

It is claimed that Eva Lubchen in violation of the agreement has failed to prepare the plaintiff's meals or to assist him in the work of the house or farm and has wantonly damaged and defaced the house and destroyed the property therein and has refuse to convey the share of Goroshenir to the plaintiff although he has requested her to do so.

A decree of the superior court vesting the interest in the real property now standing in the name of the defendant in this plaintiff or compelling this defendant to convey such interest to Miak Lubchen is also asked for.

JUNIOR RED CROSS CARRYING ON IN STATE

Under the motto of the American Junior Red Cross, more than 107,500 Connecticut school boys and girls have been carrying on activities in their schools during the last year, the influence of which has reached to the farthest corners of the earth. The annual report of the organization, made public by the local Red Cross chapter, shows that in this state the juniors are organized in 401 schools and that 29 Red Cross chapters are carrying on this work.

Through a system of international correspondence fostered by the organization these Connecticut school children have been in correspondece with the children of many other lands during the last year. By exchange of portfolios and letters they have been building up a world neighborliness and promoting international amity and understanding. A part of this international program is the sending of tokens of good will in the form of Christmas packages for children of foreign lands.

This international part of the junior program, says the annual report, is but one phase of the work. They have also conducted "clean up campaigns," protected birds, made articles for their school rooms, beautified the school yard, furnished flowers, presents and entertainment for fellow juniors who are ill, and for disabled veterans in government hospitals, and in many other ways have taken their places as junior citizens.

The Connecticut juniors are a part of a world-wide movement, in which 40 nations are now participating, and in which 12,000,000 children are enrolled.

LOUGHRAN WINS FROM M'CARTHY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, recognized by Pennsylvania boxing authorities as the world's light heavyweight champion, battled his way to a 10-round judges' decision over Pat McCarthy, of Boston at the Arena tonight. The fight was full of action with Loughran doing most of the leading. Loughran weighed 178; McCarthy 186.

McCarthy, though outweighing Loughran by 8 pounds, was able to lead in only one round, the fifth, and at the final bell was chasing Loughran around the ring.

Loughran, after taking several hard blows in the fifth, came back in the next round to take the offensive and by the end of the ninth was so far in the lead there was no doubt about the final decision. The fight became so one-sided in the eighth that many of the patrons left.

Arthur De Kuh, Italian heavyweight, knocked out Eddie Benson, Jersey City, in the second round of a scheduled ten round bout at the Arena. De Kuh weighed 209 pounds, 23 pounds more than Benson.

Rocky Smith, Battle Creek, Mich., won the judges' decision in a fast six round bout with Vic Brog, Pittsburgh. Smith weighed 169; Brog 160.

In other six round bouts Al Trainer, 136, Philadelphia, outpointed Andy Sakowicz, 143, New York, and George Tully, 145, Philadelphia, won over Jack Sumpter, 142, United States Navy.

The fights were preliminary to the Tommy Loughran-Pat McCarthy ten round bout.

WESTERLY

FOUR DENTISTS' OFFICES VISITED BY GOLD-DIGGERS

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 14.—Sunday night or early Monday morning, thieves who apparently specialized in rifling dental offices, visited here.

When Dr. Harold F. Doyle, Westerly school dentist, went to his office, Room No. 6, Potter-Langworthy building, High street, he found that it had been ransacked in the search for old gold. Among his losses was $400 worth of gold solder. Patrolman Michael Curtin was called and found that entrance had been effected by prying back the door lock. The adjoining office of George R. McKenna, Stonington Prosecutor, was also found opened, but the attorney was not certain that it had been locked when he left it. The desk drawers were found opened and papers rummaged through, in search of money. On a center table was found a womans' hairpin and some cracked candy. In his operating room the cabinet drawers had been pulled open and left when close scrutiny had been made for gold fillings and chips.

In the same building, also on the front side, which was directly across the street from the New Park hotel, also beneath the rooms of Westerly Masonic club, and the rooms of Westerly Lodge of Elks, where members arrive and depart at all hours of the night, a thorough ransacking was given the office rooms of Dr. Ronald C. Dove, his room being No. 6, and on the opposite side of the entrance stairways. Dr. Dove first discovered that a typewriter had been removed from one room to another, also that his desk drawers had been gone through and nearly $100 not locked up in an adjacent safe, had been taken. In a rear work-room, some gold crowns piled on top of a box were all taken, with all the old gold to be found in trays in the extraction room cabinet. Officer Curtin was of the opinion that entrance was effected by forcing the door lock. Across the hallway from Dr. Dove's office was an empty room, but the transom over the door showed evidence that someone had climbed up and endeavored to force back the transom holder.

The office of Dr. Archie I. Fain in the Hinckley-Mitchell block, High street, was visited. Here Dr. Fain found drawers in desks and cabinets open, as did the other dentists. He lost $50 which he had left in a desk drawer and about $150 worth of old gold and $25 in nugget chips. A framed two dollar bank note above his desk was undisturbed and as in the cases of the other dentists, some new gold in packets and tubes had been overlooked. An ivory handled hair brush was taken from a toilet set. Here entrance was gained by forcing back a door lock and apparently the front and ajoining offices of Lewis E. Hammond, chiropodist, had been visited, a connecting door, usually locked with bolt was unfastened and a visitation was made to the offices of Drs. Herman E. and Clara P. Atwood, but from the latter nothing was reported missing.

Dr. Freemont Nye, with office on the second floor front of the Stillman block, High street, at the foot of which stairway the Westerly Police department has a telephone in the lower hallway, also received a visit from the burglars. The doctor must have anticipated such a visit for only a week ago he sold all his old gold to a Providence concern and the visitors found poor picking. Most all of the dentists have safes, but Dr. Nye had some gold and platinum in a small pasteboard box on a pile of books which was overlooked, as was a small bottle of new gold. The safe in this office had apparently been looked over, but not much tampered with. Entrance to this office was gained by forcing the door lock. At the office of Dr. John M. O'Connell, in the Crandall block, Canal street, visitors would have had a harder nut to crack, for the door and door jams are protected by iron plates. The office of Dr. J. Hobart Chapman, in the Barber Memorial block, apparently was not visited but some ten years ago in a visitation of dental office thieves, his office was ransacked, although a man was asleep in an adjoining office. Hundreds of dollars were lost by Westerly dentists from burglars, visits at that time.

Officer Curtin was on duty Monday morning in Dixon square when the breaks were reported to him. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown visited the offices to investigate and was able to obtain some excellent fingerprints.

Members of Harold W. Merrill Post, No. 16, American Legion, on Armistice day in Westerly conducted a poppy sale. Monday announcement was made that the total received amounted to $840. The net receipts will be used for the post's relief work.

Kenyon of the town of Hopkinton, that he was the putative father of a child whose mother appeared in court. Although the young man claimed to be ready to marry, this was not agreeable to the woman, who claimed that she had been deserted. Deputy Chief of Police William L. The case was continued for probationary adjustments, when a certain sum as agreed upon is to be paid for the support of the child.

Autoists reported peculiar actions of an auto driver to Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon, of Pawcatuck, who called Patrolman William Ostman from Stonington borough. The latter presented the accused in court. He was fined $10 and costs of $33.33, a part of which was for doctor's service, amounting to $43.33, which he paid.

A twenty-pound raccoon in excellent condition was displayed Monday before the business place of Alfred H. Chapman on West Broad street, Pawcatuck. Care of Babies

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good. And it is so pleasant to take. Taste it yourself, and you'll know why "Children Cry for It."

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or when you even suspect the approach of constipation or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. See how quickly all fretfulness or wakefulness will cease!

Only one word of warning: the above advice is true of genuine Castoria.* To be sure of it, look for Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. The kind called Fletcher's, bearing Fletcher's signature is genuine—and does not contain opiates or any other drug that can harm your baby. Other preparations may be just as free from harm: the writer does not know as to that, but does know one family whose children will never make the experiment!

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

NOANK

The town hall held about 150 basket ball fans when the first game of the season was played between Noank Crescents and the Stonington Colegian team from over near Westerly. The Crescents had in the lead, Capt. Lefty Patterson, carrying the ball, and the fans gave them a big hand. The Stonington team was all dolled up in white with a brown stripe. The referee was Freddie Fitzpatrick. In short order, Albert Patterson made the first basket from the length of the floor. In the first quarter both teams worked hard; it was soon over with the boys in white from Stonington in the lead, 10 to 7. In the second quarter, the Crescents sent in two fresh men, Stretch Morrison taking the place of Flash McDonald at right guard, and Sure Shot Eddie Morgan was in place of Capt. Lefty Patterson at left forward. But the Stonington sharp shooters had fine pass-work and had an eye on the hoop. The crowd was watching a fast game, and even Referee Fitzpatrick was stepping around fast to follow the ball. The first half was soon over with Stonington 20, Crescents 3. The Crescents were told to fight and keep after the ball and Capt. Patterson said to get rid of it quickly. Lanky Carson was sent in at guard. He was catching them from the backboards and keeping the ball to the forwards. Everyone held their breath till the third quarter was over; Stonington was still ahead, 23 to 24, but going into the last quarter, the Crescents were fighting and their pass work was good. Many times Right Forward A. Patterson, for the local boys brought the fans to their feet with his clean shots from the length of the court. In the middle of this quarter Scorer Bracci jumped up and said it was a tie score, 30 to 30, but the speed of the Stonington team in the last few minutes was too much for the new moon boys and the games ended, Stonington 45, Crescents 35. The stars for Noank were A. Patterson with 9 field goals and three fouls making 22 points, also Quick Smith's floor work. For Stonington, E. Tinkerson, with eight field goals, and Jerry Coffey, with five field goals. Referee, Fitzpatrick; scorer, Bracci; timer, Deveau; attendance, 185. The floods along the Connecticut river, by the way of Hartford has hurt the black fishing in the Race. All the mud and driftwood go out that way. "Every last button in its place when washed with the NEW Maytag"

ALONG with several other features of convenience, this latest Maytag incorporates a new method of soap and water removal—the safest, gentlest, but most efficient method ever devised.

The top roll of the wringer is made of compensating rubber. This soft roll with large working surface rides on the firm bottom roll much like a balloon-tire hugs the pavement. Instead of riding on the high spots, it penetrates every fold of the clothes the full length of the wringer. Everything is wrung thoroughly yet so gently that the most delicate buttons or filmy lace go through unharmed, and without pressing in hard-to-remove wrinkles. There is also a new safety feed—an exclusive Maytag feature. This new Roller Water Remover is exclusively owned and controlled by Maytag.

Try a Maytag on your next washing. Experience the joy of complete freedom from hand-rubbing; of a cast-aluminum tub that keeps the water hot throughout a big washing, that cleans itself and empties itself. An average washing only takes an hour with a Maytag.

phone— for a Maytag. Give it every test you can think of, under your own home conditions. There's no cost, no obligation. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

Maytag dealers everywhere follow the standardized rule of sending a Maytag to a home to do a week's washing free, and without obligation of any kind. This is the way all Maytag Gyrafoam Washers are sold. The Maytag must sell itself solely upon its performance in the home. It must wash everything to your entire satisfaction. Must wash everything quicker, easier and cleaner than other washers. Must wash everything—even collars, cuffs and wristbands, without hand-rubbing. Must prove to you, in your own home, that it is the most helpful home-laundering unit you have ever seen or used.

SUDDEN DEMAND FOR U. S. STEEL COMMON FEATURE OF STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—Curious cross currents of prices ran through today's stock market, but major speculative operations were again on the up-side. A sudden demand for U. S. Steel common, which rallied from a low of 138 1-4 to 143 1-4 and closed just here what figure for a net gain of 4 points on the day helped materially in bolstering bullish sentiment, and stimulating buying for both accounts in others quarters. Total sales again crossed the 2,000,000 share mark.

With the steel trade showing signs of marked improvement, and indications of a substantial increase in the farm wealth of the country this year, coupled with a plethora of credit at easy rates, operators on the long side confidently continued to mark up their favorites. Fears of so-called "tax selling" in the closing weeks of the year have dwindled considerably, and even the motor trade expects record-breaking production next year, despite the competition likely to be furnished by the new Ford models.

Call money continued in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 3 1-2 per cent in the face of the calling of about $10,000,000 bank loans, and the vast preparations incidental to the new government financing tomorrow. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

Spirited bidding for mail order and mercantile shares was influenced by predictions of unprecedented holiday trade, particularly in the agricultural regions. Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Arnold Constable, Best Co., Bloomingdale Bros. Julius Kayser and May Department stores, all touched new 1927 highs, but no tail of the gains, which ran as high as 6 points, were maintained.

Public utilities also presented numerous points of strength, new peaks in that group being established by Radio Corporation, American Railway Express and Adams Express. The recent turn for the better in the copper industry was reflected in the demand for those shares, Magma and Kennecott reaching new high ground. International Harvester, which sold as low as 135 3-8 earlier in the year, continued its sensational gain by soaring 10 points to a new high at 249. American Machine & Foundry sky-rocketed 11 points to 166, or a point below its record high price. Fidelity-Phoenix Insurance, Gulf States Steel, Postum, Union Tank Car and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe sold 4 or more points higher.

Warren Bros., a recent strong spot, broke 5 points on realizing, and heavy selling of Gabriel Snubbers carried that issue down 4 1-2 points to 31 1-2 but it recovered nearly half the loss.

Speculative activity in the rails was confined to a few issues. Missouri Pacific preferred was run up to a new high at 115 in anticipation of an early announcement regarding details of plans to wipe out the accumulated dividends of nearly $50 on that issue, and Chesapeake & Ohio advanced 4 points to 214.

All the leading commodity markets except sugar were reactionary. Cotton fell bac kabout $1 to $1.25 a bale on a renewal of southern selling, although the census bureau report on October mill consumption of 613,000 bales was regarded on the exchange as bullish. Wheat futures dropped about a cent a bushel on an increase in the visible supplies of the commodity. A reaction of 23 to 28 points in coffee was rather unusual and probably inspired by reports of larger stocks in Sao Paulo. Sugar was slightly firmer.

Establishment of a new low for the year by Japanese yen at 45.65 cents, or 13 points below last week's final quotation, and the continued firmness of sterling around the year's high of $4.87 1-16 for demand bills, divided interest in the foreign exchange market. Other changes were nominal.

New England Industries

THE FOOD PREPARATIONS INDUSTRY.

Census figures show that a distinctly favorable trend of total sales is a feature of the New England food preparations industry. Seventy-seven per cent. of total sales of the concerns in New England are made in New England, where extension of selling territories and better sales methods have brought favorable results to two-thirds of the producers reporting in a survey recently conducted by the United States Department of Commerce in co-operation with the New England Council.

There are about 117 establishments in New England employing 1200 workers and producing annually goods worth $17,000,000, or 3.6 per cent. of the total value of product in the United States. Sixty-three companies in Massachusetts produce 56 per cent. of the New England output, ten companies in Vermont make 34 per cent. and twenty-six in Connecticut make 8 per cent.

Thirteen per cent. of the establishments reporting were started in the last six years, and the average age of them all is twenty-two years. Nearness of markets has been reported as New England's greatest attraction for locating here.

Incentive methods of wage payment are reported by a few concerns for 60 per cent. to 90 per cent. of their workers. Variation between maximum and minimum employment periods was reported as 24 per cent. in 1923 and 22 per cent. in 1925.

Production control is one phase of manufacturing practice that has been an object for improvement in many of the establishments reporting. Improvements have also been effected in methods of accident prevention and continuous maintenance.

One New England producer reported that strict attention to quality of products and their freshness had materially increased his sales, while another achieved a valuable uniformity of product through standardization of equipment.

At least 45 per cent. of the companies reporting trademark their entire product. These trademarked goods comprise 34 per cent. of the total sales of the industry in New England.

The main channels of distribution are those direct to retailers and through wholesalers or jobbers. In spite of the favorable sales trend, most of these New England establishments will place emphasis upon sales and marketing methods during the coming year.

As the Wood River Branch railroad, running through this town, has been operating lately at a loss of $10,000 a year, it is feared that the cost of repairing the road from the damage done by the recent storm will prove so great that operation will be discontinued.

Members of the town council are making a survey of needed repairs to the highways and bridges of the town, so as to be able to report costs to the special financial town meeting.

The society of the First Hopkinton S. D. B. church served a baked bean supper at the parish house in Ashaway Tuesday evening.

All the members of the town council and probate court attended the November session, Monday, the 7th at the town hall. NORWICH TOWN

HOME CHAPTER HEARS STATE CONVENTION REPORT

The leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, presided at the November meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughter, held Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home, with a good attendance.

Following the opening exercises, reports of the preceding meeting were read and approved. The Bible study from the Book of Acts was in charge of Mrs. William H. Whiteman, chairman, Mrs. William Weaver and Mrs. Belle Worthington. The nominating committee appointed to select officers for the coming year comprised Mrs. Charles H. Marsh, Mrs. C. Eugene Saunders and Mrs. Fred C. Rogers.

Mention was made that the two quilts being pieced together by Miss Maria Briggs, have been completed for Home Chapter. The chapter voted $10 to the flood sufferers in New England.

The sewing society will meet Thursday, Nov. 17th, with Mrs. Charles Copeland, of Russell Road. At the December meeting there will be roll call of the chapter.

Especially interesting was the report of the state convention, held in Danbury, the early part of this month, as submitted by the first delegate from Home Chapter, Mrs. Roswell J. Brown.

She gave a detailed account of the convention proceedings in which one part was of especial interest to the Home Chapter members. This was from the report of Mrs. James H. De Baun, Bible study chairman, who gave a summary of what is in the Bible. She said that it contains the mind of God, state of man, way of salvation, doom of sinners and happiness of believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts binding, its histories are true and its decisions immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword and the Christian's chart. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design and the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart and gird the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory and a river of pleasure. It is given you in life, will be open at the judgment and be remembered forever. It involves the highest responsibility, rewards the greatest labor, and condemns all who trifle with its holy contents. God grant that each one of us may find the right course and know the blessedness of an honest walk with God.

The New London county report, which was given at the convention, was also read by Mrs. Brown as follows:

There are 609 members in the 17 circles of New London and Windham counties. Most of the circles average about 24 members and all are industrially working. In His Name, money is given for worthy causes. Fruit, food and flowers for sick and shut-ins. Cards are sent at appropriate times.

One new idea from one circle was a committee of twelve, one lady for each month of the year taking charge of social and religious work for that month.

One circle aided in purchasing an ambulance for their community. Last winter the independents banded together and sent heart-shaped cookies and cakes and candies to the Johnson Home for a Valentine treat for the ladies there.

Willimantic Circle gave substantial aid to the Card home, located within its boundaries. All the circles in Norwich send gifts to the Johnson Home and often entertain its members.

While the New London circles lend their aid to the hospitals of that city, several of the circles aid the churches of which they form a part.

The Seaside Sanatorium and the tuberculosis sanatorium, both receive due attention. The near east, the Salvation Army, the Mississippi flood sufferers, all received generous donations. Most of the circles do some sewing, making needed garments for hospitals or aiding some needy family. Many make quilts which they sell or give away at different times. Circles have held song and praise services at various institutions.

Altogether the circles, during the year have earned $3523.78 and of this sum $2224.64 have been given for the help and pleasure of needy ones. There are 41 subscriptions for the Silver Cross. The earnest workers bearing the banner. They have 25 members and subscribe for 13 copies of meetings.

the Silver Cross. Some of the circles have taken up the Systematic Bible study and it is hoped that this will prove a very interesting part of all

$1500.00 for a NEW NAME for a Perfected Ice Cream

THREE years ago eight of New England's largest dairies united to form Eastern Dairies, Inc. Their object was to produce a far better ice cream than any one of them could produce alone.

One of the advantages of uniting was that we could then afford to have a research department with laboratory facilities. This department is in charge of Prof. H. F. Judkins, a famous dairy expert. Here are tested for quality all the cream, fruits, nuts and syrups used in Eastern Dairies' Ice Cream.

This is one of the things that have helped us make great strides toward our ideal of an Ice Cream, more wholesome, more delicious—a real thrill to the taste. Now we have reached a point where it deserves a new name all its own. Hence this contest.

HAROLD GUSTAFSON, NEW LONDON, DIES FROM INJURIES IN AUTO CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov 14.—Harold Gustafson, about 32, of Raymond street, died this afternoon in a hospital in Manchester, death resulting from injuries sustained ten days ago when the automobile he was driving was wrecked, on the Hartford turnpike, near Colchester. His wife and mother-in-law are still patients at the hospital and will be there indefinitely. His little son, who also was a patient at the hospital, was discharged Saturday and returned to New London. Gustafson and his wife, son and mother-in-law were en route to Hartford when the accident occurred. While the auto was travelling at an estimated speed of 25 miles an hour, one of the doors opened and as Gustafson endeavored to close it without stopping, he unconsciously caused the course of the auto to be changed with the result that the car left the highway and plunged against a tree. The occupants were badly injured and were rushed to the Manchester hospital. But little hope was held out from the start for the recovery of Gustafson, but it is believed that his wife and mother-in-law will survive. The car was completely wrecked.

The funeral of William M. Colpaugh was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his residence, Black Point, the services being conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James Episcopal church. Burial was in Union cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Bay View lodge of Niantic.

John J. Ryan has sold a building lot on Robinson street to James H. and Maria G. Lawrence.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the drivers' licenses of John Keating, 7 Central avenue, and Orcate DeLuca, 36 Moore avenue. The licenses were suspended two weeks ago.

Joseph Nicoli, a patient at Norwich State hospital, escaped this morning and came to New London. This afternoon he was arrested on Bank street by Patrolman Harry Watterson. An attendant at the hospital came to New London and took Nicoli back to the hospital.

Francis Wrightington, a New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad fireman, who was injured a week ago when the locomotive on which he was employed, by the explosion of a boiler tube, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today and went to his home in New Haven. He suffered lacerations and bruises. The engineer, Bailey Sprague, also of New Haven, is still at the hospital, as he received painful burns from the volume of steam that was emitted into the cab. Philip McCormick, a brakeman, was killed when he leaped from the cab while the train was passing Westbrook at a speed of 45 miles an hour, en route from Harlem River to New Bedford.

Charles Hanson, New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad freight brakeman, has returned to his home, 77 West street, having been a patient at the private hospital where he was operated upon twice for a disease of the kidney. It will be several weeks, however, before Mr. Hanson is able to resume work.

Patrolman Clarence Wells has returned to his home on Tilley street, having undergone a minor surgical operation. Officer Wells will resume patrol duty within a few days.

Louis Collett, of Waterford, drove his automobile to Jefferson avenue this morning and while he was absent, between 7 and 8 o'clock, a thief stole the number plates, which are L-4162.

The continued case of Thomas McCue, 28, of 37 Mahan street, charged with assault upon Anna Grasso, about 21, of 18 Viets street, was again continued in the police court today, this time to Wednesday. McCue is at liberty on bail of $2000, his father having qualified as surety on the bond.

Terrell Cousans, submarine base sailor who has a room at 97 Golden street, was charged with assault upon William Williams and was fined $10 and costs.

Walter Williams, a plumber residing at 14 East street, was presented on a charge of intoxication and breach of the peace. He was given suspension of judgment. Williams was arrested last night by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Elwood Bailey on complaint of his wife, when Williams returned home intoxicated and in an abusive frame of mind.

A. C. Reppert, United States Coast Guard academy, was presented on a charge of violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving his car without having a license. He was given suspension of judgment. Reppert was arrested at 6 o'clock this morning by Acting Sergeant William Graham.

Four United States Coast Guard sailors were to have been in court on charges of intoxication, but they were given into the custody of the provost guard and taken back to local section base, state pier, for discipline. Another fellow, a laborer employed at Fishers Island, was presented on a charge of intoxication. He was fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Five police signal boxes refused to function today and as a result repairmen in the employ of the Southern New England Telephone company were engaged perfecting repairs.

POISONED BY GAS FUMES WHILE ABOUT HER WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14.—Mrs. William Elwood, wife of Night Watchman Elwood, and residing on Raymond street, had a close call from death this afternoon from carbon monoxide poisoning. That she did not succumb to the poisoning was due to the timely discovery of her unconscious body on the floor of the kitchen and the quick obtaining of medical assistance. Mrs. Elwood had been about her household duties and had used a gas heater. While at her work she inhaled the rapidly formed poisonous fumes and unconscious of the fact that the room was constantly receiving the poisonous vapor, she eventually swooned, being rendered insensible. A member of the family appeared shortly and opening the windows and entrances to permit the fumes to disappear, he summoned a physician. First aid treatment was applied and within a short time Mrs. Elwood displayed symptoms of regaining consciousness and an hour afterwards she had been fully revived, although feeling weak.

FRANK J. HOWELL DEAD—WAS PROMINENT RESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14.—Frank J. Howell, 960 Ocean avenue, a retired salesman, died at 12.30 o'clock this afternoon at the Hotel Mohican, death resulting from a shock which Mr. Howell suffered recently, although he had been in failing health for a long time. He is survived by his wife, a son Kimbark Howell, a sister, Mrs. W. J. Mills of St. Mary's Ontario, and two brothers, Fred L. Howell, of Omaha, Neb., and Charles M. Howell, of Chicago. He was a vice president of the Winthrop Trust company and was a member of Brainard lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 108; Illinois Consistory, A. A. S. R. Valley of Chicago and Medinah Shrine temple of Chicago. He was a member of the Thames club, of this city, the Chicago Athletic club and Chicago Yacht club. About two years ago Mr. Howell's health displayed symptoms of declining and a week ago he suffered the shock, which caused members of his family to remove Mr. Howell to an apartment at the hotel. Mr. Howell was born in Canada, but early in life moved with his parents to Chicago. He was educated in the schools of that city and became associated as expert salesman with several large construction firms. He was highly successful as a salesman and had travelled widely, even as far as Cape Town, South Africa. Particularly successful was Mr. Howell in the sale of electric lighting plants, which were sold to municipalities. He amassed considerable wealth. About twelve years ago he moved to New London. He took up his residence in Neptune avenue and later in one of the residences owned by the Richard Mansfield estate. Several years ago he had a palatial residence erected on Ocean avenue. During the war Mr. Howell served on the local draft board, devoting much time and expending much money in promoting various war activities.

The funeral of Evelyn Rose June, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry June, 5 Clement street, Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 12 Ocean avenue. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

George Francis Ryan, five weeks, twin son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ryan, of 7 Griswold court, died Sunday at the residence of his parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery today.

Mrs. Mary M. Littlefield, 87, widow of Capt. Whitman W Littlefield, for many years proprietor of the New Haven house, died at that hotel on Block Island Sunday. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Arthur E. Dodge; two grandsons, Wilbur E. Dodge and L. E. Dodge. Mrs. Littlefield was the daughter of the late Welcome and Cornelia Dodge and had always resided on Block Island. She was the island's second oldest resident.

Inspector of Buildings William Gunn, Fire Chief Thomas Shipman and Foreman Thomas Gragan today inspected the quarters of Allen Hook and Ladder company, which the company has requested the city to condemn, that a new and modern fire house may be erected on the site. Particular attention was given to that part of the building used as sleeping quarters, which is in need of repairs. It is known that Building Inspector Gunn will report on the inspection to the city manager within a few days. It is probable that he will recommend repairs and not the condemnation of the building. This report will be delivered to the council at its next meeting, next Monday night. There is talk of consolidating the Niagara Engine company with the hook and ladder company, but it is believed that such a plan will not be accepted by the two companies, who desire to have separate and distinct fire houses. This matter will, it is understood, be discussed at a meeting of officers of the entire department at the Central fire station Friday night.

Miss Minnie Muscarella, 35 Moore avenue, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

The police of this city today were notified by the police of Albany, N. Y., that some of the jewelry stolen from the residence of Henry Jansen, 91 Main street two weeks ago, has been recovered. It was disposed of at a pawnshop, reputed to be a fence for crooks. The jewelry recovered is a Waltham watch and two rings, one of them set with two chip diamonds. The proprietor of the pawnshop has been served with stop warrants, which makes it a felony for him to sell the jewelry. The watch and rings were sold by a man who gave his name as "Bill Stubelink," which the New London police claim to be fictitious. Two New London young men, Herbert Bunnell and Joseph Serzen, are prisoners at the county jail awaiting trial in the superior court at its January term for they have made a confession which relates the part they played in the obtaining of the loot. A third young man, not a resident of New London, but with a police court record, is being sought. He is claimed to have been the brains of the trio who engaged in numerous robberies in the state, principal of which was stealing automobiles and burglarizing garages of supplies, mostly tires.

WESTERLY DENTAL THIEVES MAY HAVE COME TO N. LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14.—It is believed that the crooks who robbed several dental offices of gold Sunday night in Westerly are in New London. This morning two suspicious young men were found tampering with the door of a State street dental parlor. The dental office was that of Dr. A. A. Sherwood. The doctor arrived at his office about 8:15 o'clock and detected the two men in the hallway and one of them was tampering with the door. Inquiry was made of the men as to what they wanted and one of them replied that he desired some work performed on his teeth. He was told to return in a quarter of an hour, but he failed to do so. This aroused suspicion of the doctor, and when he was informed of the break at the Westerly dental offices, he notified the police of his discovery, but he did not take that course until tonight.

Lieutenant of Police James C. Sullivan resumed his duties in charge of the night force tonight, after having been in Chicago and attended the funeral of his brother, P. J. Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. John Haas, Jamaica, Richmond Hill, N. Y., have returned to their home, having spent several days in New London, the guests of John Stack, father of Mrs. Haas. Mr. Stack celebrated his 66th birthday on Armistice day and because of his health being impaired, Mrs. Haas decided to come to New London. Mr. Stack accompanied his daughter back to Jamaica where he will remain indefinitely in the anticipation that his health will be benefitted by a change of climatic conditions and surroundings.

Tuwle Barnett, proprietor of a grocery store, 40 West street, claims to have been assaulted tonight, but his story will be thoroughly investigated. The police received a telephone message from the Lena hospital at 8 o'clock that Barnett was there and that he had been assaulted and robbed. Sergeant Patrick Murphy went to the hospital where he interviewed Barnett. He said that he was alone in his store about 7:30 o'clock when a man entered and displayed a revolver. He approached Barnett and instead of attempting to rob him or steal from the cash register, he wielded the butt of the revolver on Barnett's head, causing a laceration of the scalp, but not rendering him unconscious. Barnett locked his store and went to the hospital where his wounds were dressed. Barnett could only supply a scant description of his alleged assailant and that was that he wore a lumber-jacket.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Charles Reisner, who directed Syd Chaplin in his latest laughing thriller, "The Missing Link," now at the Breed theater, objects to this view of comedy, citing Chaplin as a fitting example.

"In no scene of any comedy Chaplin has made," avers Reisner, "has he been anything but a perfect gentleman. Syd is known by everyone who has the least contact with him as a polished gentleman, cultured both in intellect and association with people. When our writers might have suggested gags that were a bit vulgar, Syd had always had them either deleted from the script, or toned down so as not to offend anyone. He is always most considerate of other people, and that, I believe, is the great quality which distinguishes the gentleman from the vulgarian."

The uproarious slapstick fun of "The Missing Link" is always clean fun. It is the sort of rough-and-ready tomfollery to which the whole family from "Shuffle-Shoon" to "Amber-Locks" may be brought with confidence.

Palace Theater.

Florence Vidor has another winner, a production that shows her in all her beauty and exhibits her talent as a comedienne. It is called "One Woman to Another" and is being shown at the Palace in conjunction with an elaborate vaudeville program.

Theater audiences have not seen Miss Vidor in a comedy role for many a moon, and "One Woman to Another" proves to be a most pleasant diversion. The story concerns the romance of Rita Farrell, played by Miss Vidor, who has two youngsters turned over to her for safe keeping. Her sweetheart misunderstands and seeks solace elsewhere. It is then that Rita enlists the services of another woman to win back her lover.

The vaudeville program is headed by the Larry Harkins Revue, a miniature musical comedy in which Mr. Harkins scores heavily as a comedian of worth. Christie and Nelson go through a series of comedy acrobatic stunts which proves to be a riot from start to finish. Ray Earle & Company have a classic dance routine that should appeal to everyone. Al Tyler in a makeup resembling Al St. John entertains with his songs and stories and concluding is The Izettos, a high class musical offering.

Broadway Theater.

Never has the city of Norwich viewed a motion picture as enthralling and as beautiful as "The Garden of Allah," which is now showing at the Broadway theater.

The hundreds who have witnessed a presentation of this wonderful drama support the glowing praises of leading critics that the picture is one of the most tense and gripping ever filmed. It seems certain to top the first ten pictures of the year.

Enacting the principal roles in this new Ingram masterpiece at the Broadway theater are names, with few exceptions, wholly new to America.

Alice Terry plays the leading feminine role and she is more beautiful, exquisite and divine than she has ever been before. A new side of her is shown in this picture—a melting humanity that will wind picturegoers around her aristocratic fingers.

Ivan Petrovich, Miss Terry's new leading man, is an astonishingly handsome, athletic actor. He has the dark complexion of Miss Terry's former leading man—Valentino. Novarro and Moreno—but a stronger face than any of these. He is beyond question Rex Ingram's greatest discovery since Valentino.

Strand Theater.

Four and twenty tough blackbirds baked in a pie and served to the sheriff—by Leo Maloney. His best friend murdered—he is jailed by a trick of the guilty man—this is the way "Border Blackbirds" starts and it ends in a whirl of speed, surprises and suspense.

"Remember" is an amazing drama of tangled romance, war and two sisters in love with the same man.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights we show "The Lucky Spurs," and "The Winning Oar."

At least 14 other lands are nearly 100 percent American in the matter of buying automobiles, and practically all the passenger cars, buses and trucks used within their borders are of American manufacture. Among the countries are: Alaska, American Samoa, Bolivia, Canada, Dominican Republic, Dutch Guiana, Guam, Haiti, Hawaii, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Porto Rico and Salvador.

POETRY

New England November

Even in her mourning is New England fair,
With burial robes of scarlet leaves and gold
That flicker down in misty morning cold,
Or fall reluctant through gray evening air.

The gothic elms rise desolately bare;
A clinging flame, the twisted ivy crawls
Its crimson course athwart time-crimbled walls
And spreads its blazing arras everywhere.

High noon brings some wan ghost of summer, still,
Fresh stand the rose-trees yet, the lawns show green
With leaves inlaid, and still the pigeons fly
Round sun-warm gables where they strut and preen.

But evenfall comes shuddering down, a chill,
And bare black branches fret the leaden sky.
—George Allan England, in Boston Globe

White Violet

In the wood where shadows are deepest
From the branches overhead,
Where the wild wood strawberries cluster,
And the softest moss is spread,
I met today with a fairy
And I followed her where she led.

Some magical words she uttered
I alone could understand,
For the sky grew blue and bright,
While there rose on either hand
The cloudy walls of a palace
That was built in Fairyland.

And I stood in a strange enchantment,
I had known it all before!
In my heart of hearts was the magic
Of days that will come no more—
The magic of joys departed,
That time can never restore.

That never, oh, never, never,
Never again can be.
Shall I tell you what wonderful fairy
Built up that palace for me?
It was only a little white violet
I found at the root of a tree.
—By Adelaide A. Proctor.

Mother—It is whispered that you and John aren't getting on!

"Nonsense! We did have some words and I shot him, but that's as far as our quarrel ever went."—Judge.

"Their engagement was rather romantic, wasn't it?"

"Yes, quite. They went in bathing, got beyond their depth, and were completely carried away with each other."—Boston Transcript.

"And to what do you attribute your fine old age?"

"Well, doctor, I think it was because I was born before germs were invented."—Lustige Kolmer Zeitung, Cologne.

Child—So you're my auntie?

Aunt—Yes, dear, I am your Aunt Sarah on your father's side.

Child—Well, you're on the wrong side. You'll soon find that out!—Heywood Advertiser.

The salesman had sold everything that was necessary for the furnishing of the lawyer's office, when he had a happy thought.

"Oh, yes, I nearly forgoe," he exclaimed, "you need a doormat!"

"Fine! But bring me one that is well worn."—Tit-Bits.

It was a very wet day, and long and patiently had the dear old lady waited for a homeward bound bus.

At last one pulled into the curb beside her. It appeared to be full up and no one alighted.

"Have you sitting room inside?" inquired the old lady of the conductor in timid tones.

The other smiled broadly.

"No, lady," he replied courteously; "but there's a bathroom on the second floor!"—Answers, London.

VERMONTERS IN NORWICH START RELIEF APPEAL FOR THEIR STATE

Loyal sons and daughters of Vermont, now resident in Norwich, rallied to the aid of their flood-stricken state at a meeting at the Wauregan hotel Monday evening and decided upon making a public appeal for heavy clothing which they will send to the aid of those made destitute by the flood.

The following telegram was also sent to Governor John E. Weeks at Montpelier:

"Vermonters at Norwich, Connecticut, desire to extend their sympathy in the great affliction which has come to your state. Material help will be sent through the Red Cross. May the people of Vermont be given new courage by the loyalty and assistance of all its native sons and daughters."

FRANCIS T. DIGGINS
Chairman of meeting of native Vermonters.

At the opening of the meeting which had an attendance of 25, Francis T. Diggins was elected chairman and H. C. Laird, secretary and treasurer.

Charles Coit, president of Norwich branch of the Red Cross, was present and explained the work that is being done by that organization in rendering aid in Vermont.

Attorney Wallace S. Allis, John P. Lyston, Walter H. Pilcer, William H. Collins, James M. Young and others spoke upon different phases of the subject and it was decided to formulate the work here by making a public appeal for heavy clothing which can be sent to Vermont. This will be done through co-operation with the Red Cross.

The former Utley & Jones store at 145 Main street is to open as headquarters on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock to receive the contributions of clothing which will be sent forward as soon as possible. It was emphasized that on account of the severity of the weather at this season of the year in Vermont heavy clothing will be the most serviceable and he urged the people to be generous and prompt in their response to this appeal for aid for the suffering people of a neighbor New England state. Mrs. C. W. Taggart, Mrs. Victor A. Tongren and John P. Lyston were named as a committee to be in charge of the headquarters store, and it was announced that arrangements would be made to collect any clothing which people had to give, if the officers or committee of the organization were notified. However, it is hoped that contributions will be brought to the store as far as possible.

A register for Vermonters is to be kept at the store in order to record the names of all who have Vermont affiliations either as natives of the state or residents there for any period.

Further details in the plans were to have slides shown in the moving picture houses and to give notice of the appeal at the meeting of the Rotary and Lions club this week and to the Elks and Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Taggart and Mr. Diggins were named as the publicity committee and Mrs. Allis, Mr. Taggart and William W. Carrigan were named as a committee for permanent organization of a Vermont club at a future meeting.

Those registering at the meeting were the following, with the name of the Vermont city or town with which they were connected:

Frank Paquette, Derby Center; Mrs. Victor A. Tongren, Proctor; C. W. Taggart, Charlotte; Mrs. C. W. Taggart, Charlotte; John P. Lyston, Rutland; William W. Carrigan, Rutland; H. D. Larrabee, Montpelier; Mrs. H. D. Larrabee, Montpelier; William H. Collins, Middlebury; Wallace S. Allis, Brookfield; J. M. Young, Craftsbury; Dr. A. C. Freeman, Barre; G. T. Southworth, Chester Depot; C. B. Farnham, Rutland; Miss M. Janie Leach; Mrs. A. C. Freeman, Waitsfield; Gertrude Bisbee, Waitsfield; Francis T. Diggins, Bellows Falls; H. C. Laird, Montpelier; Walter H. Pilcer, Burlington; E. E. Larrabee, Bennington.

TALK ON "SPORTSMANSHIP" BY PRINCIPAL TIRRELL

A talk on Sportsmanship by Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, featured the monthly supper meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church at the Community house, Church street, Monday evening. The supper was served at 6:30 o'clock and following the menu the business meeting was called to order by President Harold D. Robbins. The usual reports were heard and accepted and the following were appointed a committee for the supper meeting in December; N. A. Gibbs, chairman; Donald Bullard, Nathan C. Pierce, Sydney Smith and Arthur M. Thompson.

President Robbins presented as the speaker of the evening Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy. Mr. Tirrell said that sportsmanship is a rather hard word to define. The commonest words we have constantly changed their meaning. Sportsmanship is the quality of a sportsman. What is a sport? Football playing, cock fighting and hundreds of other things are called sports. Sport is an amusement carried on under certain rules. It is a contest under certain rules. Sports have not always been legal. I believe sports are worthwhile. I think boys get something out of sports besides amusement. For instance the boy learns concentration. Sports teach the boy responsibility. I think sports teach perseverance. These things are as valuable to the boy as the things he gets out of books. It is a great thing to learn to live up to the rules, not only in sports but in every day life.

Sports not only educate the individual but educate the crowds that watch. Sportsmanship is not limited. A true sport is a sport that plays by the rules, who is a good loser and a modest winner. Speaking of the much discussed "inferiority complex" Mr. Tirrell said he believes that if a man has this "inferiority complex" it is because he is a poor sport.

Mr. Tirrell was warmly applauded at the close of his talk. The meeting came to a close shortly before 8 o'clock.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE WILL BE MAIL CAMPAIGN

That tuberculosis is being prevented and cured is indicated by the rapidly declining death rate from this disease. Recent Connecticut statistics show that tuberculosis as a cause of death has now dropped to sixth place, heart disease leading, followed by cancer, pneumonia, cerebral hemorrhage, nephritis and then tuberculosis.

This year again in the state there will be the annual sale of Christmas seals which furnish the ammunition for the fight against tuberculosis. In order that business men and residents of Norwich may not be bothered by canvassers soliciting them to buy Christmast seals, Mrs. Richard Snow, chairman of the tuberculosis committee in charge of the annual sale of the seals, announces that the entire campaign will be conducted by mail and in a business-like manner.

Instead of personal solicitation, the seals will be mailed to the business men and the families of the city in the amount estimated to be proper, with the request that a check shall be returned for the amount of stamps kept so that everyone will be saved the annoyance caused by the calls of canvassers with seals to sell. The committee is already at work upon the mailing list so as to have it ready in time for the opening of the campaign in Norwich.

MANY NEW FAMILIES ON THANKSGIVING DINNER LIST

The family welfare department of the United Workers, in making its annual appeal for funds with which to buy tea, coffee, sugar and meat for the Thanksgiving dinners, would like to call attention to the fact that this year there are many families added to the list who have always before been able to provide their own dinner. There are over a hundred baskets to be filled.

The school children have always very adequately supplied the fruit and vegetables, nuts, canned goods, jams and jellies, but the other items must be directly purchased, and it has not been the practice to use the regular funds of the United Workers for this purpose.

It is an inspiring thing to see the quantities of food which come in from the schools and to realize that almost every child in Norwich is sharing in bringing Thanksgiving to the less fortunate children. Will you older people send your donation to the family welfare department at 9 Washington street, so that the baskets may be sent out filled with all that goes to make a real Thanksgiving dinner, says the appeal this year.

PEQUOT BEACH CASE IS TO BE RESUMED

After a four days respite, the case of the city of New London against the Pequot Point Beach Co. and Councilor Lucius E. Whiton of New London will be resumed this (Tuesday) morning in the superior court at New London before Judge John R. Booth.

When the court adjourned Thursday afternoon, the defense was introducing evidence, intending to show abandonment of the 18.8 feet of land in Pequot avenue, claimed by the city for highway purposes. The city claims that the defendants erected the bath houses on city property and that they did it with full knowledge that they were trespassing.

DISCHARGED IN COURT FOR LACK OF EVIDENCE

For lack of evidence, Judge Arthur F. Libby discharged Harold L. Card, of this city, when he was presented in the city court Monday morning on a charge of theft. He was accused of taking $50 (two twenty dollar bills and a ten dollar bill) from Mrs. Karoline Sellers of Preston, on November 10th. Mrs. Sellers who claimed to be a registered nurse at one time, told the court that Card took the money while she was attending his sick wife last week. Card she claimed, took her for a ride in his machine to do some errands while she was in the machine she took the money from her bosom and placed it in a door pocket in the car.

She forgot about the money at the time and later when she looked for it, it was missing. She claimed Card told her he had found the package of money, he had placed the money in a safe for safe keeping. Later when she asked him for the money, Card denied that he had ever seen it, and called the woman a liar, it is said.

Card denied the woman's statements claiming that she had him arrested because of a grudge.

Mrs. Sellers was unable to present any evidence that Mr. Card took the money or had even mentioned the fact that he took it.

Grouch Chasers

A NOTED Judge said that more homes are wrecked on the rock of poor cooking than on any other.

Certain it is that a cup of good coffee has the effect of clearing many a domestic sky and chasing incipient grouches.

But to work this magic the coffee should be YUBAN, famous the country over as the special blend which John Arbuckle, the world's greatest coffee merchant, served his most favored guests.

How to Make Old-Fashioned Coffee

Use one rounded tablespoonful of ground YUBAN to each cup of water. Put the coffee in the pot and pour over the fresh water which has just come to a brisk boil. Let the coffee steep five or ten minutes over a low heat but do not boil. Settle with a dash of cold water.

PELHAM PEOPLE WANTED TO VOTE FOR CAMPION

Of a former resident of Norwich David Campion, the Pelham (N. Y.) Sun of last Friday said:

"Where's Dave Campion's name. I want to vote for Dave Campion but I can't find his name on the ballot." Election inspectors in the Pelhams were kept busy informing voters that the genial Dave was not a candidate for local office, Tuesday. Campion, although he is in business in North Pelham, is a citizen of New Rochelle and sought the office of supervisor of the second ward in that city. New Rochelle like the Pelhams found greatest favor with the republicans, but Campion ran well ahead of his ticket and lost the race by only 72 votes. Edward Carson who formerly conducted a jewelry establishment in New Rochelle was the successful candidate. The genial Dave Campion was among the first to congratulate the victor.

GLASS' DIFFERENTIAL ON THE ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Democratic Senator From Virginia Maintains That Disregard of the 15th Amendment in the South and Its Enforcement of the 18th Amendment Cannot Be Declared Contradictory—Explains His Attitude in Opposing Sending Federal Agents to Kentucky to Supervise the State Election There and His Approval of Sending Them Into the States to Enforce the National Prohibition Law.

LYNCHBURGH, Va., Nov. 14—(AP)—Because the south is opposed to Negro suffrage, in the opinion of Senator Glass, democrat, of Virginia, its attitude toward enforcement of the fifteenth amendment dealing with this question and its position for the prohibition law and the eighteenth amendment cannot be declared contradictory.

He expressed this view today in a letter to W. H. Stayton, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, who had asked Senator Glass to answer an editorial in the New York World. It charges inconsistency in the attitude of the Virginia senator in opposing the sending of federal agents to Kentucky to supervise the state election there and his approval of sending them into the states to enforce the national prohibition laws.

"When a public man protests against sending of federal agents to supervise state elections, for which there is no sanction of law," said Senator Glass, "it is rather silly to suggest that such a proceeding would have precedent and parallel in sending prohibition agents, under full sanction of the law, to suppress the traffic in liquor."

Contending that the attempt to draw an analogy between the attitude of the south on the question of Negro suffrage and the position of persons intent upon nullifying the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution is simply stupid," the Virginia senator continued:

"If one were to impute literal truth to the alleged analogy, the conclusive answer would be that the south's resistance to the fifteenth amendment was intended to avert the wretched consequences of the unspeakable crime involved in the adoption of the amendment. It was done in the passions of war, and constituted an attempt to destroy white civilization of nearly one-third of the nation and to erect on its ruins an ethiopian state ignorant, profligate, corrupt, controlled by manumitted slaves, not one per cent of them semi-literate, and these led by a band of white miscreants, execrated figures in the nightmare of reconstruction.

"On the other hand resistance to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the statute enacted in pursuance thereof is not designed to avert crime, but to facilitate it. In effect, it amounts to condonation. It is intended to stimulate defiance of both the constitution and the law."

Senator Glass said he did not mean to criticize those who asked for repeal of the eighteenth amendment but that he did condemn "the mockery of the law and the applause which its flagitious violation is receiving in certain quarters."

The Virginian called attention that no statutes providing for the enforcement of the fifteenth amendment have ever been enacted, and, incidentally, remarked that there was some doubt whether it was constitutionally ratified. On the other hand, he recalled that the eighteenth amendment was "deliberately and properly ratified by 46 of the 48 states of the Union."

Moreover, he argued that there is no constitutional or statutory law in the code of a single southern state that violates the terms of the fifteenth amendment and he challenged anyone to point to a single sentence in the law of Virginia which disfranchise a vote "on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

SECOND LIBERTY BOND ISSUE IS PAID OFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Insofar as its creditors would allow, the United States today took up and paid off one of its greatest war loans, the second Liberty bond issue of $3,807,000,000.

The figures involved were so large that Ogden Mills, under-secretary of the treasury, refused to make any estimate as to how successful the government's efforts to retire the second Liberties had been. Not until the twelve federal reserve banks make their report late this week, will the treasury be enabled to tell how many of the bonds remain outstanding, though interest upon them ceased today.

By various conversions and continuous sinking fund purchases, the second Liberty loan had been reduced last February to a total of $3,104,000,000. Since that time the government undertook a series of financing operations intended to bring about the payment of the bonds or their conversion to other forms of securities with the result that today, when the loan was called for redemption, there was a total of $730,000,000 of the bonds outstanding.

It is expected that most of those outstanding bonds will be turned in before the end of the present week, although it is believed that some will remain unretired for years to oversight of the redemption call or the mislaying of their securities.

SIX MEN RESCUED FROM WATERLOGGED SCHOONER

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Nov. 15—(AP)—Snatched from the grasp of icy seas and gales sweeping their waterlogged schooner in the north Atlantic, Captain E. Long, master of the abandoned four-masted schooner Adelaide Day, and six members of his crew reached Port Arthur in safety today on their rescue ship, the tanker Gulflight.

For three days the seven men, soaked to their skins, huddled on the afterhouse of the schooner Adelaide day. There was no other habitable place left for them aboard the schooner and scant protection was afforded them on the last remaining spot fairly free from the waves that swept over the water filled ship. A sail fashioned into a crude shelter offered them their only protection.

The fury of the storm had only slightly abated when the master of the Gulflight, Captain B. Iverson, sighting their oil flares, hove to the Adelaide day.

A small boat was lowered from the tanker and pulled over to the schooner under the lee of the stern. The wet, cold and hungry crew slid down ropes into the boat and rode through the heaving swells to the tanker. There they got their first dry clothing and hot food in three days. They had subsisted on canned beef.

SIX DAY SUGGESTIONS APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—The house ways and means committee today approved six and rejected one of the score or more of recommendations submitted by the advisory board of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue legislation, looking to simplifying the administration of the tax laws.

The suggestions approved were those relating to installment sales, consolidated returns, federal tax liens, transfers of property, the bar of the statute of limitations and the period of limitations.

The committee rejected the advisory board's proposal for revision of section 220 of the revenue law which deals with so-called holding corporations or corporations which fail to declare dividends. Chairman Green said that several substitutes were offered but none adopted and there was a possibility that this section might be left as it is.

The changes aproved do not affect rates and are designed to aid tax payers in making out returns. The committee expects to devote practically the remainder of the week to the other recommendations, probably not taking up the questions of changes in rates before the first of next week.

COLD WEATHER AND SNOW IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP)—A foretaste of winter rushed down on the middlewest today, disrupting traffic and closing schools in Wisconsin with its snowfall; its storm damaging docks and endangering shipping on Lake Superior.

Rainfall turned to snow and thermometers dropped as the first storm forecast several times by federal meteorologists during the past two weeks, swept across the prairie states and into the great lakes region.

Deer hunters, enjoying their first day of the season, are in danger of being marooned in their forest fastnesses by snow that drifted to a depth of four feet.

Ironwood, Mich, was almost snowbound and Ishpeming, Mich., and Ashland and Superior, Wis., were snowpeling away drifts three and four feet deep.

The thermometer has dropped to 22 degrees in Kansas, while Missouri recorded sub-freezing marks. Snow and a temperature of 32 or less by tomorrow are promised for Illinois and Indiana.

FOOD WITHOUT MILITARY PERMIT AT NORTHFIELD, VT.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., Nov. 15—(AP)—For the first time in nearly two weeks food could be purchased without a written military permit today. Major C. N. Barber, local food administrator, today lifted the ban, but issued the following restrictive order:

"Beginning today merchants will be allowed to sell to their regular customers at reasonable intervals, five pound packages of sugar, small sacks of flour and two pound packages of lard or lard substitute. When the stock of any merchant is reduced to less than a week's supply he shall limit his sales to two pounds of sugar and one pound of lard. Each merchant is expected to limit his sales of all commodities in such a way as to protect his customers."

Colonel M. A. Campbell, National Guard officer who took command here in the first days of the flood, today was ordered by Adjutant General H. T. Johnson to accompany the body of Reuben S. Sleight to Michigan. Sleight, who was assistant to Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, was killed in an airplane accident at Montpelier yesterday.

$250,000 LIBEL SUIT AGAINST THE NEW YORK AMERICAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Rev. Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, predecessor of the late Wayne B. Wheeler as legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, brought suit today for $250,000 against the New York American charging libel.

The causes of action were given in the complaint as a front page story charging Dr. Dinwiddie with misuse of $10,000 of United States money, and an editorial "reiterating and aggravating the original libel."

In the news story in question the American said that the Anti-Saloon league was threatened with a governmental investigation concerning the alleged misuse of federal funds in 1919 and that the executive committee of the league, to avert this investigation, voted to repay the government and passed a resolution censuring Dr. Dinwiddie.

The employers declare that it will be impossible to restore prosperity to the industry unless there are reductions in pay.

REMUS IS GRANTED RIGHT TO QUESTION VENIREMEN

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 15.—(AP)—George Remus won what he regarded as one of his outstanding court battles today when he was granted the double right to qualify the jurors who will sit in judgment upon him and to refuse to set up a claim as to his mental status at this time. The former Chicago lawyer had waited until the jury box was half filled with tentative jurors before he raised his voice in the interrogation of veniremen.

When the prosecution tendered Joseph Trautman, farmer and storekeeper, to the defense, the crowded room was electrified when Remus's deep voice boomed out a "Now Mr. Trautman—.

Judge Chester R. Shook glanced at Remus, the spectators sat up in tense expection and Carl Basler, one of the two assistants aiding Charles P. Taft, Hamilton County prosecutor, leaped to his feet with a determined objection.

The argument waxed warm and the half dozen tentative jurors and Trautman were sent out while the fight was waged over the first great issue of the trial.

"We understand that the claim of insanity is made by this defendant, and we do not think he should examine the jurors," asserted Basser.

Charles Elston, associate counsel with Remus, contended that there was no plea other than that Remus was temporarily deranged when he shot and killed his estranged second wife, Imogene Holmes Remus, in Eden Park here.

Judge Shook retired to his chambers where he conferred with two of the three alienists he has appointed. Returning to the bench, he ruled that Remus might proceed with the interrogation of Trautman.

LILLIENDAHL DEFENSE WITNESSES DISAPPEAR

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 15—(AP)—John J. Gregory Jr., chief investigator for the defense in the Lilliendahl murder mystery, declared today that several defense witnesses have disappeared.

Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl and Willis Beach will go on trial November 28 for the murder of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, the woman's husband.

"I shall appeal to Supreme Court Justice Luther Campbell," said Mr. Gregory, "to help me bring these witnesses within the jurisdiction of the court or possibly to Chief Justice Gummere."

Sixty subpoenaes have been served in South Jersey by Gregory on witnesses for the defense. The state's witnesses were subpoenaed some days ago by state police.

State police today located part of a piece of cloth which was seen hanging to a bush near the scene of the killing and which was believed to have been placed there as a signal by the slayers. The cloth was found at the barber shop of Andrew de Stefano, who told the authorities he had taken it as a souvenir.

De Stefano told the police that he and his wife and two men had driven to the scene the day Dr. Lillendahl was shot to death. Noticing the cloth tied to the bush, he ripped a piece of it off, and took it home with him.

Dr. Lillendahl was shot to death on September 15 as he motored with his wife along a lonely road near here. Mrs. Lillendahl asserted that he had been slain by two Negroes for the purpose of robbery.

Butterworth, in the superior criminal court today. The case grew out of an accident in Dudley, March 6, when Sheldon W. Carpenter was killed and two other Putnam men were seriously injured. The car left the highway and struck a tree.

A. F. of L. to Appeal to President Coolidge

In Behalf of 130,000 Striking Miners in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor, through its officers and the heads of national and international unions affiliated with it today voted unanimously to lay before President Coolidge the cause of 130,000 striking miners in central and western Pennsylvania and Ohio and to demand of Governor John S. Fisher an immediate investigation into charges of misuse of power by agencies of the state government against 85,000 mine workers in the two Pennsylvania districts. Forty-five thousand miners are on strike in Ohio.

The action was taken by the labor leaders after two days of consideration of the mining situation at an emergency conference here, which was also attended by officials of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor and of various central trades councils of the state. The plan of action was contained in a report submitted by a special committee headed by William L. Hutcheson, of the Carpenters' union, which condemned the use of injunctions in labor disputes and the activities of coal and iron police and other officers employed by the mining companies. The report also called upon organized labor forces of Pennsylvania to renew their activities in organizing the unorganized workers of the state into trade unions and appealed to all labor unions for "monies, food and clothing," to aid the striking miners.

William Green, president of the National Labor Federation, was named to head the two committees directed to call upon President Coolidge and Governor Fisher. Acting immediately upon the authorization of the conference, Mr. Green obtained an appointment for his committee, with the Pennsylvania executive for tomorrow at Harrisburg.

Members of the executive council of the labor federation and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, were directed "to confer with the chief executive of our nation and such other officials on our national government as the executive council may determine to lay before them the facts of this situation, in order that the intolerable and reprehensible conditions in Pennsylvania may be speedily corrected." The original text of the report was amended to include the Ohio situation, when officials of the mine union of that state pointed out that while they were not confronted with coal and iron police situation, described as existing in Pennsylvania, injunctions had been issued against the striking miners there, and that the need for material aid was as as in Pennsylvania.

President Green and a special committee were directed to visit Governor Fisher personally, "to demand an immediate and impartial investigation of all that is charged against the state government and to secure from him not only the assurance, but the actual enforcement of equality before the law and a full, complete and immediate manifestation of interest and activity in behalf of human relations and human liberties of the citizens of the state."

Named with the labor federation president on that committee were Philip Murray and Thomas Kennedy, both Pennsylvanians and vice president and secretary-treasurer respectively of the miners union; James Wilson, of the pattern makers, Matthew Woll, of the photo engravers and vice president of the labor federation; James Maloney, of the glass bottle blowers and M. F. Tigh, of the sheet and metal workers.

GENERAL REDUCTION OF IMPORT DUTIES OPPOSED

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Any general reduction of import duties at this time was opposed in a declaration adopted by the resolutions committee of the American farm congress here today after sentiment had developed at a general session against permitting the American market to be opened to foreign importations of agriculture and livestock products.

The stand was in line with the position taken by President Coolidge, who, it was said, at the White House today, feels that agriculture would not be aided by a reduction of the tariff such as suggested in the report of a commission for the relief of agriculture headed by Charles Nagel, former assistant secretary of commerce.

"American agriculture and livestock industries have entered an era in which they must have protection in the home markets from unreasonable competition of products of countries where land is cheap, standards of living low, or labor meanly paid, if they are not to sink to the approximate level of such countries," the resolution declared.

"For America to permit its own agriculture to fall into decadence, and to depend upon importations of foodstuffs from other countries, would be most unwise."

I. W. W. STRIKERS APPEAL TO "FOOTLOOSE REBELS"

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15—(AP)—Faced with a warning that pickets would be met by bullets on at least one mining property, I. W. W. strikers in Colorado coal fields tonight awaiting the outcome of an appeal for all "footloose rebels" in the country to come to their aid.

After several days of intermittent picketing activity at the Columbine mine, the only coal mine property still operating in the northern Colorado fields, its owners informed Governor W. H. Adams that the pickets would be shot if they appeared tomorrow. Mine guards are on duty at the property.

Officers in charge of state police in the northern Colorado fields sent an appeal to the governor for 50 more men to meet any contingency. The situation was described as "acute" by William H. Young, a member of the state industrial commission.

Demonstrations by pickets have continued for several days at the Columbine and several miners were stopped today while on their way to work. The Columbine is owned by the Rocky Mountain Fuel company.

"WET" DEMOCRAT IS LEADING IN COLORADO

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15—(AP)—S. Harrison White, democratic and "wet" candidate, tonight took a lead of 5,583 votes over Francis J. Knause, republican and "dry," in their congressional election on the basis of returns from 175 out of 268 precincts in the third congressional district which consists of the city of Denver.

The vote stood:

White 19,389, Knauss 15,706.

Two independent candidates were trailing hopelessly behind.

Oil Case is Rested Before Grand Jury

Three Members of the Washington Bar Are to Decide on Criminal Contempt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Any hope that government counsel may have had that there would be further defections from the ranks of the Burns detectives apparently were dissipated today as the Sinclair-Fall oil trial jury surveillance case practically was rested before the grand jury after more than two weeks of inquiry.

For more than an hour Assistant District Attorney Burkinshaw hammered away at Charles G. Ruddy, who directed the operations of the men shadowing the Teapot Dome trial jurors, but there was no indication that he had succeeded in obtaining any corroboration of the startling story of William J. McMullin, a former Burns man, about the fabrication of reports so that the defense might move for a mistrial if that course should have been found necessary.

Coincident with the near completion of the government's case, Justice Frederick L. Siddons, who presided at the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy hearing, issued an order appointing three members of the Washington bar to make an investigation to determine whether there had been a criminal contempt of the District of Columbia supreme court in connection with the oil trial.

This inquiry probably will be directed largely to charges of J. Ray Akers, former street car conductor, and Dodnald K. King, a newspaper reporter, that Edward J. Kidwell, Jr., labor No. 11, discussed the trial freely and stated that he would be disappointed if he did not come out of the case with an automobile "as long as this block."

District Attorney Gordon, John E. Laskey, a former district attorney, and Jesse E. Easby-Smith are to conduct the inquiry for the court and bring any contempt proceedings they may deem warranted by the facts they obtain "to the end that the authority and power of the court be vindicated, sustained and enforced."

Kidwell has denied all of the charges made by Akers and King and countered with a request that they be cited for contempt of the court in approaching a juror during the trial. Justice Siddons today set next Friday for a hearing on this petition.

Under the court order, the scope of this inquiry would encompass the activities of the Burns men, since Justice Siddons referred directly to affidavits filed by two assistant district attorneys dealing with the raid on the apartment of the Burns operatives at the Wardman Park hotel. It was on the basis of the four affidavits that a mistrial was ordered two weeks ago today.

A $6,000,000 SUIT AGAINST HENRY AND EDSEL FORD

PUNTIAC, Mich., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Nearly 2,000 stockholders scattered throughout the country, of the old Lincoln Motor company, are plaintiffs in a suit in chancery against Henry and Edsel Ford, involving approximately $6,00,000 filed in circuit court here today.

The suit, brought by Henry M. Leland and son, Wilfred C. Leland, former president and vice president respectively, of the Lincoln Motor company, under power of attorney obtained from the stockholders, seeks reimbursement for losses alleged to have been suffered at the time Henry Ford purchased the Lincoln properties in 1922 at a receivers' sale for $8,000,000.

The bill of complaint charges that Mr. Ford failed to keep a verbal agreement to buy the outstanding stock of the active stockholders. This outstanding stock, according to the complaint, aggregated about $6,000,000 in value.

AGREEMENT TO STABILIZE THE PRODUCTION OF SUGAR

PARIS, Nov. 15—(AP)—Cuba took effective lead of the world's sugar interests today when suggestions of Colonel Jose Tarafa, head of the Cuban sugar defense committee, were incorporated in an agreement signed by the biggest exporters of the sugar world to stabilize production and exportation so the industry will be able to wait for consumption to catch up with the present over-production.

Tarafa, who was a leading figure in the negotiations with representatives of Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia, was given a vote of congratulation by the European delegates when the agreement was signed today. He said he would continue his mission which is to get other sugar exporting interests, such as those of Java, to join the agreement.

The agreement signed today is effective for one year and is renewable at the end of that period. It provides for the admission of all sugar exporting countries.

MUCH COLDER WEATHER EAST OF THE MISSISSIPPI

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Much colder weather will overspread all sections east of the Mississippi river by tomorrow night, the weather bureau predicted tonight on the basis of the movement of a Great Lakes disturbance which last night sent a destructive blizzard down upon northern Wisconsin.

The storm, now centered over Lake Huron, was expected to move northeastward and to send a shower of rain over the east, which in many states will turn to snow, within the next 24 hours.

After this disturbance has passed, the bureau said that much lower temperatures would occur in all eastern states, but that the thermometer would not begin to fall until Wednesday night and on the Atlantic coast.

32 EMPLOYES OF CLAY POT CO. ARE REPORTED MISSING

Plant That Was Wrecked by the Gas Tank Explosion in Pittsburgh—Toll of Known Dead Now 23—Cause of the Blast Probably Was Known to the 13 Workmen Who Were Repairing the Tank, All of Whom Are Believed to Have Been Killed.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15—(AP)—Under the glare of powerful floodlights, the monotonous search for additional victims of yesterday's gas tank explosion went forward tonight in the ruins of the devastated lower North Side district.

Although hundreds of workmen cleaned up tons of debris during the day, only two more bodies were recovered, bringing the known death toll to 23. All but three of these have been identified.

Rescue workers, generally, however, believed the fatalities would mount when the task of clearing away the jumbled wreckage of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot company, has been completed. Officials of that concern, one of the chief sufferers in the blast that killed more than a score, injured 500 others and caused property damage running into the millions, announced late today that thirty-two of the 117 men at work in the plant at the time of the explosion, were missing. Six were killed outright, a dozen or so are in hospitals, and some seventy reported themselves safe. Plant officials pointed out however, that some at least of the thirty-two men listed as missing probably were safe, but had failed to report.

Check ups of employes at all other factories ravaged by the explosion, showed every man accounted for, so that the wreckage of the Clay Pot company, holds the secret of to what extent, if any, the death toll will mount.

Great progress was made in removing the tangled ruins of the Clay Pot company, which was located immediately adjoining the huge Equitable Gas company tank which let go yesterday morning, turning city blocks into shambles. Officials, however, estimated that it would be ten days before all the wreckage could be removed and probably as long before they could say definitely how many of their employes had perished.

The hazardous rescue task cost one life today. Frank Kuepferle, a laborer, was killed while moving some twisted steel when reinforcing steel fell upon him. Two other workmen were injured in other accidents.

Meanwhile residents of the desolated district surveyed the ruins with a calmer eye than had been possible yesterday and began the work of reconstruction, aided by a $100,000 emergency fund provided by city council. A resolution was introduced in city council to use a part of the emergency fund to provide materials and workmen to repair the shattered dwellings. Mayor Charles H. Kline, after an inspection of the district, said at least fifteen buildings would have to be torn down to prevent their toppling with the danger of additional fatalities or injuries. Work of demolition was begun late this afternoon.

Streets in the desolated area were completely cleared of debris during the day. Health conditions were reported excellent.

Little actual want was reported for charitable organizations, as well as the city, had quickly mobilized their forces and held the suffering to a minimum. Relief organizations continued the work of feeding hundreds made homeless by the blast, and provided clothes for those who needed them.

Investigations seeking to discover the cause of the blast were continued but no finding were announced. Some experts felt that the secret was known only to the thirteen workmen who were repairing the tank, when the blast let go. All of these are believed to have been killed.

ON NON-STOP FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO INDIA

UPAVON, England, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Speeding eastward over sea, mountain, desert and city, two British airmen, Captain R. H. McIntosh and Bert Hinkler, test pilot, are attempting to achieve the first non-stop flight to India.

Flying in the "Princess Xenia," the same plane in which he made an unsuccessful effort to span the Atlantic to the United States early this fall, Captain McIntosh hopes to establish a new non-stop long distance record, replacing the one made by Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine on their trans-atlantic flight to Germany. The distance between England and Karachi, India, objective of the flight is more than 4000 miles, whereas the distance covered by Chamberlin and Levine has been computed at 3,905 miles.

The two fliers took off shortly after one o'clock this afternoon with 800 gallons of gasoline in their tanks and plenty of provisions for their long air journey. Weather conditions were excellent when they hopped off in their Fokker plane, but weather charts showed that they were likely to encounter rain, snow and mists over the continent. Beyond that, fair weather was predicted.

SAVED WOMAN FROM GOING OVER THE NIAGARA FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 15—(AP)—A favoring current and the nerve of a reservation policeman tonight saved Mabel Smith, 30 years old, of Buffalo, from being dashed to death over the falls near the American shore of the Niagara river.

The woman entered the water at "Suicide Point" about 400 feet above the cataract and was carried down the rapids to within fifty feet of the falls brim before Patrolman Michael Senf, of the reservation force, aided by a sudden swirl of the rapids reached her.

Taken to a hospital she was suffering from shock and could give no information about herself, except that she lived in Buffalo, although when pulled from the icy water she had thanked her rescuer and declared that she had fallen into the river.

RUMANIA EASIER SINCE ACQUITTAL OF MANOILESCU

BUCHAREST, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Rumania, which for a fortnight has been in a state of high nervous excitement, breathed easier today with the acquittal of Mihail Manoilescu, former under-secretary for finance, who was charged with sharing in a revolutionary plot.

The trial had given rise not only to dangerous talk about the establishment of a republic, an absolute dictatorship, and abolition of the dynasty, but undisguised anxiety on the part of the government which ordered the trial to be terminated as speedily as possible.

While Premier Bratianu feels that Manoilescu's arrest set a warning and example before other politicians who might feel a tendency to meddle in the dynastic situation, the fact is that the trial has broken wide open against the troublesome question of the claims of former Crown Prince Carol to the throne. More than that it made Carol and Manoilescu heroes in the eyes of many impressionable and sentimental Rumanians.

TRACE STOLEN BONDS TO BANKS IN COAL FIELDS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 15—(AP)—Mingling high finance and politics today in the trial of B. H. McKeehan, D. F. Mulligan, and John J. Walsh, the trail of a batch of stolen bonds was followed from New York city into banks of the hard coal field.

The trio are charged with the receiving of securities taken from the Garfield National bank in New York city and posted in banks of Wilkesbarre, Pittston and Scranton as collateral on loans that had a ratio of the proceeds diverted to the campaign of Dr. F. D. Thomas for sheriff in the primary fight of last September. A mysterious Ben Harris was mentioned as the man who brought in the bonds for campaign use, taking 9 per cent of the 80 per cent of the face value loaned for his own use and returning the balance for campaign purpose.

The bonds posted and the loans obtained were fifty in number. All the bonds were issued by the city of Bridgeport, Conn., for municipal improvements. The loans totalled $40,100.

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Police Commissioner Christopher Zilly was arraigned in town court tonight on a charge of aggravated assault in connection with the shooting of Herbert Kabisch, 7, in Milldale on Sunday night and was granted a continuance until Dec. 7, pending the outcome of the youth's injuries.

Kabisch was shot while waiting for a "hitch" to his home after visiting a married sister. Zilly and the Thompson's, directed to the Milldale school in their search for the bandits who had attempted to force their way into two garages and had fired on the owner of one, saw the lad waiting beside the road and commanded him to get into their car. Instead of complying, he ran and Zilly and the elder Thompson fired.

The youth is now in a hospital in a serious condition.

GLASS' DIFFERENTIAL ON THE ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Democratic Senator From Virginia Maintains That The Regard of the 15th Amendment in the South and Its Enforcement of the 18th Amendment Cannot Be Declared Contradictory—Explains His Attitude in Opposing Sending Federal Agents to Kentucky to Supervise the State Election There and His Approval of Sending Them Into the States to Enforce the National Prohibition Law.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 14—(AP)—Carter Glass, a leader of the Democratic party in the Senate, is opposed to Negro suffrage in the South, he has stated in a letter in which he defends the action of the majority of the Senate committee in refusing to declare the fifteenth amendment dealing with this question and the position for the protection of the eighteenth amendment, which he declares are contradictory, in a letter made public today in a statement issued by the Anti-Prohibition Association of the Virginia Senator. Senator Glass in an editorial in the Lynchburg News charges inconsistency of the Virginia Senator in opposing the sending of Federal agents to Kentucky to supervise the election there and his approval of sending them into the states to enforce the prohibition law.

"Will the man protests against Federal agents to supervise elections in Kentucky for which there is no law," said Senator Glass, "be able to suggest that such agents would have precedent and warrant in prohibition agents, who are sent into the states to supervise the enforcement of a law?"

Senator Glass in his attempt to draw a distinction between the attitude of the enforcement of Negro suffrage in the South and the enforcement of prohibition in the states, says the fifteenth amendment was "declared by the courts to be adopted and properly ratified by 40 of the 48 states of the Union."

Moreover, he argued that there is no constitutional or statutory law in the code of a single southern state that violates the letter of the fifteenth amendment and he challenged anyone to point to a single statute in the law of Virginia which discriminates against the Negro voter on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

"The fifteenth amendment was adopted in the aftermath of the Civil War, when the Southern States were in the throes of military occupation, and when the Ku Klux Klan was in the zenith of its power and activity. It was adopted in the passions of war, and constituted an attempt to destroy white civilization of nearly one-third of the nation and to erect on its ruins an ethiopian state ignorant, profligate, corrupt, controlled by manumitted slaves, not one per cent of them semi-literate, and these led by a band of white miscreants, execrated figures in the nightmare of reconstruction.

"On the other hand resistance to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the statute enacted in pursuance thereof is not designed to avert crime, but to facilitate its perpetration. It amounts to condonation. It is intended to stimulate contempt of both the constitution and the law."

Senator Glass said he did not mean to criticize those who asked for repeal of the eighteenth amendment but that he did condemn the mockery of the law and the applause with such flagrant violation is receiving in certain quarters.

The Virginian called attention that no statutes providing for the enforcement of the fifteenth amendment have been enacted, and, incidentally remarked that there was some doubt whether it was constitutionally ratified on the other hand, he recalled that the eighteenth amendment was "declared to have been properly ratified by 46 of the 48 states of the Union."

Moreover, he argued that there is no constitutional or statutory law in the code of a single southern state that violates the letter of the fifteenth amendment and he challenged anyone to point to a single statute in the law of Virginia which discriminates against the Negro voter on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

LONDON, Nov. 15—(AP)—The possibility of a decrease in the present telephone rate between London and the United States at periods of the day when traffic is lightest was suggested in the house of commons today. The employers declare that it will be impossible to restore prosperity to the industry unless there are reductions in pay.

REMUS IS GRANTED RIGHT TO QUESTION VENIREMEN

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 15.—(AP)—George Remus won what he regarded as one of his outstanding court battles today when he was granted the double right to qualify the jurors who will sit in judgment upon him and to refuse to set up a claim as to his mental status at this time. The former Chicago lawyer had waited until the jury box was half filled with tentative jurors before he raised his voice in the interrogation of veniremen.

When the prosecution tendered Joseph Trautman, farmer and storekeeper, to the defense, the crowded room was electrified when Remus's deep voice boomed out a "Now Mr. Trautman—"

Judge Chase H. Sheck granted Remus the privilege of an hour's examination and Carl Basher, one of the two assistants aiding Charles P. Taft, Hamilton County prosecutor, leaped to his feet with a determined objection.

The argument waxed warm and the half dozen tentative jurors and Trautman were sent out while the heat was waged over the first great issue of the trial.

"We understand that the claim of insanity is made by this defendant, and we do not think he should examine the jurors," asserted Basher.

Charles Elston, associate counsel with Remus, contended that there was no plea other than that Remus was temporarily deranged when he shot and killed his estranged second wife, Imogene Holmes Remus, in Eden Park here.

Judge Sheck retired to his chambers where he conferred with two of the three alienists he has appointed. Returning to the bench, he ruled that Remus might proceed with the interrogation of Trautman.

LILLIENDAHL DEFENSE WITNESSES DISAPPEAR

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 15—(AP)—John J. Gregory Jr., chief investigator for the defense in the Lillendahl murder mystery, declared today that several defense witnesses have disappeared.

Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl and Willis Beach will go on trial November 28 for the murder of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, the woman's husband.

"I shall appeal to Supreme Court Justice Luther Campbell," said Mr. Gregory, "to help me bring these witnesses within the jurisdiction of the court or possibly to Chief Justice Gummere."

Sixty subpoenaes have been served in South Jersey by Gregory on witnesses for the defense. The state's witnesses were subpoenaed some days ago by state police.

State police today located part of a piece of cloth which was seen hanging to a bush near the scene of the killing and which was believed to have been placed there as a signal by the slayers. The cloth was found at the barber shop of Andrew de Stefano, who told the authorities he had taken it as a souvenir.

De Stefano told the police that he and his wife and two men had driven to the scene the day Dr. Lilliendahl was shot to death. Noticing the cloth tied to the bush, he ripped a piece of it off, and took it home with him.

Dr. Lilliendahl was shot to death on September 15 as he motored with his wife along a lonely road near here. Mrs. Lilliendahl asserted that he had been slain by two Negroes for the purpose of robbery.

FORMER PUTNAM MAN SENTENCED IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Peter Lee, of Boylston, formerly of Putnam, Conn., who was recently convicted by a jury on a charge of operating an automobile so that the lives and safety of the public might have been endangered, was sentenced to three months in the house of correction and fined $100 by Judge Arthur P. Butterworth, in the superior criminal court today. The case grew out of an accident in Dudley, March 6, when Sheldon W. Carpenter was killed and two other Putnam men were seriously injured. The car left the highway and struck a tree.

A. F. of L. to Appeal to President Coolidge

In Behalf of 130,000 Striking Miners in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 15—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor, through its officers and heads of national and international unions affiliated with it today voted unanimously to lay before President Coolidge the cause of 130,000 striking miners in central and western Pennsylvania and Ohio and to demand of Governor John S. Fisher an immediate investigation into charges of misuse of power by agencies of the state government against 85,000 mine workers in the two Pennsylvania districts. Forty-five thousand miners are on strike in Ohio.

The action was taken by the labor leaders after two days of consideration of the mining situation at an emergency conference here, which was also attended by officials of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor and of various central trades councils of the state. The plan of action was contained in a report submitted by a special committee headed by William L. Hutcheson, of the Carpenters' union, which condemned the use of injunctions in labor disputes and the activities of coal and iron police and other officers employed by the mining companies. The report also called upon organized labor forces of Pennsylvania to renew their activities in organizing the unorganized workers of the state into trade unions and appealed to all labor unions for financial and moral aid to the striking miners.

William Green, president of the National Labor Federation, was named to head the two committees directed to call upon President Coolidge and Governor Fisher. Acting immediately upon the authorization of the conference, Mr. Green obtained an appointment for a committee with the Pennsylvania Executive Council in Harrisburg tomorrow. The members of the executive council of the union are John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who happened to be in conference with the council when the union leaders and such other officials on the national government as the executive council may determine to bring before them the facts of this situation, in order that the intolerable and reprehensible conditions in Pennsylvania may be speedily corrected." The union leader said the report was amended to include the Ohio situation, when officials of the mine union of that state pointed out that while they were not confronted with coal and iron police situation, described as existing in Pennsylvania, injunctions had been issued against the striking miners there, and that the need for material aid was as great in Pennsylvania.

President Green and a special committee were directed to visit Governor Fisher personally, to demand an immediate and impartial investigation of all that is charged against the state government and to secure from him not only the assurance, but the actual enforcement of equality before the law and a full, complete and immediate manifestation of interest and activity in behalf of human relations and human liberties of the citizens of the state."

Named with the labor federation president on that committee were Philip Murray and Thomas Kennedy, both Pennsylvanians and vice president and secretary-treasurer respectively of the miners union; James Wilson, of the pattern makers, Matthew Woll, of the photo engravers and vice president of the labor federation; James Maloney, of the glass bottle blowers and M. F. Tighe, of the sheet and metal workers.

GENERAL REDUCTION OF IMPORT DUTIES OPPOSED

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Any general reduction of import duties at this time was opposed in a declaration adopted by the resolutions committee of the American farm congress here today after sentiment had developed at a general session against permitting the American market to be opened to foreign importations of agriculture and livestock products.

The stand was in line with the position taken by President Coolidge, who it was said, at the White House today, feels that agriculture would not be aided by a reduction of the tariff such as suggested in the report of a commission for the relief of agriculture headed by Charles Nagel, former assistant secretary of commerce.

"American agriculture and livestock industries have entered an era in which they must have protection in the home markets from unreasonable competition of products of countries where land is cheap, standards of living low, or labor meanly paid if they are not to sink to the approximate level of such countries," the resolution declared.

"For America to permit its own agriculture to fall into decadence, and to depend upon importations of foodstuffs from other countries, would be most unwise."

I. W. W. STRIKERS APPEAL TO "FOOTLOOSE REBELS"

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15—(AP)—Faced with a warning that pickets would be met by bullets on at least one mining property, I. W. W. strikers in Colorado coal fields tonight awaiting the outcome of an appeal for all "footloose rebels" in the country to come to their aid.

After several days of intermittent picketing activity at the Columbine mine, the only coal mine property still operating in the northern Colorado fields, its owners informed Governor W. H. Adams that the pickets would be shot if they appeared tomorrow. Mine guards are on duty at the property.

Officers in charge of state police in the northern Colorado fields sent an appeal to the governor for 50 more men to meet any contingency. The situation was described as "acute" by William H. Young, a member of the state industrial commission.

Demonstrations by pickets have continued for several days at the Columbine and several miners were stopped today while on their way to work. The Columbine is owned by the Rocky Mountain Fuel company.

"WET" DEMOCRAT IS LEADING IN COLORADO

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15—(AP)—S. Harrison White, democratic and "wet" candidate, tonight took a lead of 3,533 votes over Francis J. Kpauss, republican, and "dry," in their congressional election on the basis of returns from 175 out of 293 precincts in the third congressional district which consists of the city of Denver.

The vote stood:

White 19,239, Knauss 15,706.

Two independent candidates were trailing hopelessly behind.

Oil Case is Rested Before Grand Jury

Three Members of the Washington Bar Are to Decide on Criminal Contempt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Any hope that government counsel may have had that there would be further defections from the ranks of the Burns detectives apparently were dissipated today as the Sinclair-Fall oil trial jury surveillance case practically was rested before the grand jury after more than two weeks of inquiry.

For more than an hour Assistant District Attorney Burkinshaw hammered away at Charles G. Ruddy, who directed the operations of the men shadowing the Teapot Dome trial jurors, but there was no indication that he had succeeded in obtaining any corroboration of the startling story of William J. McMullin, a former Burns man, about the fabrication of reports so that the defense might move for a mistrial if that course should have been found necessary.

Coincident with the near completion of the government's case, Justice Frederick L. Siddons, who presided at the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy hearing, issued an order appointing three members of the Washington bar to make an investigation to determine whether there had been a criminal contempt of the District of Columbia supreme court in connection with the oil trial.

This inquiry probably will be directed largely to charges of J. Ray Akers, former street car conductor, and Howard B. King, a former reporter, that Edward J. Kidwell, Jr., prior to Nov. 7, discussed the trial freely and stated that he would be disappointed if he did not come out of the case with an automobile "as long as this block."

District Attorney Gordon, John E. Laskey, a former district attorney, and Jesse L. Essig, Sinclair's counsel, appeared before the court and asked that contempt proceedings they may deem warranted by the facts they obtain "to the end that the authority and power of this court be vindicated, sustained and enforced."

Kidwell has denied all of the charges made by Akers and King and countered with a request that they be cited for contempt of the court in approaching a juror during the trial. Justice Siddons today set next Friday for a hearing on this petition.

Under the court order the scope of this inquiry would encompass the activities of the Burns men, since Justice Siddons referred directly to affidavits filed by two assistant district attorneys dealing with the raid on the apartment of the Burns operatives at the Wardman Park hotel. It was on the basis of the four affidavits that a mistrial was ordered two weeks ago today.

A $6,000,000 SUIT AGAINST HENRY AND EDSEL FORD

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 14—(AP)—Nearly 2,000 stockholders scattered throughout the country, of the old Lincoln Motor company, are plaintiffs in a suit in chancery against Henry and Edsel Ford, involving approximately $6,000,000 filed in circuit court here today.

The suit, brought by Henry M. Leland and son, Wilfred C. Leland, former president and vice president respectively, of the Lincoln Motor company, under power of attorney obtained from the stockholders, seeks reimbursement for losses alleged to have been suffered at the time Henry Ford purchased the Lincoln properties in 1922 at a receivers' sale for $8,000,000.

The bill of complaint charges that Mr. Ford failed to keep a verbal agreement to buy the outstanding stock of the active stockholders. This outstanding stock, according to the complaint, aggregated about $6,000,000 in value.

AGREEMENT TO STABILIZE THE PRODUCTION OF SUGAR

PARIS, Nov. 11—(AP)—Cuba took effective lead of the world's sugar interests today when suggestions of Colonel Jose Tarafa, head of the Cuban sugar defense committee, were incorporated in an agreement signed by the largest exporters of the sugar world to stabilize production and exportation so the industry will be able to wait for consumption to catch up with the present over-production.

Tarafa, who was a leading figure in the negotiations with representatives of Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia, was given a vote of congratulation by the European delegates when the agreement was signed today. He said he would continue his mission which is to get other sugar exporting interests, such as those of Java, to join the agreement.

The agreement signed today is effective for one year and is renewable at the end of that period. It provides for the admission of all sugar exporting countries.

MUCH COLDER WEATHER EAST OF THE MISSISSIPPI

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Much colder weather will overspread all sections east of the Mississippi river by tomorrow night, the weather bureau predicted tonight on the basis of the movement of a Great Lakes disturbance which last night sent a destructive blizzard down upon northern Wisconsin.

The storm, now centered over Lake Huron, was expected to move northeastward and to send a shower of rain over the east, which in many states will turn to snow, within the next 24 hours.

After this disturbance has passed, the bureau said that much lower temperatures would occur in all eastern states, but that the thermometer would not begin to fall until Wednesday night and on the Atlantic coast.

32 EMPLOYES OF CLAY POT CO. ARE REPORTED MISSING

Plant That Was Wrecked by the Gas Tank Explosion in Pittsburgh—Toll of Known Dead Now 23—Cause of the Blast Probably Was Known to the 13 Workmen Who Were Repairing the Tank, All of Whom Are Believed to Have Been Killed.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15—(AP)—Under the glare of powerful floodlights, the monotonous search for additional victims of yesterday's gas tank explosion went forward tonight in the ruins of the devastated lower North Side district.

Although hundreds of workmen cleared up tons of debris during the day, only two more bodies were recovered, bringing the known death toll to 23. All but three of these have been identified.

Rescue workers, generally, however, believed the fatalities would mount when the task of clearing away the jumbled wreckage of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot company, has been completed. Officials of that concern, one of the chief sufferers in the blast that killed more than a score, injured 400 others and caused property damage running into the millions, announced late today that thirty-two of the 117 men at work in the plant at the time of the explosion were missing. Six were killed outright, a dozen or so are in hospitals, and some seventy reported themselves safe. Plant officials pointed out however, that some at least of the thirty-two men listed as missing probably were safe, but had failed to report.

Lists of employes in all other plants behind the explosion showed every man accounted for, so far as the records of the clay pot company holds the secret of the workmen. If some, the death toll will mount.

Great progress was made in removing the tangled ruins of the Clay Pot company, which was located immediately adjacent the huge Equitable gas company tank which began vomiting its contents during the blast, Sunday afternoon. Officials, however, estimated it would be ten days before all the wreckage could be removed, and probably as long before they could definitely know how many of their men had perished.

SECOND LIBERTY BOND ISSUE IS PAID OFF

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Insofar as the issue would allow, the treasury took up and paid yesterday its oldest war loans, the Liberty loan issue of $3,697,[illegible].

The loans involved were so large that Mellon, under-secretary of the treasury, refused to make any estimate how successful the government's efforts to retire the second Liberty loan had been. Not until the Federal reserve banks make their late this week, will the treasury be enabled to tell how many bonds remain outstanding, it was upon them ceased to [illegible].

[illegible] conversions and continuing fund purchases, the second Liberty loan had been reduced by a total of $3,104,000,000 since that time the government has [illegible] a series of financing operations intended to bring about the conversion of the bonds or their exchange for other forms of securities. As a result that today, when the bonds were called for redemption, there was a total of $73,000,000 of the bonds outstanding.

It is expected that most of these outstanding bonds will be turned in before the end of the present week, although it is believed that some will remain unpaid for years to overcome [illegible] redemption call or the [illegible] of their securities.

SIX DAY SUGGESTIONS APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—The house ways and means committee today approved six and rejected one of [illegible] or more of recommendations made by the advisory board of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue legislation, looking to simplifying the administration of the tax [illegible].

The suggestions approved were [illegible] payment in installment sales, [illegible] returns, federal tax liens, [illegible] of property, the bar of the statute of limitations and the period of limitations.

The committee rejected the advisory board's proposal for revision of section 220 of the revenue law which deals with so-called holding corporations or corporations which fail to declare dividends. Chairman Green said that several substitutes were offered but none adopted and there was possibility that this section might be left as it is.

The changes aproved do not affect rates and are designed to aid tax payers in making out returns. The committee expects to devote practically the remainder of the week to the other recommendations, probably not taking up the questions of changes in rates before the first of next week.

COLD WEATHER AND SNOW IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—(AP)—A foretaste of winter rushed down on the middlewest today, disrupting traffic and closing schools in Wisconsin with its snowfall; its storm damaging docks and endangering shipping on Lake Superior.

Rainfall turned to snow and the thermometers dropped as the first storm, forecast several times by federal meteorologists during the past two weeks, swept across the prairie states and into the great lakes region.

Deer hunters, enjoying their first day of the season, are in danger of being marooned in their forest fastnesses by snow that drifted to a depth of four feet.

Ironwood, Mich., was almost snowbound and Ishpeming, Mich., and Ashland and Superior, Wis., were shoveling away drifts three and four feet deep.

The thermometer has dropped to 22 degrees in Kansas, while Missouri recorded sub-freezing marks. Snow and a temperature of 32 or less by tomorrow are promised for Illinois and Indiana.

Each merchant is expected to limit his sales of all commodities in such a way as to protect his customers."

Colonel M. A. Campbell, National Guard officer who took command in the first days of the flood, today was ordered by Adjutant General H. T. Johnson to accompany the body of Reuben S. Sleight to Michigan. Sleight, who was assistant to Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, was killed in an airplane accident at Montpelier yesterday.

$250,000 LIBEL SUIT AGAINST THE NEW YORK AMERICAN

The causes of action were given in the complaint as a front page story charging Dr. Dinwiddie with misuse of $10,000 of United States money, and an editorial "reiterating and aggravating the original libel."

In the news story in question the American said that the Anti-Saloon league was threatened with a governmental investigation concerning the alleged misuse of federal funds in 1919 and that the executive committee of the league, to avert this investigation, voted to repay the government and passed a resolution censuring Dr. Dinwiddie.

ON NON-STOP FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO INDIA

CUPAVON, Eng and, Nov. 16—(AP)—Stockholm eastward over sea, mountains, desert and city, two British airmen, Captain R. H. McIntosh and Captain Hinchliffe, test pilot, are attempting to achieve the first non-stop flight to India.

Flying in the "Princess Xenia," the same plane in which he made an unsuccessful effort to span the Atlantic from the United States early this fall, Captain McIntosh hopes to establish a new non-stop one distance record, surpassing the one made by Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine on their trans-atlantic flight to Germany. The distance between England and Karachi, India, objective of the flyers, is roughly 4000 miles, whereas the distance covered by Chamberlin and Levine has been computed at [illegible] miles.

The two fliers took off shortly after one o'clock this afternoon with 500 gallons of gasoline in their tanks and plenty of provisions for their long air journey. Weather conditions were excellent when they hopped off in their Fokker plane, but weather charts showed that they were likely to encounter rain, snow and mists over the continent. Beyond that, fair weather was predicted.

ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED RESTING IN ALMS HOUSES

NEWBURY, England, Nov. 15—(AP)—The red marchers en route by London to call the attention of parliament to the distress of the unemployed, rested tonight under the walls of King John.

When the men plodded into this old town where King John granted the Magna Charter of English liberty in 1215, they were so tired they did not care what Moscow might think of their banking within buildings that bear a royal title.

The unemployed army from Wales found rest in buildings that are a part of almshouses built by King John's [illegible]. The shelter was turned over to the march by the municipality.

VIGOROUS OPPOSITION TO CENSORSHIP IN RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Nov. 15—(AP)—Nine independent and opposition newspapers joined today in a vigorous demand upon the government for immediate abolition of the censorship which they say permits a free reign of the worst of public plagues, namely, vile rumor.

The protesting papers declare it is a sad delusion for the government to think it can impose peace upon the country by means of censorship. They argue that only complete liberty of the press can disperse the dust of legend and lies now polluting the political atmosphere.

SAVED WOMAN FROM GOING OVER THE NIAGARA FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 15—(AP)—A favoring current and the nerve of a reservation policeman tonight saved Mabel Smith, 30 years old, of Buffalo, from being dashed to death over the falls near the American shore of the Niagara river.

The woman entered the water at "Suicide Point" about 400 feet above the cataract and was carried down the rapids to within fifty feet of the falls brim before Patrolman Michael Senf, of the reservation force, aided by a sudden swirl of the rapids reached her.

Taken to a hospital she was suffering from shock and could give no information about herself, except that she lived in Buffalo, although when pulled from the icy water she had thanked her rescuer and declared that she had fallen into the river.

TEMPERATURE MOUNTED TO 69 IN BOSTON YESTERDAY

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Indian summer gave New England another breathing spell today before the advent of winter. In Boston the temperature mounted to 69, which was considered very good for November, but did not endanger any record.

Providence recorded a new November 15, record of 65 and Portland had 62.8, a fraction of a degree above the mark set for November 15, in 1909.

RUMANIA EASIER SINCE ACQUITTAL OF MANOILESCU

BUCHAREST, Nov. 15—(AP)—The [illegible] which for a fortnight [illegible] a state of [illegible] reached easier today when the acquittal of Mihai Manoilescu, former under-secretary for finance, who was charged with sharing in the [illegible] plot.

The trial had given rise to dangerous talk about the establishment of a republic, an [illegible] dictatorship, and abolition of loyalty, but undisguised anxiety [illegible] of the government which [illegible] trial to be terminated as [illegible] possible.

While Premier Bratianu [illegible] Manoilescu's arrest set a [illegible] example before [illegible] might feel a tendency to [illegible] dynastic situation, the fact [illegible] trial has broken wide open [illegible] the troublesome question of the [illegible] of former Crown Prince Carol [illegible] throne. More than that it made [illegible] and Manoilescu heroes in the eyes of many impressionable and sentimental Rumanians.

SUPERIOR COURT HOLDS ONLY A SHORT SESSION

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 15.—The session of the Windham county superior court scheduled to be held here this morning to hear three cases, convened at 11.20 a. m. and adjourned a few minutes later after announcements had been made that one of the cases was continued, a settlement had been reached in another and the third was postponed until another term. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin was on the bench and the cases were presented by State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford.

The first case on schedule was that of the Community Hotel corporation vs. John T. Ashton, a suit to recover $400 for four shares of preferred stock and two shares of common stock in the Nathan Hale hotel, alleged to have been contracted for and to bbe paid in nine payments between March 15, 1925 and July 15, 1926. It is further alleged that none of thes epayments were made. The case was continued for re-assignment this morning.

The second case was the divorce action of Mildred C. Rathburn of New York city, a former resident of Windham vs. William J. Rathburn, in which the plaintiff seeks a decree, the custody of two minor children, William A., aged seven, and Howard E., aged five, also to change to her maiden name. The attorneys conferred in this case to arrive at a settlement concerning the custody of the children and when they failed an agreement was made to have the case go over to another term.

The case to be settled was that of Ernest Paquin vs. his son, Joseph Paquin, of Killingly. The allegation of the plaintiff was that about one year ago the elder Paquin was out of work and having no money to pay taxes or interest on a $1,400 mortgage on a small farm, he turned the deed of the house to his son, Joseph, to have him pay the taxes and mortgage interest. A short time ago the elder Paquin demanded of his son the $1,400 named on the deed as the mortgage. The defendant refused to do this and gave notice that he would return the deed to the property, which the plaintiff refused. The basis of the settlement made today was not made known.

The court announced that the case of Fred Ward Rosebrooks of this city, charged with manslaughter in connection with an automobile accident, and which had been scheduled for Wednesday, was continued indefinitely due to the fact that the defense counsel, Attorney William A. King, was at present incapacitated due to a fall at his home in which he suffered an injury to his knee.

Court adjourned at 11.20 o'clock until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock when two of the three cases scheduled will be heard. They are, Arthur Berren vs. Walter Howlett and Madeline Howlett and R. G. Remington, Inc. vs. Christopher Mannick, et al.

The air truck of the Royal Typewriter company arrived here to the minute on the appointed time of 10 o'clock this forenoon and after circling about somewhat dropped a parachute bearing a portable typewriter consigned to a local drug store. The air delivery was staged at Recreation park and was witnessed by about 1,500 people who gathered at the park and untold numbers watched from verandas and upper windows.

A STRANGE EXPLOSION WRECKS FISHING BOAT

Capt. Arthur Fish went aboard his boat Crusader with Mate Dunn, at the north dock, the other afternoon around 3.45 o'clock to start the engine. With two spins of the wheel, somehow an explosion took place and blew the cabin of the boat high in the air. It spread the boat nearly in half and blew Capt. Fish right from the cabin on deck; his mate landed on the dock. The boat caught fire, and even the water was ablaze. A still alarm was sent for the fire company. The Smoke Eaters made quick time and soon had a stream of water on the craft, but the boat sank later. The fishing boat Reliance was at the head of the dock, but soon was moved when the fire got too hot. The explosion was heard a long way off. A local man was painting his house standing on a ladder and the explosion rocked the ladder so that he had to hang on and thought it had slipped. The gasoline tanks were filled and everybody said that they never saw a boat wrecked like that before. The fire even blistered the mast. Capt. Fish was burned about the face and hands badly. He was taken to his home on East Main street where a doctor dressed his burns. He will be laid up for several days. The boat was a total loss.

HOW CAN WOMEN KEEP WELL ENOUGH TO GET UP SINGING?

3101 E. 44TH ST., EAST LAKE, TENN.

"My mother-in-law," says Mrs. Belle Thompson, 3101 E. 44th St., East Lake, Tenn., "told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children, and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. does more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."

Springtime streamed in through the open windows. The green fields of Georgia were basking in the sunshine. Somewhere a bird was trilling. It was a day to be happy.

But the pale woman at the table sighed and pushed away her plate. Nothing tasted right. She couldn't eat much. She couldn't sleep well, either. She was so weak, it was hard to do her work. When the baby cried, she wanted to cry, too.

She had not been well for four years. Her husband watched her with a man's helpless expression. But his mother knew a remedy.

Another Happy Woman

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

"Frances Starr is right, Luckies give the greatest pleasure"

Said Mary Nash to Basil Rathbone before the performance of "The Command to Love," the successful comedy in which they are starring.

MADE OF THE CREAM OF THE TOBACCO CROP

You, too, will find that LUCKY STRIKES give the greatest pleasure—Mild and Mellow, the finest cigarettes you ever smoked. Made of the choicest tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"IT'S TOASTED"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

writes:

"A voice in perfect condition is the every day requisite of an actress. Pleasure and no throat irritation are the essentials that I demand in a cigarette. I smoke Lucky Strikes for they alone give me what I seek."

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY HAS ALREADY SPENT $2000 ON REPAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 15.—Killingly, as a town, is beginning to pay its flood damage bills. A payroll for road repair crews being made up at the office of the selectmen here today calls for the expenditure of $2000, which, of course, does not represent half the sum that must be expended before the storm damage cost is met. Good progress has been made in restoring the highways, and the work goes on from day to day, fortunately favored by exceptionally good weather for mid-November.

In connection with the road repair expense, it is an interesting sidelight that shows that much of the money goes to workers who depend upon this money to pay part of their tax bills to the town each year. This was demonstrated earlier in the year when some of the checks that came in to pay the annual town taxes were town checks that had been given out for snow removel work the past winter. So, it appear, that work given by the town to some of its citizens and taxpayers makes it possible for them to earn some of the money to pay what they owe the town each year. It's not a bad arrangement.

THINK MISS KEITH MAY HAVE BEEN SHELDON'S COMPANION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 15.—Today, effort to recover the body of a young woman believed to be somewhere in the river between Wilsonville and Grosvenordale, was confined to watching the banks of the stream on the possibility that the body might come to the surface. State officers will not likely resume dragging of the stream or other such activities until the week-end when the river is to be drawn down to the lowest possible level, after the closing of the mills at noon on Saturday.

If a young woman was riding with Jerome V. Sheldon, when his car went into the mill pond in Wilsonville last Tuesday night, causing his death by drowning, there is the possibility that she was Miss Marline Keith, who has been missing from her home in Brookline, Mass., and from her place of employment since last Wednesday. A letter signed "Molly" that figures in the investigation of the case has come to be regarded as indicating the possibility, but by no means the certainty, that the writer was Miss Keith and that she, like Sheldon, might have lost her life when the car plunged off the highway to sink beneath the deep waters of the mill pond, exceptionally high then because of the flood of the preceding week.

A death last night that was particularly sad for the relatives and friends and brought forth the sympathy of the whole community, was that of Joseph Raymond, 52, at Wauregan. Mr. Raymond had been ill but a week, though his condition has been so critical since he was first stricken that little hope was held out for his recovery.

Mr. Raymond was a second-hand in one of the departments of the mill of the Wauregan company and also, evenings, conducted a motion picture show in west Wauregan. He will be recalled by baseball fans who knew all the eastern Connecticut stars of the diamond a quarter of a century ago as one of the fastest and smartest players of the old Wauregan Grays. He was always especially popular and deservedly well liked in Wauregan, where he had lived practically all of his life, and numbers a great many friends through eastern Connecticut. He was a native of Ishfuing Mich., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raymond.

Mr. Raymond leaves his father, his wife, who was Miss Annie Gaffney before their marriage; a brother, Peter, and three sisters, Mrs. Joseph Poudrette, Miss Laura Raymond and Mrs. Adeline Chartier, all residents of Wauregan, excepting Mrs. Chartier, who lives in Woonsocket.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Lena Courneyer was held from her home in Sterling with funeral services at St. Joseph's church in that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. E. McCarthy, of All Hallows church, Moosup, was celebrant of the mass, with Rev. Fr. Bouvier, Montreal, a missionary, as deacon, and Rev. Oscar Norman as sub-deacon. Burial was in All Hallows cemetery on the Green Hollow road. The bearers were Byer Russell, Henry Peloquin, John Cooney, Joseph Cooney, Nelson Cooney and Louis Cooney. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Reports read at the annual meeting of the Windham County Agricultural society, held at Unitarian hall, in Brooklyn, showed that the society has had a successful year, presenting an interesting fair and maintaining its high standard of doing things. After paying all premiums in full, meeting some unusual and quite heavy expenses, paying insurance, etc., the net gain this year will be about $400 to add to the society's treasury, and this, with $500 due the society from the state, will give a reserve of about $3,000.

Archie H. Gallup, Scotland, who has been president of the society for the past two years, declined re-election this year.

The officers elected are: President, Earl Andrews, Woodstock; first vice president, Lester Williams, Brooklyn; second vice president, Dr. F. W. Fake, Danielson; third vice president, John Weatherbee, Pomfret; treasurer, J. Dyer Potter, Putnam; secretary, Marshall J. Frink, Brooklyn; auditors, Oscar F. Atwood, R. B. Witter, F. E. Miller, all of Brooklyn; executive committee, Arthur House, Brooklyn, W. P. Spalding, Hampton, F. W. Cunningham, Pomfret, Christian Karr, Canterbury, W. B. Gallup, Chaplin, O. B. Carpenter, Eastford, George A. Cook, Windham, Walter Lathrop, Plainfield, Rev. Charles A. Downs, Killingly, Luther M. Keith, Putnam, George H. Gallup, Sterling, W. C. Child, Woodstock, Charles Whiting, Thompson, Fred Wright, Ashford.

In the ladies' department of the society, officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. Earl Andrews, Woodstock; first vice president, Mrs. H. D. Covell, Pomfret; second vice president, Mrs. J. Dyer Potter, Putnam; third vice president, Miss Helen Palmer, Brooklyn; executive committee: Mrs. Hiram Hawes, Canterbury; Mrs. Ernest Buell, Plainfield; Mrs. Winslow Gallup, Chaplin; Mrs. F. W. Page, Killingly; Mrs. N. C. Cleveland, Hampton; Mrs. Archie Gallup, Scotland; Mrs. Wendell Witter, Putnam; Mrs. George Gallup, Sterling; Mrs. John Weatherbee, Pomfret; Mrs. Charles F. Whiting, Thompson; Mrs. Frank Martin, Windham; superintendents of buildings, Mrs. Eva Tripp, Danielson; Mrs. George White, Brooklyn; entry clerks, Mrs. Addie C. Hyde and Mrs. A. G. Williams, both of Brooklyn.

Captain William Clark, F. A., D. O. L., New London, came here to inspect the properties of the service battery at the state armory.

Mrs. George Stone, of Academy street, has been spending the past few days with relatives at Lynn, Mass.

Indian summer came back today for what may be a brief visit, the temperature running up to 67 degrees in Danielson this afternoon.

From Brooklyn a delegation went today to attend the Six Church conference held at Westminter.

Newly elected members of the Wakitatina Camp Fire girls are Misses Gertrude McBride, Violet Lyon and Ernie Jenkins. The members have been reading stories and poems on Seek Beauty.

N. A. Witter has gone to Fond du Lac, Wis., to attend an auction sale of hundreds of cows as a prospective buyer.

George A. Waldron, of Bridgeport, was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Michael Braney, whose home at Hampton was destroyed by fire the past week, said while here this morning that he plans to rebuild, probably starting in the very near future.

Grand Marshal Ira A. Warren, of the Armistice day parade, today, on behalf of all members of the American legion, expressed his satisfaction at the co-operation of the town's people in carrying out last Friday's observance.

Mrs. Walter Purvis is ill at her home in the Riverview section.

A photograph of many members of the 18th Connecticut Volunteers, taken at an outing at Quinebaug lake in August, 1893, is attracting attention in the old photograph display in a window at the Danielson Trust company. An amazing thing to many Danielson people who see the picture, 34 years after it was taken, is that so many of the veterans were far advanced in years that long ago. Only a few of the large number shown are alive today.

Motor coaches, trucks and other such traffic going over the Fairbanks hill route between Providence, Plainfield and Norwich, are still using the Providence-Danielson route and going south from here, because of damaged bridges at Fairbanks hill and Sterling.

The Killingly-Brooklyn evening school, holding sessions at the high school on Broad street, is now progressing steadily with its work and with more than half a hundred students applying themselves diligently.

Chief John McFarland has the interesting experience of having a man, a woman and a child turned over to him by a motorist who had given them a "lift." They were without funds and anxious to get to Providence, but when the chief arranged a free ride for them to the Rhode Island city on a light delivery truck they declined because they thought the ride would be "too cold." Page the boys with the Rolls Royce limousines. We have very particular vagrants up this way.

A matter of special interest to Episcopalians here and in Brooklyn is that Rt. Rev. Chauncey Bunce Brewster, bishop of Connecticut, will make a visitation to St. Alban's church in Danielson and to Trinity church in Brooklyn next Sunday, his first visit to these churches in several years.

JEWETT CITY

BENJAMIN-STEWART WEDDING AT CONG. CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 15—A large gathering of relatives and friends filled the Congregational church Tuesday at noon, when Walter Lyon Benjamin, son of Mrs. Ida Benjamin, and Miss Irene Lillian Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Stewart were united in marriage by Rev. G. F. Goodenough, pastor of the church. The platform was decorated with palms, ferns and yellow and white chrysanthemums. The double ring service was performed beneath an arch of yellow roses. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Sade Thompson sang At Dawning, accompanied by Mrs. Earle E. Gilbert. As the march from Lohengrin was played the groom and his best man entered the church from the vestry door, the pastor coming from the minister's room. The bride-elect and her attendants came down the center aisle.

The bride was gowned in white satin and rose-point lace, with lily-of-the-valley garniture. She wore an embroidered tulle veil with coronet caught with pearls and rhinestones. Miss Ida Ruth and Lillian Marie Benjamin, the groom's nieces, were train-bearers. They wore dainty frocks of ruffled white organdy and white moline head dresses. The bride carried a bouquet of bride's roses with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of hono rwas Miss Verna Lois Tarbox. She wore a bouffant, period style gown of pink taffeta bodice, with changeable pink and gold skirt, and a black satin and lace picture hat with pink rose. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Freda and Anna Bauer, of Taftville. They had peach georgette frocks with picture hats to match, and carried white chrysanthemums. The bride and groom's little niece, Ruth Mae Benjamin was flower girl, and wore turquoise ruffled crepe de chine, with hat to match. She carried a basket of rosebuds and scattered petals before the bride. The best man was Charles K. Carden, the bride's cousin, of Norwich. The ushers were Carl Benjamin, John Davis, Harold Field, of Jewett City and Charles Anderson, of Norwich. As the bridal party left the church, Mendelssohn's wedding march was played. A reception was held at the bride's home, the bridal party receiving beneath a wedding bell. The rooms were decorated with yellow, white and pink chrysanthemums, and flowering plants. The bride's mother wore black satin with transparent velvet. The groom's mother was unable to be present, as she is in Wisconsin caring for her aged mother. During the reception, Mrs. H. E. Paul of Jewett City catered.

The bride received from the groom a pearl necklace with diamond and platinum pendant. The groom received from the bride a leather traveling case, fitted with military brushes. The bride gave the maid of honor a chrome pendant, the bridesmaids meshbags, the flowermaid and train-bearers lockets and chains, the singer and organist receiving brooches. The best man received from the groom a fountain pen and pencil set, and the ushers were presented bill-folds.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin left by automobile for a week's honeymoon trip. Mrs. Benjamin wore a brown satin crepe dress, a dark brown pony skin coat with beaver collar and a brown velvet hat. They will live at the bride's home on their return.

The bride received beautiful gifts of silver, dinner set, china, glass, pictures, linen, money, lamps and furniture. The main office in Aspinook Bleachery gave the bride a bridge floor lamp. The groom received a Coggswell chair from the Ashland Cotton Co. machine shop.

Mrs. Benjamin is a graduate of Riverside Grammar school and Norwich Free Academy '23. She is stenographer in Aspinook bleachery, and the organist in the Congregational church. She is a member of Ruthie Rebekah lodge.

Mr. Benjamin is a graduate of Riverside Grammar school and Norwich Free Academy '16. He is a mechanic with the Ashland Cotton Co. He is a World War veteran, serving overseas as corporal in the 6th Co. 2nd Regt. air service. He is a member of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M. Reliance lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., and Faith chapter O. E. S.

Guests were present at the wedding from Providence, Portland, Me., Maynard Norton and Concord, Mass., Taftville, Norwich, Montville, Yantic and Jewett City. During the reception music was furnished by Mrs. Lucille Williams and Fred Russell, of Norwich. A very pleasant feature of the reception was one not planned. It became known that the bride's parent's thirty-first wedding anniversary came upon Friday. Thereupon, they were ushered to the place where the bride received and her mother, holding the bridal bouquet, received, with her husband, the congratulations of the guests.

DIAMOND-BACKED ADDER DISTURBED FROM QUARTERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 15—On one of the recent pleasant afternoons, an East Main street woman thought of taking up a few plants that had just finished their late fall blossoming in a warm bed on the south side of her home. With trowel and flower pots in hand she set herself to the task, on her knees. While groping around the stalks to free them from drifted-leaves, and as her attention was attracted to the street, where a passing neighbor shouted greeting, her hand came in contact with something cold and clammy. With horror, when on looking to see what strange creature had invaded her flower bed, she saw a great diamond backed adder, slowly uncoiling, preparatory to leaving the premises. Being a woman, there may have been good and sufficient reason to faint, but not so in this case. Mr. Wyatt lives near by; a muffled scream gave him notice that instant masculine assistance was necessary. Even as he rushed to the rescue, the woman hurried to a near-by shed, quickly returning with a hoe, shovel and a bean-pole. Sir Galahad, grasped the shovel, presently there was a dull thud and Mr. Snake was drawn forth in sections and his interment was duly performed. Friends and neighbors came to laud the woman's bravery and to offer congratulations that she was not bitten by the reptile, whose sections laid end to end measured nearly three feet.

Finn Bros. will be closed Thursday and will re-open Friday morning as Finn Bros' Public Market with the lowest prices in town on meats, groceries, fresh fruit and vegetables. Don't miss the opening.—Adv.

Parties returning fro.. journeys along the country roads are showing twigs of the bright red winter berries, with an occasional find of bitter-sweet. One can hardly believe that this beautiful fall shrub has so completely disappeared from its once many near habitats. Ilex verticillata the botanies call it, while many speak of winter berries as black alder berries. In summer time many have thought to get a line on the shrub by discovering its blossom, but the insignificant little white flowers are generally passed by unnoticed. A man from the south, deeming the berry good to eat, filled up on them a couple of summers ago. Later he felt a "little unsettled inside" he said, but there were no other ill affects.

ENFORCING PARKING REGULATIONS

The communication which has been forwarded to the police committee by City Attorney Robbins should and probably will get early attention. It directs attention to a condition which has prevailed for a long time and which has worked injustice upon not a few.

When the parking ordinance was put into effect it was given much attention, thoe eaffected by it studied up its provisions and there was a disposition on the part of the police to see that they were carried out. Where it was obviously necessary instructions were given in order to correct any wrong impressions which car owners had gained and to jog their memories regarding something new.

For a time attention was given to these regulations. Then followed a period of laxity during which certain machines were parked where they should not be and because they were not disturbed others fell into the practice with the resulithat the regulations were respected more in the breach than in the observance. Conditions of that kind prompted complaints and complaints resulted in a new period of enforcement. Some of the violators were then prosecuted but those who did the same thing the day before or perhaps the day after were not molested.

Such ups and downs in bringing about respect for the ordinance are detrimental. The city attorney says he favors and there should be, great liberality both as to the interpretation of this class of ordinances and the imposition of penalties for their violation, but it is perfectly evident to those who are supposed to obey them that they ought not to mean something today and nothing tomorrow, or nothing today and a fine tomorrow.

Whether the idea of a policeman for that service during the day and the night is the proper solution, a sane enforcement of the ordinance is important if it isn't to become a joke and if an imposition upon a few auto owners is to be eliminated. There should be no need for occasional proclamations to the effect that henceforth parking regulations are going to be enforced. Such are nothing more than plain admissions that they haven't been, and mean the trapping of those who have been encouraged by the example of others to violate regulations.

HELPING THE VERMONTERS

Unquestionably the people of Norwich will view with keen interest the preparations which have been made by the citizens of Norwich who were formerly Vermonters to give assistance to the flood stricken area of their native state. This indicates an interest which is natural.

Only those who have lived in those Vermont cities and villages which have experienced the brunt of the flood, or those who have happened to witness some of the high water conditions there, can really appreciate the situation in which the people of the Green mountain state find themselves with bridges, buildings, streets washed away, livestock drowned and no ordinary means of getting necessary supplies. Not only does it mean a temporary embarrassment but there are localities which will never be able to restore normal conditions. They will always bear the marks of that unexpected inundation.

With state and federal resources drawn upon it is to be expected that relief and assistance will be provided as rapidly as possible. Nevertheless the former residents of that state cannot fail to be touched by the position in which their relatives, friends, former neighbors find themselves and in their plans to offer such assistance as they can it is to be expected that there will be many sympathizers who will be anxious to pass along through them their contributions in behalf of such a worthy cause. It is not necessary to be former Vermonters to desire to give assistance to suffering or afflicted humanity, but such action on the part of Norwich citizens shows what former home ties will do.

TAX CUT DEMANDS

As the days approach for the opening of the 70th congress it becomes more and more evident that the fact that there was a large surplus at the end of the last fiscal year prompts the demand for a large tax reduction. It is easy enough to figure out what might be done if such a large revenue could be anticipated another year, but those who are in a position to look ahead and estimate that revenue have pointed out that there are sources which contributed heavily, the past year which will be dried up in the close any too far present year. Likewise it must be taken into consideration that there will be large demands upon the present congress for regular and special appropriations, and these demands cannot be ignored entirely.

Various estimates have been made as to where the limit should be fixed for the tax cut. Secretary Mellon has fixed the amount at $225,000,000. President Coolidge has accepted that estimate and urged that it be respected. Senator Smoot, a financial authority in the senate has been making a study of the government's financial problems and he now declares that under no circumstances should the tax cut be over $300,000,000. That is somewhat higher than the secretary of the treasury's estimate but it is much below some of the other figures that have been advocated.

With the Government on a budget system it is apparent that it must get deserved attention. Senator Smoot insists that the president must back the budget to the limit in order to avoid a deficit. The deficit is a point which those who are running the government must keep in mind at all times while those who are advocating huge tax reductions can conveniently overlook it in their enthusiasm. There are restrictions when it comes to cutting a garment according to the cloth, but such restrictions cannot be wisely ignored if the finished job is going to meet all requirements. It cannot be ignored that raiding the treasury carries grave responsibilities.

WHERE UNITY WOULD HELP

There is a decided difference between urging the farmers and their organizations to come to an agreement in regard to a farm relief measure and declaring that no action will be taken concerning a farm bill unless there is such an agreement. That the latter would help ought to be perfectly apparent.

During all the time that there has been a demand for farm relief at Washington there has been disagreement among the farm organizations as to just what form the legislation should take. This disagreement has not helped the cause and it cannot be expected that it will give any assistance in the future if part of those for whom the assistance would be provided are determined to have it only in one form while others are urging something else, and some among the farmers even insisting that no such legislation is needed.

It is frequently the case that advocates of a particular piece of legislation are not all in agreement when presenting their arguments, and yet in the interest of reaching a common position and therefore strengthening their position they are disposed to compromise. The desirability of such action ought not to be overlooked by the farmers, but even if that does not follow it doesn't necessarily mean that congress will turn a cold shoulder upon farm legislation and give it no consideration. Nevertheless if the farmers continue to show through their organization that they cannot agree they are giving the cue to congress for similar action. They are making it more difficult for congress to act upon a bill. Their attitude must naturally inspire those members of congress who seek guidance from their constituents concerning such matters to refuse to participate in any compromise action. With several factions, each pulling its own way it doesn't augur well for favorable action when it is realized that none too much speed can be expected even when there is united support given to a measure.

THE PHILIPPINE POLICY

The story which came out of Washington to the effect that preparations were underway for the upsetting of the law under which control of the Philippines is now exercised bore the earmarks of fiction. There is no doubt but what there are those who would have been ready and willing to give aid to the Filipino politicians in endeavoring to put a colonial government plan into effect, but the idea of tearing down all that has been constructed during the term of Governor General Wood in the islands was too much to be believed. It was in direct opposition to the position which has heretofore been taken by the administration.

Because of this evident contrast the white house considered it advisable to take recognition of it to the extent of denying it. This doesn't mean that any plans which are advocated for changes in the islands will not get consideration, but it is the present belief that the pursuit of existing methods under the prevailing law holds out the greatest promise for the future of the Philippines. When it is added that much assistance could be given if a different spirit was manifested by the Filipinos it directs attention to a situation which has existed in the islands for too long a period. It was a handicap to the Wood regime and operated to the disadvantage rather than the advancement of the islands. Perhaps nothing disclosed more clearly the danger that would come from giving the islands independence than this antagonistic attitude to the efforts of the government that has done so much for the Philippines. Giving the politicians free rein at Manila with this country having little or no say until they got into trouble would mean an unhappy experiment.

A HOME FOR HILDA

Hilda Lane met her aunt, Mrs. Merriman, in the lobby of the Fontaine and they went into lunch. Mrs. Merriman had telephoned for reservations and the head waiter showed the two women to a small table where they could talk in private. Hilda, removing her coat, emerged clad in black, a slim, superlatively graceful and modish figure. Hilda was 38 and a thread or two of silver showed in her dark hair that was knotted so simply under the brim of her charming little hat. Mrs. Merriman scrutinized those gray hairs through her lorgnette.

"You are fading, Hilda," she remarked.

"Everything fades in time," Hilda smiled. "Oh, I'm so hungry! I scarcely had a moment for breakfast," she added.

"Out late?"

"Until after 11, with the Cadys, to see that play at the Grand. And it wasn't worth the sacrifice of my beauty sleep. I shall not dissipate again in a long time. Even at my age one learns something new constantly."

"You can't work the way you do without some recreation," remarked Mrs. Merriman.

"Well, I have my books. I'd like a victrola, but Mrs. Stryker objects to them. If I ever have a home of my own I'm going to have a musical instrument in every room," she sighed.

"Hilda," said Mrs. Merriman as the waiter withdrew beyond ear shot, "you're a fool not to marry George Oliver. He can give you a home. That is why I asked you here today—to talk over certain things with you. I think you should accept George—for your own good."

Hilda looked frankly into her aunt's severe eyes.

"I'm so sorry, Aunt Jane," she said. "But I can't accept George for the reason that I have definitely refused him."

Mrs. Merriman colored with vexation.

"You fool!" she said.

"Well, even for the sake of a home I couldn't marry him. I don't like him and he has the right to be liked if he can find any one to do it."

"You've deliberately thrown away your last chance," frowned Mrs. Merriman. "Now you'll have to keep on working till you drop. I can't do anything for you. And when your other relatives hear that you have refused George they will ostracize you. I wonder if you realize what you have done in refusing George Oliver?"

Hilda clasped her hands and looked down at them.

"I certainly do realize all that I've lost," she said in a low tone. "I've lost a wonderful home, affluence, a large social circle, the chance to have my name in the papers at least three times a week. But, on the other hand, I've gained something. My soul is still my own and so are my ideals. My dream of possessing a home is unspoiled and some day, dear Aunt Jane, that dream is coming true. Maybe not in years, but I have waited so long I can wait longer. Love of home is part of me. I've saved for years, but of course it takes a lot of money to provide oneself with a home unless one marries it. I shall not marry. You wouldn't let me marry Alex Campbell. Well, I've outlived that, but I've never cared for any other man. I do care for a home. You don't have to marry to have one, Aunt Jane."

They parted amicably and Hilda returned to her work. But the interview had tired her and stirred her mind up from its depths. In refusing George Oliver she had eliminated all her relatives. For years they had expected her to marry him. As if she could with the memory of Alex in her heart.

She felt a sense of desperation that had never haunted her before. Perhaps she was too tired. The worst of it was she had drawn out a good bit of her savings and invested them in stocks in the crazy hope of trebling her money. The morning paper had quoted that group of stocks as already below par and falling rapidly. The money, at least a portion of it, was as good as lost already.

It was within 20 minutes of closing time when the floorwalker handed her a note. Sometimes a customer sent her specifications for some purchase; so she was not surprised. It was fully 10 minutes later that she got a chance to glance at the contents of the note.

"Hilda," she read, "I shall be waiting at the side entrance for you in my car. I have seen your aunt and she told me where to find you. We will dine at the Fontaine.—Alex."

Hilda's countermate put an arm about her.

"You've had bad news," she murmured sympathetically.

Hilda could only shake her head The floor still wanted to strike her in the face, the shelves and lights swam. Miss Coleman helped her to the restroom and after a few moments Hilda became herself.

"I thought you were going to drop right down upon the floor." Miss Coleman said.

"I did too," murmured Hilda.

She found Alex waiting. Their eyes met at first fearfully, then gladly. There was not visible emotion on the part of either. A moment later Hilda was beside him in the travel-stained car and they were speeding toward the Fontaine.

They had the same table at which she had lunched with Mrs. Merriman. Across it they smiled at each other, studied each other, came to mutual understanding, while the food cooled untasted.

"You never dreamed I'd come back after you," Alex said. "And I never dreamed I'd find you waiting. But I thought I'd take a chance. Hilda—Hilda—Hilda!"

At 10 o'clock that evening Hilda called Mrs. Merriman to the telephone. She was slowly getting back to normal.

"You know about Alex, Aunt Jane?" she said. "Well, I'm going to marry him in three days—no, I don't want any wedding, any fuss. We shall just step into a church. I'm going to have a home—a real home at last. You're right dear Aunt Jane; a woman can't have a real home without a man in it. Some day you'll come to see me—"

Her voice broke. She hung up the receiver.—Detroit News.

YOUR HEALTH

LATE HOURS AND IRREGULAR MEALS

By T. Richard Sealy, M. D., Santa Anna, Texas, Member Gorgas Memorial

Good health is the greatest material blessing. It is capital to those who labor and prime essential to the rich. And yet, many make no attempt to keep fit, even though the causes of most cases of poor health are preventable.

Eating at irregular intervals, eating too fast, eating too highly seasoned food, frequent chilling of the stomach with iced drinks, and eating heavy meals while under nervous and mental strain all sooner or later impair digestion and assimilation. Then the body fails to get the proper nourishment and the normal resistance toward disease is lowered, as is also the ability to supply the normal amount of nervous and muscular energy.

Sleeping is next to eating in the plan of nature to keep the body fit. It is a state of unconsciousness planned by nature to permit the human dynamo to rest and store up energy for the next run. Sleep should therefore be regular and sufficient. At least six hours for adults and more for children out of each twenty-four. Though many of us use many of the hours that properly belong to the body for sleep to keep it fit in indulging in the numerous frivolous social diversions so common to the night life of our country. Only a great crusade for better health just such as the Gorgas Memorial has undertaken, can check it. This lack of sleep has much to do with so many not keeping fit.

Constipation so common among women in offices, stores, schools, and most all branches of public work ranks high as the cause for not keeping fit.

These are a few of the most common though easily preventable causes for not keeping fit. Ask your family doctor how to avoid them and do so, then you will have accomplished much toward keeping yourself fit.

Little Talks on Thrift

PLANNING ANOTHER YEAR

The end of the year 1927 is not far away and the intervening period is a good time in which to map out plans for the administration of our persona. affairs during the year 1928.

We do not believe any person, except in very isolated instances, should not include some provision for saving money or its equivalent.

It is always an unwelcome condition to look back over a year and find that we have made no personal headway in a material sense. Those who find themselves in such a plight at the end of this year and are satisfied to enter another year with no better prospects of improvement, are worthy of both condemnation and pity.

No one but the worst weakling would allow himself to reach a condition of such stagnation.

This does not mean that every person who has not saved money during the year is worthy of criticism.

Advancement is not always measured in terms of the saved dollar. Acquiring an education, building up a profession or business or regaining of one's health, are a few of the many instances of progress and thrift that are not included in money saving. But these exceptions are comparatively negligible in number.

There is no excuse for the majority of persons not getting ahead. When they fail to do so, it is due entirely to lack of ambition and will-power.

To the great majority of our population, progress must be measured in terms of money saved.

There has been much boasting over the savings of the American people in the last few years, yet fully one-half of our adult population have no savings bank accounts today. There are literally millions of Americans now going through the best years of their lives without saving a single penny from one year's end to the next.

Let it be hoped that, of these millions, a considerable number will read these lines and that they will resolve now to make the year 1928 mean something real and vital to them in personal progress and material upbuilding.—A Little Talk on Thrift.

Dr. Leonard Hill, British physician, says that the average length of life among women of Westmoreland, where the air is pure, is fifteen years longer than in Middlesborough, where it is more smoky and dirty.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Henry Thornton, who has gone to Mexico in response to an invitation from the Mexican government to study that country's railway transportation system with a view to effecting operating improvements, has been the executive head of the Canadian National Railways for the past five years. Previously he had filled a similar position with the Great Eastern Railway in England. His first reputation in his profession, however, was made in the United States, where he became well known in railroad circles, especially in connection with the electrification of the Long Island lines. When the World war broke out, he was called into the service of the British government and before the close of the conflict he was given the important post of inspector general of transportation. At the same time he was made a knight commander of the British Empire.

POETRY

This is November

Fields and pastures deeply russet,
Or glowing still with green,
Where, framed about with fences
Beautiful cows move leisurely,
Spotted shapes of velvet black and white—
Repeated in the azure pasture overhead
Where flocks of ink-black crows amid the fleece
Match them in miniature.
And over all, the silver of November sunshine—
An incandescence unbelievable; the mingling
Of earthly and unearthly radiance—
So do framed masterpieces shine,
As by invisible illumination,
Hanging at hushed attention
Upon the walls of an art salon.

Poise and dignity, richness, power,
The concentration of innumerable colors,
The close-packed pressure of a thousand scents,
Fragrance within fragrance, tang within tang,
The dark and mellowed sob of beauty's final chord;
Then the shrill whistle of the bugle wind,
A swirl of torn and frightened leaves.
The beckoning of welcome firelight from my window—
This is November.
—Angela Morgan, in "Silver Clothes."

Hope

We sailed and sailed upon the desert sea
Where for whole days we alone seemed to be.
At last we saw a dim, vague line arise
Between the empty billows and the skies.
That grew and grew until it wore the shape
Of cove and inlet, promontory and cape;
Then hills and valleys, rivers, fields and woods,
Steeples and roofs, and village neighborhoods,
And then I thought, "Sometime I shall embark
Upon a sea more desert and more dark
Than ever this was, and between the skies
And empty billows I shall see arise
Another world out of that waste and lapse,
Like yonder land, perhaps—perhaps—perhaps.
—William Dean Howells.

Uncle Sam, who before the world war had about $5,000,000,000 in I. O. U.'s held by foreign countries, not only has regained his securities and paid his bills, but during the first half of this year bought nearly $200,000,000 worth of foreign capital securities. This represents a net increase of $215,498,525 over last year and definitely establishes the United States as a creditor nation. Until recently little foreign capital has come to this country.

SEES ABSOLUTE JUSTICE AS WAY TO BREAK DOWN SOCIAL UNREST

You can't stop social unrest by force; the only way to break down this social unrest is on the basis of absolute justice, said Charles Steizle of New York, lecturer and writer, before an audience of over 200 at the November meeting of the Woman's City club at the Wauregan hotel, Tuesday evening. Mr. Steizle was speaking on the topic, The Cause and Cure of Social Unrest. He spoke before the club membership under the auspices of the club's civic department.

At 8 o'clock Miss Marion L. Bishop, the club president, called the largely attended gathering to order. She introduced as the first speaker, Charles Colt, chairman of the Norwich chapter of the American Red Cross. Mr. Colt spoke briefly in behalf of the annual Red Cross roll call which is now being held. He told of the many disasters which are continually being handled by the Red Cross and spoke of some of the local activities of the Norwich chapter, such as furnishing milk for undernourished school children, etc. The roll call is on, he said, and I hope the Woman's City club will be represented by a 100 per cent contribution.

Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., accompanied by Miss Louise Fuller, pleasingly rendered two vocal selections for which she was heartily and enthusiastically applauded. Miss Bishop then introduced as the speaker of the evening, Charles Steizle, well known New York lecturer and writer. Mr. Steizle who has made an exhaustive study of labor problems, both in this country and abroad, was himself a working man. He was years ago employed as a machinist and still retains his membership in the machinists' union. He said it is an easy matter to live in a town and not know what is happening in other towns or in the country as a whole. The morning paper, he said, is always "overset" because so many things are continually happening. We seem to be getting ready fo. the big event in history. We are engaged in the final struggle for the democracy of the world. I know the American labor movement, fairly well. I know practically every prominent labor leader in the country.

The speaker told of attending labor conferences in foreign countries to secure their viewpoints and ideas. He said he discovered these workingmen were responsible for great reform measures which equal in statesmanship the finest things in English history. He was speaking particularly of the English labor conferences. Our interests in America are tied up with the interests of Europe, he said.

We said let Germany pay for the war. How could she pay? She had no gold; no credit. The only way she could pay was in services or in products. The workingmen there get $8 a week and the cost of living is as high there as it is here. I paid 75c in Germany for this collar I am wearing tonight. If we are to be paid in terms of products it means sending cheap stuff to America, thus cutting our standards of living.

We must look at the facts. The economic interests of America and Europe are one. No easy method is going to settle the problems of Europe or of the United States. The struggle for democracy has been fought for many years, in different forms, religious democracy, political democracy, educational democracy and social democracy. Crowns and thrones don't mean what they used to mean.

Then we had the struggle for the democracy of sexes, the right of women to take their places in democracy with the men. The women have come into their own. Then came the struggle for racial democracy. We now recognize the good in other nations. We are now face to face with the struggle for industrial democracy. We now recognize the good in other nations. We are now face to face with the struggle for industrial democracy. The masses are coming into their own. I am not a socialist.

The great wars of the world were fought to gain economic supremacy. The labor problem is the great problem that faces us today in the entire world. The fight for industrial democracy is going to be won. I do not know what form this democracy will take. You can wipe out every labor union in the world and you won't settle the labor question.

What are the causes of social unrest? Not the labor agitator. I want to remind you that Russia had no labor agitators. Yet we have witnessed in Russia the bloodiest revolutions in history. What does cause radicalism? There is more social unrest among the working men today than there ever was. Yet the working men of America were never as well off as they are today.

Public libraries cause radicalism. The working man is reading books on democracy, government, etc. The working man is greatly interested in the greatest economic problems. The great intelligence of the working man is above the intelligence of the average church audience. I am not speaking of Norwich; I am speaking of New York.

Art galleries are responsible for social unrest. The working man is coming to appreciate art. He is coming to appreciate the fine things of life, the beautiful things of life. He goes home to his family; he wants his wife to have better clothes; his children to have better opportunities than he has. This means higher wages and he becomes restless.

Universities and schools and big business are responsible for social unrest. If I wanted to start a revolution in this country, I wouldn't hire a communist. I would hire an advertising man. The man who writes the advertising copy tells the people to get rid of their old flivver and buy the new. He tells the women to buy the gowns that are going to be in style next season.

The church is responsible for social unrest. The church tells us to be content. But there is a difference between being content and being satisfied. The missionaries in Japan, China and other countries have been responsible for revolutions in those countries. The teachings of the missionaries naturally make the people dissatisfied with their surroundings.

Social unrest and radicalism is the legitimate outcome of the finest idealism the world has ever known. You can't stop social unrest by force. You only increase it. You have to use your brains. Develop confidence in the working man. Men hate each other because they don't know each other. It is better to understand a man than it is to silence him.

The only way to break down this social unrest is on the basis of absolute justice.

Mr. Steizle was heartily applauded at the close of his talk. Preceding the lecture there was a brief business meeting of the club. A very complete report of the last meeting, written by Mrs. F. W. Lester was read by Mrs. F. S. Buanell, the new secretary. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Bunnell also read the financial statement. The report of the membership chairman, Miss Louise Howe, was read by Mrs. Bunnell. It showed that the club has 583 members at present.

CONVICTED ON TWO LIQUOR VIOLATION COUNTS

Alfrido Zuccerelli, of Fire street, Waterford, was fined $200 on a charge of possessing liquor making apparatus; he was fined $200 and given a 30 days suspended jail sentence on a charge of possessing liquor for sale and exchange; and charges of making intoxicating liquor and reputation of selling were nolled, in Waterford town court Monday evening, when Zuccerelli was presented before Judge Fred N. Dimmock. Unable to pay his fine, Zuccerelli was remanded to the New London county jail, pending the posting of a $1000 bond, an appeal having been taken to the court of common pleas by his counsel, Attorneys Foster K. Sistare and Perry J. Hollandersky.

Defense attorneys presented an unrecording lease in court, the lease granting to Donato Muschietto, of New York, the use of all the woodlot and 10 acres of tillable land on the Zuccerelli farm which is a large tract, familiarly known as the Jacobson farm. It was in the woodland that the still was found. The stove for the still, however, was found in the farmhouse cellar, together with a considerable quantity of liquor. A garage also yielded much liquor.

The defense contended that the real brains of the liquor makers were not before the judge, that Zuccerelli was taking a licking for some one else.

Prosecutor J. James Floyd stated that he had recommended leniency because he believed that the "big fellow" had not come to the front. He said, however, that the still had been in operation for some time, and that hunters, and residents of the section could testify to that fact.

$55,000 CASH SETTLEMENT PLUS $60,000 TRUST FUND

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The suit of Bertrand A. Ray against the Hartford Bank and Trust company, executors of the will of the late Frederick L. Ray, of East Haddam, ended today with announcement that counsel for both sides had reached a satisfactory agreement on the terms of the will left by Frederick L. Ray. Bertrand A. Ray, who was to receive $50,000 in trust, will now receive a cash settlement of $55,000 in addition to the sum held in trust.

The original will, with the exception of the $55,000 settlement, is to stand and all its provisions including one for the erection of a trade school at East Haddam with the balance of the $650,000 left by Ray are to be carried out.

Bertrand A. Ray in contesting the terms of his brother's will had claimed that it was not the product of a sound mind, that his father's estate in which he should have shared was never accounted for, and that the same situation existed in regard to the estate left by his mother.

Following the announcement of the settlement, Judge Allyn L. Brown dismissed the jury which has been listening to the testimony in the case for the past week.

LIFE SAVING CERTIFICATE FOR FISHERS ISLAND SCOUT

Senior Patrol Leader Albert McKown of the Fishers Island troop of Boy Scouts, has been awarded the national court of honor certificate for life saving in reward for his heroic action in saving Irving Fralick from drowning at the Fishers Island wharf on June 24 last. McKnown will be awarded the certificate, handsomely framed, by Dr. George J. Fisher, deputy chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America on Thursday night at the Mohican hotel when the New London scout campaign for funds will start with a dinner at which Dr. Fisher is the principal speaker.

The award to Patrol Leader McKown is the fourth of its kind to be received by New London council scouts in the past few years, the others being received by Scouts Edward Wi-Rice of Montville, Thomas Gardner of troop 2, and Thomas Nagle of troop 10. All but Nagle received their awards for making rescues from drowning. Nagle, by prompt application of a tourniquet to the arm of a girl who had fallen from a tree and cut her arm badly, saved the girl from bleeding to death pending the arrival of a doctor.

McKown's rescue was effected while several men stood about helpless or unaware of the seriousness of Fralick's plight as he struggled near the wharf to keep afloat after going under twice. When taken from the water by McKown he was unconscious and remained so for several hours before revived.

After effecting the rescue from the water, McKown applied artificial respiration pending the arrival of a physician and by his prompt action is believed to have sustained the life of Fralick. Witnesses of the rescue immediately took steps to have the youth's action publicly recognized with consequence of sworn statements being forwarded from the New London scout office to the national court of honor for consideration.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING

In Waterford town court Monday evening before Judge Fred N. Dimmock, William A. Dawson, Willimantic florist, was found not guilty of reckless driving. Dawson was arrested on the night of Nov. 6, after his automobile had been in collision at Quaker Hill, with an automobile driven by William Crandall, of New London. In the machine were Irwin R. Graves and Joseph DeCosta, together with the driver, Mr. Crandall. The Crandall automobile turned over but the occupants were unhurt.

Crandall, Graves and DeCosta testified that Dawson had passed a bus, both the bus and Dawson's car being Norwich bound, and that Dawson crowded the Crandall car from the road.

Dawson contended that there was the odor of liquor on Crandall. Joseph Kerr, Quaker Hill resident, also testified to smelling liquor. Dawson contended that the Crandall automobile was coming too fast.

State Policeman John H. Smith, the arresting officer, said that he examined Crandall, Graves and DeCosta about an hour after the accident and that he smelled no liquor, and saw no evidence of drinking. The three young men were not at the accident scene when the officer arrived but Mr. Dawson was there.

AUTOMOBILE UPSETS IN COLLISION ON BROADWAY

Four motor vehicles approaching the intersection of Broadway and Broad street from different directions at the same time about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning resulted in a collision between two of them, an Essex coach owned by James L. Case and driven by Joseph S. Adams of 7 Boswell avenue and a Chevrolet touring car driven by its owner, Attorney Telley E. Babcock, of 210 McKinley avenue.

Mr. Babcock was driving down Broadway and Mr. Adams was driving through Broad street from McKinley avenue to cross Broadway and proceed up the hill on Broad street. According to a description of the way the accident happened, Mr. Babcock observed a milk truck coming down Broad street on his right as he approached the corner. The truck stopped to let him go by and he proceeded to do so when the Adams car appeared in front of him crossing the intersection. At the same time there was another machine coming up Broadway to the Broad street corner. In spite of attempts to avoid a collision the Babcock car hit the Adams machine in the right rear mudguard turning the machine around and causing it to fall on its side.

Mr. Adams crawled out of the topmost window of the coach and was uninjured, but the coach sustained damage estimated at $150. The Babcock machine was undamaged.

NEW LONDON CITY OFFICIALS GIVE TESTIMONY

Three former mayors of New London two at present members of the city council, were placed on the witness stand Tuesday as defense witnesses, in the defendant's fight against the city's charge of encroachment into Pequot avenue by The Pequot Point Beach Co., and Councilor Lucius E. Whiton. They were former Mayors Waldo E. Clarke, John F. Murray and Malcolm M. Scott.

Atty. Frank L. McGuire, counsel for the beach company, and Judges C. B. Waller and Arthur B. Calkins, counsel for Mr. Whiton, were waging a stiff battle throughout attempting to prove that the city abandoned the 13.8 feet of land in Pequot avenue, which it maintains belongs to the public highway there. Director of Law Troland objected from time to time and succeeded in excluding at least one answer and one map from the evidence when trial of the case was continued in the superior court Tuesday at New London.

AGGIES WILL UNCORK VARIETY OF NEW PLAYS AGAINST B. C. SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 15—A long and hard fought scrimmage between the varsity and freshmen Connecticut Aggie elevens marked today's drill as the Nutmeggers prepare for their final game of the season with Boston college at Hartford Saturday.

The frosh, using B. C. formations and play could make but little headway against the varsity players, who put up a strong defense, especially against running plays. The yearlings did complete a few forward passes and defense against this weapon will receive considerable attention in the few remaining days of practice.

Coach Sumner Dole used a first string lineup today consisting of Kennedy and Schildgren, ends; Wilson and Hawkins, tackles; Colacurcio and Huffkess, guards; Sayers, center; Laforceaux, quarterback; Captain Eddy and Williams, halfbacks; and Ryan, fullback. This is the probable starting lineup for the B. C. game, though Ryan may get first call at quarter, Knaut or Flydal at fullback, and Gilman in one of the guard positions. The latter, who weighs only 141 lbs., is probably the lightest guard in New England college football. Barring possible injuries in practice this week, Connecticut expects to have available their strongest possible lineup for B. C.

Although Dole is saying nothing on the kind of attack he expects to use next Saturday, those who are familiar with his methods have every reason to believe the Aggies will stage their most flashy offense of the season against the B. C. Eagles. Three weeks ago, when Dole first took over the direction of the varsity squad following his long confinement in the hospital, he immediately gave his men a number of plays which to date have not been used in either the Lowell Textile, Trinity or Rhode Island games. All of which indicates he has been saving them for the Boston college outfit, and they will be brought to light next Saturday.

Dole has always been a strong believer in a liberal use of the forward pass, and the aerial game has always been an important offensive weapon of the Dole-coached machines at Storrs. All indications point to the uncovering of set of tricky pass plays and runs when the Aggies stack up against B. C. on Clarkin field.

The Eagles will introduce to Connecticut grid fans a new form of the huddle when their offense gets under way Saturday. The Hub outfit, coached by Leo Daly who formerly starred for B. C., first lines up in the orthodox formation and waits the word from the quarterback to go into the huddle. When the word is given, the linemen "about-face" and march as a unit to the four backfield men. Instead of clustering about in a close group as do most elevens using the huddle, the Eagles keep to their stiff military formation, though heads are inclined as far as possible toward center to catch the play. Then on another signal, the line makes another "about-face," stages another military-like march to the line of scrimmage, and the play is ready to go. As used by the B. C. eleven, the huddle is slow in comparison to its use by other teams.

Boston sports writers report that Coach Daly of B. C. regards the Aggie game lightly and merely as a "stepping stone" to the objective contest of the year with Holy Cross the following Saturday. The Eagles will enter the game top-heavy favorites to be sure, yet Connecticut's 1927 eleven is not to be regarded lightly, especially at this stage of the season when the unexpected defeat at the hands of Rhode Island has aroused the team. Over-confidence on the part of the Boston eleven will not helping in making a "stepping stone" of the Aggies.

"FLYING PARSON" ASKS FOR REINSTATEMENT IN A. A. U.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Anxious to remove a four-year old blot from his record and be in position to reenter amateur foot-racing competition if he desired, Harold C. Cutbill, 30-year old Boston clergyman, has applied to the amateur athletic union for reinstatement.

Famous several years ago as the "Flying Parson" and one of the east's leading middle distance runners, Cutbill had his amateur career cut short in 1923 when he was suspended on charges of receiving excessive traveling expenses. He now asks that these charges be reconsidered and his record cleared.

Cutbill's application is one of fifteen received by the National Registration committee of the A. A. U., for action at the annual convention at Cincinnati, Nov. 20-22.

Although out of competition for four years, Cutbill, if reinstated, may try racing again. He is said to have kept himself in condition and to be able still to reel off a half mile in around two minutes. He was a member of the Boston A. A. when disbarred and probably would represent that club again if restored to good standing.

SEVERAL MENTIONED TO MANAGE CLEVELAND CLUB

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Baseball row tonight settled upon the names of two men to succeed Jack McAllister as manager of the Cleveland Indians, whose control came into the hands of Alva Bradley, of Cleveland, and associated financiers, today. They were Art Fletcher, coach of the New York Yankees, and Bucky Harris, manager of the Washington Senators.

Baseball "sharps" boasting "inside" knowledge, declared that the owners had no intention of signing Tris Speaker for the pilot seat and that Billy Evans, veteran umpire, had "turned the job down cold." Naming of Speaker might be considered an affront to the new American league president, E. S. Barnard, they said, for the former Cleveland executive declared last winter in favor of "Spoke" finishing his major league career with some other club following the scandal charges, of which he was exonerated.

Mention of Bucky Harris' name came through reports of the Washington pilot's dissatisfaction with the home town fans' attitude toward him during the past season. His contract with Washington is said to have another year to run.

NEW RULING GOVERNING POSTPONED GAMES MADE

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—(AP)—The rejuvenated advisory council of major league baseball ended a two day session tonight, handing out copies of 18 proposed amendments to big league procedure. At least one of the minutes-trative end of the game and none to the playing rules.

"Since the supply of skilled players is not equal to the demand," begins one amendment, "no club shall have under its control, in any manner, more than 40 players at any time."

The draft problem was referred to in several of the new rules, which will be submitted to the joint session of the major leagues, December 16, at New York. None of the amendments mentioning the draft indicated [illegible] change in the selection process by which the majors lay claim to minor league players in those circuits which permit the drafting.

Accompanying the copies of the rules, Commissioner Landis issued the formal call for the joint meeting in New York next month.

A rule for handling postponed or tied games to prevent the transfer of those contests such as the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh case last summer, was agreed upon by the council. Postponed contests must be played on the grounds where they were originally scheduled, before any more regularly scheduled games can be played.

The dates assigned for the regularly scheduled games shall be moved forward. The season schedule, may, however, arrange explicitly in advance for playing off postponements in the visiting team's park.

The rule forbidding umpires to accept payment for reporting promising players to any club in his league received the addition today of a penalty of at least $500, aimed at either the umpire or the club.

Most of the rules related to players' contracts, and the amendments generally were in protection of the contract rights.

HARVARD EXPECTED TO USE THE LATERAL PASS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov 15.—(AP)—The lateral pass formed the basis for an extensive drill on new plays by the Harvard football team today which started its preparation for the game with Yale here on Saturday. Frank (Shag) Shaughnessy, coach at McGill university, Montreal, joined the coaching staff today and devoted his efforts to a more varied use of lateral passes. He will remain with the team all week.

Coach Arnold Horween put the squad through a kicking and passing drill and ended the session by having every member of the team try kicking goals from placement. In this department Jo Potter, fullback, excelled, kicking ten placements in succession. He will probably draw the assignment on Saturday, in addition to doing the punting.

Virtually the entire team is in good condition and every member of the squad is expected to be available for the final game. Dudley Bell, linesman, was back in a suit today, and also Joe Crosby, star back, although the latter is suffering from a minor infection on his nose. Dave Cuppaccia, halfback, was suffering from bruises sustained in the Brown game and was not active in the practice.

Coach Horween announced that he will depart from a long established custom by not taking the team out of town Friday night. After the final practice Friday afternoon, the squad will have supper at the Oakly Country club, Belmont, and will then return to Cambridge.

FRENCH SENATE VOTES $80,000 FOR OLYMPICS

PARIS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Farm Relief versus Athletics held the attention of almost all of today's sitting of the French senate, and when the day was over, the senate had voted a subsidy of 2,000,000 francs, or about $80,000, insuring participation of France in the Olympics at Amsterdam in 1928.

Senator Joseph Faure, from Correze department, spare, lean and in spite of his sixty years looking the perfect type of retired athlete, stubbornly opposed the Olympic subsidy, while former Premier Herriot, now minister of education, round and rather fat, championed the track, field and other athletic pursuits.

Senator Faure insisted that 500,000 francs was sufficient for the Olympic preparations of French athletes, and that the other million and a half francs should be diverted to agriculture.

"Your athletes can achieve perfect training without cost to the country's treasury by spending a few months on French farms next spring," said the senator.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Most of the climax classics of the college gridiron season will have a distinct if not decisive bearing on the outcome of the various sectional championship races.

At least seven of the big football dramas, east, west and south, will involve these title aspirations as well as all the old wealth of color, tradition and excitement that goes along with them.

Harvard hasn't had a great deal to cheer about this year but somewhat downtrodden Crimson eleven may give Yale at last an uneasy moment or two this Saturday before the Elis can lay final claim to eastern championship honors. The Big Blue machine that downed Princeton, Army and Dartmouth will be a top-heavy favorite to smash the Johnnies but past performances usually may be tossed into the discard for this ancient feud. The picture is still vivid of a fighting Harvard team of a few years ago that puts its back to the wall and held one of Yale's mightiest post-war aways to a scoreless tie.

On the same gridiron where Red Grange completed his college career in gaudy fashion, Illinois, with another grange in the lineup, will seek Ohio State's scalp and the western conference title in another colorful affair. Should the Illinois lose, the dispute between Michigan and Minnesota on the same day over the "Little Brown Jug" will have an important bearing of the final "Big Ten" standing.

Thanksgiving day will see the Texas Aggies and Texas university locking horns, with the former's hopes of a Southwestern conference championship at stake. Two days later Colorado college and Colorado Aggies, now in the van of the Rocky Mountain title chase, will have their own little argument.

The southern conference and Pacific Coast conference title races will not reach a climax until December 3, a week or so after the curtain has fallen on most of the other acts. Southern California, sharing the present leadership in the far west with Stanford, encounters Washington on that date. It may prove a tough spot for the U. S. C. Trojans, who must jump to Chicago for a tussle with Notre Dame before taking on Washington.

The southern finale will be between those ancient foes, University of Georgia and Georgia Tech. Neither has been beaten in the conference so far but Tech has been tied by Vanderbilt. Georgia has only Alabama to dispose of to enter the Tech joust with a clean slate and Alabama this season hasn't been anyway near the high mark it reached through three previous seasons.

Gene Tunney may or may not be able to fulfill his desire to have two or three title fights next year but he is firm in his conviction that he needs additional activity to safeguard his crown, according to Jimmy Bronson, Gene's chief second in both battles with Dempsey.

"Tunney knows as well as I do that he wasn't up to the fighting mark against Dempsey at Chicago that he was at Philadelphia," said Bronson. "And the reason was simply that he had been out of the ring a year. I don't know whether it can be done but it will be the best thing in the world for Tunney if he gets an extra fight or two to keep him in trim next season."

FAST BOUTS SLATED FOR PASTIME AMATEURS

On Friday evening at Olympic hall the second of the amateur boxing shows under the auspices of the Pastime A. C., will be held. Matchmakers Jim Quinn and Jack Burns have been scouring the eastern part of the state for amateur boxers and have rounded up 20 boxers who will make up the ten fast bouts slated for the evening's entertainment.

As usual the surrounding cities of New London, Westerly, Danielson and Putnam will be represented on the card but there will be a new locality there Friday night, Colchester. Colchester, although not noted for its boxers is sending down a team of four amateurs who have the goods. These boys while not strictly representatives of Colchester are in that town at the present time working on the reservoir construction. These boys hail from various parts of the state and, according to Joe Williams, who is in close touch with them, are mighty fast and hard-hitting youngsters.

The Pastime A. G. promises the fans an even better show than the one two weeks ago which is saying considerable as everyone was mighty well pleased with the last one. The ladies will be admitted free as usual.

HORWEEN REAPPOINTED HARVARD COACH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Arnold Horween has agreed to return to Cambridge in 1928 for another year as head coach of Harvard football, William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, announced tonight.

A statement from the director's office said that the announcement of Horween's reappointment held "special gratification" for Director Bingham, inasmuch as this confidence in his original choice of Horween as head coach two years ago has not been shaken by the gridiron reverses the Crimson has encountered under the Horween regime.

In response to recent newspaper speculation as to Horween's status after the present season, Director Bingham asserted his confidence in the Crimson coach, adding his belief that it took a matter of years for a football coach to become established.

Horween's record at Cambridge has not been particularly impressive. In his first year, last year, his teams lost five of the eight games, including the Yale encounter, winning from William and Mary, Dartmouth and Tufts, bowing to Geneva, Holy Cross, Princeton, Brown, and Yale.

This year, faced with a much stiffer schedule, but equipped with generally better material, he has won four games and lost three, while his team still has one of the best Yale teams in history to encounter in the season's climax at Cambridge next Saturday. Vermont, Holy Cross, Indiana and Brown are numbered among this fall's victories, while Purdue, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania buried the Crimson under top-heavy scores.

Horween came to Cambridge two years ago as successor to Bob Fisher, resigned, in a general H. A. A. shake-up that put William J. Bingham into the then newly created post of director of athletics. A former Harvard captain and considered one of the greatest defense fullbacks the Crimson ever boasted, he took over the coaching reins at Harvard fresh from several years' experience with the more open style of play as practiced by the Chicago semi-professional team with which he had been associated.

When not in Cambridge for spring and fall practice, Horween is engaged in the leather business in Chicago with his father and his brother, Ralph, another famous Harvard football player.

CLEVELAND INDIANS ARE NOW SOLELY OWNED BY CLEVELAND INTERESTS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 15—(AP)—Alva Bradley announced late today he had received a long distance telephone call from E. S. Barnard, president of the American Baseball league, at Chicago, saying he had secured from W. J. Garvey, Chicago, 156 shares of stock in the Cleveland baseball club, thus closing the deal whereby Cleveland financiers secure full control of the local American league club.

The Cleveland financiers who secure control of the club are Mr. Bradley, his brother Charles, John Sherwin, Sr., and Percy Morgan.

The deal has been hanging fire for several months, the Cleveland men being unable to purchase the shares from Garvey at a price which they thought reasonable.

Barnard, who was president of the Cleveland club until named head of the American league succeeding Ban Johnson, acted as agent for the Cleveland men.

The new owners will take immediate possession of the club. They announced they would launch plans for rehabilitating the roster at once.

Sale of the Cleveland Indians ends the ownership of the Dunn family that started with purchase of the team by the late James C. Dunn from Charles Somers in 1916.

The price of the franchise, while not made public, was reported to have been around $850,000.

Alva Bradley is slated to become president of the club.

The new owners announced tonight their first move would be to secure a new manager to succeed Jack McAllister.

Tris Speaker has been mentioned for the job, but Bradley intimated that the man he has in mind has never been connected with the club.

Well informed circles here had it that Eddie Collins, now of the Philadelphia Athletics and former manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Arthur Fletcher, former shortstop for the New York Giants in their pennant winning days of 1911, 1912 and 1913 and later manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, were being considered for the managership.

DOHERTY, HOLY CROSS STAR, SIGNED BY RED SOX

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Edward Doherty, star catcher of the Holy Cross baseball team, has been signed by the Red Sox, Secretary Jim Price of the Boston American League club announced tonight. He will report to the club when it starts south for its training tour in the spring.

At the same time the Red Sox secretary announced the release of Marty Karow, third baseman, who came to Boston from Ohio State in the middle of last season. Karow has been appointed coach of baseball, football and basketball at the University of Texas.

TEAM THAT BEAT TIGER WILL OPPOSE HARVARD

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The same eleven that took the Princeton Tigers into camp last Saturday will face John Harvard at Cambridge on Saturday of this week. Webster, Hoben and Garvey, although still in the infirmary are much improved and are expected to be back in the Yale lineup tomorrow.

The varsity without its three injured members went through a signal drill and dummy scrimmage today. Billhardt worked out at quarter, Hammersley was in Garvey's position at left halfback, and Norman Hall, who played part of the Princeton game at left guard, was shifted to the right side of the line at Webster's place.

No scrimmage or heavy work will be engaged in for the balance of the week, the coaches announced at the beginning of practice. Tomorrow and Thursday the team will go through signal drills and engage in more dummy scrimmaging and on Friday, will leave for Cambridge.

Almost every one on the team suffered a bruise of some sort in the Princeton game and "Tad" Jones and his assistants declared today that the men needed rest more than hard scrimmaging, in preparation for Harvard.

There were three changes in the second team today. Ryan, a tackle and center earlier this season was sent to guard, Louis Ladd went to tackle and West returned to his position at left and replacing Oldt who was tried out there yesterday. Kell returned to the second team today. He was in Webster's place at guard yesterday but was displaced by Norman Hall today.

Hoben and Garvey were in condition to leave the infirmary today but remained overnight on advice of the team trainers who decided to give them an extra day of rest rather than to hurry their cure. Webster's leg and hip injuries which were at first thought to be serious enough to keep him out of the Harvard game have responded well to treatment and the trainers said today that he will undoubtedly be in fit condition to take the field against John Harvard.

Walker to Fight Berlenbach

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middle weight champion and Paul Berlenbach, former holder of the 175-pound title will meet in a ten round decision contest here November 25, the eve of the California Notre Dame intersectional clash.

The bout will be under the auspices of Promoter James C. Mullen in the coliseum. They will fight at catch weights, without a title at stake. Walker plans to weigh about 164 pounds and Berlenbach 175.

BRISTOL ENDEES AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

The Plainfield Town team takes on the Bristol Endees this evening at the Plainfield community court in the second game of the local basketball season. The Plainfield five got away to a good start in last week's game against the New Bedford Eagles and go into the second game of the season as the favorites over the Bristol club. Plainfield with its new lineup should sweep the state this season and although the Bristol club presents what is a strong team should win by a small margin.

Bristol comes to Plainfield with a strong forward line in Malcolm and Feldman, with Donohue at center. This trio has been playing basketball on various teams throughout the state for the past 12 years and have been with the Bristol team during the past four. This forward line is as strong as any in the state and is backed up by Dutch Leonard and Manning in the guard positions. Dutch although getting well on in basketball years is still putting up a strong defensive game while Manning is a strong running mate. The reserve force which the Endees carry in Waterman, Crowley and Zetarski is on a par with the regulars.

Plainfield in tonight's game will start Mondi Normandin and Schofield, former Conn. Aggie star, at the forward berths with Stevens in the pivot position. Madden and Whitey Bernot will take care of the guarding. Bernot is playing his first season in a Plainfield uniform but comes here with a nationwide reputation. Dissinger, Norris and Nichols will be held in reserve.

The preliminary game will be between the Plainfield Buddies and a team from New London and will start at 8 o'clock. Archie Mueller will referee both games.

The Plainfield team will play a return engagement with the Bristol team at Bristol on Saturday evening.

MANDELL GETS VERDICT OVER JIMMY MYERS

COLISEUM, Chicago, Nov. 15—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, won the verdict over Jimmy (Spud) Myers, rugged Pocatello, Idaho, lightweight in a ten round battle at the coliseum tonight.

Mandell fought his third major engagement since winning the title here fourteen months ago, and he looked every inch a champion. The titleholder won on every one of the ten rounds, outsvatting the Idaho battler, outboxing him and out tricking him. Mandell's dazzling speed enabled him to step around Myers while he kept shooting perpetual left hands to face and short right crosses to the jaw.

Mandell dropped a short right cross to the chin that knocked Myers spinning into the ropes. Myers was bleeding from his peeled nose and a bleeding left ear at the finish but he never backed up during the ten rounds, always piling in with his arms swinging for the body.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Songs of the Pine Wood

There was a little seaside breeze who loved to run and play;
He'd rush along the yellow sands and fly across the bay;
And when the frothy billows began to sway and roll,
He'd find the highest seaweed rock and rest his little soul.

But other breezes came along, ten thousand and a score;
They pushed and jostled all the day
upon the sea and shore.
And little breeze got weary of rough and noisy play;
Said he, "I'll find another home—it's time I went away."

He spread his wings of silver light and flew across the foam,
And in a wood of scented pines he found his little home.
So, if you stop and listen, you'll hear the little breeze
As he sings his sweet sea-music in the branches of the trees.

From The Little White Gate, by Florence Hoatson.

Your Leadership

The world has need of leadership—
your world of school today:
Fine souls and valiant spirits that will point a goodly way!
Big hearts to lead the smaller and high aims to raise the frail.
And wills of brave nobility to fight where sins assail!

The world has need of leadership—
this big, big world of school,
And you, who lead the weaker folk, be careful how you rule.
To many you're a hero—you must prove one if you can.
And let your passing through your world be worthy of a man!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

One of our common well-known birds is the kingbird. It is really a spectacular bird, very much in evidence from the time it arrives in the spring until it leaves in the fall. It is a good-sized bird, eight and one-half inches long, which, because of its white underparts, makes a splendid showing. Then, too, it is always more or less noisy, chattering away during much of the day.

The kingbird is, on the whole, a popular bird for the reason that it does those things that appeal to the hero worship side of our natures. It is at their nesting-time that kingbirds are most likely to war on larger birds, since they do all in their power to protect their nests, eggs, and young. When nesting, they not only drive off hawks and crows, but some other birds and small animals as well. And they also do a good deal of scolding and chattering if a person gets near the nest. Still they are far from as aggressive as some other birds when a human being visits them.

When driving off hawks or crows the kingbirds generally attack by twos. One bird flies above the intruder, then dives for its back. Meanwhile the other bird flies to a point of vantage and in turn makes a darting attack, perhaps alighting on the enemy's back if it gets a good chance, where it is able to strike it at will. The hawk or crow naturally defends itself as best it can and usually loses no time in making for other parts, only when well satisfied that they have taught the enemy a thing or two and that it is far enough off to suit them.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

My Trip

Dear Uncle Jed; I am going to tell you about my trip around Connecticut. One day my uncle came to visit us and asked my father if I could accompany my cousins and uncle as they were going to take a trip around Connecticut and perhaps go to some interesting places in Massachusetts.

My uncle said that we would make New Haven that day and spend our time by looking around the interesting things we would see.

He let us out at his home on Blake street. My cousins then took me around to show me Yale university and some statues of Nathan Hale. When we were tired we went to a moving picture. Lon Chaney was in the picture and he made everybody laugh when he made faces at the lady in front of him. After the picture ended we went back and had supper then went to bed.

The next morning we went through all the other cities and arrived in Hartford about 8 o'clock in the evening. After supper we went to see the Traveler's building, the highest building in Hartford. Eleven o'clock the next morning we went to the capitol.

The capitol is situated in Bushnell park. There is a fountain near the entrance and streams of water gush out. A statue of a deer is on top and there are Indian faces around the middle. Beautiful red, green and yellow shrubs are planted around the fountain. At one side of the park there are shrubs planted in the shape of letters reading "Bushnell Park, State Capital, Hartford, Connecticut." There is a playground with swings, little arbors and sand boxes for the children. In the capitol there is a reproduction of the capitol itself. There is Lafayette's bedstead and statue, also a statue of Nathan Hale made of bronze. There were many more interesting things. When we left Hartford, we started north and west to Boston. We stopped near the common to eat the lunch we had brought with us. We visited some interesting spots then we started on our way home. It took us exactly four weeks from the time we started till we came back.

If you ever visit these places you will see the things I wrote about.

Poland.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes and hope to win a prize.

This country lies chiefly in the valley of Vistula and much trade is carried on up and down the river.

The most important occupation is farming. The farmers raise large crops of grain and vegetables. Sugar beets are also grown. Many farmers own cattle, horses and sheep.

Valuable minerals are found in Poland as coal, iron, salt, and zinc. In the district of Ladz and Warsaw there are large mills and factories where sugar is refined, leather tanned, cotton and woolen cloth made.

Not far from the city of Krakow there are some wonderful salt mines, where men have worked for six hundred years. They have carved long galleries, large rooms full of statues made of salt.

Danzig is at the mouth of the river. It is the seaport through which Poland must ship goods out of the country.

Warsaw is the capital and largest city of Poland.

In the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: A few weeks ago I went into our forest with my father to see some things which cannot be seen around the house.

My father went into the forest with horses and wagon to haul some of the wood which was to be used for winter.

I wanted to see the mink which I saw the last time. I noticed it perched on a log and when it saw me it jumped from the rock into the water and swam under three rocks. Its color was brown as you can most generally find brown minks.

When the wood was loaded I went back home with my father.

As my father was driving out of the pathway I noticed eight deer feeding with our cows in our hayfield.

We stopped to watch them awhile and then my father said, "Sh-sh." The deer scampered over the fence as fast as their legs could carry them.

It was great fun to watch the deer jump over the fence, one in back of another.

When I returned home I told my mother about the deer and mink I had seen.

What the Moon Saw.

Uncle Jed: It was a clear night in October. The moon sent its soft mellow glow on earth. On a dark avenue there was a large willow tree. Around the tree was a group of brown clad figures. They were dancing and dancing around and around. In back of the willow tree there was a large mansion. In the mansion lights were going from one window to the other. In a short time the front door opened. Out came a white figure. It came down the steps and joined the others dancing. They danced and danced and danced till it was time for the moon to go to bed. It rolled away laughing merrily at the fun it had had.

Has Eleven Ducks

Dear Uncle Jed: Since I have never written to you I would like to tell you about my eleven ducks. They are very happy and polite. They eat cracked corn, scratch feed and cornmeal. Seven of them lay an egg each day. They swim and dive under the water. I like my ducks because they do what I tell them.

All of my ducks live in a shed. They eat and sleep in the shed. They have a washtub to swim in.

They sometimes go in the woods. One day three of my ducks went into the woods and they went all around the woods and came home. When they came home I was so glad that they did not get caught by a fox. My ducks know many tricks.

They make tumble tricks and play hide-and-seek. They go in the scratch-feed and eat until they are full. Then they go out doors and stand until their food digests. They are very fond of me and quack behind my back. I am going to buy more ducks and raise a great flock.

My Cats

Dear Uncle Jed: Since I have never written to you I would like to tell you about my four cats. My cats are very happy catching mice. They drink a great deal of milk and eat a great deal of bread, cake and cheese. My cats are well fed.

One of my cats is reddish brown, the other two are black and white. The fourth one is orange, black and white. My cats wash their faces before they drink their milk or eat their bread. The cats' names are: Muff, Cuff, Buff, and Tuff. When my cats see or hear a squirrel they run after it but cannot catch it. Sometimes they catch a rabbit and bring it home to their young ones. When I go to the corn field the cats follow me, and when they see rats or mice they will run and catch them. My cats run away from home but they always come back again.

A Halloween Party

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my friend invited me to a Halloween party which she was giving. I asked my mother if I could go. She replied in the affirmative. All who were invited hardly could wait to go. Finally the day arrived. Katherine, who also was invited, went with me. We were the first guests to arrive. Before long the others arrived. As the party was not already, we played some games outside. After playing a little while we were called into the house. The house, decorated for the occasion, was very beautiful. To begin, Florence spoke a short poem, Welcome.

After that the piano was played by Ethel, Florence's sister. Next a game was played to see who, when blinded, could pin a paper number in the Jack o'lantern's left eye. This prize was won by Katherine.

The next game was "placing the donkey's tail," for which I received first prize.

How Coffee Grows

Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell you about coffee. Coffee is a plant of South America. It is not a native plant because it was brought there from Abyssinia.

Coffee needs a very hot climate. It grows from six to ten feet in height. When the berries are dark red it is time to be picked. Each bean contains two halves. When they are picked or shaken off, they are put in the sun to dry. Then they are put between rollers and then are sieved through according to size.

United States uses more coffee than any country in the world.

Took Cat Home

Dear Uncle Jed: I think you would be interested in my cat. The name of my black and white cat is Spot. I found her in school when my teacher told us to practise our Hallowe'en play. I saw that she was hungry, so I took her home and gave her bread, milk and meat.

She always comes to me when I call her. Now when I go into the barn, she follows me. She likes to catch mice. Spot washes her face with her front paw. She always comes in the barn and jumps on the cow. My cat, Spot, can do something that I never saw any other cat do. She walks across a long beam in our barn. Did you ever see any cat do this kind of a trick?

KATIE POTER, Age 11.

The Origin of Hallowe'en

Dear Uncle Jed: Many years ago, in Europe, there used to be a funny people who kept a big bon-fire burning all the year around, from one year's end to another. It was a part of their religion. They kept it burning on a big altar in honor of the sun god and they thought that it protected them from evil spirits. Then once a year and the last day of October, they held a great festival and the priest, dressed in long white robes, performed the sacred rite of putting out the old fire and building a new one. When the fire was put out all the witches and goblins and evils came from their hiding places and held a regular jubilee. After a while this got to be such a habit with them that they still keep it up every year.

VERNICA KUBAT, Age 13.

Autumn

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell you about Autumn.

Autumn is the third season of the year, and lasts four months. The leaves change their color of green, taking deep shades of brown, yellow and bright scarlet. The days gradually shorten: the nights are long. The birds take their departure to warmer climates. The sky becomes cloudy and all nature soon is covered with a blanket of frost.

My Pony

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story. I used to live on a big farm way out in the country. My father kept chickens, horses, rabbits, turkeys, etc. One day my brother fell sick. My mother told me to telephone to the doctor. "Mother why can't I take my pony and get him?" "Very well then you may go," said mother. I went to the stable where my pony was eating oats. I put the bridle and saddle on her and off wen went. I reached the doctor's house and told him of my sick brother. He came at once to the house. A few weeks later my brother was feeding the animals with me. I was very sorry when I had to leave that little farm out in the country.

A Visit at Lebanon

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will like my story. It is about my trip to Lebanon. One afternoon my teacher said she would like to take us to Lebanon. Many of my playmates went with me. We started out at one o'clock and we were there at two o'clock. Our teacher took us to Jonathan Trumbull's tomb, the war office, Gov. Buckingham's birthplace, Jonathan Trumbull's birthplace and William Williams birthplace. That was the man who signed the Declaration of Independence. We also visited Lebanon Green, and the deserter's grave. We enjoed this very much. After a while we sat in the auto to rest. Soon it was dark and we started for home. When we got home it was six o'clock.

Building a House

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you how a friend and I built a house. My friend's name was David. One day I wanted to build a house in my yard so we went down to the Thermos factory to get some boxes. We found two big ones and brought them home on my cart. Then we broke two boards out of one box for a door and nailed both of them together. We divided it into two rooms. Then we found some tar paper and put it on the roof. We had some fun in it for two or three weeks. Then we broke it up and burned it.

Making Candy

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my father brought us two cook books. He gave one to my sister and to me. While we were glancing over the books we saw a recipe for making fudge. We decided to make it.

We put in all the ingredients except the vanilla and put it to boil. While it was boiling my father told us to water the cows. We hurried back as soon as possible for we thought it would burn. When we came back it was over-boiled. That was one thing that would bring us ill luck. We took it off the stove and added the vanilla and put it to cool. We left it on the table on the porch. When it was nearly cool we cut it into squares.

About five minutes later we found out that the cat ate one pan of candy. The other pan we ate.

About Asia

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for a long time. Now I will write you the story of Asia.

Asia is bounded on the north by the Arctic ocean, on the south by the Indian ocean, on the east by the Atlantic ocean and on the west by the Mediterranean and Red sea.

Asia is as large as North and South America combined and has nearly five times as many people.

The central part of Asia has the highest land on earth. Here the Himalaya mountains rise. The main highland of Asia lies east and west.

Asia stretches from the north frigid zone almost to the equator. The greater part of Asia is in the north temperate zone.

The three great peninsulas of Asia are Arabia, India and Indo-China. They are in the southern part and they reach into the torrid zone.

The chief rivers of Asia are Ove, Yenisei and Lena in the northern part, and the Yantze and Ganges in the southern part.

The people of Asia believe the Ganges river is sacred. They even throw their babies in this river to feed the crocodiles. In places where there are no crocodiles people go bathing themselves.

Asia has many plants. Among these are the fig, date, coffee, tea, cotton, cinamon, rice, tobacco, cloves and wheat.

There are three races of people in Asia. They are the brown, yellow and white.

DORA STANKOVICH, Age 11.

October Days

Dear Uncle Jed: The coming of October days means the end of summer, and the beginning of fall. The sun does not ascend so high in the heaven, the days grow shorter and the nights grow longer.

The grass turns brown and withers. The leaves turn brown also and fall. The sap goes down into the roots of the trees to be stored away for next year. All the flowers fade and die.

Children put aside their games and bring out their skates. They put on warm clothes and gather around the fire at night. They like October because it ripens the fruit, nuts, and brings Hallowe'en.

How I Spent Saturday

Dear Uncle Jed: The title of my story is how I spent Saturday.

On Saturday we have no school, and I am always up early to enjoy the day. After breakfast, last Saturday, I took my mother's orders to the grocer before lunch. I had used my roller skates.

At one o'clock Florence and I started to the matinee. Many of our friends were there. We were home again at half-past four.

We dined at five o'clock. After dinner I went on an errand for my mother. After my return I read a few chapters of "Nan Sherwood's Winter Holiday." I was then tired and went to bed.

STOCK MARKET LACKED UNIFORMITY, WITH PRICES GENERALLY HIGHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Price movements in today's stock market again lacked uniformity, but the day's advance appeared to rest on the side of those working for higher prices. Bullish sentiment was created by a series of favorable trade developments including the international agreement to restrict sugar production. The improved demand for steel since the higher prices were announced a few days ago, the exported betterment in the oil and copper industries and the large export balance shown in the October foreign trade statement.

The unusually heavy mid-month turnover of funds in connection with the retirement of the second liberty bonds was conducted without any disturbance to the money market. Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent all day, and there was no change in time money and commercial paper rates. With about $300,000,000 in new money released for new investment as a result of the U. S. Treasury financing, hopes were held out in Wall street that a substantial part of this sum would find its way into the securities markets.

The average of 20 leading industrials, which is now within 1 1-4 points of the year's high, showed no change on the day although a wide assortment of specialties showed gains ranging from 1 to 6 points. More than a score issues including such recent favorites as American Can, Radio Corporation, Midland Steel Products Preferred, Munsingwear and Freeport Texas touched new 1927 highs.

The growing belief that restrictive production measures in the oil industry are becoming effective was reflected in the brisk demand for those issues. Atlantic Refining was run up 4 points and Marland, Panhandle, Royal Dutch, Shell Transport, and a few others advanced a point or more. Special strength of Lago, which crossed 37 to a new high, was influenced by reports that daily production would be increased to 80,000 barrels on the completion of shallow river tankers to bring fuel from the Maracaibo basin to seaboard.

The agreement of European and Cuban Sugar producers to limit production for one year brought fresh buying into the sugar shares. American Sugar Refining advanced more than 4 points and several others a point or more. U. S. Steel common closed 1-8 lower at 142 5-8 after having touched 144, Gulf States Steel recorded an extreme gain of 5 points, part of which was lost.

Speculative activity in the motors centered in a few low priced issues which have been mentioned in connection with reports of a new merger by William C. Durant. Hupp was the most active, touching a new high at 16 1-8 on a turnover of 150,000 shares, one block of 30,000 changing hands at 15. Peerless advanced more than a point, but Moon, Packard and Chandler, other members of the proposed combination, showed small recessions. General Motors closed about a point higher at 138 1-8 after having sold about a point above that figure. Publication of alleged photographs of the new Ford model failed to have any market effect, most traders showing a disposition to await further details before attempting to discount the probable market effects.

In the rail group, Northern Pacific and Atchison preferred touched new peaks, but Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and some of the other recent favorites were conspicuously heavy.

The leading commodity markets were firm. Wheat advanced a cent or more a bushel on unfavorable crop reports from the Argentine. Cotton closed 75 cents to $1 a bale higher, with the market apparently deadlocked for the time being. Coffee recovered practically all of yesterday's loss.

Establishment of new high levels by Chinese, Belgian and Norwegian currencies and another new low by Japanese yen, were the contrasting features of the mixed foreign exchange market. Sterling was slightly easier, demand bills being quoted around $4.87.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our dear husband and father
GEORGE BERTRAM RIGBY
Who departed this life, November 16, 1926.

In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same;
We often sit and think of you
And wish you here again.
We think of you in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear we shed
When others are asleep.

Signed, MRS. EVA RIGBY
AND CHILDREN

FIFTH WARD PARK SITE, NEW LONDON, OFFERED BY MRS. ALFRED MITCHELL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—There is a probability that New London will have another park, for Mrs. Alfred Mitchell has offered to the city several acres of land in the fifth ward for park purposes. Whether the gift will be accepted is not known, but it is believed that it will be, for city officials have long considered acquiring the site now offered, as an additional park for the diversion of adults and children. A special meeting of the city council, acting as a committee in executive session, will be held at the municipal building tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock when the proposition of Mrs. Mitchell will be fully discussed and it is probable that the council will take action on the matter at the weekly meeting of that body next Monday night. Members of the council would not discuss the matter for publication today. Mrs. Mitchell is absent from New London, being at Miami, Fla., and Donald Mitchell, caretaker of the estate, is also out of the city. The land is located about midway between Thames street and Gardner avenue and comprises several acres from Montauk avenue to Ocean avenue. It is of woodland for there are hundreds of trees upon it, the trees not being large, could be removed if desired without great expense. The land is ideally situated for park purposes.

STOLE MACHINE IN MONTVILLE —FOLEY RE-ARRESTED IN R. I.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—John Foley, 29, of Cleveland, Ohio, was arrested yesterday when he stepped from the Rhode Island State prison, at Cranston, where he had completed a sentence for burglary, by Sergeant Henry Albright, Groton state police. He is charged with the theft of an automobile owned by Clarence Eggleston, of Montville. Foley was brought before Justice of the Peace J. Y. Miller at Montville last night when he demurred to the complaint. He was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. Foley's bond was fixed at $3000 and being unable to obtain a surety, he was taken to jail to await trial. Charles Holden, also of Cleveland, now serving a sentence in the Rhode Island jail for his part in the burglary, will be arrested for the theft of the auto when his term expires. Foley and Holden stole an automobile in East Hampton last May and drove it to Jewett City, where they stripped it and sold the accessories. They then stole another car and drove to Uncasville where the car was also relieved of its equipment, which was sold. Foley and Holden then stole Eggleston's machine and drove to Rhode Island. They were detained in Washington, in that state, when they acted suspiciously and when it was revealed that eight stores had been burglarized during the night the automobile was searched and much of the loot was found in it. It was also discovered that Foley and Holden were wanted by the Connecticut State police for the theft of the Eggleston auto.

New London is to have another apartment house. One has been started on the erection of a $50,000 brick structure on West street for Victor Castaldi. The building will be three stories and work on its construction will be rushed so that occupancy can be assumed in the spring. The three story brick building, 98 Green street, owned by Joseph Birenbaum, which has been converted into apartments at an immense cost after nearly a year's work, is practically ready for occupancy.

George H. Darling, of Colchester, will be in Waterford town court Monday next, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in failing to grant right of way. He was arrested this morning by State Police Officer Peter Busch, Groton barracks. Darling was driving a truck in a westerly direction on the Center Groton road and sideswiped a coupe driven by Martin Morris, Gales Ferry. The body of the coupe was demolished, but Morris escaped injury. The state police barracks were notified of the accident. Officer Busch, who investigated, determined that Darling was responsible for the accident and arrested him.

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15—Charles Baruhyte, 64, engineer on the New London line steamer Richard Peck, was painfully injured today when he was struck by an automobile. He is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where he will remain a day or two providing internal injuries do not develop. Baruhyte was on Main street, near the corner of State when he decided to cross to the opposite side. He stepped from the curb and did not observe the automobile driven by Wilbur G. Handiside, of Wyoming, N. Y., as it rounded the curve. The auto was not traveling at a high rate of speed, but before Handiside could bring it to a stop Baruhyte was struck and knocked down. Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy assisted Baruhyte into Handiside's automobile and had the injured man taken to the hospital, where it was found that the injuries consisted of lacerations and scratches.

MAYOR NAMES COMMITTEE TO WORK FOR OCEAN LINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—Mayor James A. May has appointed a citizens' committee of 35 for the purpose of cooperating with other agencies in an endeavor to secure the location of the four-day line at this port. The committee is composed of the following citizens: Mayor May, Lucius E. Whiton, John F. Murray, L. Streeter, Robert B. Chappell, Malcolm M. Scott, Cornelius D. Twomey, William A. Holt, Thomas E. Troland, Benjamin T. Marshall, Charles R. Stoll, Sidney H. Brown, Waldo E. Clarke, Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, Theodore Bodenwein, Ludwig Mann, P. LeRoy Harwood, Cornelius J. Donohue, Frederick W. Mercer, Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons, Samuel T. Adams, Rev. Chester H. Howe, William T. Conner, Morris Lubchansky, Prentice M. Hatch, John J. McGarry, Jr., Nathan Belcher, Alfred Colt, Joseph Perrone, William T. May, Silas Maxson, Jr., John H. Curley, Ezekiel Spits, Benjamin H. Lee.

Mrs. Florence T. Velino, 31, wife of Ercole Velino, of Groton, died last night at Norwich state hospital, after a brief illness with pneumonia. Besides her husband and several children, Mrs. Velino is survived by her parents, who reside on Starr Hill, Groton.

SOLD THAT GOOD GAS OPENLY—KEPT A BOOZE SPEAK-EASY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—Samuel Lubchansky, alias Samuel Lewis, 217 Main street, employed as manager of the Texas Oil company's filling station, 285 Broad street, was arrested tonight, charged with violation of the liquor law. Besides selling gasoline to auto drivers, he was doing business for himself by selling liquor to such customers as he was acquainted with, thereby drawing a double revenue, that of manager for the gasoline company and proprietor of a "saloon." Lubchansky is being held in bail of $1000 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The arrest of Lubchansky resulted from his own carelessness. The police were not seeking him on a liquor charge, but came upon the violation unwittingly. About 7:30 o'clock the police were informed that a fellow was on Connecticut avenue accosting girls and that his intentions, apparently, were to assault them for he suddenly appeared from secluded places. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan were dispatched to Connecticut avenue in a private auto and scrutinized pedestrians, for the officers had a fair description of the man. They toured, not only Connecticut avenue, but the several intersecting streets, but no trace of the man was found. The officers then went to Connecticut avenue and Broad street and were about to abandon the search. When the officers stopped at a gasoline station, Lewis was not to be seen and as they walked to the station, Sergeant Smith and Officer Sheehan were attracted to a window, which was almost practically closed to vision from the outside. However, there was just enough space between the curtain and the window to permit the officers to obtain a good view of what was transpiring inside. They observed an improvised drinking room with Lubchansky dispensing liquor to two customers. Sergeant Smith and Officer Sheehan entered the garage and easily gained admission to the room, which Lubchansky had fitted up for the conduct of the side-business. There were several gallon containers in which was home-made whiskey and gin and these were seized.

GALES FERRY MAN LIT UP, CAR CRASHES INTO POLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5.—Charles Daniels, Gales Ferry, drove his automobile to New London today and he was most unwise inasmuch as he partook of liquor after he arrived here with the result that he became drunk and attempted to drive his car. He wrecked the auto and was arrested, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He will be in the police court tomorrow and in default of bail of $100, he was made a prisoner at police headquarters for the night. Daniels started for his home about 7 o'clock and driving through Main street, he successfully made the turn at Crystal avenue. Continuing through Crystal avenue to Winthrop street, Daniels was not so fortunate, for in rounding the curve where it leads to the approach to the Thames river highway bridge, he lost control of the steering wheel. The car went to one side of the street, crashed against a telephone pole, and was put out of commission. State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, Groton barracks, happened along about the same time and ascertaining the facts of the wrecking of the auto and observing Daniels' conditions, arrested him.

James Steele of Noank; Mrs. Irving Collins and infant son, of Groton; Henry Morris, 31 Franklin street; Mrs. Mortimer Nott, Groton and Mrs. William Loughlin and infant daughter, 905 Bank street, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah C. Allen, widow of Billings Allen, of Center Groton, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Ledyard Center Congregational church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. G. F. Goodenough. Burial was in Ledyard Center cemetery.

Two sailors were arrested this afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. They were locked up at police headquarters and will be in the police court tomorrow. The sailors went to Jefferson avenue and there engaged in a fight. Residents notified the police of the battle in progress and the officers went there and ended further hostilities.

The police of Westerly notified the New London police that an automobile had been stolen in the former city this evening and as the car was headed towards New London, requested that a lookout be maintained for it. The auto is a Hudson coach 1925 model and carries Rhode Island registration—9524. It is painted green and has black trimmings.

Elizabeth H. C. Armstrong has sold a building lot on Pequot avenue to Jessica N., Nellie B., and Grace Rippen.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Faustin Vigiao, 105 Howard street.

The New London police have another brute to run down for it developed today that a fellow of the combination type of Peeping Tom and hugger is operating in the northwest section of the city. The section where the peeper and hugger has been carrying on his tactics is not far from where a Connecticut avenue young woman was seized a week ago. It became known today that the fellow climbed to the roof of a veranda of a Lincoln avenue house a few nights ago, but was heard by an occupant of the house, who went to the window. As the shadow appeared close to the curtain the fellow leaped to the ground and made his escape in the darkness, the jump being made before it could be determined how the man was dressed. He appeared, however, to be young and of good height. A night or two later another Lincoln avenue young woman was about to enter her home when she was suddenly seized by a man and was being roughly handled when he became scared and releasing his hold ran away. The young lady was unable to furnish any description other than that he was tall.

The police believed that the arrest of Joseph Amorel and Edward McCue, the latter of 112 Howard street, the former charged with attempted rape and the latter with indecent assault, both now awaiting trial in the superior court and Thomas McCue, 37 Mahan street, awaiting trial in the police court for attempted rape, they had arrested the gang that has been terrorizing young women for several weeks, but with the appearance of the Lincoln avenue annoyer of women, there is evidently another whose apprehension is much to be desired.

This is an interesting story and includes in the cast such notable stars as Ray Johnson, Gordon Carveath, Juanita Gillebrand and Frank Fields. Palace Theatre.

In "A Gentleman of Paris," the Paramount picture which comes to the Palace theatre, tomorrow, Adolphe Menjou is said to have one of the greatest roles of his career from the dual standpoint of entertainment and artistic expression.

The story starts with the valet of Menjou discovering that his master is carrying on an affair with his, the valet's wife. Of course Adolphe is not aware that his latest flame is the wife of his valet and the valet cannot challenge his master to a dual while being employed as a servant. The solution is reached by the valet's resignation, but Ménjou insists on a week's notice and from then on has the experience of having a wronged husband shave him. However, this does not disturb our hero as his mind is too engrossed with his coming marriage to another young lady. There is much that cannot be described in this daring picture and yet the story unfolds in such a manner as to offend no one.

The vaudeville program in conjunction with 'A Gentleman of Paris' brings to the stage five good acts, headed by the musical comedy presentation, "High Prince." Other acts on the bill include Jimmy Rooney Revue, a fast moving dance offering, Werner and Mary, in nonsensical moments, Jerry Dean, the song bird, and Perez and Marguerite, the jugglers supreme.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Exhibition of Ship Models

On Friday, Nov. 18 from 3 to 5.30 and 8 to 10 o'clock the art department of the Woman's City club, in collaboration with Slater museum, opens an exhibition of ship models in the Converse art gallery to which the public are cordially invited. The collection, much of it loaned by Norwich people, includes also pictures of certain old ships and captains and articles of scrimshaw work made on board by sailors. The exhibition, which will be continued on Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5.30, is given without charge and is in addition to the announced year's programme offered by this department.

Broadway Theatre.

The Garden of Allah, Rex Ingram's master production, with Alice Terry and Ivan Pertrovich, will be shown for the last times at the Broadway theatre tonight.

The large audiences which have attended the Broadway during the showings of the Garden of Allah, have been loud in their praises of this, the greatest of all desert romances. The special musical accompaniment rendered by Robert Coberg and his Broadway concert orchestra deserves special mention. The music blends perfectly with the photo-play at all times and the weird Arabian melodies add greatly to the realism of the presentation.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the Broadway will present a double feature bill. Dorothy Gish and Antonio Moreno will be seen in Madame Pompadour, the story of the love life of a famous French beauty who once ruled the thrones of Europe. The second feature, Isle of Forgotten Women, presents Conway Tearle and Dorothy Sebastian, in a mighty drama of tense love and pitiless hate—in a land where women love and men forget.

Breed Theatre

First National's gay college story, "The Drop Kick," starring Richard Barthelmess, comes to the Breed theatre tomorrow for the last half of this week.

This story, dealing with college life today, is full of college boys and girls, college scenes, football games, fraternity dances and all the college atmosphere of today.

An exceptional cast supports Richard Barthelmess, including Barbara Kent in the feminine lead, Dorothy Revier, Alberta Vaughn, Eugene Strong, Brooks Benedict, James Bradbury, Jr., Hedda Hopper, George Pearce, Mayme Kelso and others. Dick Hyland, famous Stanford football star, acted as technical advisor.

A Mother, Her Child, and One Dime!

Easy to Keep the System Sweet at Any Age

Many people who never have to take a laxative eat a candy cascaret now and then. Do you know why?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarize the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every drugstore has for 10c and 25c.

"HOW INNOCENT a drug can be—and how helpful! I'm done with purgatives that leave even a child's system so acid you can detect it in the perspiration. A little cascara is a perfect sweetener, and my boy and I both love the candy—

GREENEVILLE

ADDRESSED CONGREGATION ON TOPIC, TURNING ASIDE

Rev. Harry P. Brothwell, newly installed pastor, gave an interesting sermon Sunday morning at the Third Baptist church, addressing the congregation for the first time. He took for his topic, Turning Aside, and spoke as follows:

"The years of the life of Moses are divided into three forties. The first 40 years of his life was spent as a prince in Pharaoh's court, the second 40 as a shepherd in Midian, the third as a king in ruling and leading his people. It was 80 years after Jochebed had hidden her baby among the bulrushes in his little ark, that the incident which forms the subject of our meditation, took place. During that long time nothing of any apparent value had transpired in the history of the Israelitish nation. The children of Israel still sighed and groaned by reason of their bondage. Once, half way through that period of time this young Hebrew had broken loose upon an Egyptian and slain him for oppressing one of his countrymen. He had sought to bring his people deliverance but it was a rash act and brought about a crisis in his history. He fled to Midian and became a shepherd. As we read the story of these years in the light of divine over-ruling we see how wonderfully Moses was being prepared for his future work. Our circumstances in life are not a series of isolated events but in every believer's life especially, through the vista of the years there is discernible a plan being wrought out by God. Forty years in Pharaoh's court had given Moses an education which made him an accomplished man. Then he was sent to school in the wilderness where he learned lessons it was impossible for him to learn in the palace of an Egyptian monarch. He learned meekness and endurance as well as courage and dependance on God, all necessary qualifications in a leader. Eighty years was allowed to elapse before he received any intimation of God's plan. Up until this present time you may not have seen any particular purpose of God for your life but that is no guarantee that you are not living a purposeful life. I was very much impressed when I read about a certain German schoolmaster who lived a number of years ago. He was both a scholar and a philosopher and considered by many to be eccentric in his manner. He had never found to appear before his class of boys with his head covered. When questioned why he had so much reverence and respect for his scholars he replied, "Who knows what immense possibilities are wrapped up in these lads? Some may become learned doctors, some mighty legislators, some eminent sages, yea, some may be princes of the great German empire." Far seeing teacher that, and it does seem that his faith in his boys was in a measure rewarded, for he was the teacher of Martin Luther, that solitary monk who shook Europe.

Tending sheep was a poor employment for a man of such parts as Moses but he is satisfied with it, and thus earns his promotion. The call of God comes to men and women employed in the common round, the daily task. Let us not despise our vocations. We must not think it strange if we have to spend a long season in obscurity. Let us be content and live for God where he has placed us and when we are fully qualified he will put us in the place which we are best suited to fill. It was whilst going on with his ordinary work that the mystic wonder of the burning bush took place, this extraordinary manifestation of the divine presence and glory; the bush burning but not consuming. This sight aroused his curiosity and he said, "I will turn aside and see." This is the most significant part of the story. It was this act on the part of Moses that resulted in his hearing the divine voice and receiving his call and commission. Men are asking for signs today before they will believe. They refuse to turn aside and ascertain the wondrous happenings that are taking place all around them. They, as it were, are shutting their eyes to the realities of life. The remarkable thing about the burning bush was its premanency; though burning it was not consumed. A book is considered popular if the circulation reaches half a million copies for one or two years. Here is a book which this year has reached a circulation of 30 million copies and this is the more remarkable when we consider the attacks which have been made upon it. How few, comparatively speaking, turn aside to inquire into the contents of the book and try to find out the reason for its world wide popularity and universal acceptance. It is continuing to shine as a lamp unto our feet with ever increasing splendour, this wonderful Bible of ours. There are Christians who are letting their lights shine in their homes and places of business; a permanent witness sto the presence of the Lord in human hearts, yet the masses do not turn aside to see why these men and women live such different lives. It is this turning away from ourselves and our occupations to look into the wonders of God's dealings with us that results in revelation and salvation. Men are blind to the great sights of God everywhere about them.

When the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him. There must be created in the heart a desire to know, a desire to see, a seeking after light. When this is the heart's condition then revelation is granted but not until then. The church which Christ founded 2,000 years ago has been sending out her arms of light down through the centuries. Turn aside and look into this matter that has to do with your soul's salvation. The difference between faith and fear is that difference of putting our buts before or after God. God commands but there are difficulties. That is paralysis. There are difficulties but God commands. That is power. Turn aside from that experience which is proving to be so unsatisfactory to you. Look into the realities of God revealed in His word. Testified by His church. Give time and thought to the "Things that Matter Most," and you shall receive light.

ADMITS AUTOMOBILE THEFT, BOUND OVER FOR TRIAL

After pleading guilty to a charge of theft of an automobile, Charles Goyette, 21, of Norwich avenue, presented in the city court Tuesday morning, was bound over to the criminal superior court. He furnished bonds of $1,000. Goyette admitted that he took a Chevrolet closed car owned by Edward Novack from Broadway hill on the evening of October 26th. Mr. Novack was attending night school at the Broadway school at the time the machine was taken.

Goyette drove the automobile to Versailles where he stripped off the front tires. Two days later the abandoned machine was found by a Versailles resident.

Goyette owns a Chevrolet and claims that several weeks ago someone stole a pair of tires from him in Meriden where he was working. He decided to make good his loss at someone else's expense. After taking the tires off Novack's machine he drove back to Meriden. Before he left the stolen machine at Versailles he accidentally dropped his registration card. While investigating the theft the police found the registration and traced Goyette to Meriden. Lieut. Streaman and State Policeman S. Sisson of the Groton barracks made the arrest.

OLD BUILDING SOLD TO CLEAR SCHOOL SITE

Through the board of selectmen the town of Norwich has sold to John F. Casey of Norwich Town, the one and a half story frame dwelling at No. 8 Pleasant street, Norwich Town, and known as the Carter dwelling. The purchase price was $25. Mr. Casey submitted the only bid for the house. The building was sold separately from the land on which it stands with the provisions that the house be moved on or before November 25th.

The building, said to be in a dilapidated condition, was sold in order that the land may be graded for a front lawn for the new Samuel Huntington school.

The report of expenditures made in the purchase of the site for the schoolhouse shows that Richard J. and Rose M. Carter were paid $4,250 for the house and lot when the property was acquired for part of the school site.

HEBRON RESIDENT HAS REACHED 101ST BIRTHDAY

George Matson Buck of Hebron celebrated his 101st birthday Tuesday at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Arthur Buell, in Unionville. Born in Portland, November 15, 1826, the son of Erastus and Eunice (Wells) Buck, he resided in Hebron from the time he was a boy of 10 until recently, when he moved to Unionville.

He received a common school education and later taught school for a number of years. At the age of 25, he married Miss Emily Phelps of Hebron.

Five children were born to them, George S. Buck of Highland Park, Mrs. Frank Ball of Buckland, Mrs. Arthur Buell of Unionville, Clinton Buck of Buckingham and Warren Buck of Gilead. He has twenty-five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. Buck spends the winters in Unionville, but returns to his farm in Hebron in the summer to help with the haying.

He owes his longevity to temperate habits, having never used liquor or tobacco, and to outdoor life and hard work.

Dr. S. E. Phelps of Farmington, who examined Mr. Buck last year pronounced him in excellent condition and gave the opinion that he ought to live at least ten years longer.

Mr. Buck is a democrat and has always voted that ticket. He went to Hebron at the last presidential election and cast his vote for John W. Davis.

TAFTVILLE

The members of the Thimble club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Adam Leupold at her home in Blissville. After the sewing hour there was a social period, a delicious repast being served by the hostess.

Among the lost letters advertised this week at the local postoffice because of the addressees being unknown to the postmaster are Mrs. Ledair, F. Lamont, Mr. Otterman, Sam Augustin and Marie Lemoine.

The annual roll call of the Taftville chapter, American Red Cross was held Tuesday afternoon and evening, and was very successful. A committee of young ladies took subscriptions throughout the afternoon and in the evening, the suburbs and outlying districts were canvassed by others. Valuable assistance was rendered by the village boys, most of them members of the Boy Scout troops, and a decorated truck which drove through the streets of the town also served to draw the attention of the population to the annual campaign for memberships.

The Taftville Mulespinners union held its regular monthly business meeting Monday evening at Parish hall.

Several local people motored to Ledyard Center to attend a supper Tuesday evening.

The brush bordering the Old Canterbury turnpike from Taftville into Norwich Town is being cleared away by men employed by the state highway department who are also touching up the sides of the road and improving it generally.

John Helm of Blissville who injured his hand some time ago is still unable to return to his duties.

Reports have reached the village that Philip Chicoine and one of his sons who were residents of Taftville at one time when Mr. Chicoine was employed in the carpenter shop of the Ponemah Mills, were drowned during the recent floods in Vermont. The Chicoine family left here to occupy a farm that they had purchased in that state.

One of the finest red foxes seen here in some time fell before the gun of Ovila Paul while he was hunting Monday near the Barber farm at Plain Hill. The animal has a pelt of rich red color, and is on exhibition in the window of the store of George W. Waller on North Second avenue.

Miss Mary Martin who has been ill at her home on South Fourth avenue is able to return to her work.

John Pora of South B street has resigned his position with the spinning department of the local mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Twarog and family of 14 Norwich avenue have moved to their new home which they recently had built on the road leading from the state road in Blissville to Bundy hill.

NORWICH TOWN

O Come, Let Us Worship, from Psalms 95:6, was the theme of Rev. Albert E. Whitten's sermon, at Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The Methodist C. E. service was omitted Sunday evening. At 7 o'clock, however, a good congregation assembled to hear Miss Hope, a deaconness from Fall River, who talked chiefly to the children. Miss Hope, an ordained minister, who is superintendent of Fall River Children's home, spoke on "Multiplication by Division." She told much about the home which she represented and of what the children are doing in a spiritual, educational, domestic and personal way. At this home daily there is morning family worship when each one prays and testifies. Thanksgiving Day, all will unite in a special service, including worship and prayer with recitations by the children of scripture passages from the Psalms. These children who are from three years of age up, remain at this home until eligible to go to work. Those who are privileged to do so are always glad to return for a visit, the relations existing at all times are so very pleasant. The home is supported by the Methodist denomination.

After addressing the children, Rev. Miss Hope, offered several practical suggestions to the older members of the congregation, as to how they could help with contributions, etc.

The meeting opened with a devotional period conducted by Rev. Albert E. Whitten, who also pronounced the benediction at the close.

Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, Norwich, was in charge of the children's service on Sunday afternoon, at Norwich Town M. E. church. He gave a very instructive lesson to sixteen children and several adults, prefaced by the story of Samuel. The lesson was outlined under four headings: Names of God, where is god?, what does He do? and how does He speak to us?

For a summary Mr. Dunbar led the children to see that Father was the desired name of God. He is everywhere, He loves us, He gives us everything, but His greatest gift was His Son, and He speaks to children through their ministers, teachers and playmates. Under the third heading, special stress was laid on John 3:16. Then through a pleasing childish story, the children were led to see that if God gives so much to them, they should be willing to give to those around them.

The sermon at Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, was on "Whither the Tribes Go Up." The scripture reference was in the 122nd Psalm.

Richard Heller and Thomas Champlin were leaders of the junior Christian Endeavor service Sunday afternoon, when for the lesson members visited in imagination, some of the cities where St. Paul preached.

The Young People's C. E. society in the evening was in charge of one of the groups, led by Arthur Avery, "The Good and the Bad in Newspapers and Magazines," was the topic assigned. Scripture references Matthew 4:23-25; Jude 10-13.

The Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer Thursday evening, will be held at the home of George F. Hyde, Washington St. The eighth chapter of Romans will be the lesson for study.

The Every Member canvass of the First Congregational church was held Sunday afternoon. The church calendars sent out by the Men's Forum during September, 1926, were collected at this time. Members had previously been requested to contribute a dime for each holiday beginning with Labor day of that year. Including the per son's birthday there were in all for one year fifteen special days, thus averaging $1.50 per calendar. The solicitors, men and women members of this parish, in groups of two or more, visited the many homes located in various localities a large number being required to cover the work.

Week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, Huntington Green included the former's nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Senter and the latter's father, Mr. Fox, who is unusually active at 83, all of Natick, Mass.

Sunday afternoon, another nephew of Mr. Weaver, William Clark, with Mrs. Clark of South Coventry were callers there.

George Heleman of Stamford, was a visitor over the week end with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Kasper Hoppman, at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Goff of Julian Terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brosofske, their daughters, Misses Evelyn and Cathleen, also their youngest son George, motored to Hartford on the recent holiday.

Mrs. Edward Duerr, was the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley and the latter's mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainard of Mystic, motoring to Norwich Town Sunday afternoon to call on Mrs. Brainard's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb.

GOV. J. S. FISHER OF PENN. RECEIVED LABOR LEADERS

Delegation Headed by William Green, President of A. F. of L., Laid Before the Governor the Grievances of 85,000 Soft Coal Miners—The Governor Promised an Intensive Investigation of the Conditions in Western Pennsylvania.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 16—(AP)—Intensified investigation of conditions in the western Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields was promised today by Governor John S. Fisher after a three-hour conference with labor leaders who outlined conditions the union alleges exist in that section where 85,000 miners are on strike.

The delegation which was headed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, left with the governor a voluminous report of conditions and affidavits of persons alleged to have been brutally treated by coal and iron police employed, with the approval of the state, by various coal operating companies.

The contents of the report and the exact matters discussed at the conference were not disclosed after the meeting, evidently by agreement, but Governor Fisher let it be known that he would seek further information on the situation in the soft coal fields. He termed his proposed investigation an "intensification of present inquiries."

The delegation which called at the capitol came direct from Pittsburgh where officers of the federation and heads of national and international unions voted unanimously to demand from the governor an immediate investigation of alleged misuse of power by agencies of the state government against the 85,000 striking miners. It was also voted to lay the national angles of the situation before President Coolidge.

PICKETS IN COLORADO WERE HALTED BY MACHINE GUNS

DENVER, Col., Nov. 16—(AP)—Led by a woman, clad in red and waving a large American flag, I. W. W. pickets in Colorado's coal strike area today advanced on the Columbine mine in the northern fields only to be stopped by the frowning muzzles of machine guns, pointed menacingly at them through strands of barbed wire entanglements.

Guards manning the guns stood at their positions. They had orders to shoot any trespassers.

Overhead, in warlike aspect, droned the motors of four national guard airplanes, circling and swooping over the territory. About 100 men, following the Amazon leader, halted at the gates to the mine and did not try to force an entrance.

Operators of the Columbine had notified the governor yesterday that pickets would be shot if they set foot on the property, which is the only coal mine still operating in the northern fields.

The mine had been picketed by the strikers for several weeks prior to today. The manifestation at the Columbine mine was the only unusual incident reported from all the coal mining areas today.

In the southern Colorado fields, where the strike movement was centered at its start, operators claimed the walkout was slowly losing ground.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company today had fifty-six more men at work in the Walsenburg and Trinidad districts than they had on Tuesday. Sixty-five men at the Jewel mine near Aguilar last night voted to return to work and four other mines in that section resumed operations today. A demonstration by I. W. W. organizers at the Pike View mine north of Colorado Springs failed as all miners appeared for work today.

ROOSEVELT TAKES ANOTHER FLING AT GOV. AL SMITH

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Col. Theodore Roosevelt issued a statement today asserting that recent developments show that "the courts and Governor Smith between them are all that is necessary for the republicans to prove their case," the statement follows:

"In my speeches during the last campaign I spoke of the great commercialized illegal gambling in Albany county, in which engaged leaders of the democratic organization of that county.

"Yesterday, on November 15, the Boston courts vindicated my charges by convicting 27 men. All of them pleaded guilty. In others words, the case against them was either so strong that they felt it was idle to contend, or they feared that a federal prosecution might expose trails which would incriminate others of the democratic organization.

"This condition was common knowledge for years, but continued unchecked by the county officials. The offenders remained unpunished until the federal authorities were able to intervene.

"The courts have now proved the charge I made.

"In my speech of October 31, I said that I prophesied that in his (Governor Smith's) message this year there will be a recommendation for new taxes.

"Today, in an inspired interview from Albany, Governor Smith is credited with indicating that the state budget will call for an increase of $20,000,000 this year, and that he will recommend a gasoline tax. Governor Smith himself has proved another of my charges against him.

"The courts and Governor Smith between them are all that is necessary for the republicans to prove their case."

RESCUED AFTER THREE DAYS OF EXPOSURE

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Nov. 16—(AP)—Suffering from the effects of exposure after three stormy days and nights spent in a disabled motorboat on Lake St. Clair, two men from Mt. Clemens, Mich., were rescued today.

Harry Carney and Louis Gruet had set out from Mt. Clemens in an open launch Sunday morning to search for another boat. Their engine failed and efforts to paddle the craft with boards torn from the floor were useless against the wind and waves which carried them far out into the lake.

During the nights they tore up life preservers which they soaked in gasoline and burned as flares to attract aid.

When sighted today by three duck hunters they had removed their outer garments and were waving them as distress signals.

DENIES MEX. FINANCED REVOLT IN NICARAGUA

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16—(AP)—Unnamed interests are attempting by the publication of false documents in some United States newspapers to foment ill feeling, not only between Mexico and the United States, but between all of the Latin-American countries and the North American republic, in the opinion of Dr. Pedro J. Zepeda, representative in Mexico of the Nicaraguan liberal party.

Dr. Zepeda denied categorically that he or any other of the Nicaraguan liberals headed by Juan B. Sacasa ever received any money directly or indirectly from President Calles or the Mexican government as alleged by the Hearst newspapers. He declared that any documents intended to prove this were pure fabrications.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE WAS RECORDED AT GEORGETOWN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—A "very severe" earthquake was recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown university today at 4:29 p. m. Director Tondorf said the disturbance lasted more than 2 1-2 hours, that its greatest intensity was reached at 5:21 p. m., and that its location was probably more than 8,000 miles from Washing-

FINANCIAL REVERSES THE CAUSE OF SUICIDE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—(AP)—After leaving a note to his wife in which he blamed his act to despondency caused by financial reverses, Harry G. Steinbrenner, vice-president of the Brown Industrial Hoist company, Cleveland, Ohio, shot and killed himself at the exclusive South Shore Country club last night.

His body was not discovered until today when a maid found it in a room at the club. He had shot himself once through the body.

While Steinbrenner's note failed to mention any other motives for his suicide, the police believe his action was precipitated by his indictment at Cleveland on a federal charge of using the mails to defraud. Steinbrenner and five others, connected with the Steinbrenner Rubber Manufacturing company, were indicted following failure of the concern and an estimated loss of $1,000,000 to investors. He was arrested at Spokane, Wash., and indicted at Cleveland in 1925, being released on bonds.

TWO WIVES CLAIMED THE BODY OF MEISTERKNECHT

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 16—(AP)—The funeral of Herbert O. Meisterknecht, inventor and engineer, was interrupted for more than an hour today while lawyers for Mrs. Susan Meisterknecht, first wife of the victim, and Mrs. Sophie Meisterknecht, known as his second wife, wrangled over the possession of the body.

Although both women claimed the body, Mrs. Sophie Meisterknecht had been granted it. The grave had been dug and the funeral services were about to start, when papers were served on A. M. Postern, the undertaker, by counsel of the first wife Mrs. Meisterknecht, forbidding him to bury Meisterknecht.

The papers served on Postern declared that Mrs. Susan Meisterknecht was the one and legal wife of the slain man, and by virtue of that declaration she claimed his body.

JARDINE HAS NO NEW PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Secretary Jardine declared today he had submitted no new farm relief plan to the president. At the same time, he declared he had no new plan in mind and still favors remedial legislation along the lines suggested by him from time to time for the last two years.

So far as he knows, Mr. Jardine said, no definite plan for farm relief has been submitted to the president, at least if it has, it has not been referred to the department of agriculture for an opinion.

Various bureaus of his department, the secretary added, have been furnishing to members of congress information on various subjects in connection with proposals for farm relief to be submitted at the coming session.

Mellon, financier, and Alan Magee Scaife, scion of a wealthy Pittsburgh family. The bride is the niece of Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, who came here from Washington for the event.

A temporary structure, for the entertainment of guests, erected on the Mellon property in exclusive outer Fifth avenue, cost $100,000. Here, the bride's reception and the wedding supper for 1,000 guests, were held.

ATHENS, Nov. 16—(AP)—The Athenian population, which normally flocks in droves to the movies, is in a filmless state—and doesn't like it. All the motion picture theatres have been closed here because the proprietors complain that the state is impoverishing them by a tax of 65 per cent on their gross receipts.

A DAY OF EXCITEMENT IN THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Disorders that broke out twice during debates in the house of commons over unemployment and the coal situation, climaxed a day of excitement in parliament today.

While Viscount Cecil in the house of lords was accusing the government of responsibility for the break of last summer's Geneva armament conference, the house reached such a pitch of excitement over a vote of censure of the government on other questions that the speaker was compelled to adjourn the session twice.

The disorders arose after former Premier Ramsay Macdonald had called for a vote of censure of the Baldwin government for its neglect of the unemployment situation. He called for an immediate remedy for the increasing distress and unemployment among the coal miners.

Sir Philip Cunliffe Lister, president of the board of trade, attempted to answer for the government, but the laborites contended that the premier, Baldwin himself, was the only person qualified to answer. When they shouted "Baldwin," "the prime minister," "we want a responsible minister," so loudly that Cunliffe Lister was unable to begin his speech, the speaker of the house adjourned the session until six o'clock.

When the session reopened again at six the scenes were repeated, government and opposition ranks facing one another angrily. As the prime minister started to leave the house he was bombarded with derisive remarks from the laborites. The cry "Coward! Coward!" was frequently heard.

SWINDLE BASED ON THE SMUGGLING OF FAKE OPIUM

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Nov. 16—(AP)—The story of a crafty swindle, based on the smuggling of fake opium, was brought to light today at the hearing of Oscar Mouvet, Paris hotel man and father of the late Maurice, dancer, and John Wilson, who gave his home as Colebrook, N. H. The two men had been held in $10,000 bail each on charges of smuggling opium, but they were released today when it was found that the substances thought to be opium was merely a compound of figs, rhubarb and chemical coloring with no trace of the drug. Immediately after their release they were rearrested by immigration authorities and are being held pending deportation proceedings.

Mouvet and Wilson disclosed that they had made a deal with a wealthy Canadian under which they would smuggle opium from Persia to the United States by way of Canada. The drug was to be held at Isle La Motte awaiting delivery. Instead of the real opium, however, the pair gathered together the fake compound, which, they admitted, was made in New York state and in New Hampshire.

MISSING OIL CASE WITNESS IS CITED FOR CONTEMPT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—The gales of testimony which have lashed Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial jury into fury the government's investigation into charges of tampering with the subsided with only an occasional puff to break the quietness which marked the inquisition by the grand jury.

An order citing Harry M. Blackmer, missing witness in the conspiracy case to show cause on January 6, next why he should not be adjudged in contempt for failing to appear to testify at the trial before Justice Frederick L. Siddons, in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, was issued by the justice.

The order directed the United States marshal to seize any property of Blackmer's to the extent of $100,000. The action was based upon a statute passed at the last session of congress.

Blackmer, who was chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining company, was wanted to testify regarding the Continental Trading company through which, it was charged, $230,500 in liberty bonds found their way to Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, after the leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil lands to Harry F. Sinclair.

RANSOM DEMAND MADE BY MOORISH BRIGANDS

KASBA TADLA, Morocco, Nov. 16—(AP)—Two million francs in gold is the demand of the Moorish brigands as a ransom for the six French hostages they are holding in the Middle Atlas mountains.

These captives are Yves Steeg, nephew of the French resident general, Theodore Steeg, Jean Maillet, the Baroness Steinheil, Mme. Marie Prokoroff and two little girls of the Arnaud family. The four adults were carried off on October 22, and the children were abducted by the tribesmen after their parents had been murdered.

The brigands want the gold in bags, it being easier for camels and mules to carry bags rather than kegs. The French are reported to have the gold ready, but no bags strong enough to hold it.

NEW HAVEN MAN INJURED IN EXPLOSION IN A MINE

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 16—(AP)—Clifford Berry, 24, of New Haven, Conn., was probably fatally injured in an explosion in the mines of the Keystone Mechanical Colliery company of Isle today. Officials said Berry apparently had been caught in a premature explosion of dynamite.

Winter in the West; Summer in the East

Michigan and Wisconsin Recovering From Blizzard—Record November Heat at Portland, Me.

CHICAGO, [illegible] (AP)—Michigan and Wisconsin were recovering today from the de[illegible] effects of the middle west's [illegible] winter storm as the blizzard [illegible] eastward over Lake Huron.

Subjected during the past 48 hours to a dual attack by snow and wind, the upper Great Lakes hesitated to venture out upon the subsiding Lake Superior which for the past two days, lashed by a 40-mile gale, had driven all vessels into land locked refuges.

The temperature hovered around the freezing mark in the Chicago district.

The lowest temperature in northwest was at Havre, Mont., where the thermometer was 8 below.

NOVEMBER HEAT RECORD BROKEN AT PORTLAND, ME.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 16—(AP)—Even while the western cold wave was threatening, another November heat record was broken today. When the temperature reached 61 at noon, it was the highest for Nov. 16 since the weather bureau was established here more than half a century ago. Three hours later it had reached 67, the maximum for the day. The previous record was 60 in 1888.

MERCURY HAS BEGUN TO RECEDE AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—The mercury receded tonight in Boston's thermometers after having been within a fraction of a degree of the record high of all time for November in the history of the Boston weather bureau.

Today's maximum of 75.5 compares with 76 on Nov. 12, 1909, 76.03 on Nov. 7, 1924, and 75.7 on Nov. 2, 1927, the only recorded November days when the temperature was more than 70 degrees.

BOARD OF TAX APPEALS TO EXPEDITE SETTLEMENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Two steps designed to expedite settlement of disputed tax cases, more than 16,000 of which are clogging the machinery of the board of tax appeals, were taken today by the houses and means committee.

One would provide that a taxpayer and the internal revenue bureau could enter into a "closing agreement" that could not be reopened except in the case of fraud, malfeasance or misrepresentation of fact, and the other would provide material increases in salaries for bureau employes.

Both of the proposals, which were approved for incorporation in the new revenue bill, were recommended by the treasury, Under-Secretary Ogden Mills personally appearing before the committee today to urge again increased pay for bureau officials, arguing that the present salaries were inadequate to retain competent officials.

The committee agreed to recommend a maximum salary of $7,500 for 23 assistants to the general counsel's office in the bureau. At present the average salary is about $5,000 with only three men so employed receiving in excess of $6,000.

The committee also agreed to recommend a maximum salary of $7,500 for 26 administrative technical experts in the bureau and a maximum salary of $6,000 for 50 other employes in that line of work.

DRY AGENT HELD ON A CHARGE OF MURDER

BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 16—(AP)—A 24-year old youth, who worked as a prohibition agent on a commission basis for each conviction obtained, tonight was held in the South Beloit jail on a charge of murder, following the death of William Petroff, soft drink parlor proprietor, whom he shot during a raid.

The youth, John Beyer, Jr., said he went to Petroff's establishment this morning to uncover evidence of liquor law violation. He said the waiter served him with a glass of beer just before Petroff entered and recognized him. Beyer claimed Petroff approached him and as he did so, he drew his pistol for self defense. Petroff, he said, lurched at him in an attempt to knock the glass of beer from his other hand and as he did so the pistol was accidentally discharged.

Petroff was taken to a hospital where an operation was performed in a vain attempt to save his life. He died several hours later, and the county attorney swore out a warrant against Beyer, charging him with murder.

LORD CECIL EXPLAINS IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

LONDON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Refusal of the British government to admit the principle of mathematical parity in naval strength with the United States, "bangs, bolts and bars the door," of any hope of agreement with America on naval armaments Viscount Cecil declared in the house of lords today.

In a speech bearing the secrets of the three power naval conference which broke down at Geneva last summer, the veteran statesman explained his recent resignation as British delegate to the league of nations. His explanation included a severe attack on the whole attitude of the British government toward disarmament.

His gaunt Lincolnesque figure with shoulders drooping like those of a tired man, Viscount Cecil told the lords he returned from Geneva "exhausted and discouraged." He declared the unyielding attitude of American delegates to the three power conference on some questions, such as the right to put eight inch guns on any cruiser, was entirely wrong but that it also seemed madness to allow the negotiations to break upon such a point.

Viscount Cecil declared that he was repeatedly put in the position of having to defend in league committee propositions which seemed indefensible to him. He said the impression was produced at Geneva that the British government's desire for the success of the disarmament commission was lukewarm.

PITTSBURGH EXPLOSION DEATH TOLL ABOUT 30

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The final death toll in the North Side district gas tank explosion probably will not mount much beyond 30, officials declared tonight after another day of intensive search had failed to reveal any additional bodies.

Virtually every section of the plant of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot company, wrecked when a huge gas tank of the Equitable Gas company let go on Monday morning, was thoroughly explored today, it was announced, without increasing the number of fatalities.

Company officials said that although 28 of their employes still were listed as missing, they believed all were safe at their homes or unidentified in hospitals.

Tonight, 26 bodies were either at the morgue or at the homes of relatives. All but wo of these had been identified.

FORMER REGENT OF D. A. R. CHARGED WITH LARCENY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Grace Porter Hopkins of this city, a former regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was arrested here today on charges of larceny after trust preferred by Mrs. Lucy M. Crawford of Rochester, N. Y. The latter alleged that Mrs. Hopkins refused to return a portrait, valued at $2,000, of the complainant's great grandfather which was loaned to her some time ago.

Mrs. Hopkins was released on her personal bond to appear in police court tomorrow. Mrs. Crawford is said to be a cousin of Governor Byrd of Virginia.

1,500 AUTOMOBILES DESTROYED BY FIRE IN A WAREHOUSE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—Two firemen were injured and 1,500 automobiles valued at $2,000,000 were destroyed today in a five alarm fire which razed a $500,000 warehouse of the New York Central railroad at 59th street and 12th avenue.

Jay A. Mellish, wealthy storage warehouse company owner and husband of Mme. Mary Mellish, Metropolitan opera star, was believed to have lost his life in the fire.

Every piece of fire apparatus between Fulton and 110th street was called out and hundreds of policemen formed lines about the block in which the flames raged. After four hours the blaze was under control but the warehouse and its contents were a total loss.

The two firemen suffered minor injuries when a 100 foot brick wall, two stories high, toppled from the burning building through a blanket of dense smoke and crushed a $20,000 steel water tower from which hose lines were trained on the flames.

The automobiles were stored temporarily in the warehouse awaiting delivery to dealers along "automobile row." While the fire was at its height several explosions heard from within the building gave rise to the belief that gasoline had been left in the tanks of some of the cars. A 1,000 gallon gasoline tank buried under the building was untouched by the flames.

MONTPELIER CONFERENCE ON FLOOD RELIEF PROGRAM

Secretary Hoover Had Previously Traversed the Devastated Region and Noted Things Which Must Be Done—Saw Smiling Faces as He Viewed the Desolated Landscape—Found No Discouragement Apparent in Flood Sufferers—Hoover Offered His Services in Work of Rehabilitation.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 16—(AP)—A convoy of nine automobiles, traversing 40 miles of flood devastated countryside from the nearest rail head landed Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and his party in this city tonight for a conference with Governor John E. Week and state officials on the state's flood relief program.

During the trip Secretary Hoover constantly indicated things which must be done, measures for fulfilling each need as he saw it in passing, and noting from time to time the many details that go to make the entire pattern of the Winooski valley and adjacent territory a terrible sight.

From Waterbury over the mountains to Montpelier the temporary road was marked by numerous yawning chasms where the flood waters had wiped out the original highway.

But everywhere people smiled and waved greetings as Secretary Hoover passed. In Essex Junction he was cheered by a hundred school children who turned out to meet him at the stations.

Children were at work along the roadside and in the beds of streams bordering the highway searching the debris for valuables that had been swept away. Others gathered firewood from the wreckage of many homes cast up along the banks and over what once were meadows, but now resemble sand pits.

Around houses and farms adults were at work rebuilding their homes which must first be cleaned, then patched, returned to their foundations in countless instances, and then practically renovated inside.

There was no discouragement apparent in the valley, however, and nowhere did Secretary Hoover see a face that might indicate a desolation of spirit as complete as the desolation of the landscape.

HOOVER GLAD TO AID IN RELIEF MEASURES

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 16—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover tonight told Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont that he would be delighted to be associated with the people of Vermont in formulating rehabilitation and relief measures in the flood devastated districts of the state. He declared that the Vermont flood was unparalleled in disasters of its type in this country because of the vast destruction wrought in such a short time.

Mr. Hoover spoke briefly at a conference in senate chamber of the capitol building, called by Governor Weeks to provide the secretary of commerce with comprehensive reports of the damage inflicted by the flood and thus give him an opportunity to hear directly of the needs of the state.

Attorney General John G. Sargent, who came here from Washington several days ago and has visited much of the affected area, outlined to Mr. Hoover what he had learned in talks with the victims of the flood. He likened the state's present relations to the rest of the nation as that of a man struck down by an automobile.

"If aid is not provided the injured man at once he may become a burden on the community or perhaps die."

He pointed out that "it is peculiarity of our people not to tell their troubles. The Red Cross has had to search out the sufferers, instead of the sufferers seeking the aid of the Red Cross and for that reason perhaps I may act as a sort of interpreter for them at this time.

Physical losses alone through the state will exceed $20,000,000, according to reports submitted to Mr. Hoover by the highway department, the commissioner of agriculture, the Red Cross, the industries and the railroads. The physical losses divided roughly were:

Highways and bridges $7,500,000; industries $7,000,000; railroads $5,000,000 and agriculture $2,000,000.

Mr. Hoover replied to these reports by saying:

"Industry does not want gifts nor relief. Industry requires credits and thus we are plunged into the economic problem that rises in all such disasters. We must so organize credit availability particularly for small industries that the industries may rehabilitate themselves.

"I suggest this problem, but it cannot be solved quickly. The banking and financial leadership of New England must survey these needs in detail. Such a problem has been solved in other disasters many times."

ARRESTED IN HOSPITAL ON MURDER CHARGE

WALTHAM, Mass., Nov. 16—(AP)—Joseph Buckley of Weston was under arrest tonight as he lay in the Waltham hospital, charged with the murder of Grace Mills of Waltham who was found dead in an automobile beside Buckley early today. The youth told the police that the girl had shot herself and had then pleaded with him to end her life. He sent another bullet into her body, he said, and then turned the revolver on himself.

Associate Medical Examiner Thomas Gallagher of Newton made an autopsy on the girl's body and said it would have been impossible for her to have shot herself, as both bullets entered her left side, while she was right handed.

Buckley's story was that the two had entered into a suicide pact. After he had shot her, he told police, he drove his car through Waltham and on upper Main street fired at himself, the bullet entering his body below the heart.

A patrolman discovered the car and took Buckley to the hospital where it was said he had an even chance for his life.

WHITE HOUSE 100 YEARS OLD WORTH AT LEAST $22,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Although more than 100 years old, the white house, and the grounds surrounding it today were appraised as worth at least $22,000,000 at present day realty values, which make it by far the most valuable residential property in the national capital.

William P. Richards, District of Columbia tax assessor, figured the valuation in computing appraisals of all federal-owned, tax-exempt property in the city, which was placed at $470,000,000. The white house was third highest, exceeded only by the capitol and its grounds, assessed at $53,000,000, and the treasury building, estimated to be worth just one million dollars more than president's home.

Should President Coolidge be required to pay taxes on his residence at the present rate of $1.70 for each $100 worth of property, he would have to turn over to Uncle Sam $374,000 a year, nearly five times his salary.

The state, war and navy buildings, flanking the white house on the west, was valued at $13,500,000, the congressional library and its grounds at $10,000,000.

REMUS LOSES IN EFFORT TO WIDEN SANITY TEST

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Victor in the first great fight of his murder trial, George Remus today lost a battle to widen the scope of the sanity tests the jurors in his case shall prescribe.

Judge Chester R. Shook ruled that the three tests customarily applied in Ohio courts, and not "five or ten or fifteen," as demanded by Remus, shall rule. They are:

1—Was the accused a free agent in forming the purpose to kill?

2—Was he at the time capable of judging whether that act was right or wrong?

3—Did he know at the time it was an offense against the laws of God and man?

Yesterday Remus won the right to help select the jury which shall determine his fate despite objection of the prosecution on the ground that his sole defense was that he killed his estranged wife, Imogene, last October, sixth, while temporarily insane.

At adjournment today 11 tentative jurors were in the box.

DUCHESS TORLONIA TAKES STAND IN DIVORCE SPIT

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Charges of infidelity brought by the Duchess Mary Elsie Moore Torlonoa against her husband, Duke Marino Torlonia, of Rome, were countered in superior court here today by testimony designed to show that under the Italian law the acts alleged do not assume the legal significance they have under American law.

The case for Duchess Toronia, who is suing her husband for divorce on the grounds of infidelity, was rested and taking of testimony for the defense was concluded late this afternoon. The only task remaining, aside from the preparation of briefs, is some deferred cross-examination of Countess Torlonia, by counsel for her husband, in the event that certain income tax returns and passports, now apparently lost, are located or replaced by copies.

Duchess Torlonia, formerly Elsie Moore, of Greenwich, took the stand in her own behalf today and told of her discovery that her husband was maintaining improper relationships with Maria Lorenzino, of Rome, how she visited Miss Lorenzino to learn of actual conditions, attempted to trail her husband, and of how he knocked her down with the back of a heavy mahogany chair, following an altercation.

She left the duke, she said, after this episode, which resulted from her husband's knowledge that she had been following him, in June, 1926.

FIGHT RESUMED OVER THE LAKE CARGO COAL RATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The fight between southern and northern coal producing interests over the level of lake cargo coal rates was resumed today before the interstate commerce commission when officials of the railroads moving coal from West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky to the Great Lakes asked that they be permitted to reduce such coal charges by 20 cents per ton.

Railroads serving the northern coal districts in Pennsylvania and Ohio were ordered by the commission last spring to make a 20-cent reduction in lake cargo rates from that territory, but the attempt of the southern roads to meet the competition was checked by a commission suspension order upon protest of northern producers, and an investigation instituted.

F. M. Whitaker, vice president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, declared today that his road would lose $2,000,000 a year by a 20-cent reduction, but that he considered it "an absolute necessity." The carriers serving the southern field, he said, would lose all of the lake cargo traffic if they failed to meet the reduction given the northern producers.

COMEDIAN CAMERON WAS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

YUMA, Ariz., Nov. 16—(AP)—Gene Cameron, feature comedian of Fox Film studios, of Hollywood, Calif., was killed and his two cousins, Peggy Baldwin and Sue Langford, were severely injured when Cameron's automobile overturned about a hundred miles east of here today.

Miss Langford's back was broken while Miss Baldwin suffered numerous bruises and possible internal injuries. The girls were brought here on a freight train and placed in the Yuma county hospital. It was feared Miss Langford would die.

The three were en route to Dallas, Texas, where Cameron intended to spend Thanksgiving holidays with his mother.

MATHVINK BOUND OVER ON MURDER CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 16—Savva Mathvink of this city, self-confessed slayer of Mrs. Anna Berkowitz, was arraigned before Judge Frank H. Foss of the police court this morning and charged with murder in the first degree, the act alleged to have been felonious, wilful, deliberate, premeditated and committed with malice aforethought. Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Garver read the charge to which a demurrer was entered by County Protector Charles L. Torrey of Putnam, counsel for the accused. Prosecutor Gaucher recommended that the demurrer be overruled. This was done by Judge Foss who then bound Mathvink over to the next criminal term of the Windham superior court. The courtroom was taxed far beyond its capacity with spectators craning necks to get a glimpse of the accused. Although a number of those present represented friends of the dead woman and others sympathizers of the accused, there was no evidence of ill feeling or disorder.

Mathvink was calm. He did not seem to quite grasp the seriousness of his predicament. He was taken into police headquarters at 9:25 o'clock by Sheriff Charles A. Gates, Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Blish and Walter Tripp, assistant jailer at the county jail in Brooklyn. About 9.30 o'clock the hearing was opened by Judge Foss. Court was in session but three minutes. Among the spectators was Mrs. Mary Mathvink, wife of the accused, who was released from the county jail Saturday upon order of Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson. The woman had been held for several days while an investigation was conducted to determine whether she had any connection with the shooting, which took place at the home of Jacob Berkowitz of 275 Prospect street, here, Friday night, November 4th.

Attorney Torrey stated that he understood that Mathvink would be broughtbefore a grand jury here on day, November 26th. Upon the return of an indictment the case would be assigned for trial to the January term of court.

HEBRON MAN REACHES HIS 101ST BIRTHDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 16—Temperate habits, fresh air and hard work are the ingredients of the best prescription for longevity known to George Matson Buck of Hebron, who celebrated his 101st birthday Tuesday at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Arthur Bell in Unionville. Mr. Buck was born in Portland, November 15, 1826, the son of Erastus and Eunice Wells Buck. He has resided in Hebron since he was ten years of age and he received a common school education in that town. He later taught schol for several years. When he was 25 years of age he was married to Miss Emily Phelps of Hebron. Five children were born to them, George S. Buck of Highland Park, Manchester, Mrs. Frank Ball of Buckland, Mrs. Arthur Buell of Unionville, Clinton Buck of Glastonbury and Warren Buck of Gilead. Mr. Buck has 23 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. For five years he has been spending the winters at the home of his daughter in Unionville, returning to Hebron during the summer to assist in haying at his farm.

Mr. Buck can pitch hay "with the rest of the boys" yet and Dr. S. E. Phelps of Farmington, who examined him a short time ago predicted that he would live at least another ten years. Mr. Buck has never used liquor or tobacco and his life habits have been simple in nature. He claims that "jazz" is all right for old people but frays the tender nerves of the younger generation. The centenarian has always voted a democrat ticket and at the last presidential election he went to the Hebron polls to cast a ballot for John W. Davis.

It has become known that there has been considerable contemplation locally over the apparent neglect of the republican city caucus to nominate a candidate for city auditor to be voted on at the elections December 5. The democrats, at their caucus held previously, had nominated John M. Bransfeld for re-election to that office. When the republicans failed to name a candidate many believed that an obvious omission had been made. The explanation has now been made that the last generaly assembly, in one of the sections of an act amending the charter of the city of Willimantic, passed and approved on April 29, to take effect on December 12, 1927, an act abolishing the office. Several months ago the common council passed a resolution to secure the service of certified public accountants at such times as may be deemed necessary, thus ending the duties of city auditor. The auditing of bills on the general run of the city's business is to be done in the future by the three members of the finance committee of the common council. Mr. Bransfield and Charles J. Dondero, republican, have held the city auditor positions in the past. The positions have been elective and nomination equivalent to election as the candidates on both tickets took office.

An all-day meeting of the Sorority of the Methodist church was held with a large attendance Tuesday. The Ladies' Aid society was entertained at luncheon. During the morning business session arrangements were completed for the annual bazaar and the following committee appointed: General chairman, Mrs. F. J. Williams; secretary-treasurer, Earl K. Haling; tickets, Dwight W. Ide; publicity, Rev. H. H. Critchlow; fancy articles, Mrs. William E. Webber, chairman, Mrs. Lutton, Mrs. E. W. Jacobs, Mrs. Mastin, Mrs. Parkhurst, Mrs. A. C. Hill and Mrs. Herrick; candy, Mrs. Louise Johnson, chairman, Mrs. Hattie Hill and Mrs. Hazel Nichols; food, Mrs. Lilla Davoll, chairman, Mrs. Morrill and Mrs. Torrey; mystery packages, Miss Ethel Simonds, chairman, Mrs. Ruth Potter; aprons, Mrs. Marion Smith, chairman, Mrs. Powell, Miss Addie Webber, Mrs. Morse, Mrs. Scripture and Mrs. Haling; general store, Mrs. H. H. Critchlow, chairman, Mrs. Florence Lewis and Mrs. Arthur Morrill; handkerchiefs, Mrs. A. J. Johnson, chairman, Mrs. Florence Lewis and Mrs. Arthur Morrill; handkerchiefs, Mrs. A. J. Johnson, chairman, Mrs. Wrana and Mrs. Lottie Barrows; white elephant, Mrs. Anna Spellman, chairman, and Mrs. Edith Williams; cafeteria, Mrs. D. W. Ide, Mrs. Edwin F. Cross and Mrs. Cora Rice; ice cream, Mrs. Lena Griggs, chairman, Howard K. Haling, Walter Griggs and Ralph Williams.

Funeral services for Miss Laura Chesbro were held at 62 North street at two o'clock this afternoon. Rev. David Winslow Lovett of the Baptist church officiated. Burial was in the Windham cemetery. The bearers were Edwin A. Cauter of Tenafly, N. J., Samuel Chesbro of this city, James G. Robinson of Hartford and Harry Chesbro of Scotland. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

Edwin J. Donnelly of this city, president of the Connecticut association of Exchange clubs presided at an informal testimonial dinner tendered in Hartford this evening in honor of Clinton G. Nichols, deputy state highway commissioner, who has been elected national president at the recent convention of Exchange in California. About three hundred members of the 11 Exchange clubs of the state attended, including a large representation of local Exchangites.

Plans for the annual football hop, one of the important social functions of Windham high school, were gotten underway at a meeting of the athletic council of the school this morning. Edward Saba was selected as chairman and Captain Max Heller and Manager Alfred Saba as his associates. A committee composed of a representative from each class and a general chairman will be selected to take charge of the class basketball activities during the season.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Backus of South Windham entertained a party of 26 friends at their home Tuesday evening in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Backus of South Windham. A set of gold-rimmed goblets and gold currency were presented the couple and Mrs. Backus also received a bouquet of chrysanthemums. William C. Backus and Hattie A. Hatch of Lebanon were married November 14, 1877, by Rev. Mr. Thompson, in Windham Center. They have always resided in South Windham. Guests from out-of-town who attended were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. O'Connell, Miss Veronica and Miss Barbara O'Connell, Mrs. Carrie Backus and Mrs. Florence Ennis of New London, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Gardiner and son of Danielson, Mrs. Lucelia Hatch of Windham, and Miss Marion Sellew of East Hampton.

Members of the Congregational church attending, as delegates, the state Sunday school convention opened in the Center church at New Haven today are: Miss Ethelyn Nichols, director of religious education, Miss Marion Coleman, superintendent, Mrs. Helen Boss Cummings, Miss Dorothy Hill and Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock.

Lester Eaton of Windham, doing business under the firm name of the Windham Lumber company has instituted civil action against Harold Victor Gray of Middletown to recover a bill of $75, alleged to have been contracted on or before May 15, 1927. Damages of $100 are claimed by the plaintiff and an attachment was made by Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Blish.

Arthur C. Bazinet, 34, of this city, was fined $125 and costs for driving while under the influence of liquor at the Manchester police court session Tuesday. His machine crashed into one that was parked in Manchester Monday night.

Miss Sabra S. Stoughton presided at a meeting of Violet Rebekah lodge No. 57, I. O. O. F. held in Odd Fellows' hall Tuesday evening with about 60 members present. At whist prizes were won by Mrs. Harriet Oliver, Mrs. A. P. Benner, John Williams of Mansfield and Fred N. Flagg.

The funeral of Joseph R. Stewart was held at the home of Mrs. John S. Champlin of South Coventry at three o'clock this afternoon with a service conducted by Rev. Charles G. Johnson. Burial was in the Nathan Hale cemetery, South Coventry. Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

Miss Helen Gates entertained a whist party of three tables at her home in the evening. Prizes were awarded to Miss Irene Gagnon, first, Mrs. Mildred Kammirity, second and Miss Viola White, consolation. Luncheon was served.

Mrs. Charles E. Leonard has returned from a three weeks' stay with her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Stone in New Britain.

CANVASSERS AND SCOUTS ENTERTAINED AT SUPPER

The Red Cross roll call committee entertained the young women canvassers and Boy Scouts at supper Tuesday in the Methodist vestry. There were forty present, who enjoyed the supper of cold roast fresh shoulder, escalloped potato, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee. Several were unable to be present, as other engagements prevented. At the close of the supper, the chairman of the roll call, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, congratulated the girls on their splendid success this year, the receipts being more than any year since the war time. They are now two hundred dollars ahead of last year's roll call, and all receipts are not in yet. To date, the amount is $922.43. In appreciation of their work, they were heartily applauded by the committee. The girls also accorded Mrs. Hiscox a rising vote of appreciation. The committee who gave the supper in acknowledgment of the canvassers' work comprised: Chairman, Mrs. Alice Anthony, Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Misses Alice Brennan, Catherine Barnett, Margaret Driscoll, Margery Ledyer, May Driscoll, Mrs. F. I. Ray, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mrs. P. W. Chase, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, D. L. Phillips, and Dr. G. H. Jennings. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Anthony, who was the efficient chairman. Much appreciation was expressed for the use of the church and the dining room appointments, and the gift of napkins by the Jewett City Savings bank. There has been fine team work, every canvasser showing the heartiest interest in this most worthwhile project.

ALFRED PALMER'S INJURIES HAVE PROVED SERIOUS

Alfred Palmer is in Backus hospital, Norwich, in a serious condition, as a result of a fall when a staging on the Medick house fell Sunday. One leg is broken just below the hip, and the bone is cracked to the knee. The hip and knee seem to be injured. It will be weeks before he can walk again, and he will have to remain in the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Mary Hueston and children, of Concord, Mass., have been guests at Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Jennings'. They were former residents here and came to attend the Benjamin-Stewart wedding.

Seventy friends of Mrs. Wayland Stetson, a bride of a few weeks, surprised her with a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening. The affair took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Montgomery. The bride was surprised, for certain sure—which is not always the case, as she was occupied in hanging curtains, when the party arrived. Her gifts were very numerous and she also received a sum of money. Her sister, Miss Mildred Montgomery and Miss Christine Foster, of West Hartford, motored down for the event, which was another part of the surprise. Cake, cookies and coffee were served. Mrs. LeRoy Holmes and Mrs. George Norman arranged the very pleasant affair.

Important changes and improvements have been made in Finn Bros.' store, in the Finn block. The new fittings include the bringing of certain of the departments into the main street frontage. These changes are the result of plans which Mr. Finn has contemplated for some time, and will be an outstanding benefit to his increasing trade. Finn Bros. is the oldest general merchandise store in the town, that has retained its original firm name. The first store was begun in a small way, a venture made in the building near the Ashland bridge, over fifty years ago, primarily for the reason that the late James H. Finn, the oldest of the three brothers had lost his arm in a mill accident. Mr. Finn developed business genius at once. Later John and Daniel Finn, and then their sister, Hannah, all became actively interested in the business. The Spicer property, now owned by Dennis Barnett, offered a larger store on the main street. Here business thrived again and soon the big brick Finn block was erected. Of the original firm, only Daniel is left, and the improvements which he and his son, Daniel, Jr., are making at present, will be in line with their up-to-date business policy, heritage of a half century of standard goods, and honest dealing.

Things are not always what they seem up in this section, is conclusively proven by the harvesting recently of a fine crop of kohl rabi. The plants were purchased for late Dutch cabbage and when they were transplanted in early July, the resemblance to cabbage was perfect. The kohl rabi crop is the first in this section.

E. M. Gray was in Norwich Monday to attend the funeral of Carl Fred Messinger.

The fraternal orders of the borough are showing more than usual early winter activity, with new members taking the degrees at every stated communication.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ballou attended the funeral of the latter's cousin, Henry Green, of New Haven.

It is estimated that the highway washouts in this section will cost more to repair than has been expended for that purpose within the last twenty years.

Passers-by on the state road at Tadpole are noting the almost completed clearance of the west pond shore of vines, bushes and undergrowth by the state highway department. This beautifying and improvement extends close to half a mile along the shore, leaving a fine view of the water, between the larger trees which are left standing. There is every indication that Tadpole is soon to come into its own. Several new homes and bungalows are already built upon its margin, with a wayside merchant on the north shore putting up a large addition to his property. In early summer time, when the 30 odd acres of pond lilies are in bloom, there is no nearby New England locality that has anything on Tadpole's surpassing natural beauty.

Mrs. F. E. Robinson entertains the Congregational Ladies' society this (Thursday) afternoon at her home, on the East Main street highlands.

The thermometer readings at noon Wednesday, all through this section, showed the mercury at 74 and 76. Shirt sleeves and straw hats were seen on the streets, doors were open, flies were busy about their usual occupations, with no evidence showing except brown fields, leafless trees and shrubbery, that it wasn't the good old summer time.

Additional names to the Red Cross roll call are: Moses Tatro, Mr. and Mrs. George Briggs, Marian Briggs, Mrs. Christina Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tanner, Margaret Tanner, Herbert O. Phillips, all of Voluntown; Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Exley, Cecelia Ellis, Irene Brickley, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Payne, Martin Krauss, Dennis Sullivan, Jacob Wechsler, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Ballou, Mrs. Edward Tarbox, Mrs. S. R. Water, Mrs. Minnie Hobart, Gerald Wolf, Raymond Cheney, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mildred and Elizabeth MacCluggage, Mrs. S. F. Brown, Joseph Rosenberg, Frank Field.

Miss Ruth Ballou and Miss Katsu Namikawa, who are training as teachers in Miss Wheelock's private kindergarten school, in Boston, were recent visitors at Miss Ballou's home, in Sylvandale. Miss Namikawa is a Japanese girl, from a Congregational mission near Tokio. She is educating herself in this country to return to her native country as a kindergarten teacher. Her father is in mission work and her brother has completed his education in this country and has gone back to do mission work. She is a girl of delightful personality, which charmed everyone who met her.

After the lodge closed, a delegation of Hattie Jackson Temple, Pythian Sisters, entered the hall as guests. The sisters then announced that they had with them several mysterious boxes, which they would auction off. Bros. Dember and Kellogg acted as aucitioneers. On opening the boxes, there was much merriment as to the contents. Bro. Max Cohen, on opening his box, found it contained a beautiful Meerschaum pipe, another brother had a set of pepper and salt shakers. Bro. Ames' box had a beautiful layer cake. After the auction, a lunch was served and social hour was spent.

CASHING SECOND LIBERTIES

With holders of second Liberties reported as turning them in by the millions, they are doing just what is expected of them and what they should do. That issue of bonds having been called, some of the bonds being exchanged for notes or certificates, some paid and the government ready to pay them as fast as they are presented, the interest ceases on the unredeemed bonds. The face of the bonds and the interest that has already accrued will be paid by the government any time the bonds or the coupons are presented, whether it be today or a hundred years from now. The government's promise is good and it will continue to be good.

But sight should not be lost of the fact that inasmuch as interest on the bonds has stopped it is desirable from the standpoint of the bondholder not to sacrifice the future interest on the amount represented by the bonds by failing to redeem them. The money thus represented has been at interest and good business requires that it be kept at interest through the cashing of the bonds and the placing of the money in the bank on some sound investment.

Unfortunate as it may seem it has not been the case that bondholders have always promptly redeemed their bonds. Some never have been redeemed and it will be unusual if there are not some of the second Liberties which are never presented for payment. This may be because they are lost, accidentally or otherwise destroyed or perhaps because some over zealous citizen wants to give the money to the government. Bonds to the total of millions of dollars have never been presented in years gone by. Some are paid months and years after the call date but in these days when there is so much publicity concerning the matter there ought to be little or no excuse for bondholders refraining from putting such securities through the proper course. The idea of holding on to them indefinitely is simply inviting and accepting a needless loss on the part of the owner. The thing to do is to get your money and put it to work again where it will be safe.

ACCIDENTS AND INSURANCE

The statement which has been made to the effect that automobile insurance rates bid fair to be increased will not be learned with exact pleasure and yet it will not really come as a surprise. It is known that there are many accidents, that they continue to increase in spite of efforts for greater safety and regardless of compulsory insurance. The National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters sets forth that judge and juries have been found to be so liberal with those involved in accidents that the reserves of the insurance companies have been depleted to the point where it becomes necessary to consider increased rates.

It is perfectly evident of course that insurance companies are able to do business only through the rates that are charged. They must maintain reserves for the protection of the insured but when the reserves are depleted through increasing drains upon them it becomes evident that the source of such reserves, the insurance rates, must be changed.

Whether the trouble lies entirely with the generosity of judges and juries may be questioned. It would appear as if there was a possibility that some of the trouble may be due to the carelessness of the automobile owners themselves in so relying upon the fact that they have insurance that they do not take the proper amount of precaution in the handling of their machines. That, of course, means that the insurance companies must pay, and perhaps pay handsomely. If that is the case they must make their charges accordingly.

It seems a bit hard that the careful driver who seldom if ever is involved in an accident, and when he is it is due to the other fellow, should be burdened with increased insurance rates because of the don't care spirit of the reckless class. But that is always the case. There are unquestionably too many accidents resulting because reliance is placed upon the protection gained from insurance. Some drivers even boast of the fact. Is there any way that the necessary increase can be passed along to that particular class? That is where it seems to belong.

A CHANGE OF MIND

Mrs. Grayson who attempted to fly across the Atlantic from Maine to Denmark, and who has been quoted as much disappointed because she could not prevail upon her pilot to fly under adverse conditions, has arrived in Europe to consult her financial backer. She is now being quoted as declaring that she has undergone a change of mind that she has been brought to a realization of the conditions on the broad Atlantic as the result of a study of the conditions during her trip across in the steamer and she now thinks differently of the non-stop flight. She is still desirous of crossing the Atlantic in the air but she is now inclined to the idea of making several stops.

In addition to the new grasp of conditions as they exist on the ocean Mrs. Grayson has probably been giving closer study to the experiences of those who were successful in their non-stop flights to Europe and also to those who failed. There is a fund of valuable information in each and every one of those flights which ocean fliers cannot wisely ignore.

Mrs. Grayson encountered a variety of difficulties in her attempt to get away from Copenhagen, resulting in serious engine trouble and the approach of the season when weather added increased hazards to the trip. No one will say that she would not have succeeded had she been able to get the Dawn going and to keep it going on the projected course, but from the tenor of her statement in Europe she was facing a far different proposition than she anticipated. She was ready to rush into what she did not understand, and this despite all the reports concerning what the successful encountered and what the unsuccessful must have faced. When she comes to a realization of just what is involved she is not so keen for the experience or the risk. No one will blame her. It represents the difference between chance taking and the adoption of sane flying methods. Mrs. Grayson appears to be profiting without waiting for personal adverse experience.

BETTER PROTECTION NEEDED

Almost every week there is a news despatch concerning a fire in a building housing children or the aged. Sometimes the inmates are gotten out in safety. There are occasions where there is a loss of life and at times it is heavy. The repetition of such reports indicates that there are conditions surrounding the housing of children and aged which is dangerous. It emphasizes the need of fireproof structures and better protection for the heating apparatus as a safeguard against fire.

When such buildings are reconstructed it is possible that these matters will get the necessary attention, but there is no good reason why all those homes for children or aged should be permitted to go without attention until fire destroys the whole or part of the structure.

Following the floods in New England attention has been immediately directed to the importance of testing any and all dams about whose stability there may be any question. It is a timely move. There's no telling how much protection will be provided thereby, or how many lives will be saved. But it is preferable to waiting until after the dam has given way and lives and property have been destroyed.

The same policy should be followed in regard to these homes where so many lives are at stake. If they cannot be fireproofed right away it is possible to provide safeguards that will protect them against the common dangers. It may involve some expense, but whatever that may be it would be far better than subjecting humanity to recognize perils and possibly death by fire or suffocation. Every fire in such institutions should be regarded as a lesson to all the others.

ADMIRAL JONES RETIRES

Due honors were paid to Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones on his retirement from the navy this week after 47 years of service. They were years of service which called for recognition, years during which there was a faithful and highly efficient guidance of such part of the first line of defense as came under his direction.

Admiral Jones has served with distinction in every position in which he has been placed, and they have not been few. He was in charge of that division which moved the troops from Newport News to France at the time of the war. He was commander in chief of the American fleet in 1922. He was delegate from this country to the conference on armament limitation at Geneva this year and took a conspicuous part in the presentation of the attitude of the United States. He was frequently quoted because of the clear and convincing manner in which he put forth the American policy. At the time of his retirement he was ranking member of the general board of the navy.

It is impossible that such a career has not left its impression upon the branch of this government in which he has been so closely identified for so many years. His career has been conspicuous for the manner in which his high service has been rendered rather than by the publicity stunts he has undertaken for personal glory, and it will so stand out in naval history. His contributions were of great value whether it was an emergency occasion or during the ordinary peace time administration of duties. The country makes no mistake in paying tribute to such officials.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Every warm day brings summer just that much nearer.

There might be some interesting sights but not many are motoring to Vermont for such purposes these days.

Secretary Hoover is getting a lot of experience in dealing with floods but none of them seems to be over his head.

With the treasury certificates nearly three times oversubscribed it speaks volumes as to what is thought of government securities.

There are those who claim the spoken drama is suffering from the admission tax. Maybe, but what was the trouble before the tax was applied?

Even the execution of revolutionists did not put enough fear in those who threw the bombs at Obregon to cause them to refrain from assassin's tactics.

There's nothing like being forehanded. Some people are already worrying about when Thanksgiving will come in 1928, just because there are five Thursdays in the month and the fourth has always been picked since the days of Lincoln.

SPRING ENTERPRISE

Well, here we are, Jimmie, back out at our lake, all ready to go fishing, again. Great, ain't it? Boy, ain't things green? And hear the birds. Most of 'em must be back from down south by now. Sure sounds like it.

"Yuh know, Jim, you and me oughta get a medal for our ambish. A lot of guys like us woulda been too lazy and too full of spring fever to come out here fishing on a day like this. Not us, huh, Jim? We're up-and-at-'em birds, we are.

"I got my pole together. Got yours? Where'd yuh put the worms? Thanks. Now for the important business of finding the biggest and the fat—. Man of man! Look at this one. On the hook with yuh, old tempter. Look at that Jim, ain't that pretty good for a job of baiting? Can't see the hook anywhere, can yuh? There ain't nothing showing but worm.

"All right, here goes. Pdink! Didn't that sound good? Guess I got the bobber just about right. Well, might as well sit down to this work. No use standing up. Yeh, that's a good job of baiting, too, Jim. I claim those two worms are good for two fish any day.

"Gee, but it's great to be out here with nothin' to do but sit and watch a bobber and let the sun sort of ooze into your skin. Huh? Yeh, you're right—and pull in fish. They oughta be biting swell today.

"Yuh know I've been thinkin', Jim, why couldn't you and me make this a business? We both like to fish, and there's money in it, if it's done right. Now, for instance, there's two worms in the water. Well, say we get two fish. All right, then we bait the hooks again and—bing!—two more fish. And say we get forty fish today, that's twenty apiece.

"Then, say, we don't eat those fish, but sell 'em. Say we get two bits per. That's—let's see—that's ten dollars. All right, then say we just soak that ten dollars in more fishing tackle. We could each watch two poles easy. Then the next day we could catch eighty fish. That's twenty dollars. Then get more tackle, maybe a seine, and it wouldn't be long before we would be making real money. Sounds good, doesn't it?

"And think how good it would be to be out here fishing all of the time. Gosh, wouldn't it be the spider's web-feet?

"Yuh know, Jim, I can appreciate how some fellows get spring fever. Don't you feel kinda satisfied and lazy out here where the water's lappin' and swishin' through the cattails sort of peaceful-like, and the air's so nice and warm? I can't see no sense in my settin' here and holdin' this pole. Might as well stick the end in the mud. I can grab it if I get a bite.

"Well, as I was sayin', Jim, we could go in this fishin' business and make us a nice little wad. Then what would we do? Don't know, huh? Well, I'll tell you. We would invest it. There's the way to make money. Put what you got in some good investment and let it work for you. Say we put in a couple o' thousand in some oil company, and say they hit a gusher. Bigo! A hundred thousand overnight!

"Then say we took that and invested it in real estate in some place that was boomin'. Pick a place that's turning over fast. It oughta be easy to run the hundred thousand up to two or three hundred thousand in a year. Then we could take that and—do you follow me, Jim? You're ahead of me, huh? How far ahead? Oh, you've got us with a million already, eh? Well, make it a million, it doesn't matter.

"Gee, this weather's sure gettin' into my blood. I've been working pretty hard this winter, and I guess I'm all tired out. I'm going to see if I can't lie down here on the bank and still see my bobber. Yep, that's easy.

"Say, Jim, when we've got our million there's one thing we've got to have besides automobiles, and that's an airplane. See them big white clouds up there? Wouldn't it be great to be playing around in them, way up there where the sun is?

"That sun sorta hurts my eyes. Guess I'll pull my hat down over them. There, that's better. Gosh, Jim, don't it feel good to stretch? Ain't this grass fine? Don't you like to pull that warm air into you? Makes a fellow feel like living and doing something.

"You know, Jim, that first million's going to be the hardest, but it oughta be easy to make the second and the third and—huh? Our business has started? Whadda yuh mean, started? Oh, have we got a bite? Well, don't be so blamed lazy. Haul him in.

"Huh? He's on my line? Is he hooked good? Yeh, I can hear him splashing. Well, I guess it's up to me to move, but—aw heck! Let him splash. I'm going to sleep."—Exchange.

Former Norwich Leaders

FORMER NORWICH LEADERS

The Hon. John Breed

(From Norwich Bulletin, Dec. 4, 1865.)

The Hon. John Breed, one of the oldest merchants and most prominent men of Norwich, died very suddenly at his residence in this city Sunday noon, in the seventy-fifth year of his age.

His disease was gout, and was hereditary in the family, his father having died of it at the age of forty-nine, and his brother, Joseph, at the age of fifty-four.

Mr. Breed was the son of the Hon. John McLaren Breed, who was mayor of Norwich from 1796 to 1798. His first business experience was in the hardware store of Jabez Huntington, on Shetucket street, about the year of 1803. During the last war with Great Britain he was clerk for Jesse and Simon Breed, hardware merchants, then occupying a store in the Davison building, on Water street, directly opposite the present store of John Breed & Co.

In 1818 he commenced the hardware business in company with the late J. G. W. Trumbull, in the store on Water street, now occupied by George A. Sydleman, the firm name being Trumbull & Breed. The concern was also engaged in woolen manufacturing at Jewett City. They continued in business together two or three years, during which time their woolen factory in Jewett City, and the store on Water street were both destroyed by fire.

After the dissolution of the firm of Trumbull & Breed he entered into partnership with James Breed, his cousin, and the new firm of John & James Breed, in which his brother Joseph was a silent partner, continued in the hardware business, in the store now occupied by John Breed & Co., until 1828, when they failed. Subsequently they effected a compromise with their creditors. The business was conducted under the name of Joseph Breed, Ag't., until 1840, when the firm of John Breed & Co., was formed and has ever since continued. Since 1838, however, the hardware business has been carried on by the firm of Breed, Prentice & Co., the cordage and rope-making business only being continued in the name of the old firm.

In January, 1865, Mr. Breed retired entirely from the hardware business, retaining his interest in the cordage and line manufacturing up to the time of his death.

In 1840 he was elected mayor of the city. During the first year of his mayoralty he made an onslaught upon awnings, posts, feed boxes and other obstructions which were placed upon streets and sidewalks by the merchants in the business portion of the city. Under his directions, amid great excitement, and in the face of the bitterest opposition, the street commissioner went through Main and Water streets, axe in hand, cutting down and carrying away all the obnoxious obstructions. The awning excitement of that year is well remembered by our old citizens.

The opposition to him on account of this measure was so great that in 1841 the whigs and democrats united in nominating Hon. John A. Rockwell for mayor, so as to prevent his re-election. But an informal citizens' meeting was called, and the people who admired his pluck and pertinacity nominated and elected him in the face of his positive refusal to accept. In 1845 the people who admired his fearlessness and independence of character, again took him up against his own wishes and positive refusal to run, and elected him over the regularly nominated party candidates.

These three terms as mayor were his only public services in an official capacity, although he was always active, prominent and influential in politics, and, as he said, had "served" thirty years as a member of the third house of the Connecticut legislature.

In 1859 he built the building and half bearing his name, on the corner of Washington and Main streets. It supplied a need which had long been felt, and was in itself a public benefaction. He was possessed of considerable real estate in various parts of the city, and was probably worth from $200,000 to $250,000. This property, in case he left no will, after the distribution of the dower, will go to the three children of Mrs. Timothy Dwight, of New Haven, the sole heirs to the estate.

YOUR HEALTH

NURSING IS DESIRABLE PROFESSION

William F. Howard, M. D., Pocatello, Idaho

Member Gorgas Memorial

Of all the occupations open to the young woman, nursing especially preserves her charm and feminity and at the same time prepares her for the later duties commonly assumed by her sex. It opens up wide and numerous fields, and affords an intimate view of human activities and a broad knowledge of life.

The nurse deals directly with people of all kinds and meets the conditions that have much to do with all experiences. When she later has a home of her own, she has learned from experience numerous things that enable her to make it a better home. Her knowledge will be of use to herself and to her neighbors, and a helpful neighbor is an endearment to any community.

The nurse who expects to devote her life to her profession can look forward to numerous positions as head nurse that are free from long hours, free from giving personal attention to the patients' daily needs, and free from all that might be considered the drudgery of nursing. There are positions as superintendents of nurses and superintendents of hospitals that exercise the best qualities of business and executive management. There are special fields for nurses such as welfare work, public nursing, special positions in institutions and in industry, technicians, laboratory workers, and the instructor nurse who always occupies a position that is inspirational to beginners.

This is an appeal to young women who expect to enter training, to those who have not yet decided what college work to pursue, and to parents or friends who may advise such young women to consider a nursing career, to make sufficient preparation before entering the hospital training so that their later progress may not be limited by lack of fundamental knowledge.

Many universities and colleges admit women to a prenursing course of three years, and at the completion of this, followed by a hospital training course of two years, award a college degree and a nurse's diploma. This course gives the young woman the advantages of college life and training and magnifies her hospital training. She can understand the difficult medical subjects and the problems of nursing. It is a preparation that should enable a nurse to rank high in her profession and open to her opportunities inaccessible to those who have not had such preparation. It is also a source of satisfaction and usefulness and joy to her the rest of her life.

Stories That Recall Others

Getting in Love

Little Helen and James were next door neighbors and played together a great deal. One day James was eating his lunch when Helen called him to come out to play. His mother said he should complete his lunch before going out.

And James said: "Yes, mother, I will. Helen is getting in love with me and just wants me to play with her all the time."

A Chip Off the Old Block

While the spelling lesson was going on the teacher gave the class words to use in sentences. Addressing ten year old Harry, whose father plays in a band, she asked: "Harry, will you use the word banquet correctly in a sentence?"

After deep deliberation and a thought concerning his father's musical affairs, Harry said: "When the speaker stepped upon the platform, the 'band-quit.'"

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

OLD LETTER RECALLS PERSONAGES AND EVENTS IN NORWICH HISTORY

Some of the prominent personages and interesting historical events in Norwich fifty and more years ago are brought to light by an old letter that has come into the possession of John R. Bowman, Jr., of 23 Greene avenue. This is a letter written in 1858 by Joel W. White from Lyons, France, where he was United States consul, to Jedediah Huntington of this city, who built up a fortune in the lumber business, retiring from active business life eventually and residing on Washington street in what is now the Eliza Huntington Memorial home, which Mr. Huntington established in honor of his wife as a home for aged women.

The letter referred to was found among a collection of old papers at the home and is in an excellent state of preservation in spite of its age. The Bulletin is indebted to Attorney William H. Shields for his knowledge and personal recollection of many of the persons named in the letter.

Joel White, who for many years was cashier of the Merchants bank, lived on Cliff street in the house that in more recent times was the home of the late Henry Hovey and will be remembered as having the figures of two lions on the front steps. It is now the Eagles home. White's court which bounds one side of the lot was named after Mr. White.

Attorney Shields remembers Mr. White as an active democratic politician, especially prominent in the Buchanan and Fremont campaign in Norwich, when boys' republican and democratic clubs were organized, the late Charles E. Case being leader of the republican club and the late Joseph Matthews leader of the democratic boys. Mr. Shields, at that time a boy too young to join the democratic club, recalls how the boys were lined up in front of Joel White's house when he passed out candy to them all, which was a great treat and made a big impression on the boys. In that campaign the Buchanan and Breckenridge party had the broadest and longest flag that was ever seen in Norwich stretched from Apollo hall to the Wauregan hotel across Main street.

From France to Norwich

The following is the letter referred to;

United States Consulate,
Lyon, France, June 16, 1858.

J. Huntington, Esq.,

Dear Sir: Your favor of 20th., ult. came safe to hand, was read with much interest, it was full of thrilling events. The death of Mr. Asa Child was very sudden, the loss to his family must be great, his talents and legal knowledge was a treasure to possess, the family must be left with limited means for support.

Notwithstanding death makes great ravages in our city, from your account there is a general move of prosperity; elegant mansions erected, high official honors bestowed upon our citizens, the moneyed institutions recovering from the shock of the crisis of the past year ,all which show marks of thrift; including the prosperity of Trinity church; under the instruction of that pious teacher Rev. Mr. Paddock, much is due to your efforts in keeping alive the right spirit and zeal to avoid an increasing debt, at the same time make efforts to diminish the permanent debt by degrees. Deac. E. A. Perkins holds out well, but he has not the disposition to apply the daily care and attention to his person that is performed by Col. Geo. L. Perkins, whom I learn through you, has not been effected by pecuniary embarrasments of the N. & W. R. R. as to cause him any loss of flesh.

I hope you will arrange the aqueduct matter justly; it is a simple case and one of much interest to the N. & W. R. Road Co. I am gratified that the gas company retain the services of Mr. Dunham; he is a prudent man, hence valuable, since so few can be found to act for others in the management of associated wealth short of displaying extravagance and freaks of experiments at the expense of others. The time will come when the services of such men will be appreciated for economy and fidelity. I am pleased to learn that the N. & W. R. R. has fair prospects ahead. The disasters to railroads and steamboats, I notice by the American papers, are numerous, that detract much from the value of stocks in such investments. The poorhouse improvement is one in which I feel a kindly interest, to have adopted on a liberal scale for future use, arranged with economy. My paramount sympathy is to care well for the poor, "such we are to have with us always." After visiting the old world here, seeing suffering humanity from poverty, know full well that our numbers are never to be less but will increase with the growth of our country. Therefore provision should be made on a liberal plan to meet future necessities, and on the most improved arrangement, that funds raised for the relief of that unfortunate class of human society, shall not only sustain life with economy but give to them such comfort that life shall be desirable under their lot of affliction, and such comforts—administered that shall accord with the mandates of Our Great Benefactor and Saviour. We have had a great time for the two last sabbaths in Lyons of a public religious festival by the Roman Catholics, which was general throughout France. They have altars erected in various parts of the city in a most magnificent manner, processions formed in the different parts of more than a mile each in length, comprising many thousands of followers, hundreds of clergy. The grand host being elevated and carried through the streets, followed by the cardinal and the thousands in the procession with numerous bishops displaying their most extravagant robes, making a street service, young ladies and gentlemen joining the clergy in chanting their solemn service. The scene was very imposing and solemn; its influence all but made of me a Puseyite. Certain am I that Protestants who denominate such service and worship herresy do not equal their devotion, to say that it is all blind infatuation, when followed by the most intellectual minds of great acquirements of learning, is saying more than the action will sustain—hence I shall be slow to condemn the millions who zealously worship under this mode, and who claim that they have ever had the true mode of worship of Our Saviour and His apostles handed down with purity of purpose and heart to do the will of Him who was the author of Christianity; at the same time they refer you to the bones of the martyrs of the same faith who fell in the cause to support this same gospel in which 19,000 fell in one day in this city in the second century. Their bones have been preserved with great care as a testimonial to be shown the present age of their fidelity to the cause, we can well imagine the sympathy that should be manifested by the descendants in the nineteenth century, also they refer you to those indelible marks on the ——— for three hundred miles where St. Paul was an efficiant actor in the great drama to support the mandates of a crucified Saviour. The paintings, sculpturing and churches dedicated to Christ and this gospel carry strong marks of conviction to every reflecting mind that this is not a vision but a reality, although it may have assumed some new forms; the general forms and aspect of worship are engraved on marble that does not admit of changes to accord with the freak or opinion of this or that instructor, but following general established elements that the present generation can compare with the past. The emblems of early Christianity are certainly used by the worshippers of the present day—with all distinctive marks that will not admit of a doubt, that though they may to us appear to have the semblance of show and flumery, yet no doubt the same was practised by the early Christians 1800 years in the past.

We had in an adjoining room to ours a sick young lady, the daughter of a counte, that lay at the point of death; the communion was administered, the clergyman came with the Host and performed the service which was very solemn, all inmates on their bended knees imploring mercy for the unfortunate sick lady. This to me was a novel spectacle, also to my family. Nevertheless very imposing, it seemed to carry consolation to the afflicted family; to us it would have appeared quite as efficient without such outward emblems but to those whose custom it was to worship in the manner named, would have deemed it wholly useless, unless to omit adopting the ordinary custom. "It is not He that planteth or he that watereth but God who giveth the increase." So are the working of Him who knows all things. We are a peculiar people, strongly attached to customs of early education.

I have given you a long epistle upon the Catholic movement, which may be uninteresting, but since there is so much aversion to that mode of worship, a letter of the details I thought would be grattfying for you to peruse. They manifest great devotion and zeal and I hope it will prove the salvation of the millions of souls who follow such mode of worship.

Last week I took my family and visited the city of Mucon, the residence of the celebrated and well-known Lamertine, who is a very distinguished person as a poet and identified with the revution of 1848. He so demeaned himself in that event, that he dbes appear to have lost cast with the emperor. This city is small but full of incidents of former times, being on the River Soan (Saone); also visited the city of Challon of much antiquated renoun on the Soan (Saone) one hundred miles from this ——— the shores and villas on said river which stud its banks, the country is very picturesque, the vineyards and wheattfields handsome and very productive. On the whole, France is a beautiful and thriving country, all seem to enjoy life, with a soil unsurpassed in the world, all pleased with the Emperor Napoleon, who has displayed great wisdom in the management of the details of his government, moving with a single eye for the glory of France and the general prosperity of his subjects, making such improvements as shall rebound to individual good and national prosperity under the influence of a clear mind, the result of such action is more efficient and economical than when operated by divided opinions that not unfrequently disconcerts the best objects as to success.

Myself and ladies are all well and all join with kind regards to yourself and Mrs. Huntington, also wish to be remembered with kind regards to the Messrs. J. G., J. O. Huntington, Col J. T. Walt and their wives, from whom we should be delighted to receive any communication they do to us would make which would be read with interest. Gen. Williams has done the liberal measure to New London, he has shown himself disposed to perform acts that shall live long after he is entombed. He owes me a letter, when you see him remember me and my family to him and Mrs. Williams with kind regards. Also remember me with kind regards to Mr. Chas. Johnson and wife. Mr. Johnson owes me a letter when at leasure should like to have from him, since he gives much information when he writes that make his letters peculiarly interesting.

I was much astonished at the separation of Mr. and Mrs. Davis. What were the grounds on. Please name in your next. I think it will be a bad move for Mrs. David Youngs, since she was very kind at that point, and ever appeared like a lady.

Who are the bogus lottery managers in Norwich? You did not say. Should like to know.

In regard to the use of my lot for the gas pipes on the Travelers Rest, my claim can rest until I return but the claim is not nor can it be waived. It may be well to have me present when all can be explained satisfactorily to the board. I shall so write my brother, R. I. White.

Give our kindest regards to Mr. and Mrs. Paddock. Should like a letter from him, etc.

JOEL W. WHITE

Reference made in the letter to the gas company and permission to lay pipes recalled to Attorney Shields a celebrated controversy in this city which was known as the "Norwich gas war."

War of the Ditches

This was also facetiously referred to at the time as the "war of the ditches," and was brought about by the struggle between two rival companies to lay gas pipes from Franklin square easterly through Main street. As fast as the ditch digging gang of one company would make an excavation, the officials of the other would lead out another gang of workmen who would storm the ditch, drive out the rival shovel gang and begin to throw back the dirt. Lawyers and civic leaders were on hand representing both of the companies and these also came to blows, grappling each other and tossing each other into the ditch along with the workmen where they would be artially buried by the flying dirt before they could crawl out. At one stage the struggle became so bitter that the mayor was called out to read the riot act.

The Travelers Rest referred to in the letter was an inn standing on the North Main street corner near Preston bridge where the Marguerite building now stands. Joel White owned land along the Shetucket river there and farther up the river, above the old car shop, White street being named after him.

Names of well known citizens of the time whom the letter mentions are Rev. Benjamin H. Paddock, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Deacon Francis A. Perkins, treasurer of the Norwich Savings society, Col. George L. Perkins, who lived to be over 100 years old and was treasurer of the Norwich & Worcester railroad for from 50 to 60 years, Charles Johnson, president of the Norwich bank, Col. John T. Waite, and active and prominent lawyer.

William Davis of Elm Arch farm, Hampton, shot a large goshawk last week, the wing spread of the bird measuring 44 inches. This makes three goshawks that Mr. Davis has killed in the last year.

NOTE—It would be illegal to publish this if not true.

CIVICS GROUP DISCUSSES CITY TREES AND PARKS

Miss Amy Cogswell was the speaker Wednesday evening at the round table meeting of the civics group of the Woman's City club, which was held in the club room at the Wauregan hotel with an attendance of about 30.

Miss Cogswell spoke upon "What Can We Do For Our Trees and Parks? She referred particularly to two elements which make up the beauty of Chelsea parade, the trees and the turf, saying that elms were especially appropriate there and that turf grew much better under them than under maples. She advocated spending money for care of trees in the city rather than for their funerals, for the same amount that would be required to take down and do away with a dead tree would save many alive if properly used in tree surgery and care. She spoke of the hazard to the lives of trees which granolithic walks and cement streets make and advocated that property owners plant trees on the lawn sides of their lots to replace trees that are cut down at the curb.

She asked how long turf would remain in good condition if the parade were used as an athletic field and suggested that instructions be given at home in the elements of beauty and civic pride. She commended the good management of Mohegan park and went on to deplore the state's policy in straightening roads, and urged that Norwich women do their utmost to prevent such a programme being carried out on the military highway through "The Pines."

Miss Cogswell spoke also of the danger that the large elm at the New Haven station entrance would be damaged by automobiles and the meeting appointed her and Mrs. John E. Fanning as a committee to confer with railroad officials about a possible plan for placing a small iron fence around the plot where the tree is.

Miss Nancy Lucas gave a report of the extensive cavity work and general care of trees that had been done in the city and town since 1926 and Miss Marion L. Bishop called attention to the serious situation created at the Little Plain by boys who use it for baseball and football, dashing across the street in the path of automobiles when their balls go beyond the limits of the park. She predicted that serious accident is likely to happen there any day. Another thing contributing to the untidy appearance of the Little Plain is that children from both the parochial school and the Broadway school eat their lunches there and never clean up their papers, she said.

Others of the members took part in the discussion on the different points brought out.

NORWICH RESPONDING WELL TO VERMONT APPEAL

Chairman Francis T. Diggins, of the Vermont relief committee stated Wednesday evening, that the response to the appeal made by the sons and daughters of Vermont for clothing to be sent to the stricken people in the flooded areas of that state had been most gratifying. Headquarters has been established in the store formerly occupied by Utley & Jones, at 145 Main street, and a general invitation has been extended to the sympathetic people of Norwich to contribute, whatever they could, in the way of warm clothing, which would be sent to Vermont and distributed where it was most needed, under the direction of the Red Cross workers.

Those who opened up the headquarters on Wednesday and were in charge during the day included: Mrs. Charles W. Taggart, Mrs. V. A. Tongren, Mrs. W. W. Carrigan and Mrs. J. H. Starr. All day long large packages of clothing were being received at headquarters and it is expected that within a few days a shipment can be made by the automobile truck that is being used by the Red Cross society for relief work.

The committee feels, however, that while clothing of all kinds is badly needed, and will be most acceptable, the greatest immediate need is for heavy clothing for children and for warm bedding such as blankets and comfortables. The headquarters at 145 Main street will be open every day and one or more of the committee will be on hand to receive and list all contributions for the flood sufferers. The headquarters will be open from 10 a. m. to noon, 1.30 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

It is the desire of the committee to have Vermonters call and register at headquarters.

Sweet Sixteen Surprise Party.

Refreshments were served by Miss Millie Seidman, New York, and Miss Anna Hertz, of this city. Those present were members of Zeta Phi sorority and Epsilon Iota Sigma. Games and dancing were enjoyed by all.

STONINGTON IS FAVORITE OVER ACADEMY IN SATURDAY'S GAME

Friday.
Chapman Tech at Westerly.
Saturday.
N. F. A. at Stonington (Owen field, 1:30).
Ansonia at Bulkeley (N. L.)
Windham at South Manchester.

Scholastic football in this section takes a sort of semi-final bow over the week-end as three of the "Big Six" close up shop. Chapman Tech, Bulkeley (N. L.) and Windham will be through for 1927 at the sound of the last whistle in their games this week, while according to present plans, the Academy will engage in its last scholastic tilt this week. The Red and White has the Alumni for Thanksgiving, while Westerly plays at Stonington on that date.

The two important games involving "Big Six" members this week seem to be the Academy-Stonington and Ansonia-Bulkeley (N. L.) clashes.

N. F. A.-Stonington.

The Academy enters the Stonington game as the underdog for the first time in many years against the "Farmers" and for the first time this year against any team. Stonington has a slight edge in pre-game dope on the locals. Weight, experience and the advantage of the home field will place O'Brien's men above the Red and White, up to the opening whistle.

The Academy on Saturday will be in its first game since the disappointing Bulkeley affair. Whether that will bring out an abundance of fight remains to be seen but one thing is sure if the Academy would win, they will have to fight as they have not done before this season.

In this meeting, the youthful Academy team with eight of the eleven now having their first taste of football as regulars meets a Brown and White club that has practically all regulars ready. A rugged bunch of backs with much of the attack centered about Cowan, 200-pound fullback, with a heavy forward wall, seems better than a light backfield with its main offensive threat, Harry McGlone out, and with but one man, Capt. Jack Marks, having seen regular service in other years, and a forward wall that is strong only in spots. Two fine pair of ends, Greene and La Croix, and Kahn, a tackle, have done consistently good work for the locals this year, but the rest is young and light. In fact, the center trio, Ingalls, Mish and Fox, averages about 16 years of age.

It has been a long time since a grid win over Stonington was so much desired by N. F. A. and it will be no easy matter to obtain it and a clear claim to the eastern Connecticut championship.

Ansonia-Bulkeley (N. L.)

New London Bulkeley, no doubt greatly refreshed by the 6 to 6 "moral victory" over N. F. A. last week, figures on salvaging a win from a season of discouraging results in tackling Ansonia high. About the only thing known hereabouts of this team is that they took a 26 to 0 lacing from Warren Harding early in the season. However, this school has had a habit of turning out good teams and the Orange and Black may yet go wanting for a genuine victory, not those of the "moral" variety.

To Westerly, Chapman Tech comes in their second meeting. Westerly won the first game, and incidentally, it was her only victory of the season. Tech also has won but one game, so this game does not look very promising for high grade football. This is a league tilt, bringing together two-thirds of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic athletic council. The remainder of this loop and the leader, Stonington, is playing the Academy.

Windham goes to South Manchester for the annual battle with its traditional rival. The Thread City crew seemed to right itself last week by "taking" Bristol, and Callaghan's men will be striving hard to close the season with a win and thereby partially make up for the losses to Hartford and the Academy. Windham should win by two touchdowns.

The Academy's cross country team closes its season against Stonington between the halves of the football game Saturday. The locals have had a fairly successful campaign, winning two meets and finishing third in a field of four in the Interscholastics. The victories were over Westerly and Bulkeley (N. L.) Capt. Holdridge, Weisgraber, Lyons, Navick, Peck and Laskowitz will carry the major part of the local burden. The Academy should win this run, as they finished well ahead of the "Farmers" in the Interscholastics.

M'MAHON ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO WALKER AND FLOWERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—Acting on legal advice, Matchmaker Jess McMahon of Madison Square Garden today announced he had given the managers of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and Tiger Flowers, former titleholder, five days in which to agree to a title match at the garden, under the terms of a year-old agreement.

According to McMahon, Jack Kearns, as manager for Walker, and Walker Miller, representing Flowers, signed contracts a year ago for a championship match, at a time when Flowers was the middleweight king. Subsequently, Walker fought Flowers in Chicago, last December, and won the title on a decision that aroused considerable dispute.

At that time, Flower's manager, Miller, claimed an agreement under which the Georfia Negro was to get a return championship match but Walker and Kearns declined to recognize it. Now McMahon, with still another signed document, hopes to bring the pair together in the garden this winter with the support of lawyers who contend the agreement still holds good.

GEORGETOWN WILL PLAY GAME FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—The Georgetown university team is willing to meet Dartmouth, Brown or Harvard in a post season football game for the benefit of the New England flood sufferers, Coach Lou Little, of the Hilltoppers, announced today. Suggestion of such a contest was made to Little by William S. O'Gorman, a Georgetown graduate of Manchester, N. H.

The Washington eleven, defeated this season only by Syracuse and boasting an eleven that ran up more points on opponents than any other team in the east, would prefer to play in the Harvard stadium at Cambridge, Mass., on November 26, Little said. He suggested that the entire proceeds of the contest, with the exception of limited expenses, be turned over to flood relief work and to aid sufferers.

Two weeks will elapse, however, before all six of the title contenders are in action. Dartmouth's Quintet which captured the championship last season for the first time, opens with Yale at New Haven, Jan. 7. Columbia's five starts off with Dartmouth, at New York, Jan. 9, while Cornell swings into action Jan. 14 at Ithaca with Yale.

The complete schedule:

AGGIES RUN THROUGH FROSH IN PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 16—Both the attack and defense received considerable attention here in practice today as the Connecticut Aggies continue preparations at top speed for the Boston college game to be played on Clarkin field, Hartford, Saturday.

Coach Louis Alexander's freshman squad, armed with B. C. Plays and formations scrimmaged the varsity again today, though with little success from the standpoint of ground gained. The line presented a solid front that threw back the yearlings time after time, and in the secondary a fine piece of work was done in batting down or intercepting forward passes. The Aggies have been weak al year against forwards, though improvement has been noticeable in the last few days.

Offensively the varsity showed a flash of the power so apparent in the Maine and Springfield games earlier in the season. This is a good indication, for the Aggies' running attack must be at its best if the State college eleven is to give Boston college real opposition. Both Captain Eddy and Pop Williams carried the ball for long gains, as was expected, but Arthur Haversatt, Seymour youth, surprised them all. Three times he broke away for long runs that resulted in touchdowns, his speed in each case being sufficient to carry him once his team mates cleared the way beyond the line of scrimmage. Haversatt has been a dependable reserve halfback this season, and there is every indication that he will play Saturday against Boston college.

CROSBY, HARVARD STAR, NOT TO START AGAINST YALE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16,—(AP)—Little chance that Joe Crosby, Harvard backfield ace, will start the game against Yale on Saturday was held out today when it became known that an infection on his nose had become worse and that he was confined to the college infirmary. The infection developed Monday but until today it was thought he would be able to play. His general condition has suffered on account of the infection, with the result that he is not expected to be in good playing form.

With Crosby out, the Crimson backfield will probably be composed of Gordon Brown, a Art French, Dave Guarnaccia and Joe Potter, the same combination that started against Brown last week. This backfield was used on team A in a dummy scrimmage against team B and also against the ineligibles.

Coach Horween put the team through another long passing drill today followed by kicking practice. Considerable time was devoted to a number of new plays which will be used against the Elis.

Horween gave some indication about the line he will start against Yale and it is considered likely that he will have Strong and Douglas at the ends, Captain Pratt and Clark at tackle, Parkinson and Simonds at guard and Dudley Bell at center. With the exception of Douglas and Bell, this is the same line that faced Brown.

The last hard drill of the season will be held tomorrow, while the program for Friday will be centered around a light drill on new plays.

Two boys from the Sub base, Chick Shelman and Ed Erdman, will be entered and it is expected that Erdman and Burlap will be one of the feature matches.

Silloway is a member of the class of 1929 and played end on the team this season. Silloway will make the fourth end who has captained the Wesleyan team in consecutive years.

TIGER FLOWERS DIES FOLLOWING OPERATION

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion of the world, died tonight after a minor operation.

Death of the Negro "Georgia Deacon" was announced through the office of Walk Miller, manager of Flowers, after any information concerning the fighter's condition was refused at the private hospital of Dr. W. G. Fralick, where the operation was performed late today.

Miller said that Flowers, after submitting to a minor operation for removal of a growth over his left eye, rallied from the ether in fairly satisfactory condition, but suffered a sinking spell some hours later and died shortly after 8 p. m.

GREENEVILLE DOWNS EAST SIDE IN ELKS BOWLING LEAGUE

The bowling tournament is well under way at the Elks' club with increasing interest on the part of the members and a strong rivalry developing among the teams representing various sections of the town. Wednesday evening, the East Side and Greeneville teams clashed, with the East Siders going down to ignominious defeat, losing all three games. The vanquished fought for every pin, but attributed their defeat to the absence of Riley, one of the stars of the team. On the Greeneville team the bright star of the egoinevn eprvd SEnSEHT star of the evening proved to be Kramer, another "Red Grange" who was found delivering ice in the bushes of that district and rushed to bolster up the Greeneville outfit. He came through with the goods, registering high single for the evening, 123. Purdon being high for the three string pinfall, with a total of 320 pins. Teams and scores follows:

THREE INJURED YALE PLAYERS HETURN TO FOLD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Hoben, Webster and Garvey returned to the Yale varsity lineup today but not for long. Of the three who were discharged from the infirmary shortly before practice, Garvey showed the most improvement and was left in for 10 minutes.

Hoben, still weak on his pins, stayed in for only five minutes and Webster was pulled out after not more than a minute. The Yale coaches say, however, that the three will at least start in the Harvard game, although they may not be left in for long.

Today's practice consisted for the most part of signal drills and the coaches reiterated their statement of earlier in the week, that they would not under any circumstances put the men through any stiff paces which might result in more casualties before the Harvard game.

It appears certain now that Hall, Hammersley and Billhardt will be used in the Harvard game as all three went in today for the second time after Hoben, Garvey and Webster had been dismissed.

Hall will play Webster's position, Hammersley will go in for Garvey and Billhardt for Hoben, if the three are unable to play the full game.

Tomorrow's practice will be along the same lines of that of today and not any stiffer.

ACADEMY HOLDS HOUR OF STIFF SCRIMMAGE

A lengthy scrimmage occupied Wednesday afternoon for the Academy's football team when a reinforced second team battled a weakened regular eleven for over an hour.

The scrubs had Jack Hinrichs and Jim Fenton for the session and they assisted materially in halting the first string red-shirted crew.

The varsity was minus Johnny Greene, end, Kahn, tackle, and McGlone and Tirrell, backs. A weakness in the forward pass department, their best bet previously was noted as time and again the seconds batted the pill down or intercepted it.

The McGlone-Greene combination, which had forward passed the Academy, many yards ahead to date this season seems now broken up for good with McGlone out with a bum shoulder. However, Greene is expected to be ready by Saturday and so are Kahn and Tirrell. A reliable tosser is now being sought by Whitney for it seems fairly certain that the Academy will have to bring this style of play into action Saturday if a win is desired.

Stonington is working hard for the fray and upon winning will claim the eastern Connecticut championship, notwithstanding her 19 to 6 defeat from Windham, a team that the Academy beat 7 to 0.

It seems that the Academy will have to win Saturday to have a clear claim to the sectional championship.

DEMPSEY AND PARTY WERE NOT IN DANGER

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 16—(AP)—Although Jack Dempsey, Tex Rickard and about twenty others believed they narrowly escaped death today when the elevator in which they were riding "dropped" from the ninth floor to the basement of the chamber of commerce building, it was only an elevator operator's mistake.

It had been planned to have Dempsey go to the basement of the building to avoid the crowds. In the building there is only one elevator that goes below the street level.

Dempsey and his party didn't take that elevator and when the operator of the car in which they rode was instruct not to stop before he got to the basement, in the excitement of having such personages riding with him, forgot his machine didn't go below the first floor.

After passing the first floor doors on its descent, the car stopped with barely a jolt. The power had been automatically cut off.

With Dempsey and Rickard in the car were Deputy United States Marshals James Donnelly and John Eckerline and Lieut. John J. Broderick of the New York detective bureau.

BRODA WILL PLAY PRO FOOTBALL WITH BULLDOGS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—Hal Broda, captain and star end of Brown's famous "Iron Men" of 1926, has turned professional and signed to play with the Cleveland Bulldogs of the National league for the rest of the season, according to word received here today from C. C. Pyle, promoter and manager of Red Grange.

Broda, Pyle advised, will play his first game at Providence this Sunday, and will be with the Cleveland team when it meets Grange's New York Yankees here Thanksgiving day.

PLAINFIELD PROS LOSE CLOSE BATTLE TO THE BRISTOL ENDEES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 16.—The Plainfield Pros suffered their first defeat of the season here tonight at the Community house, going down 19 to 17 before the Bristol Endees in a bitterly fought affair before a large crowd.

The outcome was in doubt right up to the final whistle for these teams fought and fought throughout. At no stage of the game did more than two points separate the contestants as they swung through the 40 minutes of hot battling.

Kesky Feldman, Bristol right forward opened the scoring with a field goal after eight minutes of real defensive work and close guarding, but Dissinger evened it up shortly after. This apres only tended to prod the teams into more action and at half time neither had beben able to do very much in the scoring line. The score was 7 to 5 at the intermission.

The second half opened in much the same fashion as when hostilities ceased ten minutes before with plenty of exciting dashes and shots on the program. Dissinger was high scorer for the evening with nine points. Jim Manning showed a nice game for the winners.

Plainfield lost, but that's about all for she furnished a nifty battle. The teams meet Saturday night at Bristol and things may then be different.

In the preliminary, a freer scoring affair than the main attraction the Buddies won over the U. S. S. Camden 29 to 20. The younger talent of Plainfield showed well here and they will no doubt be able t ouphold their end of all aruments again this year.

The Purple Collegians of Worcester with former Holy Cross stars in the lineup oppose Plainfield next Wednesday at the Community house.

SLATTERY MUST DEFEND TITLE WITHIN 30 DAYS

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Thomas E. Donahue, president of the National Boxing association has given Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, the holder of the National Boxing association's light heavyweight title, 30 days in which to defend his title against Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., or forfeit his crown, in a telegram sent to Paul Carr, Slattery's manager, today.

The telegram follows: "Since you have reached no agreement to have Slattery meet Loughran and since the National Boxing association wants immediate action, you will have to arrange for a meeting with Leo Lomski who is a contender, within 20 days or forfeit the crown."

(Signed)

"THOMAS E. DONAHUE."

President Donahue's emphatic message to Manager Carr came about when Donahue was informed that Carr was unable to come to terms with Joe Smith, Loughran's manager, for a light heavyweight title bout.

In the event that Slattery disregards President Donahue's edict and does not sign the necessary papers agreeing to meet Lomski within 30 days, the National Boxing association probably will agree to a light heavyweight championship bout between Loughran and Lomski.

SHARKEY TO APPEAR BEFORE N. Y. COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, "will voluntarily appear before the New York boxing commission Friday and submit his injured left hand for examination by one of the commission's doctors," his manager, Johnny Buckley, advised the Associated Press today in a telegram, from Boston.

Buckley's action is prompted by the commission's investigation of Sharkey's injury, reported as a fracture of the small finger, which caused the postponement of a match with Heeney, scheduled this Friday at Madison Square Garden.

Examination of Sharkey's hand by Dr. Klein, physician of the Massachusetts boxing commission, revealed a "slight swelling but no evidence of recent fracture," according to word received by Bert Stand, secretary of the New York board. Dr. Klein's examination was made at the request of New York authorities, who will withhold final judgment until Sharkey is examined here.

Coombs has piloted the Exeter team for two years as quarterback and will serve his second successive year as baseball captain next spring.

DEMPSEY-KEARNS BOUT EVEN-1ST ROUND

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 16—(AP)—Honors were described as even by spectators who filled the tiny court room today in which the legal battle between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, had its first round before Federal Judge William N. Runyon. It was a day filled with all manner of excitement, including a nine-story drop of an elevator carrying Dempsey, Tex Rickard, Arthur F. Driscoll, of the boxer's counsel and about 20 others.

The "drop" had no element of danger being caused by the operator running past all floors to avoid the crowds and ignoring the fact that his car was supposed to halt at the first. The current was automatically cut off when the car went by the street level."

Kearns is suing the former champion for $333,333.33, alleging breach of contract signed on Sept. 22, 1923.

The trial got under way at noon with the selection of the jury, and ran smoothly enough until after the drop of the elevator, when Driscoll returned to court and began his opening address to the jury, declaring that the alleged contract was "merely a scrap of paper designed to deceive the New York state athletic commission." He explained that it "was all right with Dempsey," and added that Kearns signed both names to the paper, realizing that it was "only a scrap of paper."

The document, however, was returned by the commision and Dempsey himself signed the next one. It was only for the purpose of paving the way for the Dempsey-Firpo fight, Driscoll announced, pointing out that Dempsey always shared 50-50 with Kearns, yet the contract called for a 67-33 split. The tract was signed on Sept. 22, 1923, and was to be retroactive to Sept. 14, the day of the Firpo fight, he said. Kearns said that the agreement was retroactive to Aug. 3, 1923, and was effective until Aug. 3, 1926.

Appearance of the case on today's calendar ended a game of pitch and toss which lasted for more than a year. Filed originally in chancery court, it was transferred to the federal courts and then their own from one judge to the other, Judge Runyon catching it on the third rebound.

Tex Rickard was in the court room seated with Dempsey and his army of legal talent, and in the Kearns camp was Mickey Walker, middle weight champion of the world.

Billy Gibson, manager of Champion Gene Tunney, was also present.

DANIELSON

TWO SUB BASE SAILORS IN HOSPITAL FOLLOWING ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 16.—A slippery state highway surface was a contributing factor, early this morning, in sending William Carow, Submarine base sailor, to the hospital and in stunning his companion, E. J. Gregory, and also a sailor from the base, when the motorcycle on which they were riding was in a crash with a car driven by Harry Duchaime, of Waterbury.

The accident happened about 6:35 on North Main street, near the residence of F. E. Storer. It appears the sailors were trailing the Duchaime car and were bound south from Worcester to the Submarine base, when Duchaime attempted to pull out to the left to pass a car that was ahead of him. Finding traffic difficulties, Duchaime is said to have applied his brakes to get back on the right side of the highway and that when he did his car skidded, the young men on the motorcycle being either side-swiped by it or crashing into it. There appears to be different versions of exactly what did happen.

Carow, driver of the motorcycle, and Gregory were shot off the machine and through the air. When Carow was picked up, he was believed to be fatally injured. He was hurried to the office of Dr. George M. Burroughs, as was Gregory, and given treatment. Carow, bleeding profusely, appeared to be on the verge of passing on at one time, but he revived eventually. His injuries consist of two fractured ribs, injury to the right knee and he was cut on the face and near one eye. After treatment at the offices of Dr. Burrough, the injured men were taken to the state police barracks on North Main street, near where the accident occurred. Gregory, badly bruised and dazed hours after the accident, managed to get himself together well enough to take a bus out of here at 11:10, en route for the Submarine base, while Carow was removed from the barracks later for hospital treatment, at Putnam.

MISS AYLWARD PRESENTED SERVICE BUTTON AT BANQUET

DANIELSON, Nov. 16.—There is such a thing as being so surprised as to be left practically speechless and wholly uncertain what to do about it all, and exactly that happened to Miss Katherine D. Aylward, chief operator of the Danielson office of the Southern New England Telephone company, tonight.

Lured on some innocent pretext to stop in at the Attawaugan hotel, she found assembled there officials of the company in the New London district and employes from the Danielson, Putnam, Moosup and New London divisions to honor her, as she soon discovered, in a very special manner, the party numbering about 40.

The occasion marked the presentation to Miss Aylward of a 25-year service button by District Traffic Supt. A. L. Osborn, of New London, in recognition of her long and efficient record with the company.

Manager E. L. Beebe, of the Putnam, Danielson and Moosup exchanges, presided as toastmaster at the dinner that was made a feature of the presentation event, and among those who felicitated Miss Aylward was District Commercial Superintendent R. H. Gray, of New London. Also offering congratulations on behalf of the traffic department, in which Miss Aylward serves, was Miss Helen E. White, a traffic representative from New London.

The dinner menu was:

Fruit Salad
Mulligatawney Soup
Individual Chicken Pies
Celery Olives Pickles Lettuce
Mashed Potatoes Squash
Mashed Turnep
Cranberry Sauce
Hot Apple Pie with Ice Cream
Tea Coffee

Not an inkling of the arrangements being made to honor her reached Miss Aylward's ears, and it may be left for one to imagine how stunned she was over the whole affair and at some loss for words, under the stress of the moment, to express her very great appreciation.

Music, with singing, and a dance period followed the dinner.

Prior to dinner in honor of Miss Aylward, a meeting of the Telephone employes' association was held.

ANTHONY GZESAK CHARGED WITH RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 16.—Anthony Gzesak, 19, of Goodyear, came into the town court this morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving growing out of an accident at Dayville last evening in which his little sister, Eleanor, 7, who was riding with him on the truck he was driving, suffered a fracture at the base of the skull. The case was adjourned until next Monday.

Early last evening, Gzesak's machine crashed into a horse-drawn vehicle owned and driven by Frank Eldridge, who lives about two miles east of here on the South Killingly road. One of the horses in the Eldridge team had a leg broken in the smash and later was shot by State Officer Donald J. Geddes of the Danielson barracks.

Dr. C. Redvers Garcin, of Dayville, who attended the injured child, said this morning that while the fracture is a dangerous injury, it is not likely to cause death in this instance.

Mrs. Arthimase Garen, 71, wife of Joseph Garen, is dead at their home on the West Side. Mrs. Garen, who was a native of Canada, resident in this country for many years, leaves her husband, two sons and a daughter.

With the good organization that has been perfected, the Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross is pressing steadily ahead this week with its annual roll call drive. Early reports tend to indicate that the people of Danielson, who are being approached, are showing their hearty interest in the great work the Red Cross regularly and happy to share in supporting it.

Another illustration of how the Red Cross works was given this week at Pittsburgh, where within an hour after the gas tank explosion that laid waste to a square mile of the city, killing many and injuring hundreds, a Red Cross emergency station was open and Red Cross workers were ministering to the injured. Red Cross members, the country over, feel that they have had a little share in that splendid showing, as well in all the good works of this famous organization.

This week's meeting, Thursday afternoon, of the Roundabout club, is to be held with Mrs. A. E. Withington.

Exceptionally heavy fogs have made night driving very dangerous this week, and has been the means of cutting traffic to the minimum.

An Armistice day sermon was preached Sunday at the Goodyear Community church by Rev. C. A. Downs, whose text was chosen from Isaiah 2:4, and the subject: The Spirit of War and the Spirit of Peace Compared. Other activities of the church for the week included a meeting of the Woman's club, and the presentation of the Sunday school class banner for the best attendance to the C. I. C. class of which Mrs. C. A. Downs is teacher.

The first of the Masonic whists to be held in the new Masonic home, at 3 Broad street, brought a sufficient number last evening to fill 34 tables. Mrs. L. S. Ingalls was the general chairman in charge of the arrangements. First honors for the ladies went to Mrs. Kenneth Michle, Dayville, second to Mrs. Oliver Bassett, Dayville, and consolation to Mrs. Wilfred Pluze. Honors for the gentlemen went to Albert Redmen and James Shipman and the consolation to Charles B. Hutchins. Refreshments of chicken sandwiches and coffee were served, with Mrs. Katherine Bard, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. A. Knox, of Sterling, in charge.

A special effort is being made to get out a large attendance at the next Monday evening's meeting of Killingly grange, when officers are to be elected for the ensuing year. It is being pointed out that as the welfare of the grange is quite largely in the hands of its officers, it is imperative that those who have the best interests of the order at heart should be present and help elect officers who will faithfully perform their duties.

There is a revival of hope among the players that arrangements can be made to have basketball games here during the winter season.

A crew remains at work on the new bridge over Blackwell's brook on the Brooklyn-Canterbury road, favored by excellent weather. A temporary bridge is in use where the construction is underway.

The merchants committee of the Chamber of Commerce has completed its plans for a special merchandising campaign to run through the entire holiday season.

PUTNAM

WOODSTOCK'S HISTORY GIVEN AT D. A. R. MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 16—Following the regular business meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., the program was turned over to the members from Woodstock with Mrs. W. C. Child as chairman.

Mrs. Child announced that the program was to be on the history of Woodstock, but first introduced Miss Louise Lawton of that town who sang a group of songs with Mrs. Merritt of the same town as accompanist. The first paper "How Woodstock Began" was read by Mrs. Myrtle C. Jordan.

Woodstock began in 1674 when the first white settlers came from Roxbury, Mass., and called the settlement "New Roxbury." This band of settlers was called Goers and the ones remaining at Roxbury were called Goers. They were called a very laborious people and to go they must be 21 years old. In 1686 they took possession of the land and selected home sites on Plain Hill. Mrs. Jordan also quoted and read from The History of Woodstock written by Clarence Bowen and also made several references to Rev. John Elliott who preached to the Indians and was called "The Apostle to the Indians."

Mrs. Albert H. Williams then gave the history of Woodstock church. She said, "Woodstock was named in 1690 and steadily grew in population until the Revolutionary war period. The first thing after planting a settlement was to establish a church and in Woodstock the first religious services were held at Pulpit Rock near Woodstock Hill, and then the Wabaquasett Hall. Within two years a new church and minister's house had been built. Another church was built in 1717, and from time to time ever since new churches have been built in the different sections of the town, the last one being the Swedish church on Woodstock Hill."

Miss Sarah Potter read a very interesting paper on the Pond Factory in the English Neighborhood. She told of the various industries that had been carried on in that part of Woodstock, cloth and carpets had been manufactured there, as well as many other useful things. The name English Neighborhood is supposed to have been started from some early settled by the name of English.

Mrs. J. Richard Carpenter of Putnam read from her mother's scrap book, two accounts written by the late Miss Ellen Larned who writes of attending a Sunday school convention July 4, 1833 "when the hot sun beat down upon those in attendance with no welcome shade trees there." Another convention in the early nineties which Miss Larned attended she spoke of the "beauties of Woodstock with its beautiful shade trees."

The last paper prepared by Mrs. Elizabeth Flynn Bingham of Springfield, Mass., and read by Mrs. Child told of the Revolutionary period. It told of the muster roll of the men of Woodstock, of their training field, (now the common) and of their patriotism and their sacrifices. Not only did Woodstock furnish men to respond to the call for liberty and freedom from oppression but furnished amunition to further the cause. It sent wool with which to make garments, at one time 65 sheep were sent to Boston in ox carts which was afterwards acknowledged by General Lyon. The famous McClellan elms at South Woodstock were planted by Mrs. McClellan who planted the young trees while her husband was away at war. Among the soldiers and patriots of Woodstock was Dr. Joshua Holmes whose grave is in Woodstock Hill cemetery and who was the grandfather of Dr. Oliver Wendall Holmes.

At the conclusion of the program, a rising vote of thanks was given the Woodstock members of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter for giving one of the most interesting programs listened to for a number of years.

For the first time since the members of the Elks' lodge and the members of the Masonic lodge have had weekly tournaments at cards, which extends back more than a year with a recess during the hot months, the Masons won the majority of the games last night. As a rule, in the past the Masons have lost at auction bridge which is becoming the most popular card game but in this encounter they won that in a score of 8 to 2. There were twenty tables in play, the Masons winning by a total score of 12 to 8. The score follows with the names of the Elks appearing first:

Auction bridge—Milot and Lewis won from Dean and Simpson; Chadwick and Gagne lost to Freeman and Alpert; Champlin and W. Averill lost to Morse and Geissler; Girard and Wheelock lost to Sherman and Stanton; Cotter and Murray lost to Brousseau and Miner; Frasier and Lafrance lost to Holden and Miron; Rafferty and Gagne won from Johnson and Potter; Backus and A. Averill lost to Jenkins and W. Wheatop; Phillips and McIntyre lost to Rich and Duffy; Mansfield and Appleby lost to Johnson and Padgett—Elks 2, Masons 8.

Bid whist—Miller and Brousseau won from Mellor and Chase; Migneault and Bulger won from Diamond and Moss; Birth and Cavanaugh lost to Merriam and Baldwin; Gallant and Kerouack won from Schoonover and Shaw; Wheatley and Bourgeois won from Gifford and King; Richard and Berthiaume lost to Thurston and Arnold; Talbot and Lapire lost to Seward and Baker—Elks 4, Masons 3.

Cribbage—Wheaton and Wheaton lost to Loomis and Twigg; Welch and J. Rafferty won from deCoudres and Marcy; Tetreault and Lizotte won from Wheaton and Thayer—Elks 2, Masons 1. Total score, Elks 8 and Masons 12.

The following appeal is being made by the Thanksgiving committee of the woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital to the people of Putnam and surrounding towns who have such generous access to this most worthy institution.

In no sense an endowed institution, this hospital renders the same service to this community and cares for its proportion of traffic accidents, which are steadily growing larger, as do the hospitals of large cities. Its equipment is modern in every way; its staff, both on the medical and surgical side comprise the best professional talent in the country, and its nursing service is equal to the best.

For the care of its non-paying patients, the Day Kimball hospital depends upon a comparatively small allowance from the state and from the aid secured by the Woman's board, the Hospital guild and other interested citizens. The Thanksgiving committee through its chairman makes the following statement:

"The Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital makes their annual appeal to the public of Putnam and neighboring towns for Thanksgiving offerings. Donations of money, fruit, vegetables or canned goods received at the vacant store below Bonneville's clothing store at the corner of Main and Pomfret street, Putnam on Saturday, November 19, or Monday, November 21.

"All grocery stores and fruit stands in Putnam have a supply of hospital bags which they will gladly fill if you leave the order with them.

MRS. J. DYER POTTER,
Chairman."

A surprise party was held last Friday evening to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Williams of this city. The event was planned by the neighbors and the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Rich of Woodstock avenue was thrown open for the occasion.

The home was tastefully decorated with yellow predominating and the neighbors presented Mr. and Mrs. Williams with a huge vase of yellow chrysanthemums. A huge golden cake holding fifty lighted candles was prepared by Mrs. Herman Johnson. Dainty refreshments were served consisting of ice cream, cake, cookies and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams were married at Eastford, November 11, 1877 and made their home on a farm in Woodstock until their removal to Woodstock avenue about twenty-five years ago.

James E. Barnes has been chosen as personal tax collector for the town of Putnam by the town selectmen. Taxes are payable on December 7, 8, 9, and 10. A penalty of $1 is added if not paid at that time.

Arrangements have been made for the whist tournament between the Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows and the Cargill Council Knights of Columbus. The first night's play will be on Thursday, December 1, at the Knights of Columbus rooms on Union street and the following week they play will be at the Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street. The play wil laternate every week during the continuance of the tournament.

Funeral services for Hermone Mompas aged 83 years, who died last Saturday at the Day Kimball hospital were held Tuesday morning form St. Joseph's church at North Grosvenordale with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery. Mr. Mompas had lived at North Grosvenordale for many years.

Flora Tanachea, the five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Soter Tanaches was held from St. Joseph's church at North Grosvenordale this morning. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

WESTERLY

PAWTUCKET SCHOOL BOYS MAKE TROUBLE FOR PARENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 16—Edmund Galvin, 17, and William Callahan, 14, sophomores, at Pawtucket, R. I., high school, who were aprehended Tuesday evening at Saybrook by Connecticut state troopers, following their theft of a Hudson coach of Arthur L. Perry, parked in front of the Westerly Colonial club, were before Judge Oliver H. Williams in the third district court Wednesday afternoon. They were brought from Groton barracks to Westerly Wednesday at 11 a. m. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Officer Leroy H. Norman, accompanied by Treasurer A. L. Perry of the Washington Trust company went to the Connecticut state barracks at Groton and returned with the young men and the automobile which was damaged. The fathers of both boys after being notified had gone to Groton and returned to Westerly to appear for them before Judge Williams. The court placed the Pawtucket youths on probation, in custody of their fathers, to report to the district probation officer.

Westerly officers learned at 9 p. m. Tuesday that a state trooper had endeavored to stop them at the Saybrook bridge over the Connecticut river, but additional speed was put on by the operator of the stolen Westerly auto and the trooper was passed. He secured aid and when the car turned off toward Saybrook point, instead of proceeding on the Boston post road, the occupants were caught when they could proceed no farther. They were brought back to Groton.

In the hearing before Judge Williams the Galvin boy's father said that his son did not want to continue in school and when he had stayed out late at night about two weeks ago, the father had taken him to task and he had given him a sound thrashing the day before he ran away from home. Both boys had come to Westerly from Pawtucket in a truck and on arriving here had sought an automobile to continue their journey when they became short of funds.

The father of the Callahan boy informed the judge that he had two sons in the same class in high school and when his business was not successful one of the boys left school to go to work. The other decided that he also did not wish to continue school and left with his classmate whom he had known two years. Before the boys were allowed to return home with the parents they were given a stiff warning by Judge Williams.

The following transfer has been recorded in the town clerk's office: Nov. 16. Lillian G. Mitchell to James Ferraro, land on the north side of Atlantic avenue, No. 9 plat of rear beach lots at Pleasant View beach, with improvements and buildings, together with a right of way to the ocean.

The large Erie steam shovel of Samuel Nardone and Co., Inc., which has been at work at the gravel bank near Railroad drive for the New Haven railroad was moved Wednesday morning to the site of the former storage garage of Carl V. Brucker on Railroad avenue, recently torn down on property of the estate of Albert L. Chester. The digger was started on the excavation for the basement of the new business block, to be built between the Ford station building and the Chester block.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With the cold weather bound to arrive very shortly work on local building projects is being rushed along, especially the concrete and plaster work. Of course today with the salamanders, heaters and quick drying plaster and cement the weather does not interfere with building operations as much as in the old days but contractors are always trying to avoid the cold weather work if possible.

Plasterers have practically completed the plastering of the house for Dr. James J. Donohue on the Norwich-Taftville road. The rough plaster has all been put on and work on the hard finish is well along. As soon as the plasterers are through the floors will be laid.

The house which is being erected for George Dolbeare on West Thames street is well along. The studing has been erected and the work of boarding in the house will be almost completed this week.

Work on the eight story addition to the Silberman block on Main street is progressing very rapidly and during the past week much work has been done. The steel superstructure is nearly all set in place. The floors on the first, second and third stories have been laid and the brick walls of the building are now up three and a half stories.

The H. Wales Lines Co., which has the Norwich State hospital ward contract is well along on the work and the foundation is being laid. A large force of masons are being employed on the job.

The house for Clifford C. Oat at the corner of Dunham and West Main streets is completed and will be ready for occupancy this week. The house contains six rooms and bath and is finished in hardwood and hardfinish plaster on the interior while the exterior is finished in clapboards and cedar shingles. There is a single car garage in the rear of the house.

The East Great Plain section of the town is building up rapidly and this year will see a record increase in the number of new dwelling houses in this section of the city. The Norwich Town section, especially along the Norwich-Taftville road, is also building up rapidly at least a half dozen new buildings being erected there during the past ten months.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week there were several permits granted and a number of building applications received, the majority being for the smaller buildings and alterations.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

The real estate market showed a slight falling off last week as compared to the corresponding week in 1926. Last week in Norwich there were but seven sales which was two less than in 1926. The mortgage loans however showed an increase there being $31,150 as compared to $30,380 in 1926.

In New London during the past week there were eight sales of real estate, exactly the same number as during the same w ek a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $79,305 and $37,800.

New London.

Fourteen permits for new houses, making the total for the year 108 representing an accumulation of three weeks, were issued by the council this week, adding materially to the building conditions of the city. There were also eight new garages included in the list and 10 miscellaneous permits for alterations, additions, etc.

Present indications are that the amount of building for 1927 will not reach that for 1926, especially in the commercial and industrial lines. While 1926 was marked by the construction of industrial and commercial buildings, some of exceptional importance, there has been a marked lack of new buildings of this type started under construction or finished this year. In the matter of new houses it is possible that the figure for this year will exceed last year's total of 127 although it is quite problematical. To do this at least 30 more new houses must be started before the first of the year. In view of the anticipated slump with the coming of cold weather the prospects are not exceptionally bright.

The foundation has been completed for a new frame cottage being built for Sergt. William T. Babcock of the police department. The new structure is located in Crocker street and will have a frontage of 36 feet and a depth of 36 feet. The structure will be of modern design with seven rooms and bath and built-in garage. It will be equipped with all modern improvements including steam heat, and modern electrical and plumbing fixtures, and hardwood floors.

Work has been started on another two-family house in Colman street. The new structure will have a frontage of 24 feet and a depth of 50 feet with a six room apartment on each floor. The usual conveniences and modern improvements are specified in the private plans.

A local builder has been awarded the contract for the construction of another new cottage in Ledyard street for Annie M. Hislop. The new house will have a frontage of 26 feet and a depth of 30 feet, arranged with two stories and single family occupancy. From private plans the structure will be of frame construction and modern design with all modern improvements and conveniences.

Applications for Building Permits.

Mary Sullivan, brick addition, Water street, $1,500.

Silas Maxson, Jr., cottage, Ocean avenue, $6,000.

H. R. Griswold, two-family house, Ledyard street, $9,000.

Mrs. M. McGarry, sun parlor, 42 Lillee street, $500.

Total number of applications for the week, 8; estimated cost of buildings, $17,100.

NORWICH ONE OF TWELVE CITIES TO SHOW GAIN

Increased building activity was recorded in twelve Connecticut communities during the month of October as compared with that month in 1926, according to monthly building figures compiled by the New Haven railroad through its committee on industrial development. There were also twelve communities in the state which showed increased volumes of building permits in comparison with their figures of September. In comparing the October figures with those of last month, however, it is found that the larger cities in the state suffered some slackening in building operations.

Hartford continued to hold its lead on the Connecticut list with $1,890,398 worth of building permits issued during the month. The next highest figure was the $413,460 recorded in Greenwich. Cities showing gains over October 1926 were Bristol, Bridgeport, West Haven, Waterbury and Willimantic, while the communities which issued building permits in excess of their September totals were Bristol, Danbury, Derby, Hamden, Middletown, Naugatuck, New London, Norwalk, Norwich, Waterbury, West Hartford and Willimantic.

The New Haven road figures as issued by E. L. Taylor, secretary of the committee on industrial development, are as follows:

Mother!

Child Gets Sick, Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

LIBERTY HILL

MR. AND MRS. J. GEORGE CLARK REACH GOLDEN WEDDING

An event which always arouses a keen interest in any community as it occurs now and then, was noted here Monday afternoon when friends and neighbors, near and far, gathered in the church rooms to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. Geo. Clark. According to the records, J. Geo. Clark of Hampton and Mary A. Bass of Lebanon were on the fourteenth day of November, 1877, united in holy matrimony. For a large part of this half century Mr. and Mrs. Clark have lived at Liberty Hill. As with one accord the neighbors came together in expression of the affection in which this good couple is held. That the impression of this affection might be lasting, a purse of gold, containing a generous over-count of dollars above the fifty golden years, was presented Mr. and Mrs. Clark. The floral decorations were attractive, the hospitable women of the church served refreshments, messages of congratulations from distant relatives were received and with many a god-speed for future years of service, the happy event was duly celebrated.

Guests present and represented, from out of town were. Prof. Frederick A. Verplanck and Mrs. Verplanck, South Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Lewis, Hampton, Albert Burnham and family, Quidnick, R. NOANK

The members of the Saturday Night club left the village on Tuesday, bound for Ledyard, where a chicken pie supper and dance was on the bulletin board for the evening. As they were getting near the church, a black and white skunk was taking it easy, along the country road and would not let the auto pass, walking like a policeman during duty. For 20 minutes he led the automobiles; it was a long line of cars behind the black and white kitty. After a while, it ran into the woods. Reaching the church where supper was being served to a big crowd, the Noankers almost lost out, but at table No. 1, five places were reserved for the Saturday club members. After putting away a famous Ledyard supper with seven kinds of cakes, over across the green was the Grange hall where dancing took place. With the Acme orchestra from Jewett City right there with the music, it was the largest crowd ever gotten in that hall, over 350 people. Square sets were put on and Prof. Harry Douglas, who has been calling off for the last 25 years, kept them on the go. During intermission, Billie Fitzgerald was at the piano and several New London girls sang and danced, also gave a piano duet. AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

BIRDS FEEDING ON INJURIOUS INSECTS ACT AS CROP SAVERS

Birds in general are useful as well as beautiful. Without birds to keep the insect pests in check it would be more difficult to grow food. They also eat many weed seeds and so give a better chance for the planted seeds. The Biological Survey finds, however, that some birds are not beneficial and this branch of the United States Department of Agriculture studies the birds in order to be able to inform farmers and legislators as to their comparative merits. As a general rule, the birds that eat largely of insect foods—for example, the wren and the nighthawk—are particularly valuable. On the other hand, the gray grosbeak and the brilliantly colored painted bunting are valuable because they depend for a great part of their food on troublesome weeds, such as the foxtail and pigeon grass seeds.

The barn owl, like other owls, commonly is shot on sight, but ought not to be, for it is one of the most serviceable birds in destroying small rodents, particularly the pocket gophers in the west. For its size, the house wren is one of the most effective bird enemies of the insects. Wrens usually rear two broods of young each year, and the parents keep busy from morning to night bringing food for the hungry young. The wren's diet is almost exclusively animal, and a pair of wrens will account for an enormous number of insects in a season.

The boat-tailed grackle is one of the few birds that do more damage than good. It is fond of corn in all stages, from the first ears to the ripened grain, destroys much rice, and gets few injurious insects, because it gets most of its animal food from the small marine animals along the seashore.

BLACK CURRANT IS NURSE OF WHITE-PINE BLISTER RUST

The European black currant is a public nuisance, because it acts as an advance guard in spreading the white-pine blister rust, a disease of foreign origin which is destructive to all of our American white (or five-leafed) pines, says Samuel B. Detwiler, chief blister-rust specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The blister rust requires two distinctly different kinds of host plants for completing its life cycle. The spores that infect the pines are produced on the leaves of currant or gooseberry bushes and transmitted to the pines through the air. In turn, the currants and gooseberries become infected from the spores produced on the pines. While all species of currant and gooseberry plants take the disease to some extent, the European black currant is so susceptible that a single spot on one leaf may completely spread the disease to the entire plant as well as to other near-by plants of the same species. Thus the scattered wind-blown spores which may travel hundreds of miles and not establish the rust on other species of currants do infect the European black and set up new centers of infection. For this reason the European black currant has been called the "nurse plant" of blister rust and outlawed by the states in which white pines are important forest crops.

The white pines in the United States that are endangered by blister rust have a cash timber value of approximately $550,000,000, while the lumber value of this timber is many times greater. This does not take into account the values of trees of these species used as ornamentals and the potentially greater value of the young pines for the future timber crops. The money value of the black-currant plantings of the country is negligible.

For these reasons the United States Department of Agriculture and the states concerned have declared the European black currant a public nuisance and are co-operatively engaged in a campaign to systematically eliminate it from the country.

CHOLERA SERUM HAS SAVED MANY HOGS IN MIDDLE WEST

Losses from hog cholera in the middle west are running at about the normal rate, according to reports received by livestock sanitariums of the federal and state services. The record is better than was expected, for, as a rule, waves of unusual prevalence have come and receded gradually with severe losses in years immediately preceding and following a year of heavy losses such as occurred in the middle west last year. Officials attribute the relatively low death rate of hogs to widespread use of anti-hog cholera serum by growers. Commercial laboratories producing the serum have been working at full capacity for the past year and have disposed of their entire outputs, indicating that immunization treatment has been used more generally than ever before.

September, October and November are usually the months when hog cholera is most prevalent, although there is more or less at all seasons. That September has passed without serious losses makes it probable that no serious outbreak will occur this year. Federal sanitarians believe that last year's outbreak would have been less serious had more serum been available. They say this year's experience should serve as a lesson in the value of immunization and that serum treatments should be repeated year after year so the raising of hogs may be made a safe enterprise so far as cholera is concerned.

STORING BUTTER FOR WINTER USE

If the summer supply of butter in the farm home is larger than is used by the family and the winter supply is less than is desirable, it is sometimes convenient to store the summer surplus for use in the winter. To insure good keeping qualities in butter the United States Department of Agriculture has found it best to use pasteurized sweet cream. The cream should be churned at a low temperature and the butter washed so that it will be firm and waxy.

Rolls or prints of butter should be wrapped in parchment butter paper, placed in a stone crock, and covered with strong brine. This preserves the butter much better than packing it firmly in a crock and covering the surface merely with paper or with dry salt or paraffin. Brine storage is much preferable to paraffin coating, packing in dry salt, or parchment paper covering of the storage crock. Butter should be stored in as cool a place as is available and in a place free from odors likely to be absorbed by the butter.

HINTS FOR THE FARMERS.

Where winter wheat is grown, an excellent way to obtain a stand of sweet clover is to sow unscarificed or even unhulled seed on the wheat about the middle of February. It is not advisable to sow any kind of sweet clover seed much earlier than this, because it is likely to germinate during a warm period in mid-winter and the seedlings be killed later by freezing weather. Neither should unscarified seed be planted much later or it will fail to come up that season.

Success in hog raising seldom goes hand in hand with defective fences. Often they contribute to the appearance of disease. The average farm fence is more unsatisfactory because of faulty construction than on account of unsuitable materials. Woven wire is regarded as the most practical hog-tight fence.

Corn sometimes is fed in the form of corn-and-cob meal, and in that form is particularly suitable for horses which lack the necessary time or proper teeth to chew thoroughly unground corn. Certain precautions must be taken in feeding it. When stored for a time it has a tendency to generate heat, with the consequent formation of mold. For this reason it is best to grind the grain only as needed.

Poultrymen who have used both sodium fluoride and blue-ointment for chicken lice say the fluoride is better. It may be used any time of the year as a dip if precaution is taken to keep the fowls from catching cold after treatment. Blue-ointment always should be used sparingly—especially on chicks. The same is true of the fluoride when used as a powder.

Where manure is used as fertilizer, cows on home-grown feeds, under proper management, will return to the soil about 80 percent of the fertility taken from the land in growing their feed.

Cows should be kept dry, out of cold winds and damp places so their teats will not get sore. They should be milked with clean, dry hands. Castor oil, olive oil, wool fat, or pure vaseline rubbed on the teats will keep them in condition, preventing soreness and chapping.

Preparatory to skinning farm animals, the hide should be cleaned as thoroughly as possible. Use of the old fashioned curry-comb with its sharp and usually rusty teeth may result in serious damage, particularly to calfskins. A more recent style of comb with dull teeth, or a fiber brush with water is much safer.

NORWICH TOWN

The fall meeting of Norwich Christian Endeavor union, which is to be held Friday evening at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, will be informally opened to the several societies at 6:15. At 6:30, supper will be served under direction of the entertaining C. E. society, Mrs. Richard Carter president. Whitten, pastor of the entertaining church. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, of Willimantic, will give the address. His subject will be "A Rendezvous With Life." It is expected that all societies of Norwich C. E. union will be represented at this gathering.

The president of Norwich Christian Endeavor union, Harold Muttart, with Mrs. Muttart, of Preston City, when in attendance at the November State Executive meeting Tuesday evening, in Hartford, had as their automobile guest from Norwich, Miss Jessie E. Hyde. Mr. Muttart and Miss Hyde are members of the Christian Endeavor executive committee of Connecticut.

MARK TRAIN HOME PURCHASE OF INTEREST IN NORWICH

The question of acquiring the old Mark Train home on Farmington avenue near Woodland street, Hartford, as a memorial to the famous author and as an historic landmark for the city has been revived once again with the appointment by the Friends of Hartford of a committee headed by Joseph C. Gorton to inquire into the possibilities of buying the property from G. U. Kierstead and Daniel W. Murphy, who now own it.

In addition to Mr. Gorton the committee appointed by the society consists of former Mayor Frank A. Hagerty and former Senator Samuel C. Doty.

If they are able to reach an agreement with the present owners of the house, the society plans to raise funds for its purchase by public gifts and subscriptions. The plan is to use the house for the Children's Museum, now housed in hte Frank C. Summer house, also as a branch of the Hartford public library.

Daniel W. Murphy, one of the owners of the property is a cousin of former Mayor Timothy C. Murphy and ex-Postmaster John P. Murphy and an occasional visitor in Norwich. He is treasurer of the City Coal company and one of the most prominent men in Hartford. It is felt that the promoters of the plan to purchase the Mark Twain homestead can count on liberal and favorable dealing on Mr. Murphy's part if the transaction is ever carried out.

POETRY

Lines to a Blind Girl

Blind as the song of birds,
Pealing its way into the heart,
Or as a thought are it hath words—
As blind thou art;

Or as a little stream
A dainty hand might guide apart,
Or Love—young Love's delicious dream
As blind thou art:

Or as a slender bark,
Where summer's varying breezes start,
Or blossoms blowing in the dark—
As blind thou art:

Or as the Hope, Desire
Leads from the bosom's crowded mart,
Deluded Hope, that soon must tire,—
As blind thou art;

The chrysalis, that folds
The wings that shall in flight depart,
Is not more blind than that which holds
The wings within thy heart.

For when thy soul was given
Unto the earth, a beauteous trust,
To guard its matchless glory, Heaven
Endungeoned it in dust.
—Thomas B. Read.

Bright Things Today

I can only go a-singing of bright things today!

Colors, colors, everywhere glow and glance and ray;
Every bird-note is a rapture
Which if my two hands could capture,
Might prove to be a shiny thing,
Brighter than the brightest wing!

A wonder-web of silver flashing on the bay;
Where the far sails dip and cluster,
Every sheet is spread with lustre,
Every oar cuts flaming arcs,
All the sand is filled with sparks.

Roses run like laughing children, all along the way;
Every gray old ledge is rifted
With their ruddiness, uplifted
In a pennant, rippling high,
On the radiance of the sky.

Any heart would go a-singing of bright things today!
—Anne Cleveland Cheney, in The Christian Science Monitor.

Her seaside home near Bognar has been built from the saloon and sleeping cars of the royal train formerly used by the king and queen. Princess Mary spent her honeymoon in these cars when she married Viscount Lascelles in 1922. The saloon car is now Miss Tree's dining room. It is decorated with inlaid wood, while the sleeping coaches are of satin wood with bright blue blinds. There are three carriages in all, painted white, set as three sides of a square, forming a court. Here Miss Tree has planted a flower garden which she tends herself.

The term "pin money" originated early in the 13th century, according to A. H. Riddle, a member of the famous British pinmaking firm of Byland & Sons. Pins, says Mr. Riddle, were first used in 1372, when the pinmakers of London were incorporated into a city craft or guild. In the reign of James I an act of parliament was passed to protect the manufacturers by forbidding the importation of pins. This act was later confirmed by Charles I who received annually from the pinmakers $2,500. He handed this amount over to his wife, Henrietta Maria, for her private purse and originated thus the term "pin money."

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR, WITH GAINS AND LOSSES ABOUT EVEN AT CLOSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment characterized today's stock market, with gains and losses about evenly distributed at the close. Most of the standard industrials were inclined to heaviness, but a long list of specialties advanced to new high records. Except for the impressive display of strength in the Missouri Pacific issues, based on unconfirmed reports of early action towards the paying off of accumulated dividends on the preferred, little speculative interest developed in the rail group.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans, but the call money rate continued steady at 3 1-2 per cent. There was no change in the other monetary accommodations. The release of funds through the retirement of the second Liberty loan continued to make itself felt in the bond market and in some of the high grade preferred stocks.

The day's trade news was mixed in character. The sharp falling off in freight car traffic in the first week of November was somewhat of a disappointment, as was the unexpectedly large increase in the daily average of crude oil production last week, but news from the steel centers continued encouraging.

Losses ranging from fractions to 2 points were recorded by such recent favorites as American Can, American Smelting, Chrysler, General Motors, General Electric, Radio Corporation and U. S. Steel common. American Tobacco common, American Machine & Foundry, Case Threshing, Houston Oil, Philadelphia Co., and a few other high priced specialties broke 3 to 7 points.

Express shares continued their sensational advance, Adams soaring 12 points to a new peak at 195 and American climbing 7 1-2 points to 182. Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were American Linseed, Archer Daniels, Congress Cigar, Coty, Hupp Motor, Lorillard Tobacco, R. C. Macy National Surety, Union Carbide, and Utah Copper, the gains running as high as 15 points.

Missouri Pacific preferred was run up nearly 6 points to a new top at 117 1-2, as compared with the year's low of 90 1-8. The common advanced about 2 1-2 points to 57 1-2, which was still nearly 30 points below the year's high. Lehigh Valley and Texas & Pacific also recorded substantial gains.

In the foreign exchange market, sterling touched a new high since 1914 when demand bills crossed $4.87, Norwegian kroner sold at 26.66 cents, and Dutch guilders above 40.40 cents, the best prices since 1919, and Belgian francs attained a new top for the year around 13.65 cents. Other rates were firm, including Japanese yen which held steady around 46.55 cents after several days of reaction.

Despite the bearish Argentine government crop report, wheat prices yielded only a fraction of a cent net a bushel, as the trade was of the opinion that the official estimate was too high. Cotton trading was dull, with final quotations slightly lower. Coffee quotations rallied 16 to 20 points and sugar prices held steady.

MASONIC RITUAL IN NEW LONDON AT FUNERAL OF FRANK J. HOWELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16—The funeral of Frank Jeffrey Howell was held this morning at 9.45 at Brainard lodge, Masonic temple, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners including a representation of members of the Thames club, of which organization Mr. Howell had been a member about 12 years. The services were conducted by Worshipful Master Richard L. Johns and Chaplain J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were Carey Congdon, George E. Wattera, R. Scott Linsley, C. Royce Boss of Norwich, Edward S. Huntley and P. LeRoy Harwood. The body was forwarded to Chicago where burial will be in Graceland cemetery tomorrow afternoon.

It is a coincidence that his cousin, Jeffrey Frank Howell of Englewood, N. J., president of the Consolidated Exchange of New York, died within the week. The latter's funeral, with Masonic services, was held last night in Englewood.

The funeral here today of Mr. Howell in the Masonic temple recalled to his friends, his interest in the Masonic organization. For many years Mr. Howell was a member of Rogers Park lodge in Chicago, and when he came to this city in 1915, he became affiliated with the local lodge. A short time later Mr. Howell toured Europe and the Near East. At Jerusalem he visited the King Solomon limestone mines and while there he had made a limestone gavel, worked from the soft rock from the mines which turned to flintlike hardness when exposed to the air. The gavel, fitted with a cypress handle, is now at Brainard temple.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES CAUSE BRYANT TO FLOURISH GUN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16—Jesse Bryant, 40, Negro, proprietor of a tailoring establishment and residing at 31 Hill street, ran amuck last night with a revolver. He was fortunate that he was not charged with murder, instead of attempted murder, when presented in the police court this morning. One bullet from his revolver passed through clothing of John Brown, Hill street and but for the alertness of Patrolman George McCaskey the officer would undoubtedly have been wounded, if not killed. Because of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky being attorney for Bryant, disqualifying him from prosecuting the Negro, the case was continued to Wednesday next. In default of bail of $2,000, Bryant was taken to jail.

Bryant has been drinking freely of late, because, it is said of marital troubles. He went to his home about 10 o'clock last night and is understood to have quarrelled with his wife. He owned a revolver which he took and left the house. When he entered the street several boys, about 12, were nearby and for no known reason, Bryant started discharging the revolver. One of the bullets passed through the trousers of the Brown boy and the lads sought shelter in every conceivable place. A telephone message was sent to police headquarters and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan were dispatched to the location of the shooting. Before the officers arrived there, Patrolman George McCaskey, upon whose beat Hill street is located, was informed of the shooting by Bryant and upon going there found Bryant in front of his home. When he approached Bryant, McCaskey noted the revolver in the Negro's hand. Leaping for Bryant, McCaskey seized the weapon. It was well he did, for an instant later Bryant pulled the trigger. The revolver was not discharged for the hammer came down on the flesh between the thumb and first finger of McCaskey's right hand, which fact, alone, prevented the explosion of the revolver. The revolver was taken from Bryant and a few minutes later Officers Martin and Sheehan arrived and Bryant was taken to police headquarters and locked up.

DEATH OF HENRY D. GARD WHO WAS IN HIS 94TH YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16—Henry D. Gard, 93, one of the oldest residents of New London, died at his residence, 39 Waller street this morning. Mr. Gard had long been an invalid, because of infirmities attending his advanced years. He is survived by a son, James Gard, taxicab proprietor and a sister, Mrs. Lucy G. Lewis. Mr. Gard was born in New London and resided here his entire life. He was a carpenter and followed that vocation until compelled to abandon active labor, about 20 years ago.

The funeral of Harold T. Gustafson, of Raymond street, who died at a Manchester, Conn., hospital Monday from injuries sustained in an automobile accident on the Hartford turnpike a week ago, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Oxoboxo lodge, F. & A. M., of Montville.

The funeral of Mrs. Florence T. Velino, wife of Ercole Velino, formerly of Groton, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 16 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Samuel Lubchansky, 217 Main street employed by the Texas company as manager of their gasoline filling station, 285 Broad street, was charged in the city court today with violation of the prohibition law. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs. He paid. Lubchansky was arrested last night when Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan entered the service station unexpectedly, after they had peered through a window, which was not entirely shaded, and observed Lubchansky selling liquor. When the officers entered the room, which Lubchansky had fitted up especially for the sale of liquor, a large quantity of booze was found and two customers. The liquor was seized and Lubchansky was arrested.

Charles Daniels of Gales Ferry, was charged with violation of the state automobile law in driving while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs when he pleaded guilty of the charge. Daniels was driving to his home about 7 o'clock after he had partaken freely of liquor. When his auto reached the corner of Crystal avenue and Winthrop street, Daniels lost control of the steering wheel and the auto crashed against a telephone pole, wrecking the car. State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh happened along shortly after the accident and arrested Daniels.

Henry Lund and Stephen Flaherty, United States coast guard sailors, arrested last night charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, were not presented in the police court, being turned over to a shore patrol and returned to the state pier for discipline by the military authorities. Lund and Flaherty engaged in a fight on Jefferson avenue.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the driver's license of Timothy J. Fenton, 252 Crystal avenue, suspended.

Mrs. William Reinacher of 16 Darrow street; Mrs. Robert Kennedy, 971 Bank street and William Davis, 200 Colman street, the last named injured in an automobile accident last Saturday when his car overturned on Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Edward McCue, 28, of 37 Mahan street, was charged with assault. He was fined $100 and costs in the city court and sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the jail sentence was suspended. He is one of several young men who have been arrested within two weeks charged with various attacks upon girls. The others are in jail awaiting trial at the next term of the superior court.

Joseph Layton was charged with intoxication and resisting an officer. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs on the former charge and $50 and costs on the latter. Being unable to pay about $80, Layton was committed to jail. Layton and a companion were on Truman street last night and there engaged in a fight. The police were notified and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin was sent to investigate. When he arrived where the fighters were battling he ended hostilities and ordered both to get off the street. When this command was made, Layton struck Martin a hard blow. He was arrested and locked up.

Last evening a reception was given Mr. and Mrs. Hiram F. Lewis in Union lodge rooms when Union lodge of Masons and auxiliary joined in honoring the couple on their 50th wedding anniversary. About 200 guests took part in the celebration. At 8 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were escorted into the hall by A. J. Lewis and Mrs. William Kingdon, who headed the reception committee. Among the guests was Mrs. Andrew Neilson, of New Haven, formerly Miss Olive E. Lewis, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis. Mr. Lewis was born in Providence and received his early education there. He went to Fall River, Mass., to learn the mason's trade and at the conclusion of his apprenticeship, he came to this city where he was a mason in the employ of the Courtland P. Smith Co. His marriage with Miss Mary Isabel Chapel, of Stafford, took place at the Sailors' Bethel, Elder Withey performing the ceremony. Since his marriage he has made his home here, working at his trade until thirteen years ago, when he retired. He has been in charge of the Union lodge temple since his retirement.

Edward J. Dray, M. D., of New Britain, son of the late John Dray and Mrs. Mary Dray, of 106 Hempstead street, New London, and Miss Gertrude Katherine Blackall, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Blackall, of 12 Pierson court, Bristol, were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Bristol. Rev. Francis A. May of Mt. Carmel, a cousin of the bridegroom, and formerly of New London, solemnized the marriage. Miss Mary McHugh, cousin of the bride, sang Ave Maria, by Schubert. The church was decorated with flowers and palms. Miss Mary Blackall, attended her sister as maid of honor. Martin Dray, of this city, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Attorney John C. Blackall, of Hartford, brother of the bride, Georgetown, '22; Charles H. Blackall, brother of the bride, Yale Law, '29, Dr. Henry Martin, of New Britain, and James T. McGrath, of Bridgeport. The bride wore an ivory satin Patou robe de style, with tulle and inset of lace worn on her mother's wedding gown. Her tulle veil was held in place with a cap caught with orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book from which depended a shower of orchids and lilies of the valley. FRACTURED HIS ELBOW WHILE AVOIDING AUTOMOBILE

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16.—I. Colt Harris, inspector in the employ of the city's water and sewer department, was painfully injured this afternoon in a peculiar manner. He sustained a fractured elbow while escaping from the path of an automobile. Harris was at the corner of Jay and Hempstead streets and had started to cross the street. Just as he did so, an automobile made a sharp turn at the curve and Harris, believing he was about to be struck, stepped backward quickly. In doing so, he lost his balance and fell, landing in such a manner that his elbow struck the curb or sidewalk. The elbow pained Harris to such an extent and the arm became swollen so rapidly that he was examined at the office of a physician and then sent to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where an x-ray picture revealed the fracture.

The recently organized Millstone Granite Quarries, Inc., has filed a certificate of incorporation with the secretary of state. David J. Bettini, of Quincy, Mass., is president; Pilade Paladini is secretary and treasurer; George Cerroro and Felice Poggi are others of the directorate. The promoters of the new corporation will revive activity at the former Henry Gardner quarry with the installation of new and modern quarrying equipment, enlargement of the working force and the operation of the other quarries of the corporation on a large scale. The Gardner quarry has been leased for a term of years.

A luncheon and meeting of the New London County League of Women Voters was held at Lighthouse Inn this afternoon with about 60 members in attendance. Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, of Hartford, first vice president, addressed the meeting, taking for her subject, "The Woman Citizen an Asset or a Liability."

Frank H. Redden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Redden, of Bank street, and Miss Marguerite V. Blank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Blank, of Pike, N. H., were married at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the rectory of St. Mary's Star of the Sea, by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan. The best man was Dr. Eric Blank, of this city, brother of the bride. The bride was attended by Miss Agnes Olsen, of New Britain, and Miss Edna Howe, of Meridith, N. H., classmates at Peter Brent Brigham hospital, Boston. Mr. Redden is in the real estate and insurance business; and the bride was supervisor at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Redden have started on a wedding trip to Bermuda, and upon their return to New London, will make their home temporarily at the residence of the bride's brother, until their new bungalow is completed. The bride wore a gown of white satin, and a lace veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Howe wore rose satin and Miss Olsen blue satin with silver. Both carried bouquets of sweet peas. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Lighthouse Inn.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Patrons of the Breed theatre, beginning today will have an opportunity to see the motion picture debut of the Ten National College stars in support of Richard Barthelmess in "The Drop Kick," which Ray Rockett produced for First National.

Two units conducted this quest, each composed of a manager, a motion camera man and a makeup artist. Over 28,000 miles were traversed by both these units—36 universities and colleges were visited, and 12,500 students were interviewed, from which were chosen the ten men appearing in "The Drop Kick."

At each of the 36 institutions ten men were selected and from the tests of the 360 men a critical audience of newspapermen, critics, sales managers, directors and producers selected the final ten men. In all cases, the business of selecting the men from the college was done with the full sanction of the college authorities, student bodies and faculties.

The Ten National College stars selected were John Westwood, Princeton; Edward Karges, Northwestern; Thomas Denton, Michigan; Leland S. Wilcox, Michigan; D. C. Cassidy, Georgia Tech; John Morris, Purdue; John Stambaugh, Chicago; Richard Clendennin, California, and Stuart Knox, Yale, who formerly was employed by the Bankers Trust company, this city.

"The Drop Kick" is a story of college life from a story by Katherine Brush, author of "Glitter," which ran in College Humor and was published as a sensational novel.

Eastern Dairies Ice Cream

It is only within the past few years that the manufacture of ice cream has grown to the point where it can be considered one of the most important industrialized food products. Although ice cream has been sold as a commercial product for seventy-five years, the big growth in the ice cream business has been almost entirely during this century. It is only during the last four or five years that it has entered the ranks of "big business." The quality standards of the industry have always been high, but during the past four or five years mergers and amalgamations have made possible capital investments which have provided for tremendous strides in the quality of manufactured ice cream. Ice cream has often been called the national food dessert, and as evidence of the volume of this business is contained in the figures of the United States department of agriculture, which estimates the 1926 output at 324,665,000 gallons. With almost five-hundred million dollars invested in the ice cream business in this country, it is not strange that the results of this investment can be seen in greatly improved standards of quality. One evidence of this progress is apparent to all residents of this territory, that is, the success achieved by Eastern Dairies, Inc., which comprises the following eight units: Coon and Howe of northern New England, Dolbey, What-Cheer and Made Rite of southeastern New England, Tait of Massachusetts, and New Haven Dairies and Semon of Connecticut. Their territory now is all of New England and parts of northern New York state. The formation of this union of eight companies has made possible the establishment of a completely equipped research department with laboratory facilities for testing the quality of all of the ingredients which go into the manufacture of ice cream. The union of these companies made possible complete control of their own milk and cream supply; it made possible the opportunity to spend large sums of money in the perfection of flavors and combinations of flavors, to thrill even the most jaded appetite. In fact, Eastern Dairies has made such strides toward their ideal of a perfected ice cream that they are at the present time running a huge name contest throughout their territory, offering prizes of $1,500, for a new name worthy of the ice cream which they are now producing.

Broadway Theatre

For today and tomorrow and Saturday the Broadway theatre is presenting an attractive double feature program. The first presentation will be Madame Pompadour, starring Dorothy Gish. Made in London by British National under E. A. Dupont's supervision "Pompadour" is said to be one of the finest examples of foreign workmanship to have reached these shores. Aiding Director Herbert Wilcox were Antonio Moreno, an American leading man and Scenarist Frances Marion, the woman who prepared the "Stella Dallas" screen play.

The life of Madame Pompadour provides valuable screen material. From a modest Parisian home she rose to the position of king's favorite, feted by many, loved by a few—but feared by all. Such was the step taken by the little girl who was born plain Jeanne Poissons and became Madame la Marquise de Pompadour.

The co-feature "Isle of Forgotten Women," the Columbia Pictures production starring Conway Tearle, is one of those alluring films which conjure up visions of dancing girls and romantic moonlight nights.

The background of tropical islands has furnished the author ample opportunity to introduce mystery, romance, action and tense situations which grip the film lover.

The native village furnishing a locale for the "Isle of Forgotten Women," is an exact replica of Kori-Kori, located on a small island off the coast of New Guinea.

WE FOUND THAT OUT

Why is the purchase of coal so often thought to be a man's job when women buy most of the other home supplies?

After all, the furnace is under the women's supervision all day. It is she that enjoys its comforts, or suffers if it fails. It is usually she who must plan household economics if the coal bill refuses to be satisfied with its fair share of the family budget

And, confidentially, women are often wiser than men about such matters. They know that an old and good name is to be trusted, and that long and faithful service is the surest evidence of business honesty.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE PRESIDENT SPOKE TO NORWICH TEACHERS

With about 100 present The Norwich Teachers' league held its annual banquet Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. The menu was served at very attractively decorated tables at 6.30 o'clock. Edward J. Graham, superintendent of schools, members of the town school board and the school supervisors were present as guests of the league. Mrs. Elizabeth Brewster Davis, the league president, was the toastmaster. Group songs and cheers by the teachers enlivened the banquet and there were selections by Horace F. Corning and Nicholas J. Spellman, with Mr. Spellman at the piano. Miss Annie L. Taft presided at the piano for the group singing. A feature of the evening was the singing of a new song, Norwich, composed by a local teacher who is too modest to allow her name to be announced.

Dr. Benjamin T. Marshall, president of Connecticut college, was the speaker of the evening. Dr. Marshall gave a splendid and most interesting and instructive address on The Good Teacher and Good Teaching. The banquet came to a close about 9.15 o'clock. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the banquet comprised Misses Martha Reynolds, Nina Perry, Geraldine Enos, Mary Shannon and Marion Beebe.

DISCHARGED ON CHARGE OF VIOLATING ZONING

George F. Ring, plumber of No. 35 Lafayette street, was presented in the city court Wednesday morning on a charge of erecting and maintaining a plumbing shop with a display window within 50 feet of the easterly line of Lafayette street in violation of the zoning ordinances. After a lengthy session during which witnesses for and against the accused were heard, Mr. Ring was ordered discharged by Attorney Charles L. Stewart, acting judge. Mr. Stewart, a disinterested party, was called in to decide the case as acting judge, owing to the fact that both Judge Arthur F. Libby and Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis, were interested in the case from other angles.

At the trial it was brought out that in December, 1926, Mr. Ring purchased a plot of land on Lafayette street with the intention of erecting a plumbing shop. He was informed at that time by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton that he could build as he intended. The contractor advised Mr. Ring to wait until the following spring when the construction would be cheaper.

On February 12th, of this year, Mr. Ring secured a building permit from Chief Stanton to construct the building. This was four days after the zoning ordinances went into effect.

A complaint was entered with the city attorney who advised Mr. Ring that the erection of the building was contrary to the provisions of the zoning ordinances. Mr. Ring halted the building operations. Then in June he secured a permit to build a bungalow, which when completed had a large plate glass window. Over the window there was placed a sign reading, George F. Ring, Plumber.

The evidence as presented by Mr. Ring and his witnesses, showed that he had stated his intentions of securing a permit to build before the zoning ordinances were put into effect and that he had not intentionally violated the ordinances.

THE NATION'S STRENGTH IS THE NATION'S HEALTH

Those who believe that, because of their prosperity or the sanitary conditions their property enables them to secure, they are immune from the danger of tuberculosis, actually have no more than a fancied security, for the clothes they wear, the food they eat, and the contacts that are inseparable from life, bring them unknowingly within the jeopardy of the dread disease.

The stamping out of tuberculosis is a moral obligation of the community and to aid the Norwich tuberculosis committee in every possible way to carry out the efficient work it is doing, goes with the duty of citizenship and no one should evade the rightful obligation that rests upon him.

This committee is made up of the following: Mrs. Richard B. Snow, chairman, Miss Kate MacKenzie, secretary, Harold P. Hull, treasurer, Miss Edith E. Young, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Dr. Edward J. Brophy, Philip O. Johnson.

SEEKING GROTON GOOSE FOR POULTRY SHOW

C. A. Ricker, secretary of the Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock association, has written to James Trent of Groton, asking him to exhibit at the next Norwich poultry show the goose that laid eight eggs in eight successive days, a very rare feat, according to veteran poultry keepers.

Christopher Barry has imported a pair of "turkens" which are to be exhibited at the show. These are a peculiar variety of poultry, supposed to be produced by a cross between a turkey and a hen. The body of the bird resembles the hen, but the head and neck are like the turkey. They are said to be extra quality as market birds, the meat being dark like a turkey and the size of the bird about the same as the hen.

JAMES L. CASE IS ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT

James L. Case, Norwich realtor, was elected second vice-president of the Connecticut Association of Real Estate boards at the annual convention of that body, held Tuesday, at Bridgeport.

Case, Norwich; third vice president, William S. Mason, Bridgeport; secretary, Louis St. Clair Burr, Hartford; treasurer, Charles Curtis, New Haven; councilors, Henry Abbott, Stamford and Frederick M. Ward, New Haven.

The annual convention dinner was served in the main dining room of the Hotel Stratfield at 12:30 o'clock, after which the delegates, who came from every section of the state, convened in business session.

Must be Licensed Insurance Agents

That applicants for insurance should be absolutely certain that they are placing their insurance with licensed insurance agents, was strongly emphasized by Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham Wednesday as the result of a complaint investigated by the insurance department, where a Hartford property owner had for several years been in the habit of placing all of his insurance business with a relative whom he believed to be a licensed insurance agent.

The law provides for fine or imprisonment or both for persons who sell insurance of any kind without a license.

PORTLAND AND PROVIDENCE BOTH AGAINST NEW LONDON

The request of two cities for consideration as the choice of the Blue Ribbon Line as American terminal for the proposed four-day ocean service to Europe are being considered this week at conferences of the governors of the states concerned and officials of the American Brown-Boveri Electric corporation, which is sponsoring the new line.

Lawrence R. Wilder, chairman of the shipbuilding division, and C. L. Bardo, vice president of the corporation met Monday with Governor Brewster of Maine, to discuss the merits of Portland, and met Governor Pothier of Rhode Island Tuesday to consider the merits of Providence.

Governor Trumbull of Connecticut has met the shipping men and assured them that the state would co-operate in making available the port of New London. Originally Montauk Point was preferred.

The state pier at Portland is considered well adapted for the handling of ocean traffic. Modern facilities for customs and immigration inspection are provided, as are ticket offices for the various rail lines. In the latter part of 1924 the pier served four large steamers, including the George Washington. Rail connections permit passengers to board their trains without the bother of crosstown traffic and furnish service over the Boston & Maine and over Main Central-Canadian Pacific route, New York passengers transferring to the New York, New Haven & Hartford line.

The Rhode Island state pier is at Providence. The port obtained an "A" rating from the government during the war with such ports as New York, Boston and San Francisco. Portland and Providence have sufficient flat land at good locations for a flying field, which will be required in the handling of mails from the ships.

SUSPENDED FOR DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are thirty-six names on the list. Four cases were appealed. Two were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

In this part of the state the list included Joseph C. Hatfield, New London; Charles Hatch, Pomfret; William H. Weeman, Poquonock Bridge.

MILLSTONE QUARRIES ARE AGAIN TO BE OPERATED

With installation of new and modern quarrying equipment, enlargement of the working force and operation of the big quarries on a production basis, the recently organized Millstone Granite Quarries, Inc., will revive activity at the Henry Gardiner quarry, which for years played an important part in Waterford's ancient industry, the quarrying of granite. The new corporation has leased the quarries from the Henry Gardiner estate, but has purchased outright all of the quarrying equipment. It is planned to install new boilers and considerable modern quarrying equipment.

The certificate of incorporation recently filed with the office of Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti at Hartford shows that David J. Bettini of Quincy is president of the corporation. Mr. Bettini has been identified with the granite industry at Quincy for many years, and his associates in the new corporation are likewise experienced granite producers.

The Millstone quarries were opened in 1830 and have therefore been in operation for nearly a century.

The promoters of the new corporation are established granite men and have a field for the output at Millstone. For that reason they plan to increase the working force from seven to 35, and eventually a far greater number may be employed there.

TALK ON SUPPER MENUS BEFORE POQUETANUCK CLUB

The November meeting of the Poquetanuck Community club was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Appleton Main. Mrs. Marion Dakin, nutrition specialist from Storrs, who was the speaker of the afternoon, gave a very interesting talk on "Supper Menus," showing how to plan a well balanced, atractive meal and giving suggestions for many appetizing supper dishes. At the close of the meeting, tea and sandwiches were served by the hostess.

TAFTVILLE

The members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society held a meeting Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street Wednesday evening. Miss Mary Ward, the president, had charge of the meeting and there was a large attendance. It was decided to begin the winter series of whist parties, which last year proved such delightful social affairs, and Miss Helen Breault was appointed chairman of the committee which will have the first card party in charge.

Joseph Depot who has been residing on South Second avenue has given up his house there and is now at the Ponemah house.

Eli Montaz of South Third avenue has returned to his home in town after spending several months in France, his native country.

Earl Passmore has resigned his position with the mule spinning department of the local mills.

Taftville people are following with a great deal of interest the prominent part taken by Edward (Eddie) Benoit, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Benoit, formerly of Taftville, in the campaign for the building fund of the Bristol Boys' club. The Bristol Press has an unusually interesting article by Earl J. Arnold, a prominent Bristol citizen and member of the campaign committee. Among other things, Mr. Arnold says, "Eddie is one of the very popular young men of the Bristol club. His life story is a most interesting one, owing to the fact that from early boyhood until he was fifteen years old he suffered a very serious neck muscle affliction. Following visits to many physicians and surgeons, he was finally advised to take up a series of exercises along physical culture lines. As a last resort; despite the fact he had little faith in the proposition, he rigidly followed out a series of daily exercises. He continued for one year and all of a sudden realized that he could move his head a trifle. He then became vitally interested and for several months devoted his entire time to physical culture exercises. The result is that today he is a fine specimen of physical fitness, and his physique aroused admiration from those assembled the opening night of the campaign, when as director of the Bristol Boys' club physical culture class he exhibited considerable prowess, agility and ability on the parallel bars." There is also a letter to the Press from "Eddie" urging the people of Bristol to support the campaign.

Mrs. Aldon Bouley and children of North A street have returned from a visit of several weeks in Canada with relatives.

Edward T. Fenley of Providence, R. I., was a caller on friends in the village Wednesday.

Work is rapidly progressing on the new stone wall in the rear of the mill houses on North B street. The wall is several feet in height and when completed will make an attractive addition to that part of the town.

Mrs. Clara T. Caron and Mrs. Harold E. Linderson had charge of the annual membership campaign in Blissville of the Taftville Chapter, American Red Cross.

COOLIDGE WARNS PREPARE FOR TEST OF PROSPERITY

In Address Before the Union League of Philadelphia, the President Declared the Country Has Reached the Zenith of Prosperity—With the End of the Task of Post-War Reconstruction in Sight, the Time When Internal Improvements May Be Considered is at Hand—Chief Executive Emphasized the Fact That "the Doctrine of Ease is the Doctrine of Surrender and Decay"—Regards Public Debt "the Greatest Weakness in Our National Defense"—Would Not Consider Any Material Reduction in the Tariff.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17—(AP)—A national program calling for internal improvements, development of the country's defenses and the promotion of peace was outlined tonight by President Coolidge in cautioning against the "test of prosperity" facing America.

Speaking before a distinguished audience of business leaders at the Union league of Philadelphia in a brief visit to this city, Mr. Coolidge gave a comprehensive report of the nation's affairs and then detailed his hopes for the future in the most complete way he has ever attempted outside of a message to congress.

The president spoke after he had been given the gold medal for distinguished public service and honorary membership in the Union league, the only president to receive both awards from this organization founded in the Civil war days.

Flood control, development of waterway systems, construction of more cruisers and submarines for the navy, encouragement of commercial aviation and attention to the Colorado river and Columbia basin projects were mentioned by the president as he emphasized that "we can begin to consider internal developments."

While a moderate tax reduction is in sight, he warned again that this depended on strict economy and again he urged rapid retirement of the public debt, "the greatest weakness in our line of national defense."

Mr. Coolidge took cognizance also of tariff reduction talk and he emphatically gave word that he would not consider it. Any material reduction, he declared, "would ultimately result in a drastic deflation of agriculture and industrial values, in the rate of wages, and in the standards of living."

The president came to Philadelphia late in the day, leaving Washington just as the tornado struck that city. He was informed of it upon his arrival here and asked for all details.

Of the 3,000 members of the league about 200, including some outside guests, were at the dinner. The guest list included Senator Vare, George Wharton Pepper, former senator from Pennsylvania; Governor Fisher, Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central railroad; A. T. Dice, president of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad; E. T. Stotesbury, member of the J. P. Morgan firm; Owen J. Roberts, government counsel in the government oil cases; Cyrus H. K. Curtiss; W. L. McLean, George Horace Lorimer and Edward J. Bok, publishers.

Mrs. Coolidge did not accompany the president on his hurried trip to the league exercises where no women were present. Mr. Coolidge was accompanied from Washington by Frank W. Stearns, intimate friend of Boston who is a guest at the white house; Everett Sanders, his secretary; Col. Blanton Winship and Captain Wilson Brown, his aides, and Dr. Oel T. Boone, physician.

Immediately after the exercises, Mr. Coolidge boarded a special train for the return to Washington which he expected to reach about midnight.

Text of Message

The text of President Coolidge's address follows:

Members and Guests of the Union league:

FORMER INDIAN CHIEF MUST SERVE TEN YEARS

ANTLERS, Okla., Nov. 17—(AP)—Modern law of the white man prevailed today over the old unwritten code of the Indian when Major Victor M. Locke, Jr., 51, former chieftain of the Choctaws, was sentenced to ten years in prison for killing Abner Battist, a young tribesman.

A jury in Pushmataha county district court convicted of manslaughter, deciding he was not temporarily insane, the night of September 16, when he took a rifle and walked to Battiest's home and shot him.

Just before the shooting, the testimony developed, the major's aged father, "Uncle Dick" Locke was cursed and struck in the face by Battiest when the former remonstrated with the young Indian for his relations with the girls. Hearing of this Major Locke followed Battiest and shot him to death.

That Locke, formerly in comfortable circumstances, had been virtually penniless for four years was brought out in the testimony.

It was announced that an appeal will be made.

MOORS HAVE RELEASED SIX FRENCH PRISONERS

KASBA TADLA, Morocco, Nov. 17—(AP)—Six French prisoners, two of them women, and two of them little girls, who have been held by Moors for weeks past for ransom in the Atlas Mountains returned to civilization today, while 2,000,000 francs in gold ($400,000) on the backs of camels and mules found their way into the mountain recesses.

Stumbling over the snow covered passes of the middle Atlas ranges, Yves Steeg, nephew of the French president general, Jean Mallet and their two women companions, Baroness Von Steinheil and Mme. Marie Prokoroff, and the two children of the Armaud family, were delivered into the hands of French officers at Aguennous by Moorish brigands, who had been negotiating on an even plain with the French protectorate officers.

SULTAN OF MOROCCO DIED IN HIS NATIVE CITY, FEZ

FEZ, Morocco, Nov. 17—(AP)—Mulai Yussef, sultan of Morocco and son of the prophet Emir the Faithful, died today and lay in state tonight in his native city of Fez.

Four brothers, two sons and hired official weepers were the only companions in the death watch over the Moroccan ruler who passed away suddenly at 10 10 a. m., at the age of 46. He will be buried tomorrow morning.

From the tops of the Minarets of Islamic mosques the song of the muezzin could be heard tonight, "Allah is Great and He Called Our Father to Him."

Mourning in Fez—the western capital of the Moslem world—is deep and sincere but already the tribesmen are gathering and the caids or chiefs are assembling to elect a successor.

PLANE PRINCESS XENIA MANY HOURS OVERDUE

LONDON, Nov. 17—(AP)—An anxious London tonight awaited word of the fate of Captoin R. H. MacIntosh and Bert Hinckler in the monoplane "Princess Xenia" which was many hours overdue at Karachi, India, on its attempted record breaking distance flight.

The plane left Upavon early Tuesday with gasoline for approximately 50 hours in the air and observers feel certain that the plane must have come down as its fuel could not have lasted beyond this afternoon.

Not a single report indicates where in the vast spaces in the 4,000 miles intervening between England and India the fliers might have landed as they have not been heard from since they passed over the Manston airdrome, 120 miles from their starting point.

BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS' NEW DIRECTORS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17—(AP)—The directors of the Baldwin Locomotive Works today completed the organization of the board by electing the three new members recently authorized by the stockholders.

Two of the additional members, Fred J. Fisher and Clarence R. Bittings, representing Fisher Brothers of Detroit, were "invited" to sit with the board two months ago pending their election today, and Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, was named a member of the board at today's session.

This ends a struggle for representation on the board that continued for many months and sent the common stock from the low of 143 for the year to 265. It was said to have been a fight for control of the company, but how much stock the Fishers and Cutten succeeded in obtaining has not been revealed. It was reported that the Fishers held 120,000 of the 200,000 shares of common stock. There are 200,000 shares of preferred outstanding with equal voting power with common.

PLEADED GUILTY TO BURGLARY IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—Randolph Dawlett, the fourth member of a gang charged with responsibility for a series of safe robberies here last August, pleaded guilty in court today of breaking into two Washington stores.

The maximum penalty in the District of Columbia is 15 years for housebreaking and 10 years for larceny.

The other members of the gang, on trial today on the safe robbery charges, were George Wilox, of New Bedford, Mass., Edward F. Tate and Francis A. Kloss.

Testifying in his own behalf today, Wilox denied that he had participated in the robberies and charged district police with having forced a confession from him by "third degree" methods. Testimony tending to support the "third degree" allegations was given by his wife, Mrs. Letitia Wilox, who added that she had also been mistreated. A denial that harsh methods were used was entered by detectives.

CHANGE TO BE MADE IN THE NEW REVENUE LAW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—An amendment to the revenue law designed to prevent holding corporations from evading the tax on corporation incomes was approved today by the house ways and means committee for incorporation in the tax bill, which it is now drafting.

Chairman Green said that the committee after considerable discussion, approved a provision that would materially strengthen section 220 of the present act, which deals with the tax on incomes of corporations that fail to declare dividends to stockholders.

The question of either rewriting entirely or revising the section has been a contested subject. The recommendations of the advisory committee of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue legislation was bitterly opposed by several members, and Mr. Green indicated that the provision approved represented somewhat of a compromise.

THREE LIVES LOST WHEN AUTO PLUNGED INTO RIVER

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Three persons are reported to have been drowned tonight when an automobile swerved from a bridge and plunged into the Seneca river, about fifteen miles west of Syracuse. Four persons were in the machine. The party was on its way from Fulton to a supper in the village. Mabel Beebe, it is reported, managed to get out of the machine and was rescued.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Nov. 17—(AP)—Undaunted by three unsuccessful attempts to fly the Atlantic, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, told the correspondent of the Associated Press upon her arrival at Paris from Berlin this evening, that she intends to try again in 1928.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 17—The situation in China is becoming increasingly difficult and complex with the military difficulties aggravated by famine condition sthat affect 9,000,000 persons in the provinces of Shantung and Chihli. Heavy fighting is reported along the Tientsin-Pukow railway north of Mingkwang. The gravity of the situation has compelled both American and British naval authorities to take action.

Charles S. Mellen, Former Railroad Man, Died at Concord, N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 17—(AP)—Charles S. Mellen, once known as "czar of New England railroads," who saw his empire totter and fall, died today at the home which he had maintained here since his retirement in 1913. Estranged from his wife, with whom he made a private financial settlement when she withdrew divorce proceedings in Massachusetts in 1918, he had passed his last years quietly and out of the public eye. He had a country home at Stockbridge, Mass.

Mr. Mellen, who was born in Lowell, Mass., on August 16, 1851, began railroad work as a boy in a clerical position, reorganized the Northern Pacific railroad and built the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad into a virtual transportation monopoly in New England. His methods led to the financial ruin of the New Haven road and he was forced out of the presidency in 1913.

CHARLES S. MELLEN

Charles Sanger Mellen dominated New England railroad affairs for ten years. Rising from a clerk's position through successive stages of railroad management to the presidency of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, he brought about consolidation of virtually all New England transportation facilities under New Haven management. In the end this railroad empire was torn to pieces, humble investors who had bought New Haven stock when it was paying eight per cent dividends and selling at 195 lost virtually their all when dividends ceased and the stock dropped to 12 and Mellen was ousted. He spent his last years in seclusion on a farm in the Berkshires.

Mellen extended the dominion of the New Haven road over railroads, street railways, steamship lines, lighting, gas and water supply companies. Millions of dollars were spent, "wastefully in the extreme," declared the interstate commerce commission, which held that a total of $204,000,000 was expended outside the New Haven railroad sphere.

When Mellen resigned he asserted that he had been "thrown out by directors who plotted my downfall as a sacrifice to public clamor." Brough before the courts on charges that ran from financial manipulations to manslaughter, he insisted that he was persecuted.

The one element in the way of the New Haven's absolute control of railroad affairs in New England was the Grand Trunk Railway's projected Southern New England Railway extension from Palmer, Mass., to Providence. With the Grand Trunk main line and its Central Vermont subsidiary this new line would have completed a system cutting New England traffic sources north and south. The Canadian road already had west-east connections from Montreal to Portland. Mellen announced his intention of defeating the Southern New England Railway project. When it was ultimately abandoned the circumstances resulted in federal grand jury indictments for conspiracy against Mellen and Grand Trunk officials. Under Mellen's control the capitalization of the New Haven road was increased from $93,000,000 to $417,000,000. He resigned on July 17, 1913.

As clerk in the office of the cashier of the Northern New Hampshire railroad at $25 a month in 1869, when he was eighteen years' old, Mellen began early to get his knowledge of railroading and of sectional condition. As bookkeeper, secretary, auditor, assistant to manager, superintendent and general superintendent successively on the Central Vermont, Northern New Hampshire, Boston and Lowell and Concord roads, he extended this knowledge until 1888 when he went to the Union Pacific as general purchasing agent, becoming general traffic manager a year later.

FOUND GUILTY OF HAVING RECEIVED STOLEN BONDS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 17—(AP)—B. H. McKeehan, of Wyoming, Pa., and Daniel T. Mulligan, of this city, were found guilty by a jury today of having received $79,000 worth of stolen bonds. John J. Walsh, of Plains Township, a co-defendant, was acquitted. The maximum prison term for the offense is three years.

The verdict of the jury was reached after sixteen hours deliberation. Defense counsel said briefs in support of a motion for a new trial would be prepared at once.

MEXICAN COURT DECIDES FOR AMERICAN CONCERN

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17—(AP)—The Mexican supreme court today ruled in favor of the Mexican Petroleum company, an American concern, in the first decision involving the new petroleum law. The court by unanimous decision granted the appeal restraining the department of industry, commerce and labor, from cancelling certain of the company's drilling permits.

Alcohol and Poison Deaths in Baltimore

Eleven Deaths From Alcohol in Three Weeks and Three From Poison.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—(AP)—In this city of 11 deaths from alcohol in three weeks, police today learned that "powerful poison," and grief in affli[illegible] attended the strange passing [illegible] others—a druggist, his w[illegible] best friend.

Records state [illegible] died from over indulgen[illegible] green moonshine, or from [illegible] of poison, but so little was [illegible] in the death of Albert Curran—the druggist, his wife, Helen, who was the mother of several children, and their friend, Merrill Stevens, a tug boat captain, of Newark, N. J., that permits for burial were withheld.

Neighbors, some reluctant, and others anxious, told police what they knew of the deaths that have terrified every person who got prescription liquor at Curran's store.

The post mortem examination revealed poison in the bodies of both the man and his wife. All three died in convulsions.

An analysis will be made to determine the chemical nature of the poison.

Stevens, the last of the trio to pass, died last night, while telling how Curran, on Tuesday, fell to the floor of his store, after draining a wine glass of colored liquid into which he had seen the druggist drop a powder.

Police heard of "a big party," at the Curran's on Sunday night and Monday, ending when Mrs. Curran was seized. She died that night.

A few hours before her death, Curran went into a nearby store and sobbed out a threat to take his own life, if his wife were not spared.

By the request of Curran's physician, Stevens went to Curran's home that night to cheer the grief-stricken druggist. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens came to this city last Thursday on a visit.

Applying for treatment under a fictitious name, he had his stomach pumped out a few hours later. Last night he was brought back to the hospital in convulsions from which he died 10 minutes later. Police were convinced he knew he had been poisoned and his mother said he had gone to the druggist for medicine for a cold.

Police seized a quantity of alleged liquor, cans of alcohol and coloring matter at the store.

Coroner Horton announced tonight that the death of Harry Galloway, eleventh of the alcohol victims might have been caused by liquor purchased of Curran and that an investigation had been ordered to learn if he was the fourth victim in the strange cycle.

REMUS CONTINUES TO ACT AS HIS OWN COUNSEL

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—(AP)—George Remus was given a pointed warning from the bench today that continuation of his participation as counsel for himself in his trial for killing his wife depended upon his adherence to rulings of the court.

Remus had clashed with Charles P. Taft, Hamilton County prosecutor, and continued a one-sided debate after Judge Chester R. Shook had rendered a decision, when he received the court's warning.

Attorneys said that the warning did not necessarily consider Remus' status of as disbarred attorney.

For the fourth time in the four days of tedious examination of veniremen, Remus provided the fireworks which lifted the court session from dreary routine to the status of vivid drama.

George Awrey, 67-year-old retired buyer of oil property, was under examination as to his qualifications for jury service when the storm broke.

Roaring out in his great voice, Remus fired questions at Mr. Awrey.

"The fact my life is in the balance would not influence you, would it?" Remus asked in low and sincere tones.

"No," was the response.

"And the fact that I am an ex-bootlegger, an ex-convict and a disbarred lawyer," Remus boomed, "Is that going to influence you? Are you going to charge that against me?"

"No," came again from the venireman.

At adjournment, two women and nine men sat as tentative jurors, the same as at the opening of court, except that seven faces had been changed by the prosecution exercising two and the defense five peremptory challenges.

A total of 84 veniremen has been examined in the four days of the trial.

PRINCIPALS EMBRACED AFTER BLOODLESS DUEL

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Gregory Manoliescu, brother of Mihail Manoliescu, who was recently acquitted on the charge of conspiracy against the state, fought a duel today with Victor Papacostea, brother of the man who is alleged to have betrayed Mihail to the government.

Combatants exchanged two volleys in a heavy rain, but, their aim was wide instead of embracing and burying the hatchet, which is the accepted course in such affairs, the participants remained unreconciled.

SIX MACHINE GUNS AND AMMUNITION FOR GANGSTERS

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 17—(AP)—Six machine guns, 40,000 rounds of ammunition, automatic rifles and a large supply of small arms were seized by police in an Albany, Calif., house today. The weapons and ammunition were slated to be sent to eastern gangsters, the officers were advised by police in Cleveland and Kent, Ohio.

Head Prison Keeper Killed By Convict

James B. Durnin of Auburn Died Half an Hour After Being Stabbed.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 17.—(AP)—James B. Durnin, principal keeper at Auburn prison was fatally stabbed by a prison convict late today. One wound penetrated his chest near the heart and the other in the groin. Durnin died in the prison hospital one half hour later. Warden Edger S. Jennings is conducting an investigation with District Attorney Benn Kenyon.

Durnin's assailant was alleged to have been Alexander Kolinski, sentenced from Erie county in December, 1918, to a 20-year term on a charge of manslaughter. He had a bad record at the prison, receiving additional terms of five and seven years for striking guards and other outbursts. In December, 1931, he was transferred to Dannemora, but was returned to Auburn last June.

The head keeper was struck down in the hallway leading from the cell rooms to the mess hall.

The other prisoners were returned to their cells without disorder.

ANOTHER KILLING IN ST. LOUIS GANG WARFARE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The sixth slaying within a week and the eleventh since Aug. 9 atributed by police to rivalry of extortion and moonshine gangs operating in and near St. Louis occurred today when Pasquale Santino, 39, was shot to death, in the Sciales Wholesale grocery.

Witnesses said a man entered the store, shouted Santino's name, fired four shots and threw his revolver in Santino's face, a savage gesture which characterized two previous killings, and ran out.

Santino, who had a police record, was a friend of Alphone Palazzola, gunman for moonshiners, killed in a fusillade of bullets Sept. 9. Santino then escaped death by dodging bullets.

The Palazzolo slaying was considered by police an act of vengeance for the earlier deaths of Tony Russo, Vincent Spicuzza and Benjamin Giamanco, the first two killed in Chicago and the last named in downstown St. Louis.

In Santino's pockets were $540 and bank books, showing deposits as large as $2,000 at a time.

Records show Santino was charged in 1912 with using the mails to defraud in an effort to extort $1,000 from Dr. Gugliemo Cataldi, a druggist. The charge was dismissed. In 1915, he was convicted of third degree arson and sentenced to two years in prison.

Santino recently was elected president of the Eveready Finance company, capitalized at $50,000. Formerly he operated a saloon.

INVESTIGATING DEATH OF A GIRL SPEEDSTER

SELMA, Ala., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The shot in the dark which killed Miss Louise Montesabaro as she was speeding along a country road Monday night, was the subject of an investigation tonight, with widely different tales told by the arresting official and the examining physician.

H. F. Blake, chief of police of Calera, said the girl had shot herself with suicidal intent after he and another officer had arrested her after a five-mile chase. She was charged with violating the prohibition law and with speeding, the officer declared Monday night.

Today, during a state investigation ordered at the request of the girl's family, Blake said he had "fired one shot into the air while speeding 55 miles an hour in an attempt to capture the girl" who was driving from her home in Berlin, Ala., to Birmingham.

"Immediately after the shot was fired, a bottle was thrown from the car," Blake added. She shot herself with her own small automatic after the capture, he said.

REPLY TO CECIL'S ATTACK ON THE BRITISH GOV'T

LONDON, Nov. 17—(AP)—W. C. Bridgman, first lord of the admiralty, in a speech at Eltham tonight, replied to Viscount Cecil's attack on the government in the house of lords yesterday.

"I think Lord Cecil gives a very unfair impression of the British attitude at the disarmament conference, he said, "from which one might suppose the British government did not desire an agreement and that its attitude alone prevented an agreement. The fact remains that our scheme was the only one submitted at the conference which would have made any substantial economy, or reduced the aggressive character of armaments. that it was not acceptable to the United States, although we made repeated efforts to modify it in order to secure their agreement."

Alluding to Lord Cecil's accusation of departmental obstruction, the first lord said: "As the officials cannot answer for themselves I feel it is my duty to say that they did not, I am convinced, deviate from the policy laid down by the cabinet."

WASHINGTON AND VICINITY WAS STRUCK BY A TORNADO

At Least One Person Was Killed and More Than a Score Injured—Storm Caused Several Million Dollars Damage to Property—Most of the Damage Resulted to Small Dwellings—Many automobiles Were Overturned—The Path Cut by the Tornado Was a Mile in Width and About Twenty Miles Long—President Coolidge Was En Route to the Union Station to Take a Train to Philadelphia When the Storm Was at Its Height.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A tornado, followed by two heavy rain storms that drenched the city, struck two section sof Washington and neighboring communities today, leaving in its wake at least one death, more than a score of injured, and several million dollars damage to property.

The storm, descending first around 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and abetted by a 50-mile gale and blinding rain, struck in the southeast and northeast quarters of Washington, tearing off roof tops, blowing down trees and wires, and sending hundreds scurrying to safety. The only person known to have been killed was Mrs. Jane Carter, who was struck by lightning.

Most of the damage resulted to small dwellings, although many automobiles were overturned and several persons were injured in this manner.

The path cut by the tornado was at least a mile in width and about 20 miles long, Alexandria, Va., on the south, and Hyattsville, Md., on the north, reporting having left the blow and rain, with slight damage to wooden structures.

Police tonight were erecting barriers in the affected area by placing blown down trees at intersections to keep out possible looters.

Northwest Washington, where most government buildings and the larger residential structures are situated, knew little about the damage to the east. Two torrents of rain, each deluging the city with a half inch of water in less than ten minutes, and low block clouds, hung over the entire city and tied up traffic generally.

President Coolidge was en route to the Union state to take a train for Philadelphia when the storm was at its heighth, but, he did not learn of the extent of the destruction until after he left the city.

Ambulances and fire engines darted by the president's automobile as it splashed down Pennsylvania avenue, and it was only by these omens that the people in this section sensed that the storm had spent its fury in some nearby area.

Many reports were going around, one that two had been killed when an automobile turned over, another that a man had been struck by lightning in northeast Washington, and still another that a school at 18th and Bennings Road had been destroyed, but in the absenc eof confirmation were believed to be without foundation.

The naval air station at Anacostia, D. C., suffered perhaps half a million dollars damage, eight seaplanes and the roof of one hanger being pitched about in the winds and rain. Several men in the naval barracks were reported slightly injured. Billing Field, the army side of the station, was unaffected, although the storm was felt there.

Slight property damage resulted at Bladensburg, Md., including the unroofing of the Old George Washington Inn.

A police precinct in southeast Washington reported that 20 houses had been demolished and 60 more unroofed in that section.

Heavy black clouds sweeping up from the south and meeting others over eastern Washington from the northwest were believed by weather bureau observers to have caused, the black funnel-shaped tail that was observed to dip toward the earth, then rise again, to be followed by drenching torrents. The disturbance passed northward and then recurved eastward after the second downpour over this city.

RAIN AGAIN FALLING IN NORTHERN VERMONT

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Northern Vermont, still counting the cost of one disastrous flood, faced a second menace of its rivers tonight. Just two weeks from the day when a downpour of rain had set moving the worst flood in the history of the state, another rainstorm today threatened to swell the rivers to another danger point.

With the prospect of a 24-hour rain fall, the Red Cross tonight sent up the Winooski River valley, where the floods exacted their heaviest toll of life two weeks ago, warnings of possible new trouble to come. At the behest of the weather bureau in Washington, Montpelier, Barre, Rutland, St. Albans and other centers also were notified.

Heavy rain set in in this city at 11 o'clock this forenoon and continued throughout the day and evening. No appreciable rise was noted in the Winooski river, but it was generally remarked that the storm was similar to that which ushered in the previous flood.

At Montpelier, where the rain began to fall at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, the fall was somewhat lighter.

A message received by the Burlington weather bureau from the river and floods division at Washington today said the storm would probably continue for 24 hours, possibly turning to snow tomorrow.

RIVERS IN NEW YORK SWOLLEN BY CLOUDBURST

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 17—(AP)—Streams of northern New York were beginning to rise tonight after more than a day of steady downpour, topped off by a cloudburst. Although rivers and creeks had crawled to within a few inches of their banks, they had not spread out to do damage.

Ogdensburg, in St. Lawrence county reported the worst rain storm in ten years when a flood from the sky sent an additional surge of water over land already soaked by a 24 hour storm. In the business section water flooded streets to a depth of two feet for a time and electric service was suspended.

At Plattsburgh, an inch and a half of rain fell since last night and then was increased by two inches in two hours of rainfall. The level of Lake Champlain crept up a foot.

A night and a day of drizzling rain here terminated in a thunderstorm and heavy wind. No change in stream levels were reported in this section.

STORM WARNINGS ISSUED BY WEATHER BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—The weather bureau tonight issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory 10 p. m. warnings changed to northern Cape Hatteras to Block Island. Disturbance of considerable intensity over middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states, moving northeastward."

The disturbance, which created a tornado and severe thunderstorm over Washington and nearby territory today, was said to be moving with increased intensity and to have been attended by numerous thunderstorms in the Atlantic states north of Florida.

A barometer reading of 29.50 inches was reported at Northfield, Vt.

HEAVY RAINS BRING NEW DANGER IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC, Nov. 17—(AP)—Rising rivers, augmented by continued heavy rains during the past 24 hours, are bringing new danger of a recurrence of the floods of two weeks ago in the eastern townships of this province, reports reaching here today indicated.

Although there have been no washouts reported, the volume of water pouring into the rivers made even worse floods than those of two weeks ago seem imminent. At that time scores of bridges were smashed away and hundreds of miles of highways inundated.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR HELD CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17—(AP)—Daniel S. Driscoll, a railroad engineer of Branford, is held criminally responsible for the death of Charles Fierstein, 50, of 207 Lloyd street in a finding handed down today by Coroner Eli Mix. Fierstein was struck by an automobile on Nov. 7, while repairing trolley tracks in Forbes avenue. The driver of the car which struck him, did not stop.

Several days after the incident and while police were still searching for the driver of the machine, Driscoll walked into the office of Chief of Police Philip T. Smith here with an attorney and announced that he had come in connection with the case.

He told the chief, and later the coroner that he believed he had struck Fierstein but was not positive of it. He said that he thought it likely that a machine going in the opposite direction had knocked Fierstein into the path of his car.

The coroner in his finding declares that Driscoll struck Fierstein while speeding up to pass another machine and that his action was careless reckless and negligent.

SCIENCE DOES NOT DEAL WITH THE SOULS OF MEN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17—(AP)—"Science is merely the explanation of the world about us and not of the souls of men," declared Rev. Elmore M. McKee, pastor of the Church of Christ in Yale, speaking before the Connecticut council of religious education at Center church tonight.

Rev. McKee took as his topic "spiritual growth in a scientific age."

The council also heard Russel Colgate, treasurer of Colgate company on the subject "an international movement in religious education."

Wallace I. Woodin, of Hartford, general secretary of the organization, spoke briefly on the work that had been accomplished since the last annual meeting.

Following the speeches, officers were elected for the next year. Rev. Orville A. Petty was named president, Dr. William B. Beach, vice president; John W. Porter, of Waterbury, treasurer; Wallace I. Woodin, of Hartford, general secretary; George N. McCluskey, educational secretary; and Henry E. Fancherd, of Hartford, auditor.

A WATERBURY BOY WAS INSTANTLY KILLED BY AUTO

WATERBURY, Nov. 17—(AP)—John Mikletonis, six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mikletonis, 90 Porter street, was instantly killed when run over by an automobile driven by Leon Barauskas, of 10 John street, here late this afternoon. The accident occurred as Barauskas was backing up his car on John street. The boy was hit and knocked down and his head was crushed. He was hurried to St. Mary's Hospital but was dead on arrival.

This is the second automobile fatality and the fourth death by violence to occur here in five days.

PUPILS TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN HISTORY CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17.—David Warner, Jr., and Elizabeth Warner, pupils of the Storrs grammar school, were tied in honors for the first prize when announcements were made today of the decision of judges in the Mansfield history contest held among pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the grammar schools of Mansfield. The first prize was equally divided. Second prize was awarded to Ruth F. Kirkpatrick, of the Storrs school and the third prize to Dorothy M. Hawkins of the Mansfield Hollow school. The prizes of five dollars, three and two dollars respectively, were offered by President Charles L. Beach, of the Connecticut Agricultural college. Questionnaires on the history of Mansfield were distributed by School Supervisor Levi T. Garrison. The returns were made to William F. Kirkpatrick, secretary of the town school committee and the judges were Archibald W. Buchanan, Sr., agent of the state board of education; Miss Edwina M. Whitney, librarian at the college and Miss Elsie G. Marsh, librarian at Mansfield Center. Honorable mention was given to Phoebe Merrill, Milton Fish, Marion Chapman and Betty Davis. There were 90 pupils entered in the contest. It was noted that while all did creditable work, the pupils having access to the Storrs and Mansfield Center libraries produced the best answers. There were 20 questions. The contest not only aroused interest in the town's history on the part of the younger generation but a desire to know more of historical notes appears to have become widespread.

MORE DISCUSSION OVER NOMINATION FOR AUDITOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17.—The matter of placing a city auditor on the ticket for the city elections in December has again bobbed into prominence. The democrats named a candidate for city auditor and the republicans failed to do so on the grounds of an act of the last general assembly. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton came out with the statement today, however, that the republicans are mistaken. He points that the act abolishing the city auditor office in Willimantic, does not take effect until December 12, 1927. The law as it now reads and will read until December 12th, provides that both parties must at least 21 days before the city election, nominate certain candidates for city offices including that of auditor.

Inasmuch as the elections come seven days before the act goes into effect, the democrats feel that they complied with the law in nominating a city auditor candidate, while on the other hand there are some interpretations of the law that lead to the belief that if city auditors are elected, their position is automatically abolished on the 12th, giving them but a seven day tenure of office and making nominations and elections hardly plausible.

BROKEN STEERING GEAR CAUSE OF AUTO CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 17—A broken steering gear was said this evening to have been responsible for an accident that caused an automobile driven by Samuel Eisienberg of New York to skid and be wrecked on the Brooklyn flats about three miles west of here late this afternoon. Passing motorists brought Mr. Eisienberg, Mrs. J. Miller and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bunn, all of New York, to the office of Dr. W. A. Tanner where they were treated for cuts from broken glass and bruises. The parties stayed over night at a local hotel and will proceed to New York Friday.

TOWN HALL TO BE LEASED FOR BASKETBALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 17—The pressure upon the board of selectmen for permission to use the town hall during the late fall and winter season for basketball games has resulted, it was announced this morning, in a decision by the selectmen to offer the town hall for lease to the highest bidder. Earlier in the month the selectmen arrived at a decision to redecorate the interior of the hall and to reserve it for town purposes. Last night a special meeting of the board of selectmen was called for 7:30 and it wore on until 11 o'clock, while the members of the board debated whether basketball should be allowed and the plan to redecorate the hall temporarily abandoned. It was finally decided by a majority vote, Selectment John A. Gilbert dissenting, that basketball should be allowed, but that the lease of the hall would be made only on a competitive basis and after bids had been asked.

The high esteem in which he was held in Wauregan and many other communities hereabouts was indicated this morning at the funeral of Joseph Raymond, held from his home in that place and with services at the Sacred Heart church there at 9 o'clock. The funeral was one of the largest held in Wauregan in years. Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, was celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, with Rev. J. E. McCarthy as deacon and Rev. Harry Chagnon as sub-deacon. A delegation of Putnam lodge of Elks, of which Mr. Raymond was a member, attended the service. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Putnam, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, Rev. Fr. Quinn and Rev. Fr. Chagnon. The bearers were John Goven, Arthur Goven, Frederick Maynard, Henry Fontaine, Napoleon Fournier and Arthur Chamberland. The floral remembrances were in great profusion and of wonderful beauty. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Newly elected officers of the Windham County Farmers association, in anual sessions at Brooklyn yesterday, are. Charles A. Brenn of Scotland, president; Alexander Maitland of Thompson, vice-president; Whitman Danielson of Putnam, secretary; executive committee, C. F. Brenn, Scotland; Alexander Maitland, Whitman Danielson, William S. Warren, Eastford; S. H. Peckham, Woodstock, C. B. Jewett, Hampton; John Z. LaBelle, Killingly.

In addition to the election of officers the meeting was featured by a number of interesting addresses, reports of officers, etc. The principal address was delivered by Wilson H. Lee of New Haven, his subject being Boosting New England Agriculturally and Industrially.

Terwilliger; lecturer, Mildred Davis; steward, Aaron Vial; chaplain, A. A. Tillinghast; assistant steward, M. D. Whitlaker; lady assistant steward, Mildred Kelley; Ceres, Louis Terwilliger; Pomona, Margaret Terwilliger; Flora, Lillie M. Young.

W. Irving Bullard left Danielson today for Charlotte, N. C., where he is to spend Thanksgiving with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Chadbourne. During early December, with Mr. and Mrs. Chadbourne, Mr. Bullard will leave from Charlotte en route to Phoenix, Ariz., where they will meet Mr. Bullard's son, Edward, and motor westward through the Imperial Valley of California with San Diego as their objective and will spend the Christmas season in and near that city. Mr. Bullard said today that he will make a point of calling on Myron D. Witter, a Danielson man, when in Brawley, Cal., where Mr. Witter is owner and publisher of a daily newspaper.

Some poor family will be made happy at Thanksgiving time through the activities of the Wakitatina Camp Fire Girls, they having planned to assemble a basket of good things to be presented. The girls have just received their charter from headquarters in New York. One of the numerous activities they plan for the holiday season is the selling of candy in their home and to their friends.

Because of increased business of the Williamsville Buff Wheel company, now owned here by the Jacobs Manufacturing company, re-arrangement of equipment in a section of the Jacobs plant on School street is being made to allow of installing additional machinery to increase the output of the Buff Wheel company. This is made possible through the fact that some space is available through the equipping from the local plant of the Jacobs' company recently established mill supply plant at Charlotte, N. C.

From a hunter who was tramping through that area there comes to The Bulletin a report of a large short-tailed animal being seen in the country east of the Frank Eldridge farm, which, to put it another way, is less than two miles east of here over Orient Heights. Possibly it's a wild cat. A charge of bird shot sent after the animal did no more than speed it on its way. Several wild cats have been shot within a few miles of Danielson within the last three years, so it would not be extraordinary if this proved to be another one.

Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. George J. Heneault made up a party attending the Ladies' night session of Willimantic lodge of Elks.

The canvass of East Killingly in the Red Cross annual enrollment has been completed with results very satisfactory to the committee.

Mrs. Arthur Rogeau of Marlboro, Mass., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Gorman of Cottage street for several days.

Mrs. W. I. Bullard and daughter, Charlotte, are doing post-graduate work at Oxford university this fall. They are to spend the Christmas holidays with Mrs. Walter Jacobs and family in Paris.

Thanksgiving offerings to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam are being prepared here and in nearby communities, as in former years, and will include fruit, vegetables and preserves as well as money.

Danielson will observe Thanksgiving day as a general holiday, with manufacturing plants closed and business generally suspended.

Operators at the Danielson central telephone station presented the chief operator, Miss Katherine D. Aylward with a bouquet of 25 roses incident to her rounding out 25 years of service with the telephone company.

George H. LeClair of the West Side left here this morning for New Haven to attend at the Hotel Taft a meeting of the Connecticut chapter of the Metropolitan Veterans' association. He has been with the company 38 years. Other members of the Veterans' association resident in this section of eastern Connecticut are P. A. Reeves of the West Side, Patrick Reid of Wauregan and James Rafferty of Putnam.

Rev. and Mrs. Roy B. Chamberlin of Hanover, N. H., are to be holiday guests of Frederick A. Jacobs of Broad street.

A number of Danielson people were at Wauregan this morning to attend the funeral services for Joseph Raymond at the Sacred Heart church.

Maintaining a remarkable streak of mild November weather, a maximum temperature of just 70 degrees was recorded here this afternoon.

Pomfret reports good progress made in repairing highways that were damaged by the flood of two weeks ago.

Mrs. Andre Maindon is reported as critically ill at her home on the West Side.

Killingly high school's athletic field fund will be increased through the donation of the entire net receipts of the minstrel show of the Danielson Rotary club.

Those who are prompt about such things have already paid their personal tax assessments.

Wilfred A. Derosier of Valley Falls, R. I., is spending a few days with relatives in Danielson.

Joseph Birch and Walter Bromley of Danielson were among those whose dogs received awards at the recent bench show held in Putnam by the Windham County Kennel club.

This week's game for the Killingly high school football team is on Friday afternoon with the Putnam high school team at Putnam.

Arthur Williams, Danielson, fullback of the Conn. Aggies' football team, rates tenth among the high scorers on teams representing colleges in the east.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM BOYS TO SEE BROWN-NEW HAMPSHIRE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 17.—About 400 boys of Windham county are to have the one great day of their lives on Saturday when they are to witness the Brown-New Hampshire football game at Providence as the guests of the Brown team. The boys will be transported to and from the stadium at Providence by interested citizens and members of the Rotary clubs of Putnam and Danielson.

All boys going to the game with the Putnam group, are to meet at the Putnam inn at noon (12 o'clock) when assignments to cars will be made. They will then proceed to the high school and from there the procession will start to Providence. All of the supervision of the plans will be made by Edwin Hill, secretary of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. Through the efforts of Mr. Hill, the party will be escorted by a state policeman of Connecticut as far as the Rhode Island line where they will be met by Rhode Island state police and escorted to the field.

It is estimated that there will be between 100 and 150 boys from the Putnam district who are taking advantage of this, to them, wonderful event. Fifty cars have been so far offered to Mr. Hill or to the Putnam Rotary club.

Invitations have been received here for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Kidder of Amherst, Mass., and Charles Llewellyn Merrick, of Springfield. The ceremeony to be performed at the Amherst Congregational church, Thursday, November 24, at six o'clock in the evening. Miss Kidder is the daughter of Prof. Kidder, treasurer of Amherst college and the granddaughter of Rev. Mr. Bingham, a former pastor of the Congregational church on Woodstock Hill. She was at one time a student at the Woodstock academy. Mr. Merrick is employed in Springfield by the Springfield Safe and Trust company.

The corner at South Main and Front street is being made into one of the most attractive corners in the city. A filling station which will also house the offices of the company is now being erected which gives one an idea of how attractive such a building can be made.

Aside from the improvement to the appearance of the location, the Gulf Oil company which has purchased the corner has given to the town of Putnam ten feet off the corner so that the street can be widened at this point to that extent and the sharp angle of the turn which is hard for automobilists to make may be made into an easily negotiable curve. The town and state, the latter of which has the control of the streets at this intersection, as both South Main and Front streets are state highways, will benefit immeasurably by this big change in the curve.

KIES NOMINATED FOR THOMPSON SELECTMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 17.—At the republican caucus held at Thompson last night, Frank Kies of Thompson was nominated as a candidate for selectman. He defeated Joseph A. Lafontaine of North Grosvenordale by a vote of 61 to 56.

At the democratic caucus held one hour later than that of the republicans, Mr. Lafontaine was nominated as their candidate, although he is supposed to be a republican in politics.

A peculiar situation has arisen at Thompson as there are two vacancies on the board of selectmen created by resignation of Charles V. Chase, who was elected to succeed Dyer S. Elliott, resigned, as the town clerk and treasurer of the town and after his election by the death of Wilfred H. Bellerose, selectman from North Grosvenordale. Although each party has the right to nominate and vote for two candidates, it is understood that there will be but one candidate on each ticket and they will be Mr. Kies and Mr. Lafontaine. Until the candidates are elected there can be no town business taken care of nor can any employes of the town receive their pay.

The next district meeting of the American Legion and auxiliary will be held on Sunday afternoon, December 4, in the Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street. The district includes all of the posts in Windham and Tolland counties. The auxiliary will meet with the posts and all who are eligible to membership in both the legion and auxiliary are to be included in the invitation. The committee on arrangements for this meeting consists of Mrs. J. Dyer Potter, Mrs. A. D. McIntyre, Mrs. Martin B. Robertson, Carl E. Weeks, Dr. Edward F. Perry, Rev. James F. English, Martin B. Robertson and Leon A. Talbot.

The last meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney F. Bard in Brooklyn and those attending from Putnam were Commander and Mrs. Martin B. Robertson, Major and Mrs. Arthur D. McIntyre, Mrs. J. Dyer Potter and Carl E. Weeks.

A meeting of the newly formed debating club of the Putnam high school was held and the committee on by-

THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Speaking in Philadelphia in regard to what has been taking place in the immediate past and what is hoped for in the immediate future, President Coolidge with his customary insistence bore down heavily upon economy in national expenditures. It made possible what we have accomplished as the chief executive views it and he points out the danger of throwing it overboard because conditions have improved.

The president set forth that he was not unmindful of the sacrifices that have been made but he pointed to the existing federal debt, cut almost a third at a saving of a million a day, and declared it to be "the greatest weakness in our line of national defense. * * * the greatest obstacle in the path of our economic development. It should be retired as fast as possible * * * by continuing the policy of rigid government economy."

The reference to the three tax reductions that have been made indicated the relief that had been extended in connection with the tax burden but the president was careful to point out that we are in a position for further moderate tax reduction because of past insistence upon economy in national expenditures. This is a matter which must needs get attention when a decision is made as to additional tax reduction and to the internal developments which are contemplated. The president pointed out many of these as worthy and desirable but there can be no departure from a judicious management of the national finances.

In an emphatic manner the president declared that the country has not attained its present position by accident but through a carefully thought out policy and he stressed in particular the opposition to government ownership and the maintenance of a protective tariff the latter being especially vital to agricultural and industrial values, rate of wages and standards of living.

Dealing with the commercial growth of the country and our foreign relations the president showed we had reached our present position through meeting adversity and overcoming it, but the test now confronting the nation is prosperity, and as he pointed out that is a test which has floored many. In coming to our present situation, however, the country knows well the value of Coolidge leadership and Coolidge policies.

The address was clear cut, thoughtful and well presented. It gives food for careful consideration as the many problems confronting the next session of congress are being discussed. It was a timely reminder to those with extravagant views.

DENVER AND DETROIT

Five congressional elections have been held this month for the purpose of filling vacancies in the lower house of the national legislature. In four instances, where the campaigns were waged on administration policies, the republican candidates were successful. In the fifth, that at Denver the democratic candidate won by about 5,000 votes. This victory was in a republican city, where the former congressman was republican and where the national administration got a heavy vote of endorsement.

The contest at Denver was waged not upon administration policies but upon the wet and dry question. Colorado was a dry state before the prohibition amendment was adopted. The candidate on the republican ticket was pronounced dry and had the backing of all the organizations that might be expected to support such a candidate. On the democratic ticket was a former judge of the supreme court and a pronounced wet. Prohibition was the question on which the election hinged in that district and even though it is in a dry state the wet candidate has won. The inference is that Denver has grown tired of prohibition and wants a change.

We cannot, however, thus dispose of Denver without recalling the recent municipal election in Detroit. In each instance a large city is involved even though one was a congressional and the other a municipal election. In Detroit the mayor who was in power stood for bootlegging, blind tigers and the continuance of conditions which have been prevailing in that city. His opponent, also a republican, was opposed to such lawlessness. He made absolutely no campaign, but he won in the primary and he won on election day. He accomplished, by his attitude toward the conditions which Detroit has been experiencing, the ousting of an administration which had at its command all the backing of an established organization.

Thus we see the two cities, one much larger than the other, expressing themselves on the wet and dry question. Each apparently acted in response to conditions which it had been experiencing, but they seek solution in opposite ways.

HANDICAPPED ALIENS

Through experience in carrying out the provisions of the existing immigration laws insight is gained into the manner in which they unintentionally work injustices. This is because, through the operation of the laws it is found where they include cases which had apparently not been considered when the legislation was adopted.

This is illustrated by the recommendations which have been made by Commissioner General Hull of the immigration bureau who urges legalizing the status of aliens residing in this country who came here before the quota laws went into effect, who have continued to reside here but who have no official documentary proof to offer that they entered the country lawfully.

Only this week attention has been called to a New England woman who went to her home in England this year for a visit. She has resided here for 20 years but has never become a citizen. She was entitled to go to England and come back within a certain time, and intended to do so. Sickness of her father and other relatives in England, resulting in the death of the former delayed her return, and when such was possible she found the doors barred against her. There are circumstances in this case which should and probably will be regarded as sufficient to make an exception to the rule, but those who have long been residents here are not even able to leave the country and return because they haven't a certificate showing when and where they arrived here.

This places them in the class of those who have actually defied the quota laws of the country as far as advantages are concerned. They experience a handicap which is not justified, but which could be removed if after going through a satisfactory examination which gave no suspicion of any evasion of the law when entering they became legalized aliens, and were given a certificate to that effect. They are even handicapped against naturalization by the fact that they cannot show proof of their entrance into the country, although in most instances they are probably worthy of citizenship.

MORE FIRE PROTECTION

Times are constantly changing and bringing new conditions and advantages. Not so many years ago the small village was obliged to depend upon its bucket brigade in the case of fire. Mills have had some means of pumping water for their own protection to a limited degree but for other fires reliance had to be placed upon the wells and cisterns, and the work that could be done by the volunteers with buckets or possibly a hand pumper.

That situation has been considerably changed. There are plenty of instances where fire fighting is still carried on under the old time methods but there are those small communities which have not only recognized the advantages of the motorized chemical engines of the present day but have taken steps to provide themselves with just that protection.

It is a natural development, but one which means that considerable territory can be covered quickly and effectively, and through such action there is opportunity for saving much property that would otherwise be destroyed.

That there are so many country places, mill villages and the like securing fire apparatus of this character, some of them even obtaining motor pumpers to operate from the village pond, doesn't mean that there will be no more fires, but it should mean that there will be less destruction from such a cause than otherwise might be expected from past experiences. It is admiral self protection.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION

What must be regarded as a needed rebuke was that given to a magistrate in a New York court by the chief magistrate after the former had rendered a decision that was dictated by other than justice.

It was in a traffic court that four Negroes were presented for violating the parking regulations. They were given different sentences than others for they were sent to jail without the alternative of a fine. There was nothing about the case that called for anything of the kind.

By a peculiar twist of fate that magistrate received a summons while sitting in the court to appear in traffic court for permitting his car to remain several hours in violation of regulations. He had an excuse to offer right away, and the Negroes were not a little concerned to know if one who was so much better prepared to know better was going to be given the same kind of treatment they got, or whether it was going to be hushed up.

When the affair got to the ears of the chief magistrate he at once reopened the case, heard the circumstances and fined the accused $5 apiece which they paid and departed. The chief magistrate also had something to say in regard to the way in which the magistrate had dealt with the matter. His action of course showed his real sentiments. It was one of those instances of gross injustice and discrimination instead of a magistrate's court of justice which it was supposed to be.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Every rain storm gives visions of a flood to those who have been inundated.

From the rumors coming out of Russia it doesn't look as if they intended to let Trotzky even look for another job.

How long will it be before the sight of an unguarded barrel will make no appeal to the boys around Thanksgiving time?

That far the weatherman has been very considerate of those who choose to sit on the sidelines and watch the football games.

Of course November couldn't be expected to keep up the mild weather indefinitely but already there's sufficient reason for a vote of thanks for the relief extended to the coal bin.

CUPID SCORES

"George," inquired Jane Landis of her bachelor brother, "do you care to make my dinner party an even twelve couples or will my frivolous friends bore you? I promise to make it a regular he-man dinner, no tea-party dishes. Ayline Farrow, a college chum of mine, is spending a few days in the city. I am giving the dinner for her. Ayline is an adorable girl; so sweet, and talented, too. She was very popular at school; she is so entertaining. She——"

"Enough! Enough!" moaned George lugubriously. "How do you have the good fortune to meet so many? Sis, if this is another one of your matchmaking schemes, count me out. I'm willing to fill in at a bridge party or see that your unescorted girl friends get home safely, but I want to pick out my wife myself. Let's see now," he tabulated, "you have had beautiful Bertina and darling Dorinda here to meet me. Then there was pretty Pauline, radiant Rosy, winsome Winifred and dutiful domestic Daisy; now you come with adorable Ayline. They were all very nice girls, but none of them could rob me of my single blessedness!"

"You conceited old bear! I've spoiled you, boasting about my handsome and thoughtful brother!"

"Not at all, sis; not at all! I'm not flattering myself that all these girls are dying to marry me, but you can't deny that you are doing your best to rob me of my freedom."

"Well, you needn't worry this time, George," comforted Jane, patronizingly. "I've already apprised Ayline of the fact that you are a hard shelled bachelor with your nose always in some musty old book, that the conversation of an ordinary human being sounds like childish prattle to you, and that she shouldn't waste any of her charms upon you—they wouldn't be appreciated. I told her that no woman could hold your interest."

"You did, eh!" ejaculated George, sitting up. "You——" Then nonchalantly, easing back, "Thank you. Now if I shou'd happen to sit next to her, she won't expect me to gush over a lot of perfectly darling, adorable, marvelous, dear things!"

"I'm placing her as far away from you as the table will allow, next to a young man who will thank me before the evening is very old."

"Fine! Then I may plan to be myself."

And Jane was true to her word. George found himself seated next to elderly Mrs. Hobbs, a great civic worker. Mrs. Hobbs noticed that her neighbor was abstracted and his eyes frequently strayed down the length of the table. From her position as hostess, Jane saw it, too, and smiled down provocatively at him. George caught the smile and turned to his neighbor with a slight frown; but again and again his eyes returned to Ayline. He couldn't help but wonder what she was thinking of him. Obviously she wasn't giving him a thought. Her neighbors seemed to be fascinated. A tinkle of laughter reached his ears.

After dinner Ayline was asked to sing. She complied with quiet grace. Later George overheard an elderly gentleman engage her in an important topic of the times, which she took up with ease. George became a little piqued at her polite indifference to his existence.

Just as a young man was asking her for the pleasure of escorting her home, George stepped up and said with firm determination:

"I'm taking Miss Farrow to her hotel, Jackson." At his glare the surprised young man bowed and retired into the background. Ayline tucked in a faint quirk of a smile.

Jane was aroused early the next morning by the telephone bell.

"Hello!" sleepily.

"Hello, sis!"

"George," exclaimed Jane, now wide awake, "what an unearthly hour to call! What has happened?"

"Say, Jane—er—you know Miss Farrow?"

"Yes," noncommittally.

"Well—er——". George plunged. "I invited her to lunch and a matinee this afternoon; she leaves tonight, you know. She said she had a shopping engagement with you, but would go if you did."

"I have no objection to a party,' Jane said, naively.

"Er—Jane, I thought maybe you could plead another pressing engagement? You see I have only this afternoon to reclaim my reputation."

Silence.

"Hello! Hello!" anxiously, "are you there, sis?"

"I'll withdraw from the scene on one condition."

"Yes," eagerly, "name it!"

"Will you admit now that Ayline is adorable?" Painful silence. Then "You win, sis. Ayline is adorable and not only that, but the most wonderful girl in the whole wide world!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Miss Margaret Beavan, who has been elected lord mayor of the great English city of Liverpool, has given wonderful service to the poor children of that city. She took up social work when she finished her education, and founded the Liverpool Child Welfare association. Nearly 100,000 sick and crippled children have been assisted by the association since its foundation, and Miss Beavan is regarded as the "mother" of Liverpool's needy little ones. She also started a scheme a few years ago for sending tired mothers away for holidays. Miss Beavan is the first woman "lord mayor" of so large a city as Liverpool. The original honors were carried off four years ago by Miss Ethel Colman, who was elected lord mayor of Norwich. It is interesting to note that women mayors in England are not mayoresses, that title being reserved for the wife of a mayor.

AT WHAT AGE DOES DANDRUFF START?

Dandruff, authorities say, rarely starts before fourteen years of age. At that time the hair, like the rest of the body, is taking a sudden spurt and demands extra nourishment. Dandruff germs easily gain a hold in a neglected scalp. Antiseptic tar soap banishes germs, tones, stimulates. Makes hair and scalp healthy. Salvation vs. Sin

Mr. Editor: The definition of the word sin as found in Webster's dictionary reads "Sin is the violation of the divine law of God." The word of God or the Bible declares that sin is the transgression of the law. Jesus Christ speaking in regard to sin, in Matthew 5:30 said:

"If thy right hand offend thee cut it off and cast it from thee for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

Since the fall of Adam in the garden or Eden, to this present time and generation sin has been the most blighting and damning foe to mankind and has destroyed countless millions. With all the warnings and pleadings of a just God in His sacred Book for souls to turn from a life of sin to righteousness yet in this day and generation sin has no terror or is it feared by a large majority of people. It is looked upon largely as a joke and harmless.

In the book of Ecclesiastes 8:11 we find these words: "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set to do evil." The word of God also teaches that man is born in sin, Psalms 51.5. Behold I was shapen in iniquity and in sin did my mother conceive me. The only remedy for sin is the blood of Christ, 1st John 1:7. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin.

You cannot satisfy the soul with sinful worldly pleasures. I have heard hundreds of people who have been redeemed from a life of sin, born of the spirit of God, a new creation in Christ testify that they had found true happiness and their souls were at rest.

The old time preaching of John Wesley, Whitefield Finney, preachers that were filled with the mighty power of God, saved hundreds. What a contrast today. Man made religions are springing up everywhere. Atheism tells us there is no God. Modernism declares that Christ the son of God was not divine. Evolution so-called does away with the fact that God created man in His own image. You might go through the whole catalogue of these spurious religions and find that they are all sinning religions and are accepted by a large multitude because they love sin and the teaching that God loves us too much to punish us, and will not damn our souls. Surely prophecy is being fulfilled. Men love pleasure more than God.

A Correction

Mr. Editor: The writer was given the opportunity to say a few words for the Red Cross at the recent meeting of the Norwich Woman's club at the Wauregan; his attention has officially been called to the fact that he unwittingly made a mis-statement of facts with reference to the connection existing between the local chapter of the Red Cross and the United Workers.

The statement was made that money, raised in the annual roll call of the Red Cross and contributed to the United Workers, at the present time $360 in amount, was used by that organization to purchase an automobile; this is an unfortunate error as this amount is used for salaries—to pay for the time used by workers for home service—the tuberculosis Christmas seal fund paying for an automobile and part of a nurse's salary.

The writer is glad to have this opportunity to correct any false impression which may have been created by this unfortunate mis-statement of facts in the mind of any one in the large and representative gathering at the meeting of the Woman's club; it is felt that the only way to reach the large number who were so mis-informed is through the medium of the public press.

Peter and Mrs. Peter Make a Call

How much a few words can explain;
How swiftly wipe out doubt and pain.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

Never had Peter been more wildly happy than he was now that he had found Mrs. Peter. When at last he could keep still long enough to ask questions, he wanted to know what she was doing up in the Old Pasture.

"I came up here to hunt for you, my dear," replied little Mrs. Peter. "I stood it just as long as I could down there in the dear Old Briar Patch. Then I came up here to be near you. I wanted to tell you that I didn't really mean it when I said that if you left the dear Old Briar Patch you needn't come back."

So together they went upto the bramble-tangle

"Did you go over to the Green Forest?" asked Peter, remembering how sure he had been that little Mrs. Peter had been over there with the stranger.

Mrs. Peter shook her head. "No," said she. "I came straight up here to the Old Pasture and I've been here ever since."

Some of Peter's old jealous feeling began to stir within him. "What were you doing with that good-looking strange rabbit?" demanded Peter. "I saw you touch noses with him. I saw you up in that bramble-tangle with him."

Little Mrs. Peter actually chuckled. "Don't you know who that was, Peter?" she cried. "Can't you guess?"

"No," replied Peter rather gruffly.

"Why," cried Mrs. Peter, "that was Little Pete."

"That was who?" demanded Peter, looking very much puzzled. "I can't say that he looked little to me. He certainly is as big as I am."

"Just the same that is Little Pete," cried Mrs. Peter. "Why, Peter Rabbit, I'm ashamed of you not to remember who Little Pete is. Don't you know your own children when you see them? He is the image of what you used to be, my dear. When I first saw him it seemed as if it must be you when you were younger."

"Huh!" said Peter. "Who is that with him?"

"Why can't you guess?" asked little Mrs. Peter. "Can't you guess who that is? That is Mrs. Pete, and they have come up here to the Old Pasture to live."

"They have what?" cried Peter.

"They have come up here to the Old Pasture to live. They are going to make their home here," replied little Mrs. Peter. "Isn't that wonderful news?"

"I wonder what your father Old Jed Thumper, says to that," said Peter.

"I don't know but I guess it won't make any very great difference what he does say," replied Mrs. Peter. "They have made up their minds that they are going to live here and I guess that settles it. I wish you would do something for me, Peter. Will you?"

"What is it?" demanded Peter, suspiciously.

"Go with me to make a call on Little Pete and Mrs. Pete," replied little Mrs. Peter.

Peter pretended not to want to go, but he was full of curiosity. So at last he consented. So together they went up to the bramble-tangle, where the two stranger rabbits had made themselves at home. And there Peter met Little Pete and Mrs. Pete. Peter couldn't help thinking all the time how he had expected to fight when he should meet that strange rabbit, and now here he was making a friendly call, and that strange rabbit wasn't a stranger at all, but his own son, who had been out in the Great World so long that Peter had almost forgotten him.

The Day's Work

The day's work counts—
It isn't what
You mean to do a week ahead;
It isn't what you know you'll gain
When all annoyances have fled;
It isn't what you've dreamed and planned—
Such hopes are but a phantom band—
The day's work counts!

The day's work counts—
The foot you gain,
Since yonder sun dispelled the dark;
Next week, next month, next year are vain—
Unto the present summons hark;
How have you fared ahead since morn
In garnering life's oil and corn?
The day's work counts!

The day's work counts—
It isn't much
The gain of those few painful hours,
But be content if there is shown
Some product of those sacred powers
Which guide each mind—uphold each hand.
Strive with the best at your command—
The day's work counts!

Thanksgiving Feasts

WHEN the last bit of damage has been done to the turkey, when no one cares for another helping of cranberry jelly or chestnut dressing, then comes the final touch that makes the dinner perfect—pumpkin pie and—YUBAN.

Make every day a "feast" day by serving delicious YUBAN. It costs but little more than ordinary coffee—but is worth much more.

How to Make Filtrated Coffee

Fill a close mesh muslin bag with one half tablespoonful of pulverized Yuban to each cup of water. When the water in the tea kettle is at the boiling point slowly pour it through the bag. Do not repeat the process. If you like strong coffee use more coffee. See that the bag you use is fresh and clean. Only half the quantity of Yuban is required by this method to produce a drink of the same color and strength as in the old-fashioned way.

YUBAN

New Face Powder Makes a Big Hit

Wouldn't you, too, like a face powder that will keep shine away—stay on longer—spread smoothly—not clog the pores—and always be so pure and fine? It is made by a new French Process and is called MELLO-GLO. It is surely a wonderful Face Powder. Just try MELLO-GLO. Porteous & Mitchell Co.

This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record, for sure, quick and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. MEN STUDY BIBLE IN CLASS AT Y. M. C. A.

Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. building the men's Bible class enjoyed its weekly period of study and discussion.

The scripture used was Luke 10:25-37, and the topic was, Friendliness. The basis of the study was the story of "Good Samaritan." Following are some of the points brought out in the discussion. The average man does not relish being told what to do or not to do. Not a few men apparently think of and act for their own personal interests only. The lawyer asked the question of Jesus in order to catch him and best him in an argument, but his attempt was futile, for Jesus dealt with him in a masterly way. The lawyer was forced to answer his own question as to what the law was, whereupon Jesus simply said to him, you know the law; all you have to do is to live up to it and everything will be all right. When the lawyer asked Jesus the question, "who is my neighbor?" Jesus told the pointed story of the good Samaritan, and at its conclusion put the question to the lawyer, "who do you think was neighbor to the unfortunate man"? There could be but one answer, and Jesus drove home the great lesson that whoever within the range of our possibility to help is our neighbor. The lawyer was silenced by the masterful argument of Jesus

CAUGHT AUTOMOBILE THIEF IN CHASE DOWN WASHINGTON STREET

Leon Jean, 17, of Winchendon, Mass., was caught Thursday afternoon in a chase down Washington street by the police and was linked up with the theft of the Chevrolet coach, with Massachusetts registration, 219-274, which had been parked on West Main street near the Ann street corner since Tuesday morning and which the local police had taken charge of Wednesday night.

Police Chief Robert Callahan, of Winchendon, came here Thursday afternoon with the young woman who owned the car in order to take it back. Chief George Linton sent out Officer P. He was pursued in an automobile by the two officers, who caught him on Washington street, near Christ church.

The young man is reported to have admitted that he came to Norwich in the stolen machine, which was taken from Winchendon on Sunday. It is believed that it reached this city Monday.

Chief Callahan took Jean back to Winchendon Thursday afternoon and he will be presented in court there on the charge of theft of the automobile.

LETTER FROM VERMONT SHOWS TERRIBLE CONDITIONS

Miss Josephine E. Case of 23 Warren street, who was superintendent of nurses for 26 years at the state insane hospital at Waterbury, Vermont, where there are now between 600 and 700 patients, has just received a letter from Miss Barber, a nurse at the institution, which tells of some of the terrifying conditions at the hospital during the flood. Miss Case ended her employment at the hospital in 1924.

The following is the letter:

Waterbury Insane Hospital
Nov. 14, 1927.

Early Thursday night the night nurses had to make use of a raft to get from the nurses' home to the hospital. An order was given by the superintendent to segregate the patients on the second floor of the buildings and put them to bed. I never put in such a night, staring death in the face. The water came up to the tenth stair of the 13 stairs between the stories. The power house men were able to stay there till the next afternoon. After the water went down the first trip had to be made in rubber boots in going through the hospital. All the hospital cows were drowned—hens and most of the horses. Supplies were spoiled. The bridges are all gone, the new steel bridge to Montpelier swept away. One can understand the feeling of a rat being caught in a trap. There are no trains. All the stores are demolished. The river was full of wreckage, houses, etc., going down stream. There are ever so many planes. I saw five Sunday. The soldiers have taken possession of the town, gangs of men are working in the mud, mud is over everything and it is all we shall see till the snow covers it. Everyone has to be inoculated for typhoid. We had no heat or lights for four or five days.

CAUGHT IN BRIDGEPORT WITH NORWICH AUTOMOBILE

Morris Moriarty, 21 Brook street, this city, Robert Whaley, of Galveston, Texas, and Harvey W. Smith, of no certain address, were arrested in Bridgeport Thursday morning charged with the arrest of a Studebaker automobile belonging to Frank Agillaco of North Main street. The machine was taken from his garage on Penobscot street, but the theft had not been reported to the local police before the men were arrested. The car has registration L-3955.

The three men were brought here by state policemen Thursday night for presentation in the city court.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 17.—H. E. Collette, 37, Pacific avenue, Providence, was found in a dazed condition across his motorcycle on the state highway at Wequetequock tonight. When Dr. M. H. Scanlon and Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon were called, he was taken to the doctor's office. No injuries were found. The man said he was on his way home from Fishers Island and thought he struck a hole in the road and was thrown. He thought he could get back to Providence.

Recital By Miss Bitgood.

Miss Roberta Bitgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood, of New London, and a student at Connecticut college, is to give her second public organ recital Thursday night at the Methodist church, New London. She will be assisted by the Connecticut College choir under direction of Dr. J. Lawrence Erb.

SPOKE ON TRIP WITH THE "FLOATING UNIVERSITY"

With a large number present the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club was held at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday noon. President Clarence A. Spear presided at the meeting and Frank R. Murdy was the song leader with Henry J. LaFontaine, at the piano. Mr. LaFontaine returned to the club after an absence of several weeks, due to a throat operation. There was very little business transacted at the meeting.

The musical programme under the direction of Mr. Murdy was highly enjoyable, the feature being the singing contest between three quartets. The prize, a box of cigars, was awarded on sweetness of tone and harmony and was won by Charlie Butts and his three assistants, Nate Gibbs, Judge Ayling and Otto Ernst. Honorable mention went to Ed Jewett's quartet, Al Lillibridge, Bert Ferguson and Glenn Merithew, who sang "I wish I Had My Old Car Back Again" (LaSalle). The consolation prize went to the Golfing Four, Chat Saxton, Bert Gager, Walt Turner and Henry Vignot, who sang "I'm Knee-deep in the Rough" (Hagen). The reputed impartial judges were Henry Vignot, Charlie Butts and Ed. Jewett. Two new members, A. E. Payson and Thomas Burdick rendered a pleasing duet. There was also a selection by the visiting Rotarians and guests.

The speaker of the luncheon was Prof. Thomas G. Brown of Norwich, former instructor at Dartmouth and also an instructor with the "Floating University" last year on the world cruise. Prof. Brown told interestingly of his trip and dealt largely with his stay in Siam.

Professor Brown opened his talk by saying that just a year ago he and his ship on which were about 500 students were in the far east tropics but he thought it was no warmer then than it was right here in Norwich today. His ship had left Shanghai for Bangkok, capital of Siam. The speaker confined his talk largely to his stay in Siam where he said that the students and faculty were treated with the utmost courtesy and everything for their entertainment was done upon order from the king. Siam is the only independent country in Asia and is an absolute monarchy, the king having sole power. However, in spite of being an absolute monarchy it is by far one of the most progressive countries in the east. This may be due in a great measure to the fact that the chief advisor to the king is an American. The king, himself, was educated partly in America, while two of his brothers were educated here, one having been graduated from Columbia and the other from Harvard. Two other brothers were educated at Oxford and Cambridge. This royal family has returned to govern Siam with ideas, many of them very democratic.

On arrival at Bangkok, upon order of the king, the University of Bangkok, its dormitories and class rooms, etc., were turned over to the Floating University. The stay in Siam was especially enjoyable, the king entertaining the faculty and students in lavish style. Professor Brown told of attending several royal dinner parties given at the royal palace and being impressed with the general good feeling that existed between the Siamese and the Americans. In conclusion Mr. Brown told several humorous incidents and dealt humorously on the three pairs of noted Siamese twins.

Professor Brown's talk was highly entertaining and he was given a vote of appreciation for his talk. The speaker was introduced by William G. Park, chairman of the program committee.

OLD FOOTBALL INJURY CAUSES YOUTH'S DEATH

James B. Sweesey, 19, son of Mrs. Edith B. Sweesey, of Ridgewood, N. J., who resided in this city at 61 Williams street about five years ago, died Monday, Nov. 7, in the hospital at Paterson, N. J., following convulsions supposed to have been superinduced by an injury at the base of the skull received in a football game in Brooklyn about a year ago.

In the football game he went down with the heap of players and was injured in the back of the neck, as a consequence of which he was in bed for two weeks and two or three months later he was able to get around again, but on the advice of a physician, he did not return to school.

On the Sunday before he died, he engaged in a game of touch ball and received a light tap in the back of his neck, from which he complained that he was dizzy, but he kept on playing for about 20 minutes longer. He explained to the boys that his neck had been sensitive ever since the injury in the football game.

On Sunday evening, he was with his mother and sister attending an American legion Armistice service at church when he was seized with a fainting spell and started to walk out, but fell to the floor. He was given first aid and taken to the hospital as soon as possible after a physician had attended him. He died in the hospital between five and six o'clock in the morning.

While a resident in this city, the yung man was a member of the boys' choir at Christ Episcopal church. In Ridgewood, he had joined the West Side church about two weeks before he died. He is survived by his mother and his sister, Mrs. Donald DeWitt, of Ridgewood. He was employed in a bank in Brooklyn.

VERMONT APPEAL GETS GREAT RESPONSE HERE

Fresh from a trip through the Winooski valley region of Vermont, where the floods did their worst damage, J. W. Berry of Richmond, Vt., representative of a big milk concern, told a thrilling story to a meeting of the Norwich Vermonters at the headquarters at 145 Main street Thursday night. He had been three days getting here from Montpelier, having been obliged to go around through New York state. In the town of Bolton, near Montpelier, he stated that he helped to recover three bodies of flood victims.

Chairman Francis T. Diggins presided at the meeting and reported that the appeal for clothing had elicited a wonderful response from Norwich people and a great quantity of good, heavy clothing for men, women and children, as well as blankets, had been received and is to be shipped as soon as the local organization is instructed where it is most needed. A considerable amount in money has also been given to the committee by those who have voluntarily tendered checks or cash. The committee is assured that there will be need of cash as much as anything to assist the needy people in Vermont.

It was decided to keep the headquarters open only one more day, so that the headquarters will be closed this (Friday) evening but there is to be a meeting there at 7:30.

Mr. Berry heartily commended the work that had been done by the Norwich organization.

TEN FAST AMATEUR BOUTS AT PASTIME A. C. SHOW THIS EVENING

Tonight's amateur bouts at Olympic hall under the auspices of the Pastime A. C., promise to make up the best card of amateurs yet seen in Norwich. The best talent in the eastern part of the state is slated to take part in the show tonight and not a few real grudge fights appear on the program.

The main bout in tonight's show will bring together Big Boy Burlap, dusky batter of Westerly, and Jackie Herdman, of the Sub Base, amateur heavyweight champion of the S. S. Camden. Burlap weighs 209 pounds and Hardman, 198.

Another bout that will be of interest will be the bout between Chick Shellman, of the U. S. S. Camden, and Young Terrance, of Danielson, and should prove a real battle. The boys will come in at 140 pounds.

The third special bout of the evening will be between Willie Jackson and Lew Reta, Westerly bantams, who will battle for the championship of Westerly, and also a place on the Westerly boxing team. There has been considerable argument between these two boys, one a colored boy, and the other an Italian, as to their merits. They have long wanted to try conclusions in the ring and the Pastime A. C. has been the only club to give them the opportunity. This bout is sure to be a regular grudge fight and each has a large following in Westerly.

According to the weights, the probable bouts for the evening will be as follows: Young Bruno of Westerly vs. Young Dempski of Norwich, at 150; Joe Russo of Westerly vs. Kid Bingo of New London, at 145; Kid Fredman of Colchester vs. Young Anthony of Norwich, at 130; Jack Savage of Norwich vs. Young Wakeley of Danielson, at 112; Young Metti of Westerly vs. Al Koziol of Norwich, at 130; Young Martin of Norwich vs. Young Golas of Jewett City, at 125, and Frankie Adams of Norwich vs. Stanley Koziol of Norwich, at 135.

These bouts may be changed at the last minute when the boys are weighed in but if their weights are the same as reported this will probably be the card.

An orchestra will furnish music for an hour before the bouts and a section has been reserved for the ladies and their escorts. Each card finds more and more women at the ringside and all seem to enjoy the sport which is no rougher than the ordinary college football game.

Jackie Wilson and Danny Doyle will be the referees for the bouts with Mike Kelly and Jack Sweeney as judges. Jack Carney will hold the watch.

From the winners of tonight's bouts a team of five boxers will be picked to represent Norwich in the amateur bouts at Waterbury next Friday night. The winner of the Burlap-Herdman bout will be the heavyweight representative.

The bouts go on tonight at 8:15 and the doors will be open at 7:15 o'clock.

DONOHUE WIRES CONDOLENCES TO TIGER FLOWERS' FAMILY

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—"Tiger Flowers was a credit to boxing, a good square fellow, and was always willing to fight anybody, anywhere regardless of the weight of his opponent," was the eulogy that Thomas E. Donohue, of New London, president of the National Boxing association, accorded to the former middleweight champion of the world today.

Acting in his official capacity as president of the N. B. A., which embraces boxing commissions in 24 states, Donohue wired his condolences to the family of Flowers and to Walk Miller, Flowers' genial manager.

The death of the Georgia fighter automatically cancels the N. B. A.'s edict to Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, that he must arrange a title bout between Walker and Flowers before January 9, 1928 or Walker would forfeit his title.

President Donohue declared today that since Walker had defended his title against Tommy Milligan in London several months ago, he would not have to defend his middleweight championship before spring.

YALE HOCKEY SLATE CALLS FOR 18 GAMES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Yale hockey schedule as announced tonight calls for 18 games, 11 of which are to be played at the New Haven Arena. Allowance is made for extra games with Harvard and Princeton should break even with both teams.

Practice has already started for the first game on December 10 which will find Yale pitted against the University club team, of Boston.

The other games: December 21, Queens.

January 2, Toronto; 7, St. T. T.; 10, Brown at Providence; 14, Princeton; 17, Boston university; 18, Bowdoin; 21, Dartmouth; 24, New Hampshire.

February 4, St. Nicholas; 8, Bates; 11, Dartmouth at Hanover; 15, St. Nicholas; 18, University club at Boston; 22, Princeton at Princeton, 25, Harvard; 29, Princeton (play-off at Princeton).

March 3, Harvard at Boston; 7, Harvard, (play-off at New Haven).

WITTMER NAMES HIS "ALL-OPPONENT" TEAM

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Head Line Coach "Al" Wittmer, of the Princeton football team, today named an "all opponent" team.

Wittmer's selection of the best from the teams of Princeton's opponents this year was: Scott and Fishwick, Yale, ends; Raskowski, of Ohio State, and either Quarrier or Eddy, of Yale, tackles; Webster, of Yale, and Tipa, of Washington and Lee, guards; Charlesworth, of Yale, center; either Hecklman of Cornell, or Fouch, of Ohio State, quarterback; Eby, of Ohio State and Back, of Cornell, halfbacks; Decker, of Yale, fullback.

FLOWERS FIRST AND LAST FIGHTS IN SAME RING

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The same ring in which Tiger Flowers made his New York debut also was the scene of the last fight in his colorful boxing career, during which the Georgia deacon and former middleweight champion of the world earned around a half million. This was disclosed by Walk Miller, first and only manager of the Georgia Negro, before leaving on the Crescent Limited for Atlanta with the body of Flowers, who died last night after undergoing a minor eye operation.

"The Tiger's first fight here was just like his last" said Miller. "Flowers started against Lee Anderson, a light-heavyweight, and knocked him out in the fifth round at the Commonwealth club in Harlem. His last fight was against Leo Gates, heavyweight, last Saturday, and Flowers won by a knockout in the fourth round in the same arena. They have changed the name from the Commonwealth club to the Olympia, but otherwise it is the same place."

Friends and ring notables, including Gene Tunney and Mickey Walker, the man who took the middleweight title from the Negro, paid tribute today to Flowers, scores of others visited the funeral parlor where his body was taken after his death at the private hospital of Dr. W. G. Fralick.

Miller estimated Flowers earned half a million dollars during seven years in the ring, not deducting expenses and other details involved in about 200 matches. Since losing his title to Walker last December Flowers had campaigned against 19 opponents.

Flowers was the only Negro who held the middleweight championship. He was very religious and a deacon of the Baptist church in his home town. Before the operation, Flowers made a will bequeathing property valued at $10,000 to his wife and a six year old daughter.

The body of the former champion will lie in state at the Flowers home in Atlanta Saturday, Miller said. The funeral will be held Sunday.

YALE-HARVARD GAME IS SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL FEATURE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Harvard and Yale cleared their training decks today for the 46th meeting of these ancient foes in Cambridge Saturday.

Barred Gates defended the final Crimson workout of the season as Harvard drilled for and against forward passes. Joe Crossby's infected nose kept him from the practice and it appeared probable that the star of the Harvard attack will be no closer to the game Saturday than the sidelines.

Although Hoben and Garvey, two of Yale's injured backs, went through signal drill with the Eli varsity, Captain Webster, crack guard, failed to get into the workout. Hall was in his place and may start against Harvard. Webster's hip injury appeared aggravated by the two minutes he practiced yesterday.

The Harvard team, after running through plays for the benefit of the student body tomorrow, will dine at a suburban country club and break the tradition of generations by spending the night in Cambridge tomorrow morning and practice later in the day in the stadium.

With a dearth of feature games on Saturday's schedule, other major elevens trained their sights on the classics on Thanksgiving day. Although hampered by bad weather, Army and Navy polished passing weapons and defense. Rain that fell on other fields gave coaches an opportunity to acquaint their men with mud conditions absent in most of the games this fall.

PACIFIC COAST TITLE DECIDED ON SATURDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The three undefeated teams of the Pacific coast conference, Stanford, University of Southern California, and University of Idaho, risk their championship prospects in games Saturday with indications of hard-fought battles in each case.

Overshadowing all other coast contests, both in traditional rivalry and importance, is the 34th annual "big game" between Stanford and University of California. It will be witnessed by 90,000 persons in Stanford stadium.

En route to Los Angeles, and a meeting with Southern California, the 26 gridiron warriors of Washington State college, arrived in San Francisco.

Idaho headed for Portland, where it plays Oregon State college in its last conference game of the year.

Dundee To Defend Title.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, will defend his title at Madison Square Garden, New York, on December 12, against an opponent yet to be picked by Tex Rickard.

An agreement for a 15-round title bout against any man that Rickard might select, was signed here tonight between Max Waxler, manager of Dundee, and Jess McMahon, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden.

AGGIES NOW PREPARED FOR BOSTON COLLEGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 17.—The Connecticut Aggies started tapering of their preparations for Boston college with a light drill here this afternoon, abandoning the strenuous scrimmages which marked practice sessions earlier in the week in favor of easier but equally important work.

With Head Coach Sumner A. Dole checking up on backfield assignments and Line Coach Knute Bitgood watching the linemen, the Aggies carefully rehearsed in dummy scrimmage all of the plays which may be used against the Eagles. The many forward pass and trick plays, which the Aggies are expected to uncover Saturday, were given special attention. Against the second team and freshman elevens these plays have been sure ground-gainers during the last three weeks, and Dole hopes they will give the Eagles no little worry.

Dole has been giving his kickers considerable attention this week, and they went through a long drill this afternoon. Captain Eddy, Ryan and Hawkins all took turns punting, and Ryan and Flydal spent some time in place kicking. Eddy also practiced dropkicking for a short time.

The Aggies have shown a pronounced weakness all season stopping long runbacks of kickoffs, and Dole has been working this week to overcome this fault. Probably the greatest cause of the Aggies' failure in this important play has been inability on the part of the man making the kickoff to get both height and distance in booting the leather. The receiver has caught the ball and had his interference under way in most cases before the Aggie team has crossed twenty yards into enemy territory. Long runs have naturally resulted. The Boston college eleven uses a particularly effective wedge-shaped formation in protecting the receiver of a kickoff, and the Aggies are building a defense against this formation in hopes to cut runbacks down to a minimum. At the same time Dole is giving his kickers considerable practice in kicking off, working for both height and distance.

Another point that is receiving attention this week is protection for the receiver of punts, who against Boston college will probably be Ray Ryan. He is a fast and shifty runner and if given a few yards start should be able to return punts for good gains. There has been a weakness apparent in the Aggie secondary in taking out ends covering punts, however, an improvement must be shown Saturday if ground is to be gained on this play.

There is a strong possibility that Bob Great '30 of Niles, Mich. may start in one of the halfback positions, or at fullback, against the Eagles. Great is light, weighing not more than 150 pounds, yet his work as a reserve back this season stamps him as one of the best all-around backfield men on the squad. To begin with, Great can run with the best of them, being just as speedy as either Williams or Eddy. As a matter of fact he is probably the best dash man on the Aggie track team. In addition to his speed, Great is also shifty and a hard man to bring down in an open field. He showed this in the Trinity game, when he substituted for Captain Eddy. Trinity was concentrating on Williams in their attempts to stop the Aggie attack, paying but scant attention to Great until after he had reeled off several substantial gains and made the tying touchdown in that hectic first quarter. Great, moreover, is one of the surest and deadliest tacklers, the speed with which he hits opposing ball carriers more than making up for any lack of weight. This asset means a lot this year, for Connecticut's secondary defense has been woefully weak in some of its games this season. Besides these qualifications, Great makes an excellent interferer, working just as hard to clear the way for another ball carrier as he does when carrying the leather himself. All in all, Great has the makings of a great backfield player and with two more seasons of varsity football ahead of him should be a big help to the Aggies. He will bear watching Saturday.

GEORGETOWN-DARTMOUTH TO PLAY BENEFIT FOR VERMONT SUFFERERS

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Dartmouth will meet Georgetown in a post season football game for the benefit of the Vermont and New Hampshire flood sufferers in the Harvard stadium on Saturday, Nov. 26, providing Harvard will donate the use of the stadium for the game, Larry Bankhart, member of the Dartmouth athletic council, announced here tonight.

Bankhart returned to Boston tonight from a council meeting at Hanover, N. H., where the possibility of staging the game was discussed by President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth, Head Coach Jesse Hawley, Jack Cannell, assistant coach, and Harry Heneage, graduate manager of athletics.

"We agreed that we could play Georgetown in the stadium one week from next Saturday if William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard and the Harvard corporation can allow us the use of the stadium," he said. "Dartmouth will pay all its expenses to and from the game and so will Georgetown.

"Neither of us can afford to pay rent for the field, however, and that phase of it will be up to Harvard.

"I hope to arrange a conference here tomorrow between myself, Father Flanagan of Georgetown and Director Bingham to talk over possibilities.

"There's one other thing. The proceeds are to be divided equally between Vermont and New Hampshire, one half to go to Vermont and the other half to New Hampshire."

Bankart added that the Dartmouth athletic council today received a telegram from Notre Dame athletic authorities asking that Knute Rockne's famous team be allowed to compete against Dartmouth or Georgetown in the post-season flood benefit encounter, the idea for which was evolved several days ago by William S. O'Gorman, a Manchester, N. H., department store owner.

"We would like to play Notre Dame," Bankart told The Associated Press, "but inasmuch as the first suggestion was for Georgetown and due to the fact that Georgetown has already accepted, we cannot."

HARVARD HAS DONE ALL POSSIBLE FOR CALDWELL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Harvard can do no more than it already has done to bring about the participation of Bruce Caldwell, debarred Yale backfield ace, in the Yale-Harvard game here Saturday, it was indicated tonight.

No definite statement was forthcoming from William J. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics, but it was understood that he felt any further moves on his part might be regarded as merely "useless theatrical gestures."

Although the director's office here has been beseiged with telephone and telegraph messages urging action on some 11th hour movement to bring about Caldwell's reinstatement, it was pointed out that Harvard already has volunteered to waive the rule which barred the Eli star from further football competition. In view of reports from New Haven today, however, that Yale authorities regard the Caldwell incident as closed, Harvard officials are loath to inaugurate further last minute agitation on the subject.

Black to Be Dartmouth Leader

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Richard W. Black of Pekin, Illinois, today was elected captain of the Dartmouth college football team for next year. He is in his junior year.

Black, because of an injury received to his leg in the first minute of play during the Brown game, is confined to the college infirmary. The Brown game was the only major contest in which he took part this year.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

The scoring record of Myles Lane for his three-year old varsity career in the Dartmouth backfield is close to a record, if it isn't actually a new high mark. Lane has wound up his college career with a total of 308 points, an average of more than 100 points per year. He tallied 108 as a sophomore, 79 last season and 125 this fall to lead all eastern rivals.

An idea of how far Lane is ahead of the rest of the pack is shown by the three-year records of a few of his rivals, with a few games yet to go. Bill Madden of Columbia shows a 1925-27 total of 149 points, Nick Borelli of Muhlenberg 144 and Harry Wilson of the Army 135 points.

Applications for approval of 166 American records in track and field sports or swimming made during the past year will be acted on at the annual convention of the amateur athletic union in Cincinnati, Nov. 20-22. The lists shows 38 in track and 128 in swimming with women performers claiming credit for exactly half 33.

Martha Morsellus, of the New York Women's Swimming association, national free-style champion at all distances, heads the list with applications for 25 records. Johnny Weissmuller, "human fish" of the Illinois Athletic club, claims credit for 16.

ACADEMY PREPARES FOR STONINGTON GAME SATURDAY

It now seems that the scrimmage on Wednesday was the last for the Academy this season. Thursday, in preparation for the Stonington tilt Saturday the locals had a long signal workout with plenty of stress on forward passes.

The squad was minus Johnny Greene and Jim Kelly yesterday and there was considerable speculation as to whether they would be ready for the "Farmers" in this meeting proclaimed throughout the southern part of the state as for the eastern Connecticut championship.

Whitney had several candidates for Harry McGlone's post of tossing passes out, working during the two hours. Vitiano and Aldrich seemed to lead the field, although neither as yet can match the consistent work that McGlone had shown until he ran into a shoulder injury against Bulkeley. Right now the aerial attack, the local's best bet in practically all of the seven games this year, seems in the worst shape and it may be that the line bucking of Capt. Jack Marks and the end dashes of Vitiano, Tirrell and Jim Kelly, if he is ready, will be the Red and White offensive.

The kicking department which has been way below par to date this year, also received attention with Marks doing most of the work. Berghinzo, scrub end, also has shown ability along this line and during his short stay in the Windham game, got off a fairly respectable kick.

As has been Whitney's custom all season, it is expected that the starting lineup will not be announced until game time.

Stonington on this occasion has instilled fear into the hearts of Red and White followers for the first time in many years. Her heavier outfit looks much better on paper than the Academy's inexpectenced and light bunch. Her backs, with all hands ready, seems to out-balance the local's crippled set of ball-carriers. Cowan and Cronin intend to smash the Academy center trio of youthful prodigies to ribbons.

Nobody has done this consistently this year. Tipper Conley of Wilby, an All-state choice from many of the experts' pens, Locke and Bernstein of Bulkeley, Hannusovsky of Harding, Helyler and Shea of Windham, and "Babe" Kelly of Torrington, couldn't make much impression against the locals' center trio. Cragan intends to skirt the ends, shoot through tackled and outpunt the locals while Stonington forward wall intends to outplay the Red and White all around.

Maybe they will. The Academy will have to fight to step this confident gang of "Farmers" on Owen field.

YALE SQUAD COMPLETES ITS DRILL FOR 1927

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Yale varsity football squad had its last workout of the 1927 season today. As in the other workouts of the week the squad was only called on to go through signal drills. There was no scrimmage. Hoben and Garvey stayed in the lineup the greater part of the afternoon but Webster did not go in at all although he was at the field in uniform.

Norman Hall who has been filling in at right guard for Webster during the latter's absence in the infirmary was in the position again today. Except for the addition of Hall, there were no changes in the lineup.

Despite Webster's absence from the line today, there still appears to be a chance of him starting against Harvard on Saturday in the final game of the season. Although he took part in only two plays yesterday and was in the lineup not more than a minute, it appears to have been too much for him and the coaches decided that it would be better to give him a complete rest today and tomorrow as he is to play Saturday.

After the signal drill, the backs were put through their paces—running back punts, passing and kicking. They were not called on to work long and the practice was one of the shortest of the season.

The team will leave here by special train for Cambridge at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and will go direct to the Harvard stadium for practice. After practice the men will continue on to Boston and their hotel.

TEDCASTLE ELECTED LEADER OF WESLEYAN SOCCER

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Arthur T. Tedcastle, '29, of New Haven, has been elected captain of the 1928 soccer team at Wesleyan. Tedcastle has played forward on the varsity for the last two years.

Gilbert R. Kelly, '30, of Oxford, Pa. has been selected to captain the varsity cross country team in 1928.

Kelly's election followed close on the heels of his participation in a run from Middletown to Hartford this afternoon in which he tied for first place with Captain R. A. Mead. Their time was 2:6:24 4-5 for the 18.8 miles.

NO CHANGE ANTICIPATED IN RULES GOVERNING FOOTBALL FOR NEXT YEAR

By Brian Bell
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—With football hand practically played out the rules committee seems justified in standing pat on the 1927 revisions.

With the exception of the lateral, or backward pass the changes ordered last spring by the powers-that-be have been given a thorough trial and apparently worked well, on the whole.

The lateral pass has been little used, probably because it is an intricate affair, if successfully operated, and the coaches have not had the time to drill the players in its possibilities, if any.

Change in the position of the goal posts and scoring insurance for safety men who muff punts have had the most striking effect in the game.

Points after touchdown have to some extent gone out of style since the posts were placed at the end of the safety zone instead of on the goal line, the extra ten yards being more than many of the knickers can negotiate under pressure.

Goals from the field, a dominant factor in 1926, also have been reduced to a minimum. Most quarterbacks preferring to gamble with a pass on fourth down, when within striking distance, rather than shoot for the distant uprights.

Protection for the butter-fingered boys who muff their punts has speeded up the game. The sight of a homeless ball bounding here and there about the field with every one afraid to establish contact with it has practically disappeared.

Safe in the knowledge that the worst thing that can happen if they muff the ball is loss of possession, with no chance for a dash to a touchdown in the picture, the safety men have become bold.

They have seized balls that would have gone over the line for touchbacks and given them the ball on the 20-yard line when they had only an outside chance to run it back that far.

The huddle time limit of 15 seconds and the count of "1-2-3-4" on the line shift has had little effect. The teams that shifted before can do it now and when the number of opportunities for penalties is considered the observance of the rule has been remarkable.

If there is to be any agitation for additional changes it may include a number of suggestions to eliminate tie games, which have been especially conspicuous this year. From time to time various ideas have bobbed up but as yet no generally satisfactory scheme has been put forward to break the all too frequent deadlocks.

DEMPSEY TO START COUNTER SUIT AGAINST KEARNS

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP)—In the event that Jack Kearns wins a verdict over Jack Dempsey in the former's suit for $333,333.33, charging breach of contract, Dempsey will counter with a suit for $500,000, Richard J. Mackey, of the former heavyweight champion's counsel, said today.

Mackey declared that sum represented money that was due Dempsey that he had never received from the Brennan fight in Madison Square Garden on Aug. 28, 1923, and the Tom Gibbons fight in Shelby, Montana.

2 COMPROMISE SETTLEMENTS IN WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

According to a finding handed down by Compensation Commissioner Albert J. Bailey, Isaac H. Cook, No. 7 Hamilton avenue, is awarded compensation in a lump sum of $175, in his claim against the American Woolen Co., of Norwich. This was a disputed claim for an injury sustained by Mr. Cook on August 31, 1927. On the date mentioned, Mr. Cook sustained a hernia, but was able to continue his regular occupation until Oct. 12th, when he was laid off on account of lack of work at the American Woolen plant. The finding was reached on a compromise.

In another claim against the American Woolen Co., John Flynn, of No. 544 Boswell avenue, is awarded compensation in a lump sum of $175. According to the finding, Mr. Flynn, on Oct. 10th, while employed at the Woolen company plant, sustained an injury resulting in the recurrence of a hernia which he originally sustained on or about Oct. 15th, 1926. The hernia, it is said, had been repaired by surgical operation, which claim the respondents denied. A compromise settlement was effected for the amount mentioned.

Workmen's Compensation

The following workmen's compensation agreement has been approved by Commissioner Albert J. Bailey.

C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co., Westerly, employer and Arthur L. Labrecque, employe, bruised and wrenched muscles of right arm, Sept. 14, at rate of $13.98.

Dr. Lauge Koch, Danish explorer, has returned to Copenhagen from an exploration of Greenland with evidence that Greenland was once a tropical country. Koch and two assistants explored the coastland of North Scoribysound to Denmarkhaven, Greenland. The exploration is regarded as important because it shows inhabitants new routes to North Greenland. Koch brought back the largest collection of specimens ever taken from Greenland, eight tons of fossils, plants and animals showing three geological periods. Some specimens indicated that at one time there was tropical life on Greenland, such plants as palms growing in abundance. Signs of numerous hot springs and rich animal life were found.

The paternity of a child has been established to the satisfaction of a Vienna court by anthropological tests, made by Professor Reche of the University of Vienna clinic. Examination and comparison of distinctive marks is the basis of the test. Only 50,000 persons out of 506,000 have identical "papilliary grading," according to Dr. Reche. Of these only 10,000 will be found to possess heads of the same general shape. In the third test perhaps only 500 will show noses of similarity and hardly 100 of the number will have ears of the same type. Fewer than 20 will show the same shaped eye and only five the same color of hair and eyes. Finally only one person remains whose fingers show papilliary drawings similar to those of the child whose parentage is being sought.

TWO BRING SUITS FOR $5,000 FOR INJURIES

John Lowry, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., is made a defendant in two damage suits brought in the superior court in which damages of $5,000 are asked for in each. Maude Riley, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and George Whelan of Minneapolis, Minn., bring the actions according to papers filed with the clerk of the superior court.

The plaintiffs sue for injuries alleged to have been received when the automobile in which they were riding figured in a collision with one owned by John Lowry. The accident occurred on Aug. 11, 1927, along the highway leading from Stonington to Westerly.

JEWETT CITY

PHEASANTS ROUT PARTRIDGE SPORTSMEN ARE FINDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 17—J. Byron Sheldon, a Griswold hunter with 45 years of experience with rod and gun in local fields, was called to Hartford during the last session of the legislature, to give to the state fish and game commission his opinions relative to certai game laws, relative to quail and grouse. Mr. Sheldon has been on several hunting trips this month, and said today that in all his experience he has never seen game birds, upon which there is an open season, so scarce as they are this year. He declared that partridges had almost disappeared, giving as one reason that the male pheasants fight them with fatal results to the partridge. Other bird-hunters have said this week that they were discouraged about the outlook for local game. Squirrel and rabbit hunters have had fair luck, and in a very few cases the allowance by law has been taken. There is some talk among local hunters of making another trip down to the white rabbit country, below Voluntown, with the hope that has been stimulated some by reports from that section, that a few of these big white rabbits may be bagged, as was the good fortune on the trip a few seasons ago.

Within two years, it is possible that letter carrier service will be established in Jewett City. The local office was advanced to first class over a year ago, and Postmaster W. T. Crumb finds the check-up on each month's business is exceeding the previous like period. With the patronage mark of the office not far distant, as required by the department, and a steadily increasing population, the newest thing in town will soon be the government letter carriers.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church held a Christmas sale and supper in the vestry Thursday afternoon under the direction of the president, Miss Mabel McBroome. The World Wide guild girls conducted a fish pond in charge of Winifred Scates, Doris Bliven and Beatrice Cathcart. A supper of baked beans, ham, brown bread, rolls, pickles, pie and coffee was served under direction of Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. E. M. Gray, Mrs. William Perry, and Miss Ida Foster. Mrs. C. F. Gardner was in charge of the dining room. The waitresses were Florence Quimby, Vera McBroome, Winifred Scates, Mrs. R. A. Wilbur, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. John P. Post, Verna Tarbox, Tessie Raney, Mrs. Leonard McBroome, Mrs. Samuel Cathcart, Jr., Mrs. E. E. Gilbert, Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt, Mrs. F. H. Gilbert and Ruby Gray. At each place were fancy braided napkin rings. The posts in the room were twined with trailing evergreen and white pine and bitter-sweet berries adorned the tables and piano. The decorations were done by Miss McBroome, Misses Bessie and May Blake, Mrs. Leonard McBroome and Mrs. Cathcart, Jr. An apron table was in charge of Mrs. H. J. Babcock.

The potato crop of the town is nearly harvested and will fall 500 bushels below that of last year.

The apple crop in so far as it applies to barreled apples for the market, is one-third less than last year.

Simon Brewster, the largest grower in Griswold picked last year close to 2,000 barrels, which comprised 46 varieties. This year the yield from all the orchards will not be over 1400 barrels.

The fruit of many orchards in this section will find its way principally to the cider mill, where seconds are utilized.

SIX STORES AND GROWING

history for more than threescore years, it is especially gratifying to me to receive the mark of approbation of my public services which it has bestowed. Because it has so seldom used this method in the expression of its sanction it is the more precious to those upon whom it is conferred. The knowledge of your favor publicly declared will add increased force to the well-known admonition, not to be weary in well-doing, in the discharge of my office.

Distinguished Service

Beginning its course in this very month, in the perilous days of the nation before the emancipation had been proclaimed, this league has rendered most distinguished service during the conduct of three wars and in the long intervals of an even more glorious peace. Those three conflicts have demonstrated that our Union was not to be broken asunder, that the reaches of liberty were to be extended to include the Spanish islands of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and that the standards of the free nations of the world were to remain supreme. While each of these wars has marked most important eras in our national development, and has laid a new foundation of sound and firmly established principles, yet it has been the activities of our people in the pursuits of peace that have raised our country to the high position which we hold in the world at large.

The Union league represents a history long enough, and a series of events important enough, so that you may well gather once in each year to commemorate its foundation. Everybody is ready to come to the support of Abraham Lincoln now. Everybody is for the Union now. But in the autumn of 1862 the situation was far different. Not only were the southern states in arms and winning many victories, but there were very considerable elements in the north in sympathy with them and loudly opposing the prosecution of the war. It required not only conviction, but no small degree of courage openly and publicly to resist their influence. The most patriotic efforts were required to fill the ranks of the army, carry the weight of taxation, finance the cost of equipment and supplies, and bear all the other burdens of fraternal strife. In that time of deep distress a little band of less than a score of men met and determined to associate themselves together to support the government of their country and further the cause of national defense. They became an example to be followed in many other sections. From such beginnings this great institution has been created. It now represents a membership running into the thousands, holding an extensive property, and exerting a profound influence for sound principles of government. If we seek for the main motive which has produced these marvelous results, we shall find that it is an abiding faith in America.

I do not mean by America merely that territory stretching from ocean to ocean between the Great Lakes and the Rio Grande. That country has lain there throughout the ages with its rich plains and mighty forests, its vast deposits of minerals, and far reaches of its watercourses, and all its other natural resources. But, as such, it cast no influence over the lot of humanity. It was only with the coming of the white races of the seventeenth century that it began a career which has raised it to its present place in the world. Its physical attributes lay dormant until their power was released by the hand of man.

Incomprehensible Triumph

America is much more than a geographical location. It is a combination and a relationship. It is the destiny of a masterful, pioneering people, enduring all the hardships of settling a new country, determined to be free. It is the declaration of independence and the federal constitution, with a system of local self-government. It is the development of the farm, the factory, and the mine, the creation of a surpassing commerce, and the opening of vast lines of travel by sea and land, with broadening opportunity for education and freedom for religious worship. Our country is the result of incomprehensible triumph, conferring upon its own people untold material and spiritual rewards and indirectly raising the standards of the world. It is a combination of all these elements, with their past history and their present aspirations, that we refer to as America.

This nation today cannot be compared with what it was in 1862. Rocked with war, the south clinging to slavery, parts of the north tinged with disloyalty, Europe saying that the bubble republic was about to break, and in many quarters openly rejoicing in that prospect, our country presented anything but an attractive appearance. It could not be denied that under such conditions there was some reason for apprehending that the government, the institutions, and the organization of society, which had been established here, were no sound and could not gather sufficient support for their perpetuation. Yet, notwithstanding this appearance, which shook the confidence of so many, the founders of this league looked beyond the disorders of the hour, and, determining to support what was sound and right and reform what was wrong, kept their faith in their country.

At present our land is the abiding place of peace, universal freedom, and undoubted loyalty, holding the regard of all the world as a mighty power, stable, secure, respected. The people are prosperous, the standards of social justice were never so high, the rights of the individual never so extensively protected. If the founders of this league, under the circumstances of their time, were able nevertheless to believe in their country and raise a standard to which those who were determined upon its defense might repair, how much more ought we of this day and generation, the inheritors of all the advantages which their sacrifices secured, the most fortunate people on the face of the earth, not only to have, but by our actions constantly proclaim our faith in America.

No one would claim that our country is perfect. No one with a proper sense of proportion, or even a limited knowledge of the world, is likely to make it the object of vainglorious boasting. Yet a moderate endowment of such sense and such knowledge ought to be sufficient not only to silence most of our critics and apologists, but to fill them with a wholesome respect and admiration. A nation which has raised itself from a struggling dependency to a leading power in the world, without oppressing its own people and without injustice to its neighbors, in the short space of 150 years, needs little in the way of extenuation or excuse.

Must Not Neglect Problems

But having faith in our country does not mean that we should be oblivious to or neglectful of its problems. The human race is finite. By its very character it is necessarily subject to limitations. We may have sound principles of government, but they will be administered only imperfectly. We may have wise laws, but they will be obeyed only partially. We may have judicious institutions of society, but they will be supported only incompletely. But because we can not expect perfection is no reason why we can not expect progress. In that field our success is unrivaled. The preeminence of America is unchallenged in the advance which it has made in promoting the general welfare of its people.

While we have not neglected religion and education, we have considered our welfare in the past mainly on its economic side. Our population has increased rapidly over a considerable space of years. We have received large numbers of foreign people. For the most part they were vigorous, enterprising, and of good character, but almost always without money and too often without learning. Due to the exigencies of frontier life, many of our native-born have found themselves in a similar situation. To form all these people into an organization where they might not merely secure a livelihood, but by industry and thrift have the opportunity to accumulate a competency, such as has been done in this country, is one of the most marvelous feats ever accomplished by human society. It could never have been done without the utmost of private and public attention to the business side of life. Yet it has been done. The task is by no means complete, but the framework has been erected and no one can deny that the construction is making steady progress.

The object of this economic endeavor has not been the making of money for its own sake. It certainly has not been for the purpose of endowing an aristocracy with wealth. It has been fostered and encouraged by the government in order to provide the people at large with sufficient incomes to raise their standards of living to a position worthy of a free and enlightened nation. In the carrying out of this mighty project, which in its conception and its execution has never been surpassed by any effort for human advancement, our inhabitants have found the added benefit of a corresponding development of character. The results have reached into the humblest home in the land, carrying hope and cheer with the knowledge that the door of opportunity has been opened to them.

It would be entirely wrong to assume that our present position has been secured as a result of accident. It has come from a carefully thought out policy, which has been for the most part consistently followed. We have always held very strongly to the theory that in our country, at least, more could be accomplished for human welfare through the encouragement of private initiative than through government action. We have sought to establish a system under which the people would control the government, and not the government control the people. If economic freedom vanishes, political freedom becomes nothing but a shadow. It has therefore been our wish that the people of the country should own and conduct all gainful occupations not directly connected with government service. When the government once enters a business it must occupy the field alone. No one can compete with it. The result is a paralyzing monopoly.

It was in pursuit of this policy that we disposed of the national domain. The federal government endowed the agriculture of the nation with a vast empire at a merely nominal cost. To serve the needs of those regions, it granted great land subsidies, sometimes accompanied with credits for the construction of their railroads. It is even now spending large sums for the building of highways, especially for the benefit of those localities. In order that we might be something more than a nation of agriculture without any domestic markets for farm produce, where each family merely provided the means of its own subsistence, compelled to pay tribute to foreign manufacturing centers, that we might be a self-sustaining community receiving those benefits which come from a diversity of occupation and interests so desirable in the building of national character, capable of supplying our own means of defense, we have adopted and very generally maintained for a period of more than 100 years a system of protective tariffs. This has enabled us to develop our natural resources, build up our great industries, furnish employment for our increasing population, and markets for our various products of farm and factory. This policy has lately been extended to include restriction upon immigration.

Virtue of Protective Tariff

Without the influence of a protective tariff it would never have been possible for our country to reach its present stage of diversified development with its liberal rate of wages, its unprecedented distribution of wealth, and its high standards of living. If these conditions are to be maintained, that policy will have to be continued. In some few lines we can compete with all the world, but in general our agriculture and our industry are compelled to make a larger outlay to provide their establishment, pay a very much higher rate of wages, and therefore find their costs of production are greater than in foreign countries. Any material reduction in our general tariff rates would ultimately result in a drastic deflation of agricultural and industrial values, in the rate of wages, and in standards of living. Under our present system our foreign commerce has reached the highest peace-time record and our national income has steadily increased to the enormous proportions of $90,000,000,000 for the last calendar year. This represents a volume of production and trade far in excess of that which any other country ever reached. It is the zenith of our prosperity. All of this should be considered in any apprizal of the worth of our long-established policy.

While we have placed the enterprise of the country unreservedly in private hands, we have adopted a system of government regulation and denounced by law restraints of trade and unfair practices in trade, in order that the public might have the full benefits of all fair competition and the opportunities of our commerce be equally free to all. Privilege has no place in either our political or economic system.

Those are some of the economic results which have accrued from the American principle of reliance upon the initiative and the freedom of the individual. It is the very antithesis of communism, but it has raised the general welfare of the people to a position beyond even the promises of the extremists. Arising from this same principle is popular education, the right of justice, free speech, and free religious worship, all of which we cherish under the general designation of liberty under the law.

We rest on these foundations. They have been the supports of an unexampled progress, prosperity, and general enlightenment. All of these look rather large to us now. It is probable that in the coming generations they will appear small. It is always necessary to keep in mind that we have not reached this point in our development without a world of struggle and effort, accompanied by many disappointments and many temporary recessions. We have demonstrated that we were able to meet adversity and overcome it. The test which now confronts the nation is prosperity. There is nothing more likely to reveal the soul of a people. History is littered with stories of nations destroyed by their own wealth. It is true that we have accumulated a small but a blatant fringe of extravagance and waste, nourished in idleness, and another undesirable class who seek to live without work. A successful people are always a mark for the vicious and the criminal. But these are conspicuous mainly by contrast. The great mass of our people, whatever their possessions, are conscientious and industrious, seeking to serve humanity. They know that the doctrine of ease is the doctrine of surrender and decay. To the effort which built this country, they are giving increased effort to maintain it. The heart of the nation is sound.

Character of America

Nothing has more completely demonstrated the character of America than the experience of the last few years. Unexpectedly we were carried into the war. Without faltering, with a wonderful spirit, we met the requirements of those perilous days. We not only conquered the enemy but we conquered ourselves. In the hour of victory we required no spoils; we exacted no reprisals. In the reaction from wartime exaltation the moral power of the nation suffered little diminution. With remarkable restraint and extraordinary self-control, refraining from excesses, we turned to the peace-time problems of restoration and reconstruction. The people bore the shock of deflation with small complaint. They have pressed steadily forward with their faces toward the dawn.

The work of restoring the national finances has met with large success. The burden of taxation has been extremely heavy, but it has been borne with great courage. Three times it has been materially reduced. Millions of taxpayers have been entirely relieved and heavy reductions granted to others saving the nation between $[illegible],000,000 and $7,000,000 each day. The enormous debt has been partly refinanced at progressively lower rates and increasingly diminished in amount. At the end of this fiscal year almost one-third of the entire debt will have been paid. The saving in interest alone is about $1,000,000 for each day. But well over $18,000,000,000 of debt still remains. It is a menace to our credit. It is the greatest weakness in our line of national defense. It is the largest obstacle in the path of our economic development. It should be retired as fast as possible under the system of reasonable taxation. This can be done only by continuing the policy of rigid government economy.

These results have not been easy to accomplish. They have been extremely hard. They have been anything but commonplace. They mark a new epoch and set a new record in successful government financing. The great burden of the work will be indicated when it is remembered that the congress was called in extra session in the spring of 1921 and remained in session for nearly two years. The task is not yet completed, but we have reached the point where we can see the end. We are turning toward a new era.

Because of the past insistence on economy in national expenditures, we are in a position to have further moderate tax reduction. But let it be remembered that tax reduction is possible solely on account of economy. Anybody can spend the money somebody else has saved. We can begin to consider internal developments. Each year $75,000,000 goes out of the federal treasury for constructing roads. Flood control must be completed. A waterway system for the Mississippi valley and its tributaries, with one arm reaching to the gulf, and another to the Atlantic, probably through the St. Lawrence, is only a question of time. The Colorado river project is pressing, the Columbia basin not far distant. On the sea we shall round out our navy with more submarines and more cruisers, and private ownership should provide it with an auxiliary merchant marine of fast cargo boats.

On land we shall be building up our air forces, especially by encouraging commercial aviation. We wish to promote peace. We hold a great treasure. It must be protected. Our relationship with the vast territory between the Rio Grande and Cape Horn in a commercial way will become more intimate. Much of that country could be greatly benefited by lines of aviation, which we should hasten to assist them to open. A good system of highways should join the principal points in North and South America. While their own governments must necessarily build these, we can assist in their financing. These will be some of the rewards of a judicious management of the national finances.

New Responsibilities

Our rise in the world has given us new problems, new responsibilities, both domestic and foreign. The web of our affairs is extremely delicate, extremely intricate. Producing, transporting, marketing, financing, all require a higher skill, a more intelligent organization, than under a less developed, less prosperous people. It is, in fact, that skill and that intelligence which have been the measure of our success. The entire life of the nation, all its economic activities, have become so interrelated that maladjustment in any one of them is sufficient to cause serious disarrangement in all the rest. We have become one nation. We can only survive through the most elaborate system of concerted action. Any part which fails to function is chargeable with disloyalty to the whole people.

We have been drawn into close relationship with other nations. Air inventions have closed up the intervals between different countries they have been brought nearer together, not only physically but economically and morally. We are more concerned than ever with our foreign affairs. The wealth of our people is going out in a constant stream of record dimensions for restoration and development in all parts of the world. We want our moral influence to be on the side of liberty, of education, of fair elections, and of honest constitutional government. Where our obligations to our own citizens under international law have required it we have extended our help to those who were attempting to secure these results. But we have refrained from meddlesome interference, because we recognize not only the right but the necessity for each people to work out their own destiny.

This, I believe, is a fair representation of what has been taking place in the immediate past, and what we hope for in the immediate future. Rightly understood, there is no more sensational story of human experience. Society is made up of constants and variables. The variables attract us by their contrasts and are always appearing in the headlines. But the constants always predominate, always push ahead in the march of progress. We hear enough of criticism, we hear enough of the evil; but we must not forget commendation, we must not forget the good. This is our government. This is our society. This is our country. It is solid, sound, secure. It is for us to put forth sufficient effort to keep it so. It is for us to maintain inviolate that profound faith so grandly exemplified by the founders of this league in all things that are American.

LEDYARD

Ledyard Grange exceeded its expectations Tuesday evening when it fed between four and five hundred persons at its annual rabbit and chicken pie supper. The supper began at 6 o'clock and from that time on it was a steady stream of humanity who had come from many places to enjoy the hospitality of Ledyard people, so well and favorably known. One prominent Norwich man remarked, "How could you do it? Know and prepare for so many people?" Cooperation was the answer given. The receipts of the evening were nearly $300. Dancing followed in the Grange hall, with an orchestra from Jewett City.

"The Good and Bad in Newspapers" was the topic of the Christian Endeavor meeting held at the residence of L. E. Holdridge Tuesday evening, with Miss Nellie Geer leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Geer were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Couchman, in Franklin. Mrs. Isaac Geer and Mrs. Ellen Stoddard were visitors at the same time with Mrs. Geer's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith, in Franklin.

Mr. Badley, of Hartford Theological Seminary, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday morning. "Ye Are the Light of the World" was the text chosen. Mr. Badly was born of missionary parents in India and was sent to America to complete his education. After graduating from the seminary, he will return to India and do missionary work. He told about the people of India, their habits and desires for spiritual things. This was a missionary subject and the offering was for missions.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Main, Miss Hazel Main, of Mystic, and Mrs. Mary Holdridge and Miss Maud Holdridge of Apponaug, R. I., were visitors Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Holdridge.

The funeral services for Mrs. Caroline B. Allyn, 89, who died in Groton, were held in the Congregation church of which she was a member Tuesday afternoon. Rev. G. F. Goodenough, of Jewett City, and Ralph Krout, the local pastor, officiated. The bearers were Billings T. Avery, Charles A. Gray, Amos Gallup and Mr. Byles. Burial was in the family lot in Ledyard cemetery.

Mrs. Sarah Chapman, of Westerly, is the guest of Miss Nellie Geer.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. Russenkom, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

CREOMULSION

FOR THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Mother! Do You Know the Danger of that Cough or Cold?

Mother, if the youngsters play hard and "take cold," if for any of a dozen other reasons they get "sick with a cold," stop it as fast as you can. Don't let it hang on. Colds that stay and stay, too often lead into pneumonia or flu or chronic bronchial trouble. Too often a cold leads into a fatal complication.

If any of your youngsters develop a cough or a cold that hangs on, use sensible precautions immediately and give them Creomulsion. Help their strong, youthful bodies to fight coughs and colds with Creomulsion. It is pleasant, easy to take.

Creomulsion is an old remedy now. Millions know its merits and like it. We guarantee that it will relieve stubborn coughs and colds, if you follow directions or we'll refund your money.

NOANK

Elmer Hewitt with his dog Dash went to the woods of Old Lyme on a five day hunting trip. As he was walking through the woods looking for pheasants to rise, out of the brush came Dash with a long tailed bird in front of him. With a good aim the hunter brought down the pheasant. In those days he had good luck and brought back to the village 6 pheasants, 8 woodcocks, 8 partridges and 10 rabbits, a total of 32 wild game. It is his first time in the woods this season. Hunter Hewitt said the leaves are thick, with the brush the worst he has seen it in his twenty years of hunting. No squirrels were to be seen.

Mrs. John Tourjee has returned from Westerly.

Willie Banks is visiting on Block Island for a few days.

Two young men Bill Grant and Jerry Barr went to Ledyard recently in a coupe and attended a chicken pie supper and dance. After the dance at 11.30 they started for the village. Soon they had to ask some one the way to Noank. The man said "You are one mile from Norwich, take the first turn to the right. After driving for an hour they were lost in Ledyard on a good country road and still nine miles from this fishing village. It was getting late so Jerry went to a house and asked the right road to Noank. After this tip they got going again and in a little while were back home in the village, but it took them two hours and 50 minutes from Ledyard to Noank.

The Red Cross is having a membership drive in the village. The officials are trying to make it the biggest one yet, 100 per cent. strong. A Red Cross worker was at the post office Wednesday morning dressed in white with a Red Cross on her cap. Many joined for a year. This drive will last until Thanksgiving day. Let Noank go over the top, getting new members for 1928.

H. Bracci has a position at the local shipyard as cabinet maker.

Ralph Wheeler of North Stonington spent a day in the village this week.

Relatives from Hartford are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oles for several days.

Coast Guard boat No. 233 was hauled out on the east ways at the shipyard Wednesday. Repair work to be done included new sleeves, repainting and a general overhauling. This it will take about a week to finish, then the boat will leave for sea duty off Block Island.

Coast guard boat repairing has been done at Noank for the past two years. They say it is an easy harbor to get into and a big yard for the boats.

Billie Davis at the shipyard recently was carrying some hot pitch, fell with it and was burned painfully.

Arthur McDonald is at Deep River for a few days.

Again the streets are the playground for the children, perhaps a game of football going on, with windows close by. It seems strange to see a good sized village like Noank without a playground for the children. Often it has been ordered that all sports are to stop on the streets, but they still go on, until there is some play ground as in other places.

James Ashby is having a piazza added to his house.

WHAT BRAINS, GRIT AND GUMPTION CAN DO.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Of course, we country people who live on isolated farms and fare sumptuously every day on turnip tops and potato parings from our own fields, we country people know little of the making both ends meet.

It must be so. At any rate we are told so, every time we venture a suggestion as to domestic economies in the city.

At the same time, if forbidden to talk, we are not prohibited—yet—from thinking, even if we choose to think about things we know nothing of. That latter liberty seems to be very widely taken by ignoramuses both of town and country. In fact, what are known as "fashion" and "politics" can be explained only on the assumption that they are the products of people who don't know what they are thinking about.

So we country bumpkins must be pardoned if we fall into line with the rest of our fellow citizens. We may not know what we are talking about, any more than others, but we can "shoot off our mouths," notwithstanding, same as the rest do.

I'm moved to this reflection by two news stories which I cut out of two widely separated newspapers, the same day. As both are by city residents and about city residents, neither one can justly be ascribed to rural ignorance of the conditions involved. If there is any ignorance or worse shown up, a comparison of the two, it will have to lie at a city, not a country door.

The first clipping is a news article from the New York Herald Tribune. It tells of the demands made by employes of the New York custom house for more pay, bigger wages, higher salaries. The assistant collector of the port testified that the average salary in the customs service is now "only $1,950 a year," and that it is "inadequate to meet living costs." Other representatives from various departments solemnly assured the committee on ways and means before whom the hearing was held, that "pay schedules now in force are insufficient to meet the cost of living."

As I figure it, $1,950 a year is something over $36.50 a week. This amount, the New York city customs employes agreed in swearing to before the committee, was not enough to meet the cost of living.

The other story, which I clipped the same day from, The Kansas City Star, tells how a young couple in that big western city lived for several years from 1924 on—during the peak of high prices, mind you—on $20 a week, with first one child, then two and later three. Not only lived, but lived wholesomely; not only lived wholesomely, but saved money. Here is the story as told by Mrs. O. E. Davis, the housewife, house-mother and economist-general, to a reporter of The Star:

"We had a 3-year-old boy and the clothes we wore when we came to Kansas City and that was all.

"We found three furnished rooms for $8 a week. That left us $12. We lived close to a good shopping district, and once a week we walked there and bought most of our groceries. We paid $5 a week for them. We didn't live on mushrooms and tenderloin, but by planning and watching sales we had plenty of good, wholesome food. We lived on a cash basis entirely.

"With the remaining $7 we bought clothes, went to a show occasionally, gave some to church services and saved more than $1 a week.

One night each week my husband and I did our week's laundry, so we had no laundry bill. I bought the material for the boy's and my clothes and made them myself. We saved enough to make the down payment on furniture for four rooms, and to rent a 4-room cottage. Part of our furniture was second-hand and part was homemade, but we put effort into it and made a livable place of our home. When our second baby arrived we were ready for her."

Even this doesn't quite tell the whole story. For the first six weeks of their residence in the big city they lived on $15 a week. That was the pay for the only job Mr. Davis could land when he first arrived. He took it, made good at it and, after six weeks, was given a better one at $20 a week. Until that time they lived on the $15 a week, "and didn't fall behind, either," Mrs. Davis remarks.

She not only made her own and her small boy's clothes, because she found this was cheaper than buying them ready-made, she also baked the family's own bread, because this, too, was cheaper than buying from the bakeries. She also got a trifling reduction in the regular rent, because she was careful to do no damage and to keep the tiny flat speklessly clean at all times. She does not hesitate to say that a wife can often save as much by prudent housekeeping as she would earn if she worked as well as her husband.

The reporter who "wrote her up" concludes his story with this paragraph:

"Meanwhile Mrs. Davis' eyes shine as she watches her three children. And the Davis home, with its toys in the front yard and its morning glory vine on the porch, is the kind a cynic thinks extinct nowadays, except on the covers of sentimental songs."

The New York customs employes go before the committee by dozens and solemnly swear that their average salary of $36.50 a week is "insufficient to meet the cost of living." At the same time the Kansas City people go ahead and live and bring up a family of three children and save a little money out of a wage of $20 a week.

It may be that rents and prices are a bit lower in Kansas City than in New York. I don't profess to know. Both are big cities and subject to big city conditions. If there is any small difference in these items it would have to be reckoned in pennies or nickels, not in dollars.

As a matter of fact, ordinary groceries can usually be bought in a big city cheaper than in a small village. I once knew a family which lived in a small town not far from New Haven, whose father did business in New York city, commuting back and forth daily. They used to buy all their groceries and some of their other supplies in New York, because they could do so cheaper than in the semi-rural village of their home. A former neighbor of mine, having a summer home in this entirely rural farming town, once told me that he bought a few things at the country store, "just to keep the store-keeper good-natured," but relied upon city purchases for the bulk of his supplies, because he could buy them enough cheaper there to pay freight up and still save money.

So far as I can discover the only way in which the rural dweller can get some of his food cheaper than the urban resident is to grow that part on his own land. For something like a dozen years I acted as buying agent for a small rural cooperative club. We confined our purchases almost wholly to groceries and saved an average of twenty cents on every dollar by buying them in the city, twenty-five miles away, instead of in the local stores. That saving was made over the cost of a monthly trip and a monthly freight-bill, too.

Of course there are certain items, such as rents and lights and water and heat, etc., which are almost necessarily higher in the city than in the country. But so far as the "eats" are concerned I'm inclined to think they average rather cheaper in the city than in the country—for those which are bought. The city resident usually has to buy them all, from lack of land on which to grow any part, and to buy them in "hand-to-mouth" lots," from lack of storage room in which to keep them. And, of course, you can't buy a barrel of flour in thirty-nine separate five-pound lots as cheaply as you could buy it in one 196-pound package.

All of which being admitted, it still does not make clear why families in one big city can't live on $36.50 a week, while a family in another big city lives, brings up three children, and lays by a little surplus from $20 a week.

Not so very long ago, during a strike in a western establishment, one of the strikers testified that his wages came to "only about $2,200 a year," and he couldn't feed and clothe his family on that pittance. At that very time, a near-by state was feeding its militia in their annual training camp—husky, big-eating, hard working men — for less than thirty cents a day each. Their ration, in quantity, quality and variety, exceeded that of the average private family by many points.

As a simple matter of fact, it isn't so much the high cost of living which eats up wages and salaries, as the high cost of shiftlessness and the pursuit of "the easy snap."

You'll have observed that Mrs. Davis of Kansas City bought the materials and made her own and her small boy's clothes. This took trouble and work.

She also bought the flour and made her own bread. This, too, took trouble and work.

She also was careful not to damage her little flat in any way and to keep it spick and span. This, again, took trouble and work.

She and her husband did their own laundry. This involved no little trouble and work.

They bought their groceries weekly, saw to it that the total didn't overrun their budget allowance, and made them last till the next week. More trouble and work planning and, perhaps, scrimping.

But the average idea of the average man and woman of today is not to take trouble and do work to save money, but to spend money recklessly in avoidance of trouble and work.

The Prodigal Son is the patron saint of the age. "Let's have a good time today; devil take tomorrow," is its motto.

Work?—Something to do as little of as possible and yet "get by."

Trouble?—Something to be avoided by any hook or crook.

Thrift?—An old fogy idea, out of date in an era of silk shirts, silk stockings and delicatessen stores.

The more we get, the more we want. Give us an inch and we demand an ell. Increase our income by ten per cent. today and we'll swell our out-go by twelve and a half per cent. tomorrow.

Only once in a month of Sundays do we hear of such a family as the Kansas City Davises, to show us what brains and grit and gumption can yet do.

I frankly confess that Mrs. Davis seems to me a much more creditable front page "feature" of the news than, say, Ruth Elder or Molla Mallory.

PIMPLES AND BLACK-HEADS ALL OVER FACE

Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement

Munden, Va., Aug. 5:—"Awhile ago I began to be troubled with enlarged pores and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even boils. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and unsightly I was ashamed of it. I tried about everything to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Resinol Ointment and Soap so highly recommended for troubles like mine, I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. I advise everybody with skin trouble to try Resinol." (Signed) Miss Hazel Beasley.

Chester, between the Chester block and Ford station building proves an attraction for many. The digger is surrounded by three brick walls and plans call for a twelve foot excavation. Motor trucks carry the waste material to the property of Samuel Nardone, off High street.

The work of enlisting new members for Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross is progressing favorably. Wednesday 264 members were signed up and collection amounted to $292.25. There was a total enrollment of 1458.

The following transfer has been recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk: Nov. 16. Susan E. Andrews (widow) to Lillian G. Mitchell, land at Pleasant View Beach with summer dwelling, adjoining land of James Symes, Jr., on north side of Atlantic avenue, being lot No. 135 plan of rear beach lots.

The ornamental double-bowed top window frames, three in number were placed in position Thursday in the second story Canal street front of the Castagna and Morrone business block, in process of construction in front of the Alba inn. The side brick walls have already reached the top of the second story of the block.

Business Car, No. 4, New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was attached to the Boston-bound Hub express of the New Haven road on Thursday making the Westerly station stop at 3:14 p. m.

Some delay was caused Thursday in the work of removing the old Dr. John L. May house from its Canal street location to the new site, at the rear of the Alba inn by the non-arrival of railroad ties. To get the large dwelling past the United Theatre building on the south side and a garage on the north, at the rear of the lot, many ties were used in the crib work to elevate the house, as there were but few inches to spare on either side. When cleared the moving process will be much more rapid.

Men on the New Haven road have set up snow plough signs for winter. Thursday a west-bound freight was drawn by two locomotives the first of which had a snow plough attached to the pilot.

Guests at an elaborate wedding celebration in Pittsburgh, were many Watch Hill summer visitors who attended the ceremony, late Wednesday at the East Liberty, Pa., Presbyterian church, when Miss Sarah Cordelia Mellon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Mellon, became the bride of Alan McGee Scaife, also of Pittsburgh. "Sunshine," the summer estate of R. B. Mellon, brother of United States Treasurer Andrew W. Mellon, on the Westerly road at the entrance to the Watch Hill summer colony is one of the show places of that resort and this fall is receiving numerous alterations. The many acres covered by the grounds at Watch Hill have been attractively landscaped and to make an entrance to the villa, York avenue, a short and little used street was closed and a causeway constructed with winding approach to the grounds. As Miss Mellon, Mrs. Scaife has been a Watch Hill summer visitor for many seasons, also has been as bridesmaid at weddings held at the summer resort. Mellon social parties at Watch Hill have been on an elaborate scale. The wedding celebration is reported to have cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and rivalled that of kings and queens.

Wednesday at the rectory of St. Michael's church, in Pawcatuck, Miss Sylvia Pickhover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pickhover of Stonington road, and Walter Francis Keenan, son of Dennis Keenan of Oak Hill farm, were united in marriage. Rev. Francis Xavier Quinn, was the pastor. Raymond Burdick was best man and Miss Lillian Pickhover of Pawtucketf, cousin of the bride was bridesmaid. The bride was attired in a powder blue chiffon gown trimmed with tan and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid wore a navy canton crepe gown and carried pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Keenan will spend their honeymoon in New York and Washington. They are to make their home on Moss street.

As chairman of the Christmas anti-tuberculosis seal campaign in Westerly this year, Miss Kate Virginia Cottrell's selection was announced Thursday by Willard H. Bacon, chairman of the tuberculosis committee of the Westerly Visiting Nurse association. Miss Cottrell will organize her committee within the next few days and start the sale of seals and health bonds immediately after the Red Cross roll call ends. As in former years, a great

ONE CENT SALE

WHAT IS A ONE-CENT SALE?

IT is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for one cent. As an illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying 1 cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes, and save 49 cents. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at regular price. No limit—buy all you want, but on Thursday, Friday and Saturday only!

A PROFIT-SHARING METHOD OF ADVERTISING

THIS sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard merchandise for one cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, as we know the goods will please you.

GAINS OUTNUMBERED LOSSES AT THE CLOSE OF STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Stock prices were churned about in rather brisk fashion today with gains outnumbering losses at the close. Trading was unusually broad in character, the day's sales running close to 2 1-2 million shares. While advances of 1 to 6 points were spread over a wide list, speculative interest seemed to center largely in selected issues of the railroad equipment, amusement, low priced motor and some of the other recently neglected groups.

Continued ease of money rates, coupled with a strong reinvestment demand, and reports of improving conditions from some of the basic industries continued to provide the chief background for the advance. Export copper prices were advanced again today and a firmer undertone also was reported for cast iron pipe.

A sharp break of $2 to $2.50 a bale in cotton prices, part of which was recovered, shared speculative interest with the stock market. Although U. S. Steel common, General Electric and some of the other so-called barometric industrials were in rather free supply throughout the session, the average of 20 leading industrials compiled by the Associated Press established a new high record for all time at 179.71, or nearly 3-4 of a point above the previous high established in Sept. 13. The average of 20 leading rails was still about 6 1-2 points below the year's high although there was a net gain of about 1-4 of a point on the day.

Brokers loans reported by the New York Federal Reserve bank for the week ended Nov. 16 showed the record-breaking total of $3,456,118,000, an increase of $71,536,000 above that of the previous week.

American Can common was run up 3 1-2 points to 72 5-8, the highest price since the recapitalization of the company in the early part of 1926. Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were American Express, American Linseed, Beechnut Packing, Congress Cigar, Freeport Texas, National Biscuit, National Radiator, Reynolds Tobacco B, Shubert Theatres, Transcontinental Oil, Union Carbine, Utah Copper and Western Union.

Bear traders succeeded, however, in uncovering a number of weak spots. Commercial Solvents broke 15 1-4 points to a new 1927 low at 145 on reports of increasing competition, and then rallied to 151 on short-covering. Burroughs Adding Machine, Federal Mining & Smelting and R. H. Macy each fell back about 6 points, although the turnover was not very large in either case.

Lack of official confirmation regarding the plans to wipe out accumulated dividends of nearly $59 on Missouri Pacific preferred brought some selling into both the common and the preferred, although the latter attained a new high record at 111 5-8 in the early trading. Pittsburgh & West Virginia unped 6 points and Atchison preferred and Norfolk & Western were elevated to new high ground. Recommendations of interstate commerce commission examiners that application for the approval of stock control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie by the "Nickel Plate," Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central roads be disapproved failed to have any influence on the Wheeling issues, only 100 shares of the preferred changing hands at 77 1-2, up 1-2.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

There was little interest in the commodity markets outside of cotton. Wheat closed practically unchanged, sugar held steady and coffee quotations showed moderate recessions.

The advance in sterling towards the "gold export point" was temporarily halted today, demand bills ruling 1-16 of a cent lower around $4.87 3-16, but Belgian francs and Norwegian kroner continued their march to new high ground. The canadian dollar hovered around the "gold point" despite the shipment of $3,000,000 in gold to Canada yesterday.

COOK OF U. S. S. TRIPPE CONFESSES TO ATTEMPTED ARSON AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—Andrew Austin, colored, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Trippe, United States Coast Guard, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh charged with arson. He will be in the police court tomorrow. Austin was not arrested at the time of committing the crime of which he is charged. As he is a cook and the Trippe was leaving port the day the police were to arrest him, his services were needed aboard the destroyer. The boat was to be absent from port a week, but officials of the coast guard assured the police that Austin would be delivered to them whenever the boat returned to port. The boat came into port this morning and Austin's arrest followed. Austin has made a confession in which he freely admits setting fire to the residence, 14 John Street, occupied by Martha Bankton, also colored, and where several Negros are lodgers. He declares in his confession that he attempted to cause the destruction of the house because he entertained a feeling of enmity for one of the occupants. In fact he said that the residents of the house "are no good."

Shortly before midnight a still alarm was received at police headquarters for a fire in John street. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmonds and the Nameaug Engine company responded. A lively fire was in progress in the cellar of 14, the timbers supporting the ground floor having been ignited by that time. A quantity of chemicals was emptied upon the fire, causing it to be quickly subdued. After extinguishing the fire a strong odor of kerosene was detected and the police were notified. Automobile Officer Augustus Ray was assigned to the case and his investigation resulted in evidence being obtained that pointed to Austin as having set fire to the house. The next day Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh took up the investigation and they decided to question Austin. He was brought to police headquarters and after being grilled a half hour admitted that he had started the fire. He said that he purchased a gallon of kerosene at a Bank street store and carried it to a point near the state pier where he hid it. When he decided to use the kerosene for the purpose for which it was purchased he went to its hiding place and carried it through Water street where he could take it to the cellar of the John street house without detection. Entering the cellar, which was open, he distributed the inflammable liquid over the refuse and then went away. Shoraly before midnight and when there were nine occupants in the house, Austin returned and entered the cellar where he applied a match to the soaked paper and wood, then left. The fire was discovered by the occupant of the house at 14½ John street as he was about to enter his home and he sent the still alarm to fire headquarters. Austin went to his home and next day was brought to police headquarters when he made his signed confession.

W. M. Quimby, of Thetford, Vt., went to police headquarters today and requested that he be given aid in finding George Bacon, a Thetford youth, who disappeared mysteriously last night. Quimby and Bacon were stopping temporarily at 57 Federal street and Bacon informed Quimby last evening that the former was going to ride about the city. That was the last seen of Bacon for he failed to put in an appearance at the Federal street house. It is believed that Bacon has stolen the car. It is a Ford touring car of 1925 model.

Fisher, of New York, a New England leader in behalf of the Boy Scout project. There was a banquet at which Attorney C. Hadlai Hull was toastmaster and besides Mr. Fisher, other speakers extolled the Boy Scout movement. The driver for funds will start tomorrow and will continue until Monday. MRS. ALFRED MITCHELL'S GIFT OF PARK TRACT ACCEPTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—The city council, acting as a committee, met in the office of City Manager William A. Holt last night and considered the offer of Mrs. Alfred Mitchell who has tendered the city for park purposes a 30-acre tract extending from Montauk avenue to Ocean avenue, between Thames street and Gardner avenue. After the proposition of Mrs. Mitchell was freely discussed, it was voted to accept the offer and this will be done probably at the meeting of the city council next Monday. Streets will be laid out and an expert landscape artist will cause the beautification of the park. This work will be paid for by Mrs. Mitchell, provided that the city cause a highway to be constructed through the park so that an entrance to it will be possible on both Montauk and Ocean avenues. Mrs. Mitchell will give the city a right of way over other land of the Mitchell estate so that the highway can be constructed. Mrs. Mitchell wants positive assurance from the city that the park will be properly maintained and this will be given.

CHICAGO STUDENT LEAVES—LEG HAD TO BE AMPUTATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—Albert E. Goodrich, 21, Brown University student, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today. Goodrich and a classmate were riding on a motorcycle in Waterford, several weeks ago, when the cycle collided with an automobile. The cycle was driven against an upright holding a metal mail box, which terribly lacerated the young man's leg, besides producing a fracture. The injury was of such a nature that it became necessary to amputate the leg near the knee. Goodrich went to his home in Chicago, where his father is chief of the fire department.

Much has been made in the New York papers this week of the gratifying fact that the patients have been transferred from the old wooden house at Hawthorne, N. Y., to the new fireproof Rosary Hill Home. The ideals and hopes of the late Rev. Mother Alphonse Lathrop are now realized and the incurable cancerous patients, being made as comfortable as is possible, are now secure. Numerous New London residents have contributed from time to time to this wonderful charity, primarily through the fact that Rev. Mother Alphonsa, when in the world and known in society and literature as Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, wife of the gifted whiter, George Parsons Lathrop, was a resident of New London. She was the daughter of America's great novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne. As a member of the D. A. R., she was also known to prominent women of this vicinity. Following her husband's death, she entered the sisterhood of the Roman Catholic church, to which both had been converted, devoting the remainder of her life to care of the friendless cancerous poor. The home which she founded for them in Westchester, N. Y., has expanded, so that a new building was imperative; and this has been erected at a cost of nearly $300,000, all donated by charitable persons of every denomination. Mother Alphonsa has died, but her work is being carried on. Since July 1st, 1926, $275,015.90 has been expended on the fireproof house. There is still due $10,700. Subscriptions large and small are coming in, to Rev. Mother M. Rose Huber, O. S. D. head of the Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer, Hawthorne, N. Y.

John Holmgren, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmgren, of Shaw street, and Miss Marjorie Silva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Silva, 139 Winthrop street, were married at 10 o'clock this morning at Hallam chapel of St. James' Episcopal church, by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. James Romano was best man and Miss Ethel Silva, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mr. Holmgren is employed by the Thames Towboat company and his bride was formerly employed at the submarine base. Mr. and Mrs. Holmgren are now on a wedding trip and upon its termination will make their home at 139 Winthrop street.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Collins have returned to their home in A'ger place, after having visited Mrs. Collins' cousin, Dr. Edward J. Dray, of New Britain.

Charles Baurhyte, chief engineer of steamer Richard Peck, who was struck by an automobile on Main street Tuesday, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today. Baurhyte sustained only bruises and contusions, but he had been detained at the hospital so that if internal injuries developed, they would be early discovered.

Mary P. Winthrop, 85, widow of Robert B. Smith, died this afternoon at her residence, 101 Blinman street, her death terminating an illness of about four years, which resulted from shock. This was aggravated by infirmities attending her advanced years. Mrs. Smith suffered another shock Tuesday night. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Walter Osborn, of Westport; two brothers, Henry Winthrop, of this city, and Fred Winthrop, of Ocean Park, L. I.; a sister, Mrs. Belle Beebe, of this city, and four grandchildren. Mrs. Smith was born in New London, July 11, 1842, and had always resided here. She was the daughter of William Henry Winthrop and Mary Ellen Young. Her father was a direct descendant of John Winthrop, a former governor of Connecticut.

Mrs. Margaret M. MacLachlan, 69, died last evening at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Crepeau, 12 Summer street, having been ill for several weeks. She is survived, besides Mrs. Crepeau, by five daughters, Mrs. Carl Southworth, Mrs. Robert Greeg and Mrs. Truman Brown, of this city; Mrs. Hugh Scarles, Boston, and Mrs. George Wassmer, New Haven; two sons, Donald and William MacLachlan, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Waite and Mrs. Frank Forbes, both of New London.

Mrs. Sarah F. Edgar, widow of George P. Edgar, formerly of New London, died yesterday at her home in New York, after an illness of about ten days. She is survived by two sons, Clark and Dennis Edgar, of this city, and Paul Edgar, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar went to New York about 15 years ago.

Daniel White, 23, a brass caster, residing at 24 Fraser street, was arrested tonight, charged with breach of the peace, and will be in police court tomorrow. White was arrested by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky on a warrant issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky. It is alleged that White went to his home yesterday afternoon and engaged in a quarrel with his wife, finally attacking and beating her. Today Mrs. White made complaint to the acting prosecutor, who issued a warrant for White's arrest.

Mrs. William Elwood, of Raymond street, who was nearly asphyxiated by carbon monoxide at her home Monday, has entirely recovered from the effects of the poisoning, other than being slightly weak.

A still alarm summoned Thomas Hose company to the building at 538 Main street, owned by Daniel Donovan yesterday afternoon, the fire being extinguished without damage of consequence. The fire originated from a flooded oil heater, the kerosene having ignited and threatening to communicate to the woodwork or furnishings of the house. A small quantity of chemicals sufficed to subdue the blaze.

HOEY ASSEMBLY HAD FIFTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

On Wednesday night at the Franklin inn Rev. Jas. Hoey Assembly of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus of Baltic celebrated their fifth anniversary.

The rooms and tables were artistically decorated in yellow and white, the colors of the assembly. A local orchestra furnished music during the evening.

At 8.30 the members sat down to partake of a delicious chicken supper served by Miss Bourque.

The program was as follows: Ode to the Holy Ghost, by the entire assembly; address of welcome by the president, Miss Mayme Papineau; toastmistress, Mrs. Blanch Case.

A most inspiring address was given by Mrs. Margaret Dutton, state president of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus.

Remarks included a very appropriate recitation of "Be the Very Best You Can," by the honorary president, Mrs. John Drescher. Grace was offered by Mrs. Margaret Dutton. The Star Spangled Banner was sung by the members at the conclusion of the banquet.

Before leave-taking a silent tribute of sincere respect and affection was paid to the memory of Mrs. John Woods, the first president of the Hoey assembly and a most zealous worker in making the assembly the splendid organization it is today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

A buster of phantoms is Buddy Roosevelt in the "Phantom Buster" his new Pathe western feature showing tonight and Saturday afternoon and evening at the Strand. Buddy in a whirlwind manner solves the mystery of a devastating menace that moves through this exciting story. A novel touch is added by the fact that Buddy plays a dual role and proves that he can be as good a villian as he is a hero.

Sh-h-h! Mystery! The Man Upstairs! Come back from the grave to haunt his alleged murderer. A fine way to end a good natured joke. But that is what happened to poor Geoffrey West when he tried to be a practical jokester. For the tables turn and the joke becomes a tragedy and the tragedy turns to romance—with a wedding ring at the end of it. It is a fascinating mystery comedy with the ever popular Monte Blue in a capital role. You will enjoy every minute of this program listening to our orchestra, with Professor Herbert Rich as leader.

Breed Theatre

All the thrills of a big football game, the cheering crowds, the clash of opposing lines, the forward passes and the goal kicks, are provided in First National's college picture, "The Drop Kick," starring Richard Barthelmess, which is now at the Breed theatre.

The big game in "The Drop Kick", was played by two rival Pacific Coast football teams, the members forgetting their rivalry for the time being, and staging a thrilling game for the camera.

Pretty Barbara Kent is seen opposite Barthelmess in "The Drop Kick," which was directed by Millard Webb and produced by Ray Rockett for First National Pictures.

The cast includes such well-known players as Dorothy Revier, Alberta Vaughn, Hedda Hopper, Brooks Benedict, Eugene Strong, George Pearce and the Ten National College Stars, recently chosen by First National in a nation-wide test for new screen talent.

"The Drop Kick" comes at a time when football holds the center of the stage, and the picture provides genuine entertainment for everyone.

An Al St. John comedy entitled "Flaming Romance," the fifth chapter of the Crimson Flash and a News Reel finish out this unusual program.

Palace Theatre

Those witnessing yesterday's performances of vaudeville and pictures at the Palace theatre were loud in their praise of the general quality of the show now playing. Headlining the vaudeville program is a six people musical comedy offering, "Howdy Prince", which tells the story of a chap posing as the prince of Wales in order to marry an heiress. Everything looks good until a taxi driver exposes him and then the fun commences. Sharing honors on the bill is Jimmy Rooney and Company, who bill themselves "dancing demons" and they really are. Next comes Werner and Mary in a comedy mix up that delights the audience, Jerry Dean in her routine of song numbers registers very well and Perez and Marguerite entertain with a series of unique jurgling stunts.

As for the screen entertainment, Adolphe Menjou in "A Gentleman of Paris" is about one of the best pictures to be seen in Norwich in many months. Mr. Menjou as a ladies man is perfect and the many ticklish situations that he is called on to extricate himself from make the picture a very humorous and appealing affair.

Broadway Theatre

That the double feature program at the Broadway theatre was well received was proven by the large and enthusiastic audience which attended that popular playhouse last night.

Dorothy Gish in Madame Pompadour takes one back to the eighteenth century when our beautiful women ruled the brilliant court of Versailles.

Kings listened to her every word. Armies took their orders from her. Nations trembled at her frown and yet all she wanted was the love of a poor young poet who—but you should see this richly mounted tale of romance in eighteenth century France. Love and adventure at red Versailles.

From the old world of long ago the next feature carries us to the exotic lands of the tropical sun where Conway Tearle is featured in "Isle of Forgotten Women".

Any person who enjoys a film of intense action, interspersed with romance, love, humor and the introduction of a phantom, will find just what he is looking for in this interesting photoplay. Add to this a background of the tropics, with palm trees, moonlight nights, intense emotions, dancing girls in raffia skirts and flower bedecked bodies and you have Columbia Pictures' "Isle of Forgotten Women."

P. H. Hanes Co. Underwear

Good, warm, comfortable winter underwear need not be expensive. The P. H. Hanes Knitting Company, celebrated makers of fine underwear for men have brought this interesting fact to our attention.

Hanes winter underwear is carefully made from soft elastic-knit material. The kind of material that turns aside the bitterest winter winds, the kind that wears long and stands lots of washing.

Every detail of workmanship is as perfectly done as is humanly possible. Hanes buttons are strong and solid and highly polished. Sewed on to stay with plenty of good stout thread. Buttonholes are reinforced. They stand the strain without stretching out of shape. Hanes seams are smooth and absolutely non-irritating. Indeed, when you see Hanes quality, you'll marvel at its low prices.

The union suits are fitted by two methods of measurement—the trunk measure and the chest measure. Thus, they snug the body comfortably. No binding or pulling anywhere.

Made in four weights, light, medium, heavy and extra-heavy. Fully guaranteed—every thread, stitch and button. Priced from $1 to $1.50. Union suits for boys and children too at 75c and $1.00. Sold in leading stores.

There are Hanes garments for every season and for every climate. Of special interest is the new Hanes Samsonbak union suit—a summer garment of fine quality nainsook or madras. It has the strongest back ever placed in any similar garment.

A large number of magazines and newspapers have been selected to carry Hanes advertising to all parts of the country. This advertising gives complete information about underwear's biggest values.

Slater Hall Concert Series.

Now that the concert series, as projected for the winter under Norwich Free Academy auspices at Slater Memorial hall, is definitely arranged, the advance seat sale for subscribers and others who may desire course tickets, is now scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 22, 9 a. m., prompt, at the Cranston Co., Broadway.

The list of artists is surely a most imposing one and one which would seem to betoken possibly the finest course ever presented in these Slater hall concerts.

Mary Lewis, the brilliant young operatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co. of New York city, is due to open the course on Dec. 2 in a full recital program. Undoubtedly her coming will be awaited with keen interest on the part of all, so sensational and meteoric has been her rise to world wide fame since she chose to forsake musical comedy and the Ziegfeldt Follies for the grand opera field.

For January 11th, Wednesday, is scheduled the Fox-Burgin-Bedetti Trio, a group of the present soloists of the famous Boston Symphony orchestra. These include in their order the pianist, the first violinist and concertmaster, the first cellist, surely a most fascinating combination for ensemble and individual solo work.

John Corigliano, noted young American violinist is the third artist of the series, and comes to Norwich, February 3, with quite a reputation for his fine artistry gained through nation wide tours with the great Symphony orchestras and later through his appearances with Marion Talley in her concert recitals.

The fourth and last of the series comes March 16th, Friday, in the person of Reinald Werrenrath, perhaps the foremost concert baritone of the day and one whose artistry is nation wide and well known to every one, both as regards the concert platform as well as broadcasting over the radio.

Oyster chowder, Fri., Nov. 18, 5:30 to 7:30. St. Andrew's parish hall.—Adv.

Mrs. William Hamilton of Central avenue is the proud possessor of a number of pansy plants in her garden. They are in blossom.

The handsome chrysanthemums which have been used to decorate the Third Baptist church for the past four Sundays were donated to one of the members by Mrs. Calvin Miner of Eleventh street. Mr. and Mrs. Miner, who are great flower enthusiasts, have had a wonderful display of these fall flowers, some of which still remain untouched by the frost.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Third Baptist church which recently put on a contest between two teams captained by Henry Sebastin for the Reds and Doris M. Lund for the Whites are ready to announce the winning team at their meeting next Sunday evening. The teams were supposed to get in new members and try to make the meetings more interesting. The attendance has increased from 20 to 60 and special music has been provided at the meetings, also catchy choruses with a song leader to teach them. On the check up it was found that 90 different people have been in attendance at the meetings and the losers are planning a banquet at some future time for the winning side. The contest is not supposed to end then, but is to be kept up indefinitely. A large delegation of the Endeavorers are attending the annual fall meeting at the Norwich Town Methodist church tonight and hope to take the banner for the largest represented society in the association.

Rev. Harry P. Brothwell of the Third Baptist church was the leader of the Thursday evening prayer meeting at the First Baptist church of the West Side taking the place of the regular leader Rev. Edward Dunbar, who spent Thursday in New Haven.

WHEN R. R. FARE TO NEW YORK WAS ONE DOLLAR FIFTY YEARS AGO

A number of the older residents of the city will, without doubt, recall the railroad rate war that broke out just fifty years ago. It was in 1877 that rate cutting on the rail and steamship lines in this section resulted in the inauguration of the extremely low fare of one dollar between Boston and New York, Providence and New York and Worcester and New York.

At that time there were four Sound steamer lines, the Fall River line, the Providence line, the Stonington line and the Norwich line. They were all independent lines. A dispute arose over the Boston to New York rates and the lines started to cut rates.

The Old Colony railroad, from Boston to Fall River, connected with the New York boat at Fall River. The dollar rate was put into effect on that line. Then the Boston and Providence railroad and the New York, Providence and Boston railroad, which controlled the Stonington boat line, put on a through train from Boston to Stonington wharf, without a stop, and cut the rate from Boston to New York down to a dollar.

The Providence and Worcester railroad, not to be outdone, ran a through train from Worcester to Providence, connecting with the boat at Providence for New York and made the rate one dollar. The old New York and New England (Boston to Willimantic) railroad controlled the Norwich and Worcester road, and they controlled the Norwich-New York Transportation Co. This road put on a through train from Boston to Allyn's Point via Putnam, without a stop, connecting with the New York boat at Allyn's Point. This was the longest non-stop run on any of the roads. In order to supply water for the engine the road had a large six-foot boiler fastened to a car and connected with the tank on the engine. With the aid of this tank the train made the non-stop run here and back without having to take on water. The train used to carry eight to 14 cars loaded with passengers.

People used to go to the old Ferry street depot to see the train go through here. George L. Cosgrove of No. 30 Baltic street had started his railroad career with the old Norwich and Worcester road in 1876 and when the rate war started he was sent to Allyn's Point as telegraph operator. He was the first telegraph operator at the Point. At that time Guy Dolbeare Button was the freight checker at Allyn's Point.

One of the engineers on the through train was Lou Estey and the engineer on the other through train, there being one daily each way, was Bob Tuttle. Fred Harvey was the fireman on the engine that took the railroad men to their work at Allyn's Point from this city, each night. The railroad men left here at 6 o'clock at night and returned about 6 o'clock in the morning.

There was at that time a large wooden freight house at Allyn's Point and there used to be an old wooden bridge across the Shetucket river, just below the Laurel Hill bridge. The abutments of the old bridge may still be seen.

During the rate war all the roads made money, as many people took advantage of the cheap transportation rate. Finally the railroad interests got together and reached an agreement, thus putting an end to the rate war.

CHLDREN'S BOOK WEEK OBSERVED AT LIBRARY

During the present week, which is children's book week, it has been evident at the Otis library that the children are hungry for books for they have been there in great numbers to devour the contents of additional volumes imported into this library for the occasion. Mrs. Rosina S. Hamilton, librarian, stated that about 200 additional children's books have been acquired for the library.

Those who have observed this response claim that it indicates the need of a large children's reading room at the library with a special children's librarian. The new, attractive books, with the catchy covers, and illustrated pictures, have been set aside on the table for the children while the other children's books are on the shelf. These new books will not be allowed out of the library this week, but can be borrowed after Book week is over.

Children's Book week is an educational movement in which all of those who are seeking to encourage a love of books among boys and girls take part. It was originated in 1919 by the American Library association, American Book Sellers' association, the Boy Scouts of America and associated publishers.

LOSE $25,000 SUITS AGAINST HIGHWAY HEAD

Patrick H. Kinney of this city and the estate of Elias Glaubinger, late of Colchester, lose their suits for $25,000 against State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald, according to a decision handed down Thursday by Judge Rufus Booth of the superior court who recently heard trial of the suits here. Kinney sought damages of $15,000 and the Glaubinger estate $10,000.

Judge Booth's decision giving judgment for the state is as follows:

"Judgment for the defendant upon the issues of the complaint and for the defendant to recover of the plaintiffs his costs."

Glaubinger was killed and Kinney suffered a broken leg and other injuries on Nov. 24, 1926, when the automobile driven by Glaubinger, with Kinney as a passenger in the back seat, went off the so-called "Ghost Bridge," on the road between Bozrah and Colchester.

MAY HAVE MAN WHO STOLE ASHBEY SEDAN

It is thought that the car he stole here is the one owned by George A. Ashbey of No. 111 Broad street, although Mr. Ashbey's car was taken in September. Mr. Ashbey's sedan was taken from near the Central Baptist church where he had parked it.

LIONS HEAR SPEAKER FROM CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

With the usual large attendance the regular weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held at the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon. Ed. Connelly entertained with humorous stories and old time songs. Dick Quinn was the song leader. The speaker was David E. Leib, director of admissions at Connecticut college. Dr. Leib told the history of the college and spoke of the work of its faculty and of its standing in the country. He stated that it is an institution of helpfulness to the entire state and that it numbers among its students young women from nearly every state in the union. It has an enrollment of about 500 students, each paying tuition of $300 a year and spending another $900 during the year. The meeting closed in the usual form.

Rudolph Henschel was chairman of the program committee.

RECEIVER OFF HOOK SHUTS TELEPHONE DOOR

When a telephone is left off the hook, not only is all inward service to that telephone interrupted, but if it is a party line, it is impossible for the operators to ring any other telephone on the line as long as the instrument is off the hook.

There are a surprisingly large number of cases when telephone service is interrupted in this way. In part of New England alone, for one month recently, 10,556 subscribers are cut off from telephone service for a time because of receivers being left off the hook.

CENTRAL VERMONT RESTORING ITS RAILROAD SERVICE

Information was given here Thursday at the Central Vermont station that the road is restoring its service, both freight and passenger, as fast as possible.

Passenger service is now restored as far as White River Junction, but is subject to delays between Brattleboro and White River.

Freight for Canadian and western points is now sent north on the Central Vermont line as far as Miller's Falls and from there goes around through Portland, Me., to reach Canada. The delay is about 35 hours beyond the usual time.

APPLICATION TO MAKE SETTLEMENT FOR $250

Application has been made to the New London probate court by the administrator of the estate of Anthony Plikus, late of Waterford, to compromise a disputed claim in favor of the estate. Judge Arthur B. Calkins has ordered a hearing on the petition for November 26 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

The claim referred to involves settlement for $250 of any civil liability on the part of Miss Susan Whittlesey, of this city, to the estate, arising out of the injuries sustained by Plikus and as a result of which he died several months ago, following a motor vehicle collision on the Norwich road, near Connecticut college, in which cars operated by Miss Whittlesey and Plikus were involved.

Plikus, who had been removed to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital, following the accident, left that institution against the advice of the authorities there and incurred infection of his wounds, as a result of which he died. He left a wife and several children in straightened circumstances.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED IN SUIT OVER SHIRTS

Settlement out of court for the reported sum of $500 was effected in the $1,500 civil action brought by Benjamin Saffer and Samuel Engelsohn, both of New York city, doing business as the Western Shirt Co., against Max Sternlieb, of this city, doing business as the Connecticut Pants and Knee Pants Co. The case was scheduled to have been tried before Judge John R. Booth in the superior court here Thursday.

The plaintiffs claimed that they sold and delivered the defendant 52 dozen shirts at $14 a dozen, making a total bill of $1,439.51. The shirts were sent back by the defendant and were sold later at auction for $450. The balance of $981.51 was claimed to be due by the plaintiffs.

NITROGLYCERINE BLAST ROCKED JEFFERSON, KAN.

Explosion of 380 Quarts Came An Hour After the Plant of the Independent Torpedo Co. Had Taken Fire—Farmers For Miles Around and Residents of the Village Had Been Warned and Had Fled to Safety—Towns As Far Away As Thirty Miles Felt the Shock—Seven Frame Buildings at the Plant Were Wrecked.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Nov. 18—(AP)—Fleeing as before an invading army, with only a few clothes and household goods hastily assembled, farmers for miles around and residents of the little town of Jefferson, eleven miles northwest of here, left their homes today ahead of a terrific blast which wrecked the plant of the Independent Torpedo company and shook the country for 30 miles around.

Forewarned of the impending explosion at the plant a mile south of Jefferson, school was dismissed quickly and children and residents fled by motorcar, truck and on foot to the country north of town. Meanwhile, farmers, warned by telephone, began a general exodus for places of safety far from the scene. There were no casualties. The blast of 380 quarts of nitroglycerine came nearly an hour after the plant had taken fire, due to the breaking down of an engine and the resultant explosion of a nitrator.

Towns and cities as far as Parsons, Kansas, thirty miles northeast of Jefferson, felt the shock. Houses and buildings were rocked in Coffeyville and Independence, each about 11 miles away, and residents of Cherry Vale, 20 miles northeast, rushed from their homes, fearing an earthquake.

The seven frame buildings of the Torpedo plant were wrecked. Flames crept toward the wood and concrete magazine, containing 800 quarts of nitroglycerine, and a more disastrous blast was feared. The fire burned itself out before reaching the storage house, however.

Clyde Howarton, manager of the plant, was hailed as a hero. After fighting a losing fight against the flames creeping toward the mixing room and realizing the plant could not be saved, Howarton ordered all employes to leave and they rushed to Jefferson in a motor truck to spread the warning.

First Howarton went to the school, then to the telephone exchange and from there to business places to spread the alarm. From the telephone exchange farmers of the countryside were warned of the coming explosion and told to flee for their lives.

But little damage was done in Jefferson. Only a few broken windows were the marks left by the blast there.

Only some trick of fate prevented a greater blast. The magazine containing 800 quarts of stored explosive stood only about 100 feet from the mixing room where the explosion occurred. Its wood roof was blown off, but its contents did not explode.

ESTIMATING DAMAGE BY THE WASHINGTON TORNADO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Under the guiding hand of the Red Cross whose physical and financial resources already were strained because of recent floods, explosions, and other far flung catastrophes, rehabilitation of the tornado-stricken areas of Washington and nearby communities in Virginia and Maryland proceeded rapidly as surveys went forward definitely to fix the damage.

District of Columbia engineers, after an offical inspection, estimated the damage from yesterday's storm in Washington at between $700,000 and $800,000 including the havoc wrought at the naval air station at Anacostia and the Washington navy yard. Nearly $300,000 was believed to have been the toll of destruction in Alexandria, Va., and Cottage City, Colmar Manor, Hyattsville and other Maryland suburbs.

While more than a hundred persons suffered more or less minor inuries, only eight were reported to have been severely hurt. niy one death occurred when a negro woman was struck by lightning while crossing a bridge.

Both fifty of the injured were Washingtonians.

A dozen or more were cared for at hospitals in Alexandria.

Three hundred and seventy-seven buildings and homes were estimated to have been affected by the tornado and thunderstorm in the capitol, most of them, however, being only unroofed or having windows or doors smashed. All were in the eastern section of the city.

Scores of small homes and outhouses were ripped open in the little, historic Virginia town eight miles south of Washington, where the storm apparently got its start yesterday afternoon.

Red Cross relief headquarters was established here early today at a northeast playground center. Miss Edith Spray, who played a prominent part in the relief work after the La Plata, Md., tornado of last year, was named director. Local chapters were handling the situations at nearby points. No outside aid was needed.

FLOOD MENACE AVERTED BY DROP IN TEMPERATURE

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A sudden drop in temperature today tamed the sweltering rivers of northern Vermont and averted a new flood menace. The crisp, cold weather following a rainstorm that threatened to rival the downpour which fed the flood two weeks ago was hailed with joy by the score pressed residents of the flood stricken areas.

The heavy rain which set in yesterday morning continued through last night. The rivers rose rapidly and the fear of a second calamitous flood was widely felt by thousands still struggling to overcome the ravages of the first visitation. Minor damage to bridges and highways was caused by the swiftly rising waters, but this was immaterial in corparison with the losses caused by the original flood.

The rain ceased this morning and was replaced by clear cold weather. Tonight the thermometer was falling steadily and the water with it.

AMMUNITION PLOT WAS NIPPED IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18—(AP)—Ammunition running plot originating in New York and involving Honduran and Mexican smugglers was nipped here today when customs officers seized 1,500 rounds of 37 calibre cartridges aboard the steamships Choluteca, bound for Puerto Cortez, Honduras, and the Lake Wimico with Tampico as its destination.

Five members of the Choluteca crew confessed ownership of 4,500 rounds of cartridges taken from their quarters. The men, Franklin Woods, Carlos Gracia, Juan Potellia, Joe Martinez and Juan Lopez, declared they received the shipment from unidentified men in New York who told them they would be met in New Orleans by agents who would instruct them on its distribution. The seamen said their confederates failed to appear.

COLCHESTER MAN INJURED WHEN HE FELL FROM ROOF

COLCHESTER, Conn., Nov. 18—(AP)—Harold F. Brown of this place was severely injured tonight when he fell from a second story roof while attempting to put out a chimney fire on a neighbors house. Brown landed on a cement walk and suffered injuries to his leg. An X-ray will be taken tomorrow to determine the extent of his injuries.

DISPLAY OF FURY BY GEORGE REMUS IN COURT

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A jury was obtained today in George Remus' murder trial and the final stage of the five-day effort brought about an outburst of rage by Remus in which he stormed, shouted and screamed for fifteen minutes.

Charles P. Taft, youthful prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county and son of William H. Taft, former president, now chief justice of the United States, and Carl E. Basler, assistant prosecutor, were the especial targets as, red of face, tears in his eyes, and his gigantic, booming voice at times choking in his throat or breaking in a high falsetto, Remus raged.

"Man, if I had you in the corridor, I would wreck you physically," he screamed at young Taft.

The display of fury in the man whose sole hope for life is based upon his plea that he was temporarily maniacciy insane when he shot and killed his estranged second wife, Imogene, here last October 6, electrified the court room. From the raised dais upon which quietly and restrainedly sat Judge Chester R. Shook, to the farthest spectator who of hundreds had managed to gain admission, the entire courtroom sat seemingly spellbound.

Remus' outburst had two very interested spectators in allenists appointed by the court to be called by either side or Judge Shook to testify as to their observations of the defendant's mental condition.

In the end, Remus calmed and mopping the tears from his eyes and the perspiration from his face and head, sat down and whirled upon the newspaper reporters nearest him.

"How was that?" he demanded. "Did I make an impression?"

His point had been sufficiently well taken legally to win a ruling from Judge Shoko, for the court upheld Remus' right to ask the question of the thirteenth, or emergency juror which had precipitated the wild scene.

LIQUOR BILL BOTHERS ULSTER PARLIAMENT

BELFAST, Ireland, Nov. 18—(AP)—The efforts of the Ulster government to smooth out legal anomolies arising from the liquor bill of 1923 which is regarded as the first step toward local option in Ulster, are stirring up plenty of debate.

The bill even kept the Ulster parliament up all night, the first time in its history, and it was not until four o'clock this morning that parliament adjourned, the opposition members being successful in preventing the bill from passing through more than committee stage.

The chief clause of the new bill gives any commissioned officer of the police the right to enter a club at any time without warrant to detect improper drinking. This is bitterly opposed by the nationalists led by Joseph Devlin and members of various clubs who resent any attempt to curb their freedom.

Another clause gives a hotel resident the right to have a drink without a meal on Sundays. This is not now permitted, an effort to restore Sunday opening of public houses was defeated during the session.

More Indianapolis Officials Indicted

Six of the City's Councilmen Are Involved in Bribery Charge.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 18—(AP)—Additional political scandal was unearthed here today when indictments were returned charging four councilmen with having attempted to "shake down" John L. Duvall in exchange for letting him retain office as mayor of Indianapolis after he had been convicted of violating the corrupt practice act.

True bills were returned by the Marion county grand jury against Claude E. Negley, council president; Austin H. Todd, Walter R. Dorsett and Boynton J. Moore, all republicans.

Dorsett and Moore, along with Councilmen Otis E. Bartholomew, republican and Millard W. Ferguson, democrat, recently were indicted for bribery in connection with filling station legislation.

After today's action, six of the city's nine councilmen are under indictment. They will be arraigned December 5. In addition, former Mayor Duvall and several other members of his original official family either have been indicted or arrested on affidavits charging law violation.

Councilmen Negley and Dorsett are charged with having solicited and accepted money after the council on October 15, threatened to bring impeachment proceedings against Duvall.

A resolution was presented but subsequently was killed, it is alleged in the indictments, after passing of money between Duvall and Negley and Dorsett. Later the three democratic members of the council were joined by republicans to elect L. Bert Slack, a democrat, as mayor, after Duvall resigned.

Negley, president of the council, was mayor pro-tempore from October 27 to November 8—between the time Duvall quit and the time Slack was named.

In addition to returning indictments against six of the councilmen, the grand jury has indicted Duvall, Governar Ed. Jackson, George V. Coffin, Mario ncounty republican chairman; Robert I. Marsh, law partner of Jackson and attorney for the Ku Klux Klan, and several other Indianapolis politicians.

Jackson, Coffin and Marsh are charged with attempting to bribe former Governor Warren T. McCray.

The grand jury will resume its duties on November 28.

FOUR MEN PUT TO DEATH IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 18—(AP)—In the space of exactly half an hour four men tonight were put to death in the electric chair in state prison for the murder of George F. Condit, paymaster for the Reid Ice Cream company in Newark, July 19, 1926.

It was the first time in New Jersey that four persons were put to death for the slaying of one, and the second time that four were executed on one night.

Principal Keeper Timothy J. Murphy said the men remained comparatively calm when they were informed at 3:30 p. m. that Governor Moore had declined to grant a last-minute reprieve. An elaborate dinner of clam chowder, fish, nuts and fruit was ordered by all but "Big Joe," but they paid it scant attention, the keep said.

To Aid Business and Industry in Vermont

Plans Are Being Formulated Under Direction of Secretary Hoover.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 18—(AP)—Taking Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover's suggestion for re-establishment of industrial credit in Vermont the New England council at its final session today created a finance committee which will proceed at once with steps to aid business and industry in the flood-swept state.

The secretary of commerce appeared before the conference today, summarized the damage in the flood area and brought out four phases of rehabilitation, the last of which, that of business losses, he put forward as one for the council's attention. The other phases—individual aid, railway reconstruction and highway restoration—were being cared for through other agencies, he said.

Mr. Hoover said that from his observations in Vermont, he placed the flood damage at between 30 and 40 millions of dollars. Individual losses are being attended to by the Red Cross, railways, with one exception, have been able to finance their own reconstruction; and highways are expected to be rebuilt through federal and state cooperation.

Speaking on the character of the people involved in the disaster, Mr. Hoover said: "I am convinced that the character of the disaster and its results are far beyond the ability of these people to provide for themselves. It appears to me that it becomes the duty of others to ask on their behalf and to enter upon their problems, not in the attitude of charity, but in the attitude of a national interest in the important and early rehabilitation of an important section of our country."

Following his address, John S. Lawrence, president of the council, presented a plan for the creation of a committee to put in effect the suggestionoutlined by the secretary of commerce. This was unanimously adopted and President Lawrence named a commitete of 12 which will meet shortly.

STEAMSHIP BLOWN UP AT DOCK IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The steamship Jacob Luckenbach blew up in dry dock today, killing one workman and injuring four of the others who were cutting her to pieces with acetylene torches. A quantity of oil remaining in her fuel bin may have been set off by the flames.

In addition, one man was believed blown overboard.

It was the third fatal explosion on board ship in this port within a year, bringing the twelve-month total to 13 dead, 12 missing, and four score injured.

With sealed hatches, the oil-burning freighter had been towed here for scrapping, after going on the rocks off Costa Rica. Fifteen men at work on board here were tossed about like pigmies when with a roar greater than any southern storms she had weathered, the ship was shaken like "a terrier shakes a rat."

Bruised, cut and bleeding, but heroes all, those who had been pitched and thrown by the blast clambered back aboard to rescue the more seriously injured.

They found Thomas Simonson, a 50-year-old lugger, dead from a piece of steel which had pierced his skull.

Raymond Carson, 23, who had been operating a torch lay on the deck with a possible broken neck, while Michael Jolio was cut and bruised. The condition of both was critical.

The other injured were George Durr, and Joseph Kadza, cut and bruised.

BORAH WARNS SUPPORTERS OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Senator From Idaho Told Grangers in Convention at Cleveland That Unless Advocates of Prohibition Bring About a Better Enforcement of the Amendment They Must Face a Fight For Its Repeal—Believes the Law Can Be Enforced, But Asserts That No Provision of the Constitution Should Be Permitted to Stand Indefinitely Against the Will of the American People.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Supporters of prohibition must ether bring about a better enforcement of the eighteenth amendment or "face the fight to take it out of the constitution," Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, told several thousand members of the National Grange at their convention here tonight.

"I venture the opinion that if the eighteenth amendment cannot be enforced and the people so conclude, they will take the eighteenth amendment out of the constitution," the senator said.

"The most solemn impeachment of constitutional government than I can conceive of is to have in the charter of government a provision that is being constantly and notoriously disregarded. That kind of impeachment of constitutional government, the people of this country will not endure. You must either enforce this amendment or face the fight to take it out of the constitution."

Declaring that all laws must be enforced by the agencies of political parties, Senator Borah told the grange members that "when political parties take up this law and execute it with the same dispatch that they do other laws, you will realize the worth of the victory for which you have been fighting for fifty years. But so long as this side stepping continues, there will be no adequate enforcement.

"What I am asking for is party and political fidelity to the constitution as it has been written. I am against the liquor triffac, but I think more of constitutional government that I do about the liquor traffic," Senator Borah asserted. "I think democratic institutions are passing through as severe a test as they have ever had or will have. Fascism on one hand, communism on the other and a vast drove of timid souls in between makes a pretty hard fight for democratic institutions.

"If the time ever comes, when a provision of the fundamental law under which we live is scoffed at, derided and denounced, nullified and still permitted to remain a part of the constitution, that, in my judgment, will be the final impeachment of constitutional government. I favor, therefore, the mobilizing of every ounce of power and political efficiency that we have to enforce this amendment. I would not compromise upon the subject in any way, shape or form, but if the time ever comes, when it is apparent that the people as a people do not propose to enforce it, then I venture to say they will take it out of the constitution and they ought to. No provision of this constitution ought to be permitted to stand indefinitely against the will of the American people.

"I believe it can be enforced. It is within the power of the party of which I am a member to enforce it. If it fails to do so, it strikes a blow at the cause of prohibition and a still more vital blow at the cause of constitutional government. For a great political party to stand neither for maintenance or repeal seems to me a sorry plight in democratic institutions."

Declaring that those who favor nullification of the prohibition amendment have "been thrown into a state of ecstacy" by discovering the fifteenth amendment which they say also is being violated, Senator Borah called upon the republican party to take a stand for its enforcement along with prohibition.

"If the fifteenth amendment, granting the right of suffrage is being violated and it can be shown, then it would be a shameless betrayel of a public duty for the republican party not to enforce it, or stand for its repeal, one of the two."

Senator Borah spoke at the end of a ritualistic service of the grange in which more than 10,000 members, including himself, were given either the sixth or seventh degrees of the order. The seventh degree is the highest.

BISHOP THOMAS NICHOLSON NOT IN ACCORD WITH BORAH

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18—(AP)—Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Detroit, president of the Anti-Saloon League of America, does not believe, with Senator Borah, that the major political parties should insert a plank on prohibition in their platforms.

The bishop, who is attending the annual meeting of the board of home missions and church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, spoke today at a luncheon of leaders in the prohibition movement.

"My reason for not agreeing with Senator Borah," said Bishop Nicholson, "is that we do not need to ask the political parties to put a prohibition plan in their platforms. A plan is something the political party promises to get. The people have spoken through a two-thirds majority of congress and by the ratification of 46 states. They have put prohibition in the constitution, which constitutes an order of the people to the political parties to obey and enforce it.

"We should hold of the party in power to the enforcement of the constitution. The duty of the party that elects a president is to see that there is no nullification of the constitution."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HAS INCREASED ITS BUDGET

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18—(AP)—A million-dollar a year budget for the next five years is the aim of the Anti-Saloon league, the Rev. Howard Hyde Russell, associate superintendent, and one of the founders of the organization, revealed here today.

Dr. Russell's statement followed the prediction of Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Detroit, president of the Anti-Saloon league of America, that the struggle between the prohibition leaders "and the army of law-breakers and bootleggers' would come to a head within the next four or five years.

"The bootleggers," Bishop Nicholson asserted, "are trying to unfix by violation of the law what the people of the country have accomplished by legal procedure."

The bishop said he disagreed with Senator Borah that the major political parties should insert a prohibition plank in their platforms.

"At least 85 per cent. of the making and selling of liquor," Dr. Russell told the diners, "has disappeared and six billion dollars more actual cash is in the country's pocket since prohibition.

"I will tell you that to carry on our program the budget of the Anti-Saloon league for the next five years has been set at $650,000 a year, or double the best income we have had in recent years. That figure, however, is a minimum, as we hope to push it up to a million.

EVADING EVICTION FROM RITZ TOWER APARTMENTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Subsisting on sandwiches, apples and other easily portable articles of food, brought him by his attorney, a tenant of the exclusive Ritz Tower apartments, has stood guard in his apartments for 12 days to prevent the management from locking him out.

The tenant is Capt. A. Graham Miles, former husband of Mrs. Clover Boldt Miles, daughter of the late George C. Boldt, who at one time was owner of the Waldorf-Astoria. His attorney, who revealed the details of the "seige" today, said papers had been drawn in a $25,000 damage suit to be brought against the Ritz Tower company.

Capt. Miles, the attorney said, returned to his apartment Nov. 5 to find the lock on his door changed. He entered by crawling along a ledge from an adjoining apartment and has remained inside ever since.

A representative of the apartment house management said Capt. Miles had been "responsible for numerous unpleasant and disagreeable incidents about the hotel," and the management was sufficiently anxious to have him leave to waive payment of $700 unpaid rent.

Capt. Miles has an income of $1,750 a month from a trust fund established by his former wife, who inherited half of her father's $20,000,000 estate.

JEWETT CITY

RED CROSS SPECIFIES CLOTHING THAT IS WANTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 18.—Mrs. J. H. Tracy, secretary of Jewett City chapter American Red Cross, wrote recently to national headquarters concerning the sending of clothing to the flood sufferers in New England. An answer was received Friday. Any clothing is acceptable that is good winter weight, but no shoes, hats or furs are wanted. Contributed articles may be left at J. H. Tracy's home or store, or will be called for by notifying Mrs. Tracy. The letter reads:

My dear Miss Tracy:

Thank you for your letter of November 15. I realize that the Connecticut chapters are very much interested in the flood area in New England. We have been keeping careful check on the need for clothing in this area and at present our workers assure us that they have warehouses stocked with clothing and that no additional garments are required at this time. To make perfectly sure, however, carload shipments have been made into the area and one of our headquarters' staff, Miss Dorothy Stewart, has been put in charge of the distribution to all points.

We shall be grateful if you will continue your request for used clothing for the flood sufferers and ship what is collected to the shipping center in New Haven with the understanding that the clothing will be used in New England if needed, otherwise it will be sent to Mississippi. I am sure that the people contributing clothing will feel that this is a fair arrangement. We have no reason to believe that the people in New England are in need of clothing at the present time but we do know that winter clothing is very badly needed in the Mississippi river flood area.

We are delighted that the 11th roll call in Jewett City chapter has progressed so successfully and particularly pleased to note that you have already exceeded the goal which we hoped you would reach. It is by the careful organization which you outlined in your letter that such results are achieved and we are aware of the great amount of time an effort that it has represented. We are sincerely grateful to you and your workers for what has been done.

Very sincerely yours,
ROBERT E. BONDY,
Manager, Eastern Area.

We trust that your chapter is carrying out the suggestion contained in Judge Payne's telegram of November 8th, placing special emphasis on an increased membership as the best means of rendering assistance through the Red Cross to New England flood sufferers.

NOANK

Kid Sherman, the star featherweight boxer of the village has kept away from the public eye for the past two months, but was training hard again. He has been unloading a carload of pig iron out of town. He claims it is good for his wind. That is the kid's latest stunt in the training line. He was out on the road with Dear Butson putting him through his daily dozen early in the morning. Then his powerboat was ready for a one-half mile row. Then came a rubdown by his trainer, Howard Brown. His breakfast consisted of Johnny cakes and grapefruit, with eggs. After that he took an hour rest, later putting on his fighting togs ready for three boxers for 17 rounds. The first one to face Kid Sherman was Cyclone Bane, of Massachusetts. For six rounds sherman was trying out his old trick, letting his man stay awhile, trying shadow boxing. But the boy from the city knew his onions about the boxing game. Cyclone had read every page of the book and fought the Pride of the Fishing Village in close, playing for his head. It was some fight and it ended in a fast draw, for the Kid was lucky with Cyclone. Then came from the dressing room to enter the ring Cross-Fire Peter Mullins, a man with a hard left. It was a six round go, but in the second round Sherman caught Mullins with his right and sent him down for the full count and he was helped to his corner. The last man to fight the featherweight Kid was Battling Sam Crane, a bad man with both hands. It was for five rounds. Both were boxing at long range. Sam said "come in and exchange blows!" and they did and in the fourth round Kid Sherman hit the floor for the count of eight, by a left undercut. It is the first time he was down so long. But, game, he came back for more. Both were fast when the fight was over, but Battling Crane won the match on points. Kid Sherman said he was never in better condition in his life and all set for a real battle with Bush Shea of Bridgeport, or anybody his weight. He is waiting for the matchmaker now. In two weeks again Kid Sherman will tell the newspaper what he is doing in the training line and tell how he can come back. If Dempsey failed twice, Sherman will make it.

Miss Mary Curtin sang several songs with John Bracci at the piano. Miss Julia Sheehan read palms and what she told caused a great laugh. Bruno Bracci showed the guests how he played a solo on a hand saw. The Fighting Four orchestra played for dancing. In the dining room the table was set for a Blackstone chowder, followed by whipped cream cake. On behalf of the team Captain Flash McDonald gave Coach DeBlaisi a wrist watch. He said, "Players, I thank you all! It is more than I expected and before we put away our suits for the season we would like to play the Speed Boys of Jewett City, with their Mystery Man, who has made a name for himself in that borough. I think the Crushers' new line can stop him! We got beaten by a big score by the Speed Boys in Jewett City, but let us arrange a game down in the Village by the Sea on turkey day!" DANIELSON

POND TO BE DRAWN DOWN TODAY IN SEARCH OF BODY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON Nov. 18—This afternoon State Officers Nelson and Castagne were at Wilsonville again and along the river below that point seeking for the body of the young woman who is believed to have lost her life when a car owned by Jerome V. Sheldon of Watertown, Mass., went off the highway into the Keegan mill pond, costing Sheldon his life, the accident happening Armistice day.

Nothing special was disclosed by the search of this afternoon. The arrangement today was to draw down the river to its lowest possible point after the mills along the stream cease operating Saturday noon. With the river down a better chance of finding the body, if there is one in the water, will be afforded than at any other time since the accident occurred. In all the days that have passed since Sheldon was drowned scores of people have watched the mill pond and along the river below that point in the hope of locating the body, and hundreds have visited the scene of the accident out of mere curiosity.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Joseph Caron was held from her home with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. James McCarthy being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Included in the large funeral congregation was a delegation of members of the Ste. Anne society, of which Mrs. Caron was a member. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Joseph Demers, M. S. The bearers were Amadee Lemieux, Pierre Rondeau, Henri Goulet, Alcid Guimont, Pierre Turgeon and Benoni Meunier. Honorary bearers representing the Ste. Anne society were Mrs. Francis Godreau, Mrs. Omer Aubin, Mrs. Joseph Gallichant, Mrs. Martin T. Burns, Mrs. Joseph Veigard, Mrs. Pierre Rondeau. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

This afternoon's report on the enrollment effort of the Red Cross in the Danielson territory was reported as progressing in a manner to give very considerable encouragement to the splendid organization that has the canvass in charge this year. All the week the workers have been diligently pursuing the special assignments given them and have covered the majority of the streets of the borough in house to house visitations. Not since the war has there been so many people enrolled here as Red Cross members.

However, the work is not complete and will not be until next Monday evening. On Saturday Tri-Y girls, working under the direction of Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney, will be on duty at the various banks in town and on Sunday this same organization will have representatives at the Baptist and Congregational churches in the interest of the Red Cross roll call. The final effort to put the local campaign over the top will be made during Monday, and at the week end the committee is anticipating that its final report will be highly interesting. W. E. Parker, chairman of the local chapter, is being given much deserved credit for the fine organization and system built up to handle this year's enrollment work here.

Few moves are made by town officials without being scanned by large numbers of citizens for the political reason they suspect may be behind them. Such an instance is at hand just now. The selectmen have voted to lease the town hall for a year to the highest bidder. Only recently it was announced, following a meeting of the board, that the hall would be redecorated and reserved for town and civic purposes. The change to the leasing plan is what is interesting many citizens. As to the advisability of leasing, many pros and cons are to be heard. Many favor leasing, many express themselves as being opposed. And it was just that way, too, when the selectmen decided not to lease. Once again we have here a situation in which it is impossible to please everyone.

However, from the economic standpoint, there is this argument by those who favor the leasing. Killingly has a higher tax rate than usual this year. Saving the money that redecorating the hall would cost, and obtaining such revenue as the leasing of the hall will bring in probably means as much as $1,000 on the credit side of the ledger. Not enough to reduce the tax rate more than a fraction of a mill, but a step in that direction, and several such economies would bring a tax cut of a mill. Then, if necessary, the town could hold its meetings in the fine new auditorium of the high school. It hasn't been done, but it could be if a more delightful setting for town gatherings is essential.

The fine weather is proving a great boon to workers in the building and allied trades in Danielson. They are as busy as bees these late November days, and contractors say they have enough work in sight to keep going at top speed for an indefinite period if old winter does not cut in to slow up operations. All of this means that many men are kept as busily engaged at full pay as during the more gracious periods of the year, and that their year's earnings will be materially increased over an ordinary year with a cold and stormy fall.

Henry C. Stoddard, graduate of Killingly High school, was one of a group of 11 candidates who took the preliminary examination for entrance to the United States Military academy at West Point, at the office of the adjutant general in Hartford this week. Mr. Stoddard, as a member of the Service battery, is in the Connecticut National Guard list of candidates for entrance.

The pastor of the church, Rev. James F. English, conducts the services and gives a brief address on the thought behind the picture or some other theme of interest to the congregation. Owing to the great popularity of these friendly evening services, the number of them has been increased from the original "Nine Friendly Evenings" and the meetings will be held on Sunday evenings until next Easter.

CUTTING DOWN ACCIDENTS

There are times when it seems as if all the efforts which are being put forth in behalf of greater safety in the highways amounts to nothing. That is, the number of accidents and fatalities appears to gain in spite of the endeavors to prevent them.

It is therefore gratifying when it is set forth by the motor vehicle department that the motor vehicle accident and death rate in Connecticut will show a decrease in 1927. The year certainly didn't start off with such a prospect. It was as if there was glory to be obtained in going ahead of previous records, as if more accidents were desirable.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel attributed the change to the efforts which have been put forth by various organizations and schools, and the assistance of the newspapers, in keeping safety ideas before the public, or in other words hammering home the need of giving attention to known perils and getting a response from those who have been disposed to be careless.

Connecticut welcomes the news that safety in the highways is getting more respect and it has reason to feel that the good work that is being accomplished here in making the best accident record in five years is not alone confined to this state for the registrar of motor vehicles in Massachusetts reports motor accidents showing a decrease this month which is attributed there to a better enforcement policy throughout that state.

Most accidents are preventable. They ought not to occur and would not if sufficient care were exercised and a disposition shown to give proper regard to the rights of others instead of looking upon the highway as a racetrack where exclusive rights prevailed.

From time to time it has been shown that the percentage of accidents to the number of automobiles showed a decrease. That is, however, not enough, there should be less accidents even though there are more motor vehicles and there will be if the right kind of effort is made.

AID FOR VERMONT

Interest has prevailed from the beginning in the plight of the Vermont flood sufferers and it can be expected that it will continue until their needs are supplied. Various agencies are at work and of no little importance are the services which are being rendered through the federal government.

Perhaps there has not been a full realization of the great havoc that was wrought in the Green mountain state, but when the survey which has been made by Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce places it between 30 and 40 million it brings a keener realisation of the situation and accentuates the need of outside assistance in bringing about a restoration of normal conditions.

There are various problems to be met. Some of them are and have been getting more attention than others. The assistance to individuals was perhaps the first thing to command attention. That is being taken care of through various agencies with the Red Cross as the leader. Then there is the restoration of the railroads and the highways and considering the damage done good progress is being made in this direction by the railroads and by the state. In the clearing up of much of the debris in the communities everyone within call, together with numbers of volunteers, has been pressed into service. These represent pressing problems but problems for which assistance is usually available.

When it comes to the restoration of business and industry it is another thing. It can be done provided there is available the needed financial assistance and it is that which Secretary Hoover recommends be provided through the setting up of a finance committee by the New England council. With industrial credit reestablished Vermont will make rapid response to the efforts for restoration. It is not too much to overcome the economic handicaps which now prevail in that state and the New England council is the very organization that should have commanding influence in such na accomplishment.

GRAY'S ACCOMPLISHMENT

After a careful study of the conditions surrounding the recent balloon ascension of Captain Gray in an effort to establish a new altitude record, and the calibration of his barograph, it has been declared that he reached the highest altitude ever attained by man. He is credited with have gone 42,470 feet above the earth and his accomplishment is not discredited because in so doing he scarificed his life, having been found dead in the basket of his balloon when it was discovered.

No one will ever know just what the circumstances were under which he lost his life, but it is believed by those who made the investigation that he was so weakened by the thin air at the great height that while changing his tube from one oxygen tank to another he lacked the strength to turn the valve and was suffocated to death. Two oxygen tanks were found to be completely full upon examination, although the first impression was that his death had come after the exhaustion of his oxygen supply.

This sacrifice stands out in marked contrast to the altitude flight of that French aviator, Callizo, who came back to earth one day and insisted that he had been to a height of 46,000 feet and suffered all kinds of harrowing experiences in so doing. Only when it was discovered that he had fixed his barograph before leaving the earth and had never gone to any unusual height and had had no hardships was it determined that he had faked his flight. Another barograph secretly placed in his plane had disclosed his false claim.

Callizo was ready and eager to get flight through dishonesty. Not so with flight through dishonesty. No so with Gray. He was determined to get there but only at the cost of his life, and it is only just that the fact that he did give up his life detracts nothing from what was actually accomplished. It goes to show, however, just what is faced by those who set out into the high altitudes even when in good physical condition.

HARNESSING FLOOD WATERS

As the result of the showing by the large reservoirs established by power companies in the recent flood, it was to be expected that plans would be announced by others to build more of them for power purposes but also as a means of contributing to flood control.

Such plans are being put forth. One association contemplates constructing one that will mean the storage of 90,000,000,000 gallons of water at different points up through the Connecticut valley. These great storage basins would be ready to receive the results of heavy rainfalls, the melting of the snow and the spring rains and so retard the rush of waters as to keep the big river within its banks. When one of the reservoirs already in existence was able to take care of a nine inch rainfall on its big watershed without running over some idea of what may be expected from numerous other storage basins is furnished.

Certainly if such great quantities of water can be kept from increasing the volume otherwise going into the river the dangers from floods will be much reduced. It is realized of course that there is a tremendous loss suffered in not being able to harness flood waters. Think what electric current might have been generated by that which rushed down the Connecticut from the flood and what aid it would be to the river industries if it was held back until it was really needed in time of drought or low water.

Through the engineers there are problems which can be worked out that will give greater protection against floods as well as provide the means for more and cheaper power

LONG DISTANCE IDENTIFICATION

Crooks resort to all kinds of tricks to escape the penalty for their acts. Flight is a common one and if they can get to some distant point and keep under cover they consider they are secure until time weakens memory. Likewise distance makes it much more difficult to establish identity.

There were days when this was good criminal philosophy, but times and conditions have changed. Through the present methods of communication and the system of fingerprinting those who rely upon distance, changed appearances and the like are far less secure than in other days.

There is an interesting illustration in the case of a fugitive from justice in London, who made his way to this country and thought he had hid away in Chicago. He had apparently raised up a cloud of doubt as to his identity but when his finger prints were transmitted through the air from London to Chicago they were found to correspond to those which he made in Chicago and the game was up. His identity was completely established and back he must go to face the charge against him. Of course it is discouraging to the criminally inclined but it is a fine thing for justice.

Finger printing as a means of identification is of such importance that it should be more generally employed, for it is valuable in so many other ways than dealing with criminals. Frequently it has furnished a protection to individuals that would have been obtained in no other way and there are even more numerous cases where it would have ended much uncertainty and avoided much trouble had it been resorted to previously.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

That the world is forging ahead at a speed that is almost uncanny is evidenced by the proposition to throw across the Hudson river a mammoth suspension bridge, connecting 178th street, New York, with the Palisades, far and away beyond anything thus far attempted by the ingenuity of man along this line. What a change of sentiment does it represent since 1776 when "the fighting colonist took their ships and sank them in the Hudson river to block the passage upward of the British fleet!" This was obviously done to obstruct transportation, but the new "Colossus" is intended to speed up transportation. Obstruction is the watchword of war; expansion and speed are the two twin pillars of peace and prosperity. A bridge that will easily accommodate eight lines of cars—four going each way—is some bridge, and the public can well afford to wait several years before such an undertaking is completed.

Those who have been in Court square, Springfield, Mass., have seen the imposing granite building with the word "Justicia" carved in the solid monolith over the main entrance. When the building was completed (many years ago) Dr. Samuel G. Buckingham, of sainted memory, long time pastor of the South Congregational church of that city, wrote a letter to the Springfield Republican suggesting that the wrong Latin word had been used. In his opinion the word "Lex" would have been far more appropriate than "Justicia." His letter was taken, and very justly, as a criticism on our so-called courts of justice. He evidently looked upon the new and costly building as a place where law with all its quibbles would be exploited at the expense of justice. Not only the Republican but the public generally looked at it in the same light. It was then, and seems to be more so now, that a man with a long pocket-book escapes punishment which would be impossible for a poor guy.

It is being said in some quarters that religion has lost its influence with college students. Every once in so often we have similar statements. But is the statement true? Well, that depends on what you mean by religion! If by religion you mean the hard, cold dogmatic theology that reigned supreme so long in New England pulpits and elsewhere for at least two centuries, it must be admitted that the college students of today have little use for it, or any others who have kept abreast with the thought of the times. But if you mean by religion the highest quality of life as expressed in the career and spirit of Christ, then religion is a vital issue still with college students. Take Storrs for an illustration. The little white church of small seating capacity has given place to a large and beautiful structure costing $350,000. As far as my personal observation goes edifices are nowhere erected to perpetuate dead issues. Religion as a practically working hypothesis was never more in evidence than today in colleges.

It is refreshing to note that there is little, if any, tendency today in the press or pulpit to attribute calamity to the wrath of God; or that it is God's method of punishment. Once the pulpit spoke with assured dogmatism on the subject. Was not this, for the most part, a relic of paganism? All heathenism looks upon calamity as the expressed wrath of some avenging deity. And unfortunately some of it crept into both Judaism and Christianity. Can we rationally believe that the recent flood that made such havoc in the Connecticut valley and elsewhere was sent by our Heavenly Father as a punishment? Once the pulpit would have proclaimed it as such. If so does it comport with any known system of justice? If the flood had selected in its course only the very bad and had left secure the very good we might believe in that theory. The flood swept both the good and the bad.

That brief period of silence following the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles on Armistice day was very impressive. There are times when profound silence speaks louder than any vocal utterance. It repeated—not to our ears—but to our hearts the story of that carnage unequalled in human history. It was a silence that made us feel that a very poor recompense was given for such a carnival of bloodshed! For ten years we have been asking ourselves what have we gained by it, and our loss was nothing in comparison to what Europe suffered. There are things we feel and ought to feel, and say as little about as is humanly possible. One has but to look at the poor, disgraced and despised exile at Doorn who dares not to move away from his estate without fear of arrest. Probably never again will he be allowed to enter Germany, and one would think that under the circumstances it is the last place on earth he would want to see.

If there is the least crumb of comfort in any disaster it ought to be worked for all it was worth. There is, however, some comfort in the thought that the recent flood that wrought such havoc in the Connecticut valley and elsewhere has brought a gleam of white light in an otherwise dark and leaden sky. That is in the nation's response in the tangible attempt to do all that is humanly possible to relieve suffering in the stricken area and suffering there truly is along many lines. Six hundred Dartmouth students, laying down Grek and Latin and taking up the shovel and the hoe, joining in a widespread effort to restore normal conditions is exactly what one would expect of college men. The Red Cross also was alive to its opportunities, and other humanitarian agencies have shown celerity and efficiency in meeting a very difficult situation.

While there are still many more things for us to learn in relation to calamities such as that recently experienced, and while we ought to make a great deal more of what we have learned from science and along other lines, yet it is unaccountable that in some quarters they are talking of the collapse of modern civilization: that we are slowly sinking back into the dark ages of paganism. How this can be honestly asserted in the face of recent accomplishments really staggers one's belief. When a young American a few months ago flew single-handed across the Atlantic to Paris and became the wonder of the world and received an ovation as is seldom given to kings, did it appear like lapsing again into the dark ages? When we consider how diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid once ravaged communities, and how quickly they are stamped out in these days we are not reminded of dark ages conditions.

We have already hung up the bases and bats, and very soon football will go into winter quarters. You have exercised yourselves with commendable energy—most of you boys—both on the diamond and the gridiron. Would it not be well for you lads during the coming months to put the same amount of energy into your studies! You will find just as much fun in making home runs in compound fractions and irregular verbs as in trotting around the bases and you won't puff half so much. To make a touchdown in history or algebra will not injure any of the ligaments of your brain. What joy you will experience during the cold season when the snow covers the ballfield to tuck away a good lesson not under your arm but safely in your brain and, without interference, advance along the forty yard line! For doing such a stunt you will not be penalized. The whistle has blown, boys, now go at it!

EFFECT OF PROHIBITION ON THE YOUTH.

Writing in Harper's Magazine Alfred E. Stearns, principal of Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., declares the liquor problem is complicated and baffling, and its ramifications seemingly endless.

"And yet there are some phases of this important question," continues Principal Stearns, "of which the public at large knows comparatively little and the study of which reveals interesting and significant facts. One of these phases is the effect of prohibition on the youth of today as revealed by the habits and conduct of the students in our boarding schools and colleges. Such student bodies represent a fair cross-section of a large element at least of American youth and an element too that is most often subjected to the limelight of publicity. If then we can determine with any degree of accuracy the effects of prohibition on this selected mass, from whom we expect to recruit the leaders of the coming generation, we shall have found fairly stable grounds on which to base our hopes or fears for the future.

"All educators are agreed, I think, that previous to the war and the adoption of national prohibition drinking among the students in our American schools and colleges had shown a steady and wholesome decline. With the war came a change. The excitement and strain of those hectic days exerted a tremendous and not always a beneficial influence on unstable youth. Some were inspired to heroism, others to reckless adventure, others still to folly. Drinking once more became a not uncommon thing among American youth; and schools and colleges alike noted and deplored the change. Nor was youth the only offender. Those of older and supposedly wiser years lost their poise as well and joined the ranks of the worst offenders.

"The end of the war did not bring an end to the unnatural conditions that war had bred. To the present day the effects of the war's reactions are still evident in our midst. Nowhere are these effects more noticeable than in the widespread and reckless drinking of a portion of our people who willingly break their country's laws, flaunt their country's constitution, risk their lives with rank poison so often masquerading under the name of liquor, hand over their money to unscrupulous bootleggers, criminals and murderers, in all this directly conspiring to shake the foundations of our national life itself. This strange attitude of so many otherwise respectable people will go down into history, I believe, as one of those occasional but striking instances of unaccountable human behavior.

"The imposition of prohibition alone does not account for this recklessness. The abnormal reactions of the war are still finding their expression in dimmed ideals, distorted vision, uncontrolled wills, a craving for excitement, and a general lettering down of standards the end of which is not liberty but license, alluring but dangerous. Curiously, the worst offenders are not found in the ranks of youth but among those of maturer years. Old age and youth appear to be maintaining or approaching something savoring of sane stability while middle age has not yet found its bearings. Unfortunately middle age embraces most of the parents of present-day youth. Those to whom youth should naturally look for ideals and guidance are setting strange and often dangerous examples, and it is to the everlasting credit of youth that, against and in spite of this pernicious influence, our boys and girls are developing a clearer vision.

"Too little attention has been given to the published reports of responsible college officers and others, who testified before the senate committee in Washington recently, of the beneficial effects of prohibition on the student body of Yale, a representative university, while contradictory testimony of two undergraduates, who had already earned the reputation of being "knockers," has been widely broadcasted through the public press. Let me repeat this favorable testimony as reported at the time.

"The following statement from Professor Charles C. Clark was read upon the witness stand.

'I am not a prohibitionist, and have never been. I will admit to you, however, that the effect of prohibition at Yale university has been good, I know whereof I speak, for I have been a member of the committee on discipline from a time dating back many years before prohibition.

'I know conditions intimately. I do not pretend that the students are prohibitionists or are not drinking, but the change has been simply revolutionary. In the old days our committee was constantly busy with cases involving intoxication and the disorders originating from it. Now we have practically no business of the kind at all to transact. Moreover, this is in spite of the fact that in the old days we rarely troubled ourselves about a case of mere intoxication if it had not resulted in some kind of public disorder whereas now intoxication of itself is regarded as calling for the severest penalty.'

"Colleges and schools alike admit and deplore the pernicious effect on the youth of today of the law-breaking element that now enters into the problem; and the schools especially lay emphasis on the fact that if week-end home goings and visits could be eliminated the liquor problem, so far as their student bodies are concerned, would practically disappear—a strange and somewhat disquieting commentary on the modern home.

"Nothing seems better calculated to develop hypocrisy and encourage sham among a large group of otherwise sane and respectable people than the liquor question of today. The curious and so often contradictory attitude of this group youth watches with increased misgivings. To its ears the constant and noisy talk about "personal liberty" does not ring true. On every side it sees accepted conditions where personal liberty is gladly surrendered for the common good, the more gladly when that common good reacts to the direct benefit of the one who makes the sacrifice. Father and father's relatives may talk themselves hoarse of their right to personal liberty in the matter of drink, but would speedily call the police if the drunken driver of an automobile, exercising his equal right to that same personal liberty, decided to drive on the wrong side of the street and collided with their car. All this youth sees and more than dimly comprehends.

"Nor is youth blind to the appalling increase in crime which gives this country, and by a wide margin, the unenviable leadership among the nations in this dastardly and preventable business. Youth listens to its elders as they talk in glowing terms of their great and free country, of its glorious history and destiny, of their love for it and their undying patriotism. But it notes too, and cannot forget that the money which these same "patriots" so freely hand over for forbidden and bootleg liquor is a direct contribution to the efforts of those who are deliberately undermining the foundations of our government and snapping its heart's blood. And youth is beginning to sense more and more clearly that hypocrisy and selfishness of this pernicious kind are a direct encouragement and invitation to the lowest dregs of society, thieves, murderers, and anarchists, to do their worst. Surely, youth reasons, there is something wrong with these professed "patriots," something woefully illogical in their arguments, something rotten underneath.

"For yet another reason are our boys concerned over the conditions that confront them. After all, it is their world that is in the making. The stage is being set for them and only a few years hence they will be called upon as men to play their parts on it. Today's sowing will yield a harvest which they must reap.

"To that later day youth is already looking forward; and the questionings of youthful minds are as to the character and setting of that stage, the quality of that harvest. No wonder that our thoughtful young men hesitate to join unreservedly with their elders in actions and attitudes that must spell for them in their later years danger and discord and loss of much at least that has made their country in the past great and powerful, and an ideal for a needy world.

"Youth must and will find a way out of the present muddle. Already our boys are leading the way. But the tragedy of it all is that this hard task must be accomplished not, as in all fairness it should be, with the wholehearted help and support of those of older and supposedly wiser years, but against and in spite of them.

"Whatever the advocates of personal liberty, law-breaking, and bootlegging may delude themselves into believing, youth is not easily or, at least, for long deceived. For a time youth, with its natural love of adventure and hostility to restraint, swung easily into the path chosen by its elders. For the moment it did not ask where that path might lead. But it is beginning to ask that question now; and there are increasing signs that youth is not satisfied with that questionable goal. It is not asking its elders for help; but it may rightly demand that we shall not hinder. But the pity of it is that there should be even a question as to where we stand and what our influence is to be."

A REAL THANKSGIVING

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto Thy name, O Most High.—Psalm 92:1.

If we would look for the things to be thankful for perhaps we might find far more than we at times in our narrow vision can see. Perhaps we are enlarging on our troubles and too unmindful to check up on our blessings which at the least are many. One great promise to those in trouble is Jesus' own words, "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulations; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." St. John 16:33. These words should bring cheer from the lips of the Master.

Now David, in the midst of his troubles would sing praises unto the Lord of Hosts.

If we should undertake to enumerate our blessings we would soon begin to realize God's great goodness and our troubles would be so few and small in comparison that our hearts would be filled with joy and thankfulness. The greatest thing to be thankful for is that God loves us and is all powerful and we know if we give our hearts to Him nothing will come into our lives that is not for our good. That all things work for good, for those that belong to the Lord. If we only had faith to believe it.

"Let us come before the Lord today with singing;
Gratitude for all His many mercies bringing:
Lift the heart in song until the heights
are ringing,
And the list'ning angels join in the glad refrain."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prince George of Serbia, whose engagement to Mrs. Dorothy C. Cochrane, American authoress, is announced in Paris, would now be king of Serbia had events taken their natural course. But in 1909 he was virtually compelled to renounce his rights to the throne. Because of the many unsavory escapades in which he had been involved before he was twenty-one Prince George was known as the "Bad Boy of Europe." For some time following the renunciation of his rights he lived the life of a private nobleman, partly at home and partly abroad. During the war he fought valiantly for the Serbian cause. After the war, virtually exiled from his own country, he lived on an estate at the junction of the Danube and Bravo rivers. Here he was seized with melancholia and only recently it was reported that he had attempted suicide.

Infantile Paralysis on Increase

By Franklin Martin, M. D., Chicago President, Gorgas Memorial

Infantile paralysis has been on the increase this year. From July 3, to October 1, there were 4,570 cases in the United States as compared with 1,228 cases for the corresponding period of last year, according to statistics compiled by the Unted States Public Health service.

Poliomyelitis is the correct name for the disease. J. P. Leake, surgeon of the United States Public Health service, who made an extensive study of poliomyelitis, has written the following concerning the diagnosis of the disease:

"Acute poliomyelitis sometimes, but not usually, results in paralysis. The ability to diagnose the disease in the absence of paralysis has only comparatively recently come to us, although Caverly, of Vermont, in 1894, and Wickman, of Sweden, in 1907, described such cases. If paralysis occurs, it is usually after the disease itself is well on its way, so that diagnosis of the nonparalytic stages and the nonparalytic cases is doubly important for the protection of contacts and for the institution of measures of treatment. Though preeminently a disease of children, it is by no means rare in adults; and the less urban the community the higher the average age of those affected. Thus for two reasons the frequently used term 'infantile paralysis' is [illegible] correct name for the disease.

"Draper and Haynes have emphasized two stages in the progress of the disease—first, that of general, or systemic, symptoms, and, second, that of invasion of the central nervous system, which frequently occurs between these two stages. But that is not the whole story; the disease is very commonly one of remissions at every stage. Though we cannot speak with such assurance about the systemic stage, it is probable that here, also, as is repeatedly observed in the meningitic and in the paralytic stages, there are remissions and regressions.

"The pathologic picture which will best convey the progress of the disease is first that of a general infection in a sick child or an indisposed adult; second, a meningitic invasion, from a very mild to a severe meningitis; and, third, in some cases an extension of the infection into the anterior horns of gray matter in the spinal cord and to a less extent into other parts of the central nervous system, with weakness, paralysis, and definite localized nervous symptoms. The stages may be clinically simultaneous, though usually meningeal signs precede an evident paralysis. Any two of these three stages may be absent, or at least so slight or transient as to pass undiscovered."

The combination of fever, vomiting, constipation, drowsiness, and irritability, especially when combined with headache, a transient flushing of the face, abnormal sweating, or retention of urine, is enough to cause a parent to feel fairly sure that the child has what is commonly known as infantile paralysis, and the family physician should be called at once.

MAKING APPEAL FOR THANKSGIVING DINNERS

The family welfare department of the United Workers is urgently in need of funds for Thanksgiving dinners. There are 130 baskets to be filled for families ranging in size from three members to 10. Over $160 is needed for meat alone, besides which the tea, coffee and sugar must be purchased. All the vegetables, nuts, jams and jellies, fruit and canned goods are contributed by the children, who are enthusiastically filling baskets at their respective schools. So far barely $20 has come in. This appeal is made in order to give to all people, who will sit down to groaning boards next Thursday, an opportunity to share their plenty. Contributions may be sent to the family welfare department of the United Workers at 9 Washington street.

War Against Tuberculosis Is On

A congressman from one of the western states says: "Our health is our greatest national asset, more valuable than any material thing. Tuberculosis is our great menace. The fight against it is a winning one, but must be pushed harder than ever before if tuberculosis is to be conquered.

"We have the knowledge practically to eliminate it, we lack the means to maintain the fight which has already cut the number of deaths caused by this terrible disease in our country from nearly 200 in every 100,000. In the past 25 years over 1,300,000 persons would have lost their lives from tuberculosis had the death rate of the year 1900 prevailed. I heartily endorse the work of the tuberculosis committee. Quote me as strong as you like, their work is of inestimable value."

If the people wish to do so the city of Norwich can be made the healthiest city in the United States by backing up the local committee. It is merely a matter of dollars and cents plus good hard work.
